PENNANT IS BOSTON'S,

All Uncertainty Ended by the Games of Thursday.

The Beaneaters Won and the Orioles Were Losers.

Remarkable Demonstration on the Brooklyn Grounds.

Brooklyn, Oct. 1.—The contest for the league pennant of 1897 practically came to an end with the conclusion of yesterday's game at Eastern park. Boston won the game, while Washington trounced the champions, which leaves the Bostons the undisputed champions for 1898. Even should the Baltimores win both games, they can only attain a percentage of 700 points. Should the Brooklyns win from the Bostons Saturday, the latter still would have a percentage of .704.

HUGH DUFFY.

The scenes at yesterday's game beggar description. In the second inning, when the Bostons scored five runs, which gave them a safe lead, men and women alike arose in their seats and yelled like demons. When the lead became so great that there was no more hope for the home team, the most faithful joined the Bostons and their rooters, and for a time nobody could hear anything else but people yelling "Boston." It was a great day for baseball in Brooklyn, and one that is not likely to be forgotten very quickly by those who attended.

Young Dunn was put in the box to fool the new champions, but Captain Griffin might as well have stood up a wooden man. The beaneaters had on their batting clothes, and the faster Dunn tossed them across the plate the harder Captain Duffy's men could line the leather out. The only trouble was that the batting was all on one side. The home team could do but little with Klobedanz, the Boston twirler. About the only time they hit him with any effect was in the third inning, when they scored all their runs.

FRANK G. SELER.

The fielding, like the batting, was one-sided. Brooklyn made only four actual errors, but then some of the players are guilty of some of the most stupid plays seen in many a day. The Bostons' work in the field was simply marvelous. Nothing seemed too hard for them to get. Lowe and Long alone cut off about four hits by their brilliant fielding.

Although the championship is settled, Saturday's game will prove important in many ways, as the local fans are already preparing to give the men from the Hub a great reception: The score:

BALTIMORES LOSE.

Washingtons Take One of the Games Played In That City.

Baltimore, Oct. 1.—The ghost of a chance that Baltimore had to win the pennant for next season no longer exists. It vanished early in yesterday's game, when the senators fell upon Dr. Pond's curves, batted him out of the box and took a good long lead in the fourth inning, after which the "orioles" seemed to lose heart, and played listlessly and without ambition. In the meantime the score board was showing how easily the Bostonians were taking their game away from Barnie's men in Brooklyn, and the last vestige of hope slowly died out in the breasts of the handful of faithful "rooters" who still clung to the belief that Brooklyn might take one from the leaders and give the "birds" a chance to catch up by winning all four from the senators. Those who have studied the game closely, however, had no such hope, as it was apparent to them that the Washington men had been playing in better form than have those from Brooklyn in recent games. Then it was known that the Washington managers were very anxious to win at least one from Baltimore, and would not be displeased to have the pennant go to Boston. To them, therefore, the result of yesterday's game was not unexpected.

The outcome of both games was watched, however, with great interest, and wherever crowds gathered bulletins were read to them. In almost every instance the news that Boston had clinched it and that the championship was no longer in doubt was received with satisfaction, and in some cases with cheers. This was notably the case at Pimlico, where the result by innings was read from the announcer's box during the trotting races in progress there. A postponed game was played today, and with Saturday's contest the season in Baltimore will come to an end. On Sunday morning the orioles will depart for Boston with the hope that they may at least save the Temple cup and gather in the lion's share of the gate receipts.

The story of the game is like the story of a stern chase at sea. Washington started the run getting in the very first inning. The score:

Batteries—Pond, Amole and Robinson; Mercer and McGuire.

New York, Oct. 1.—The New Yorks hit the ball when hits meant runs yesterday afternoon, and thus they won the second game of the closing series from the Philadelphias. Both Seymour and Wheeler were hit hard. The game was slow and featureless except for the batting of Lajoie, Davis and Clark. The score:

New York ..... 4 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 —6
Philadelphia ..... 2 0 2 0 1 0 0 0 0—5
Batteries—Seymour, Zearfoss and Warner; Wheeler and Boyle.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 1.—The game between the Syracuses and the Torontos was for blood from the start, and no better or more exciting contest was ever seen here. Syracuse had what looked like a dangerous lead when the locals went in for their half of the ninth. Five runs were needed to tie the score. Freeman got a base on balls. Casey and Smith hit safely, scoring Freeman. Wagner flew out to Shiebeck and Taylor slapped a grounder down to Smith, who tried to make a double on the play, but bungled it and only caught Smith at second. Then Williams popped up a fly on the third base line which Ryan tried hard for, but missed, and another run was in and two men were on bases. Lush, with two strikes credited against him, saved the game by poking the ball over the fence, scoring three runs and tieing the score. It was quite dark and Swartwood called the game. The two teams will play off the tie on Saturday in Toronto. There were nearly 1000 people in the grounds and they literally went crazy at the redfire climax. The score:

Toronto ..... 0 0 2 3 0 1 1 0 5—12
Batteries—Malarkey and Ryan; Williams and Casey.

Pacers In a Fighting Contest.

Readville, Mass., Oct. 1.—There was excellent racing at the Breeders' meeting at Readville park yesterday afternoon. The 2:11 pace was a fighting contest throughout, the first heat being particularly close, the five leaders finishing in a bunch. Cadet got a poor send-off in the first two heats and was unable to finish better than fifth, but in the next three heats he was all right and won them all, although he had no cinch.

The 2:19 trot was another fine exhibition. George A made a bad break in the first that lost him the heat, but he steadied and took the next three. Bismark won the 2:15 trot handily and Loma, a daughter of the trotting king, Arion, secured the match race with Hazel after dropping one heat, making two of Arion's get that have entered the twenties during the meeting.

EVIDENCE NOT ENOUGH.

Acquittal of One of Those Implicated in a Furniture Scandal.

Fall River, Oct. 1.—The Gillan bribery hearing was resumed yesterday afternoon. Mayor Greene testified to talks with Bobrick and that he had voted to award the contract to Bobrick, but later the award to the Chandler company was made unanimous.

Attorney Costello, for Gillan, argued that there was no evidence showing that Gillan ever advised or incited Hoag to ask a bribe. The Boston interview was the foundation of the prosecution, and he claimed that it was irrelevant. It was for the purpose of drawing Bobrick out. He claimed that the case was incited by Bobrick through jealousy of Butler. When Costello spoke of Bobrick's reputation, the latter shouted "You lie."

Justice Lovatt threatened Bobrick with punishment for contempt if the words were repeated, and then reproved Costello for mentioning the matter.

Milton Reed, for the prosecution, argued that the case was based on the statutory law, that provides that whoever aids a felony may be indicted, whether the original felons is indicted or not, and whether the act occurs in the state or on the high seas. Thus the Boston meeting of Gillan and Bobrick affects the case. He dwelt on the fact that the defendant had not taken the stand to deny the charge and show that he had no criminal connection with the affair. He said that the best citizens want the support of the court in the crusade against corruption.

Justice Lovett said it did not appear that Gillan had advised Hoag and that the visit to Boston might give the inference of either guilt or innocence. He then ordered Gillan's discharge. Mr. Reed then said he should retire from the other case against Gillan in connection with Shay, leaving it with the court, which ordered a continuance to Oct. 11.

Dismasted In a Hurricane.

Boston, Oct. 1.—Captain Collin Smith the first officer of the Clyde line steamer Delaware, which arrived here yesterday from Jacksonville, Fla., and Charleston, reports that about three hours after leaving Jacksonville they passed the schooner John Paul of Mt. Desert, Me. totally dismasted, with loss of part of her deckload, in tow of the famous filibustering steamer Three Friends, bound to Mayport, Fla. The Paul was on a passage from Brunswick, Ga., to New York, and was caught in the recent hurricane off the southern coast.

Captain Coombs of the brig Mary Gibbs, which arrived at Providence Monday from Turk's island, reports that when 350 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras his vessel passed between two terrific hurricanes, escaping, however, their full effects. At this time a large eagle that had been caught in the gale flew aboard ship, almost exhausted, and was easily captured. The bird, which has become quite tame, measures six feet tip to tip of its wings. The trip was made in the remarkably quick time of 12 days.

King's Case.

The case of Albert M. King, the young bank messenger of the Boylston National Bank, will be transferred to the Circuit Court, which does not meet until Oct. 15, so that King cannot possibly be tried until after that date. During the same term it is possible that Jewitt, the alleged bank embezzler, will be tried. He was arrested in 1895, and the case has been continued from time to time since then. Like the King case, it was transferred from the District Court to the Circuit Court.

A Change Suggested.

NEWCOMB AND THOMPSON.

The Old Ticket Renominated by Acclamation — Everything Unanimous.

The fifth Norfolk district Republican Representative convention was held Thursday evening at Republican headquarters and was a very harmonious and unanimous one. Messrs. T. H. Newcomb and James Thompson being renominated by acclamation.

Chas. L. Hammond called the convention to order and read the call, after which John R. Graham was elected chairman and R. R. Freeman secretary.

Upon motion of H. H. Faxon the chairman appointed Messrs Harry W. Read, N. G. Nickerson and Thomas Burke a committee on credentials.

This committee reported that the representation was as follows:

	Entitled to.	Present
Ward One,	9	7
Ward Two,	6	6
Ward Three,	9	9
Ward Four,	6	6
Ward Five,	8	6
Ward Six,	5	4

The temporary organization was made permanent.

Councilman Hiram W. Phillips presented the name of Thaddeus H. Newcomb as one of the candidates and Councilman Warren H. Rideout presented the name of James Thompson.

Hon. Henry O. Fairbank arose and said he desired in behalf of the Wollaston delegation to heartily concur with the nomination of Messrs. Newcomb and Thompson. The Republicans of Wollaston wish to express their hearty appreciation of the loyalty for the past two years of these two gentlemen, to commend their work, their loyal action and for the interest in promoting that measure which will beautify our city. He would move the nomination by acclamation by a rising vote of Thaddeus H. Newcomb and James Thompson as candidates to the General Court. This motion was voted unanimously.

Messrs. Henry O. Fairbank, Charles L. Hammond and Henry H. Faxon were appointed a committee to retire and present the candidates.

While they were out the Chairman called upon Mr. Edward Southworth for a few remarks. Mr. Southworth said that he understood that the best rhetoric a man could have was to have something to say and say it. The next best thing was, if you have nothing to say, to keep still, and that was his position.

Harry W. Read was then called upon but before he could respond the committee returned with Candidate Newcomb.

Upon being introduced Mr. Newcomb said, I come before you with a feeling of just pride, for after anyone has filled the office for two years and then receive the unanimous support for a third time, it was a compliment to be proud of. It has been my endeavor to serve not only the immediate constituent's wants but the whole Commonwealth as well. I thank you for the honor, for the unanimous nomination, for the confidence you repose in me. We have reason to congratulate ourselves on the men who are elected in National affairs and also the one who holds the reins of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and who will continue to hold them.

He could not help thinking at the State convention, that as long as the nation was in such hands as those he saw upon the platform we are safe. As he looked at the noble physique of our Governor he thought, there is a type of a pure and good American citizen; one who will be elected by as large a majority as any Governor ever was in this state. He could not help contrasting the harmony of this State convention with that held at Worcester, and it was fortunate the government was not in the latter's hands. God knows the consequence if in the hands of such a party as those at Worcester. We can now look forward with a degree of confidence and if things are managed as they should be, we have control for the next quarter of a century.

In closing, he said if elected he should work for the best interest of his constituents and for the whole Commonwealth and would act according to the dictates of his conscience for right or wrong.

Upon vote of the convention the City Committee were empowered to fill any vacancies that might occur.

Henry H. Faxon opposed but he was alone in his opposition.

It was voted that the chairman of the City Committee and the Chairman of the several ward committees for 1898 be the District committee.

Mr. James Thompson was then escorted in and being introduced said: He appreciated most highly the honor that had again been conferred upon him in nominating him for the Great and General Court. He hardly expected a year ago to occupy the position he did tonight, for he had about concluded that was the last time he should run for public office. But certain things had arisen, and he had told his friends if nominated he should accept.

There was an important matter in the legislatures in 1896 and 1897 that related to the interests of Quincy. That matter is the construction of a boulevard along Quincy shore, and extending to the Blue Hills reservation and the Boston Park System. Last year it was understood with a certain appropriation this would be built. When the Metropolitan Park Commission appeared before a certain important committee, they said in response to a question put by me that it did include Quincy. Certain preliminary steps have been taken and we all hope and trust that the statement will be carried into effect.

Without obtaining this, Metropolitan parks under the conditions as they exist today, are detrimental to Quincy. The taking of land for the Reservation was a loss to Quincy for it means that the line is drawn beyond which no quarry land can be developed. This is important. The time when we want to develop the quarries may not come in our time but it will perhaps years hence. We are entitled to this boulevard, and he hoped we would get it.

In closing Mr. Thompson said that he and his colleague would still work for it if elected.

Charles L. Hammond, chairman of the City Committee, was then called upon and said that as chairman of the City Committee we want the hearty cooperation of all delegates and Republicans of Quincy. If we have that there was no question but what our two candidates would be elected.

The convention then adjourned.

Home Science.

The Quincy Home Science Association held a largely attended meeting on Wednesday afternoon in the chapel of the First church, at which Miss Johnson, the president, presided. There were reports from the secretary and treasurer. A constitution was adopted, and four additional directors elected. The reports showed the free kindergarten school of the summer at the John Hancock school had been a success and that the dues from membership had paid all the bills. It is the desire of the assocation to have three schools next summer, if the increase in membership will warrant it.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Horton for the international collection of dolls recently loaned, and to others who helped to make the entertainment on that occasion a success

The meeting was addressed by Miss Fisher, superintendent of the public kindergarten of Boston, on kindergarten work, and Miss T. H. Tyndell on home nursing.

During the winter free lectures are to be given on home nursing and what to do in emergency.

Chicago is to be linked to New York by an elevated road over which trains will be run on a 100-mile-an-hour schedule, and time and space are to be practically annihilated. When this new railway is put in operation a man may eat breakfast in Chicago at 8 A. M. and dine in New York at 6 P. M. after a journey of 900 miles. The project would appear ridculous were it not for the indorsement given it by electricians of high standing.

Harvest Festival.

A very successful harvest festival was given at the Washington Street Congregational church Thursday evening.

A very pretty display of fruit being kindly donated by the following people: Mr. Dennen, Mr. Ford of North Weymouth, Mr. Walter Redding, Mr. Arnold, Mr. Doane, Mr. I. Rich and Mr. J. Rich of Germantown. A good sized audience was in attendance and the programme was very well carried out. It consisted of vocal and instrumental music, solos, a mix quartette and Miss Phillips reader from New England Conservatory of Music. Miss Phillips was much enjoyed in her numerous selections.

Robins Killed.

Charles N. Hunt, local agent for the Fish and Game Commission, discovered four men in City Square Thursday night whom he suspected had been violating the bird law. He called upon Officer George A. McKay for assistance in arresting the men, and Officer Barry who came along also took a hand. Three of the fellows were taken, the fourth man having gone into a store. The latter was arrested by Officer Ferogusn. The fellows had four guns and in their game bags; among other things were thirty-one robins.

Will Miss the Sport.

President Bryant is still a severe sufferer, being unable to leave his bed. He is at the Boston Tavern. Unfortunately for Mr. Bryant the gunning season is just opening, and, as it will be some time before he can regain the use of his limbs he will lose the enjoyment of his new gunning stand on the shores of Whitman's pond, Weymouth, and also the use of the club stand on Adams' beach of which he is a share holder.

MILTON.

Carpenters are at work making that old stable on the corner of Adams street and Granite avenue a little more presentable. This old building has long been an eyesore and although the town has covered up part of the surroundings by a high board fence, people would be glad to see the whole corner cleaned off.

Some fifty-one house lots were sold at auction on Edge Hill road, Wednesday, bringing from 2 1-2 to 8 1-2 cents per foot.

The East Milton foot ball team play the Burdetts Saturday at the playground and next week they will line up against the Hyde Parks

There is no political excitement in Milton everybody apparently being of one mind.

TODAY'S COURT.

John McIntire was arraigned for breaking and entering the house of Christian P. Anderson at Adams Shore, and the larceny therefrom of a sunshade and boa valued at $8. McIntire is alleged to be one of the three parties who committed the above break. Shortly after the break two of the parties were arrested in Boston and brought to Quincy where they were tried. McIntire was later arrested in Boston and while being booked at Station 8 he leaped through the window and escaped. He has kept out of sight until Thursday night when an officer in citizen's dress saw him near the Howard theatre and placed him under arrest. The Quincy police were notified and Inspector McKay went in this morning and brought the fellow to Quincy. The case was continued until Saturday.

Robert Foye, aged 46 years, who claims his residence as Quincy, but boards in Weymouth, was arraigned for indecent exposure at Weymouth. He was fined $8.

Peter Rarni and Joseph Lahood were arraigned for violation of the game law, and were fined $10 each.

Calene Karom and Sharap Maroon were also arraigned for the same offence. They pleaded nolo-contendere and the complaints were placed on file.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. CUTTERS' STRIKE.

The sixteen stone cutters employed at the yards of Thomas & Miller struck this morning on the ground that the firm had not lived up to the agreement in paying off the men for August work before the first of October.

When seen this morning in regard to the trouble, Mr. Miller said that in August two of his cutters spoiled a stone either intentionally or through carelessness. At that time he told them that he should deduct the difference between what the stone would have been worth and what it was now worth. This amounted to $5.17 between the two men. When he paid off the fifteenth of September he kept this amount which was due him and paid them the balance taking their receipt in full for all demands.

It seems that the men then referred the matter to the Workingmen's committee, who talked with Mr. Miller, and Tuesday forwarded him the following letter which he received upon his arrival home Thursday:

QUINCY, Sept. 27, 1897.

MR. J. MILLER:

DEAR SIR:—At a meeting of the executive committee held this evening, I was instructed to inform you, that the reason you advanced for not paying the two workmen, in dispute, off in full, as called for in Article 7, headed "miscellaneous," are not considered satisfactory by the executive committee, therefore the committee requests you to pay the aforesaid men immediately, or they will feel compelled to act as sanctioned in Article 3 of the present agreement. Hoping for a favorable reply to the request of committee, I am yours respectfully,

PHILIP J. HALVOSA, Sec'y.
22 Columbia Street.

This morning the men went out.

Article 7 under "miscellaneous" is that men shall be paid in full once a month. This Mr. Miller claims he has done.

Article 3 says, workmen shall wave any right of suspension of work when an employer fails to pay the workmen before the first of the month.

Mr. Miller claims that he is in the right, inasmuch as the agreement says in Art. 2, that all disputes arising from, or in regard to the scale of prices shall be referred to the joint figuring committee which consists of three from the workmen and three from the manufacturers.

Philip Halvosa, secretary of the workingmen's committee when seen by a representative of this paper, said that the men were fighting this matter for a principle. He claimed that there was no clause in the price list in regard to keeping money back for a stone that was spoiled while being cut, and that Mr. Miller had no right to keep it back. A man working by the piece should get nothing at all if he spoiled a stone, or should be paid in full.

Mercurio-Cercura.

St. John's church was the scene of a happy wedding ceremony on Tuesday morning, when Mr. Alfredo J. Mercurio, son of Antonio Mercurio of Quincy, and Miss Rosino Cercura, daughter of Malvena Cercura of Alcantro, Italy, were made man and wife. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. F. A. Cunningham. The bride was attired in a becoming costume of white silk, her bridal veil caught up with orange and myrtle blossoms. She carried a bouquet in her hand. Mr. Guiseppe Purpia was best man and Mrs. J. Macalini was bridesmaid. A reception was held in the evening at the home of the groom on Water street. The front part of the house was reserved for Americans and Mr. John Picquard saw that all were served. Music was furnished by Mr. Cune Geagenan and Mr. John Grady. After the reception the happy couple left on the 11.12 train for Boston. After a trip through Canada they will reside on Water street. The presents were costly and many.

AN EXPERT CORNERED.

Physician Shown to Be Lacking In Knowledge.

Said a Dog's Bone Was That of a Monkey.

Contradictions Followed Under Close Questioning.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—There was but one witness on the stand in the Luetgert trial yesterday, and at the conclusion of the session, the state announced that it would in all probability keep him on the stand for the greater portion of today. The witness was Dr. W. H. Allport, the expert, who testified for the defense that the femur claimed by the state as that of a woman is in reality the femur of a hog. The state had prepared a warm cross examination for him, and toward the latter portion of the session it succeeded in confusing him and gaining from him several contradictions of his own testimony. He identified the skull of a dog as being the skull of a monkey, and was neatly trapped by the state in doing so.

Hour after hour he answered questions suggested in the main by Professor Dorsey and propounded by Attorney McEwan. The sensational statement of Dr. Allport at the morning session to the effect that the temporal bone identified by Professor Dorsey as being the right temporal of a female was in reality not a temporal of a female, and not a temporal bone at all, aroused the prosecution. The expert's conclusion, that the exhibit was several bones glued together in the form of a temporal bone, suggested fraud and an attempt to manufacture evidence which the prosecution did not relish.

The result was that McEwan went at Dr. Allport with a firm determination to learn if the witness really knew what he was talking about. Questions were fired at the expert with such rapidity that he became bewildered. Confusion led to contradiction, and this developed sharper cross-questioning, so that the last two hours of the expert upon the witness stand were fraught with nerve testing anxiety for him.

Professor Dorsey, whose evidence Dr. Allport flatly contradicted, listened attentively to the cross-examination of the expert for the defense. He heard his own story and those of Professor Bailey and Dr. Pierce punctured by Dr. Allport with a smile of scorn hovering about his lips. Later on Professor Dorsey will go on the witness stand to substantiate his original testimony if he can.

The expert was required to name a portion of bone handed him. After a brief examination he said it was part of the skull of a monkey. McEwan immediately asked another question, which led Dr. Allport to believe he had identified the exhibit at the first guess, and the expert confidently entered upon a long dissertation relative to the similarity of the skull in some portions to that of a human skull. After he had finished the state attorney reached for the bone the expert held and remarked: "Well, the bone is from the skull of a dog."

Dr. Allport looked surprised, but recovering himself suddenly, he observed: "Well, it might have been a monkey-faced dog."

This was greeted with a laugh, in which Luetgert joined. There was a long wrangle between counsel and the witness over bones and phalanges. This part of the examination became so technical and scientific that the majority of the spectators became tired, and many of them left the building. It is likely that the crossfire of the experts will be kept up for nearly another week.

Suspected of Murder.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 1.—The steamer Tees has returned from northern British Columbia ports. She brings a prisoner named Gordon, held on suspicion of having murdered Thomas Jones, his partner, while on a prospecting tour up the Skeen river. The crime is very similar to that of Butler, the Australian murderer, for Gordon is believed to have decoyed Jones into the wilderness, robbed him and then killed him. He was arrested at Hazleton by R. E. Loring, an Indian agent, when attempting to sell the outfit and property of Jones. He first said Jones had returned by way of Quesnelle, and afterward that he was drowned. Gordon had no money when he started, but $400 were found sewed in the lining of his coat when arrested. Search is being made for Jones' body.

Bycyc lst Caused a Death.

Washington, Oct. 1.—S. H. Jones, one of the oldest contractors in the city, was killed by injuries received from a collision with a bicyclist named Reuben F. Gray, who is employed as a clerk in one of the branches of the government printing office. Mr. Gray was arrested and held to await the result of a coroner's inquest.

Mr. Jones had been inspecting the construction of a city fire engine house for which he was the contractor, and started across the street on business. He was struck by the bicycle ridden by Mr. Gray and knocked violently to the roadway, his head striking the asphalt.

Jumped Among Rocks.

Malone, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Mrs. C. C. Bennette was seriously injured while making a balloon ascension in company with her husband. While making the descent in the parachute and near the ground she jumped to avoid striking a high board fence. She mistook her distance from the ground and fell 20 feet among rocks, dislocating her back and otherwise injuring herself. Mrs. Bennette suffered a similar fracture in a Boston theater on June 5 last. She is in a precarious condition, but may recover.

River Miners to Strike.

Monongahela City, Pa., Oct. 1.—The river miners in convention here decided to strike until the conditions of the settlement effected at the Columbus convention and the differential usually prevailing on the Monongahela river are agreed to. The suspension, which will be practically a total one, takes place at once and affects between 5000 and 6000 men.

Racing In New Jersey.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 1.—There were 50,000 persons on the fair grounds yesterday. The racing was by far the best ever seen on the interstate grounds. In the 2:22 trotting class, Hornella Wilkes, owned by C. Hendrickson of this city, broke the world's record for a 3-year-old on a half mile track. The time was 2:16¼, made in the second heat. Wilkes won the race, taking the third and fourth heats in 2:17¼ and 2:18.

John E. Gentry's Work.

Malone, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The famous trotters, Robert J. and John E. Gentry, were driven an exhibition mile at the Franklin county fair yesterday. The interest in the horses was very great. John E. Gentry went a mile in 2:05¼, lowering the state record, which has hitherto stood at 2:05¾. Robert J. made a mile in 2:09½.

Playout of Hand Tubs.

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 1.—Yesterday was firemen's day of merchants' week in this city, and thousands of visitors were on the streets. The feature of the forenoon was the parade of the Haverhill department and visiting tubs. The playout of hand tubs attracted an immense crowd. There was a troublesome wind, but fair records were made. The Nonatum of the Newton veterans won the first prize of $200 in gold, throwing a stream 198 feet 10 1-8 inches. The Red Jackets of Cambridge were second, 190 feet 3 inches.

Can Read Its Title Clear.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The state department has dashed the hopes of another fortune hunter, who, it would appear, narrowly escaped being victimized by a sharper. In this case two residents of Chetopa were represented to be heirs to the Wardle estate in England. United States Consul Grinnell of Manchester, by direction of the department of state, made an investigation and found that while there was a magnificent estate of that name near Manchester it is owned by a family which can trace title for 100 years.

SLATE OF TAMMANY.

A Judge Its Candidate For Mayor of New York.

New York, Oct. 1.—The first Democratic convention for the nomination of officers of the city of Greater New York was held yesterday. A noticeable feature of the decorations was the absence of the pictures of the old leaders of the Democratic party which were always displayed over the platform at previous conventions.

When the convention was called to order at 8:12 by John C. Sheehan there were fully 4000 people in the hall. Just before Mr. Sheehan rapped for order the hall was thrown into an uproar by a scrimmage in the section occupied by the New York delegation. Alderman Tait got into a wordy argument with another delegate, and before anyone could prevent it a rough and tumble fight was in progress. No particular damage was done owing to interference of other delegates. Alderman Tait struck his opponent several blows before they were separated. Three policemen succeeded in getting the alderman away and order was restored.

The portion of the platform condemning the Raines law evoked considerable enthusiasm, as did the reference to the propriety of the municipality owning public franchises. The platform practically ignores national issues, declaring at the outset: "We regard as the supreme issue of the municipal campaign the inauguration of a wise, liberal, honest and Democratic government in place of the present costly, wasteful, illiberal and inefficient administration."

The present administration is condemned, and it is said to have produced "a corrupt, expensive, fractious, discordant, intolerant and incapable government that has impaired the credit and increased and augmented the debt of the city."

Justice McCarthy placed in nomination for mayor Justice Robert A. Van Wyck, and ex-Judge Troy of Brooklyn seconded the nomination. John J. Foote of Brooklyn protested against the vote of the borough of Brooklyn being cast for Van Wyck.

Bernard J. York had already announced the vote of the entire Brooklyn delegation for Van Wyck. There was the wildest kind of an uproar for several minutes. There were cries for Foote to take the platform and shouts from the gallery of "No gag law; give him a show. Free speech." In endeavoring to restore order the chairman nearly split the table with his gavel. He pounded away, but the crowd kept up the racket, during which Mr. Foote climbed on the platform and demanded a hearing. Chairman Jenkins ruled that Foote could not be heard. He said that a motion had been adopted that the chairman of each borough should cast the vote of the delegation, and that Mr. Foote could not have any say. After a futile effort Mr. Foote left the platform. He wanted to nominate Justice Gaynor, but he did not get a chance to even mention his name.

The announcement that Van Wyck was the choice of the convention was the signal for a storm of hisses from a large portion of the audience, and from the Brooklyn delegation from the Twenty-first district, which it took the band to drown. John Shea of Brooklyn placed in nomination Bird S. Coler of Brooklyn for comptroller, and Coler was unanimously nominated. Jacob Ruppert, Jr., was named for president of the council.

TRACEY'S PREDICTION.

Says That Republicans Will Elect Their Ticket In New York.

New York, Oct. 1.—The Brooklyn Standard Union has the following interview with General Tracey: "The Republican party will win the coming election."

"Does that mean, general, that you will be the first mayor of Greater New York?"

"Now, I didn't say that. I really must not say anything further, as the battle lines are not fully laid out as yet. In a few days you will see."

In reply to a question as to whether he had seen Mr. Low, General Tracey said: "I have not as yet seen or had any communication with Mr. Low. No, I have not as yet given him any assurances of any kind."

Asked if he would explain his two "as yets," the general said he was not explaining anything, and would ask his Republican friends here to rely on his assurance that victory would rest with the Republican party.

Senator Platt is also quoted as saying: "I am not talking just now. The managers of the Citizens' union are doing all the talking, and they have talked their heads off and wearied their candidate."

"Do you mean that Mr. Low is weary of the union?"

"Well, I notice he's keeping pretty quiet lately," said the senator.

Don't Want VanWyck.

New York, Oct. 1.—The German-American Reform union, immediately upon hearing of the nomination by Tammany of Judge Van Wyck for mayor, passed resolutions endorsing Seth Low and apointing a committee of conference to wait upon the Citizens' union.

Crisis Precipitated.

Athens, Oct. 1.—The boule (legislative assembly) met yesterday to consider the peace treaty with Turkey and the political situation in general. The proceedings were followed with intense interest. Mr. Ralli, the premier, after reviewing the events leading up to the signing of the peace conditions, invited the chamber to vote confidence in the government. He proposed a resolution to that effect. Amid great excitement the chamber defeated the resolution by a vote of 92 to 30.

This defeat precipitates a crisis. It is deemed impracticable for Ralli to continue in office with the cabinet as now constituted. The Delyannists are a large majority of the chamber.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Trouble Over a Secretary.

Columbus, O., Oct. 1.—By its action yesterday afternoon in the election of a permanent executive secretary the conference of mayors and councilmen struck the rock which, in the opinion of many of its most conservative and far-seeing members, seriously threatens its possibilities for usefulness and may wreck it absolutely at the start. B. F. Gilkison, publisher of City Government, was the recipient of the honor and in the presentation of his name by Mayor Green of Binghamton, N. Y., it was declared that if his candidacy should provoke any considerable opposition he would not permit himself to destroy the unity and the harmony of the new organization at the outset. Up to midnight, however, Mr. Gilkison had not resigned. There was no objection to Gilkison as to character or ability, but those opposed to him felt that with him as secretary and executive officer the organization would be hopelessly tied up with his publication as its organ and thus be charged with the responsibility for the policy of the magazine and all its utterances.

John McVickar of Des Moines, Ia., was elected president; Mayor Collier of Atlanta, vice president; Mayor Black of Columbus, treasurer, and the following trustees: Mayor Warner of Peoria, Councilman Walker of Trenton and Councilman Rand of Minneapolis.

Alleged Murderer Caught.

Savannah, Oct. 1.—Three weeks ago at Hahira, Shelton Dampier shot and killed Samuel Parker, one of the most respected citizens of the place, because he had been instrumental in securing the conviction of Dampier in a theft prosecution. Dampier has been pursued ever since with dogs, but managed to elude his pursuers. Thursday night the sheriff of Lowndes county received notice that Dampier was in the vicinity. He gathered a posse and a fusilade began. Dampier was shot in the shoulder, but finally surrendered.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Length of day—11:43.
High tide—2:25 a. m.; 2:48 p. m.

The weather last night was fair and generally clear for the whole country, and warm in all districts. It will continue fair in New England through Saturday, and very likely Sunday; the temperature will be somewhat warmer, followed by moderately cooler by Sunday night; winds generally southwest, and fresh to light in force.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

A man who registered as A. W. Smith of Providence, R. I., was found dead in bed at a New York hotel last night.

The fifth Venezuelan arbitrator will be an international lawyer of the highest reputation, whose name will be published in the course of a few days if he accepts the post.

Secretary of State Palmer of New York has received the resignation, as congressman from the Third New York district, of Francis H. Wilson, appointed postmaster of Brooklyn.

The Columbus, O., Dispatch interviewed 28 mayors as to whether prosperity had, or was, returning, and the answers were unanimously to the effect that times were improving.

Joseph Wolfe of Cripple Creek, Col., has had donated to him by Joseph Ladue a half block of ground in Dawson City, upon which he intends to erect a mammoth hotel. His partners in this enterprise are 15 Chicago men.

Charles Newhall of Melrose, Mass., was sentenced at Boston yesterday to a term of two years at the house of correction. Newhall pleaded guilty to the charge of embezzling $1000 from the Agricultural Insurance company.

Senator Edward O. Wolcott of Colorado has arrived in London from Paris. In answer to a question on the subject the monetary commissioner said he was merely waiting for the answer of the British government, which he hoped would be favorable to the propositions of the commission.

The campaign against the Mohmands has been successfully concluded and nothing now remains but to collect the fines. The upper Mohmands have been severely punished and the lower Mohmands, cowed by the success of the British troops, are accepting the terms of the British commanders.

John H. Sullivan of East Boston was nominated last night for executive councillor by the Democrats of the Fourth district by a vote of 113 to 1/4 for Henry F. Naphen of South Boston. Mr. Sullivan was unexpectedly defeated for the position last year by Isaac B. Allen, a colored Republican, notwithstanding the fact that the district is strongly Democratic.

The majority in the recent elections in New Jersey against the anti-gambling amendment to the constitution has been cut down to 1000. There is even a possibility that the amendment has been carried, and it will take an official count to determine. The ad interim appointment amendment is thought to have been carried by a close vote. There is no likelihood of the woman suffrage amendment having been carried.

Buyers and Sellers of Manufacturers' Stocks

KINGS OF LOW PRICES.

AN UNPRECEDENTED OUTPOURING OF THE PEOPLE
IS THE RESPONSE TO THIS MOST EXTRAORDINARY SALE OF TEN BIG MANUFACTURERS' STOCKS OF Clothing, Shoes and Hats,

which we bought for SPOT CASH from needy manufacturers who were in the valley of despair, and who needed the ready money or be forced to bankruptcy's wall.

A MASTER STROKE IN 19th CENTURY MERCHANDISING, that can leave no doubt that this great underselling sale of manufacturers' stocks is driving the regular retail dealers in Boston to distraction.

A DARING AND DESTRUCTIVE ATTACK ON PRICES, decisively establishing new records for
CHEAPNESS AND HIGH QUALITIES COMBINED.

THE MANUFACTURERS' OUTLET CO.

is a company of capitalists, incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts, whose special aim is to buy entire stocks for SPOT CASH from large manufacturers who must have money quick. These stocks are then merged into one grand offering, as in this instance, and put on sale at retail, in every case positively

AT LESS THAN THE ORIGINAL COST OF PRODUCTION.

For those truly intent on saving money, for those who wish to do some especially profitable buying in Clothing, Shoes or Hats for the winter, we instituted this sale in Boston, at the large double stores, 89 and 91 Summer St., and will continue it day and night until the stocks are sold.

A WORD OF WARNING. COME AT ONCE, for great as these stocks are, mammoth as they are in proportion, wonderful as they are in variety, it's but a question of a short time when this great sale will necessarily come to an end.

HOW, YOU ASK, CAN WE GIVE SUCH VALUES?

The reason is plain enough. With our unlimited capital, our perfect knowledge of the people's wants, buyers all over the country in search of manufacturers who must have money, and ready at all times to buy for spot cash unlimited quantities of any kind of high grade merchandise at prices low enough to enable us to turn our capital quick and pass over to our customers what we know to be the greatest values ever heard of.

The breathing space, the solstice fair, between
The autumn's eve and winter's chilling morn.
It is as though the year were now restored
To springtime loveliness and summer's guise
Of throbbing, glowing beauty, and had reached
The autumn's full fruition, to be wrapped
In snowy robe of winter, there to die.

There are plumes and plumes on the new hats, and they droop in a most picturesque manner. There are gray plumes on dark blue velvet hats, white plumes on delicate gray hats, and black plumes on all sorts and kinds and conditions of hats. It looks as if the ostriches would not have a feather to their backs this winter. But they will be kept in countenance by an army of wingless birds. All the hats which do not have plumes have wings or an occasional whole bird—some as big as hens.

LOVE'S LABOR LOST.

Young Roland loved sweet Geraldine,
He loved her for herself,
Although her crusty father had
All kinds of filthy pelf.

But other eager suitors came
In crowds to win her hand.
Then Roland played a little game
They did not understand.

For, while the rest did court the maid,
He sought her mother out
And won her favor ere she knew
Just what he was about.

He filled her ears with flattery,
He called her young and fair,
He said that with her daughter she Did very well compare.

ENVOY.

Now wit ye well, while Roland played
His game upon her mother
That fair, that winsome little maid
Was eloping with another.

SAVED THE CANARY.

On the evening of the alarm of fire at the florist's place, three doors from the Alfalfa European hotel, "Doc" Horne told of his singular experience at a fire in the town of Crosbyville.

"The first time I ever visited in Crosbyville one of my friends invited me to go to a shooting match, and after I got out there I was asked to enter the contest. Well, I went in and I happened to get a rifle that sighted just right for me, and I won. A man who had been introduced to me as Captain Jaynes made the next highest score. It seemed to me that the other contestants took their defeat good naturedly, but on the way home my friend told me to look out for this Captain Jaynes. He was a hotheaded Kentuckian, and it seems that this was the first time he had been defeated in a year or so, and it worried him a good deal. My friend told me that he had taken a dislike to me and would probably try to pick a quarrel with me at the first opportunity.

"Well, that same afternoon I invited all the men who had been at the shooting match to come over to the tavern. It was customary for the winner of the match to stand treat to the others. Captain Jaynes came in rather late, while we were all sitting around and talking. I arose and asked him to join the party. He bowed very coldly and said that he was not in the habit of drinking with strangers. Well, I was pretty hot blooded in my younger days. I said: 'Very well, captain. I withdraw the invitation. I made the mistake of supposing that you would feel at home in a company of gentlemen.' I knew what to expect when I said that. He started to draw a knife, but before he could lift it I had hold of him. They pulled us apart and tried to quiet him, but he went away raving mad. They all said that he would kill me the first time we met, but he must have cooled down when he had time to think it over. I saw him often after that—passed him on the street. He never made a move, but I knew that he hated me and would be glad of a chance to do me an injury.

"The captain's house was right on the bank of the Green river and stood near his mill. It was an old fashioned two story house, very broad and well built and thickly surrounded by trees. It was considered the best house in Crosbyville. The captain was the wealthiest and one of the most prominent citizens of the town. He was a widower and had two children—a boy of 14 or so and a young lady named Elizabeth. She was a very beautiful girl—very charming. I had met her several times, but, of course, I had never become well acquainted with her on account of my feud with her father.

"Well, to make a long story short, the whole town was aroused by an alarm of fire one night, and when we turned out the Jaynes mill was one mass of flames. It was an old style structure, with a framework of heavy logs, and it made a fearful blaze. The wind was blowing the flames toward the house. Every one saw that it was of no use to try to save the mill, so we turned in to defend the house—got up on the roof and passed buckets and put out wet blankets to catch the sparks, but it was no use. The men were driven off the roof, and the water dried as fast as it was thrown on. All at once one whole side of the house seemed to spring into a flame. There was a general shout, and everybody retreated to a safe distance. The members of the family and the neighbors had been removing the household goods. Just as the house caught fire and all the men were getting out of it as fast as they could I heard Elizabeth Jaynes cry out, 'The canary!' Then all ran back into the house, with every one calling to her to stop. I didn't hesitate a moment, but ran after. She ran through that terrific heat and dense smoke right up the stairway, and I followed. I caught her by the arm at the top of the stairs and told her to come back. She was hysterical and excited. She said she wouldn't leave until she got the bird. In spite of all I could do she pulled away from me and ran to the front room—her bedroom, I believe—and felt her way to where the bird was hanging. Gentlemen, it was never hotter in any bake oven than it was in that room. As soon as she got the bird cage I dragged her back through the hall.

"The smoke was not so thick now, because the fire had got a free draft through the house and was making a fearful roar and spreading rapidly. When we reached the stairway, the whole lower end of it was ablaze. I dragged the girl away to the front window, but by that time the whole veranda was on fire. The crowd outside saw us and shouted something, I couldn't tell what. I saw that there was no escape over that burning veranda. When the people outside began to shout, the girl fainted. I threw her across my shoulder and started for the rear of the house, because I knew that was my only salvation. The whole stairway was ablaze by that time, and flames were creeping up through the floor. I closed my lips tightly, and in about four leaps I reached a back window. Outside there was a big tree, almost brushing the window. I kicked out the window sash and simply jumped into the tree. It was the only thing to be done. Luckily I got my arm over a limb, which sagged with us and dropped us to the ground. I scrambled to my feet and ran, with the girl still hanging absolutely limp and helpless over my shoulder. I went straight for the river with the intention of jumping in. The heat was something deadly. It had driven away the men who had been filling their buckets at the river.

"Just as I staggered down the river bank I saw a skiff. Some one had probably rowed across the river to the fire, for the boat was not fastened. I dropped, with the girl, into the boat and gave it a strong push out into the current, and in a few seconds we were floating down stream and were safe."

"She had the canary, I suppose?" said the lightning dentist.

"Oh, yes. She was in a dead faint, but she hadn't let go of the cage. As soon as I recovered my breath and wet my clothes in two or three places where they were on fire I splashed water in the girl's face and she recovered consciousness, but she was so flustered and excited that she didn't know where she was or remember what had happened.

"We could look up the river and see the burning house. It made a huge blaze and threw a bright glare across the river. I remember the peculiar effect of this glare on the windows of the houses across the river. It caused them to glow as if the houses were filled with live flames. The girl was so frightened that she thought all the houses were afire.

"When I got ready to row back, I discovered that I hadn't any oars. The current was swift, and we were drifting rapidly, so I pulled out a seat board and used it as a rudder, and in a few minutes I made a landing near a house occupied by a Mr. Wesley. Miss Jaynes was still so weak and nervous that she could hardly walk, but I assisted her to this house and aroused the inmates. They would hardly believe my story at first, but they could see the burning house up the river, and they recognized Miss Jaynes as soon as the lights were brought.

"The woman of the house was very kind. She cared for the young lady tenderly for about two hours and had one of the boys drive us back to Crosbyville. Now, in the general excitement we had forgotten that the people in Crosbyville had no reason to believe that we had escaped from the burning house. Miss Jaynes said several times, 'I suppose father is wondering where I am,' but she had no idea that he and all the others were convinced that we had perished in the flames. However, you couldn't blame them for thinking so. The window from which I had leaped was well hidden by trees, and there was no one at the river bank when we leaped into the boat. We learned afterward that the men had pulled down the burning veranda and had planted a ladder at the front window where we had been seen, but the blaze was so fierce that they had been driven back.

"Every one supposed, of course, that we were lost, so you can imagine what happened when we drove up in front of the ruins about 7 o'clock in the morning. They were already searching for our bodies. Yes, sir, they thought we were ghosts. As soon as I explained to them how we got away you never heard such cheering in your life. They lifted Miss Jaynes out of the wagon and took her over to a neighboring house to which the captain had been taken. He had been almost wild with grief. Those who went over to the house say it was one of the most affecting meetings that could be imagined. First he wept like a baby, and then he jumped up and laughed like a boy and said he didn't care for the loss of his buildings so long as his daughter was safe. I suppose his daughter must have given him a very favorable account of my efforts in her behalf, for presently he came out of the house and walked up to where I was standings and said: 'Mr. Horne, you have done me the greatest service that one man can do another. All that I have is at your command now and forever. I once did you an injustice. You have repaid me. Will you take the hand of a man who honestly admits himself beaten and humiliated?' I said to him: 'Captain, you are a brave and gallant man, but you were mistaken for once. Let us say no more about the misunderstanding of the past.' We shook hands, and from then forward we were friends. He was a man of passions and prejudices, but if he came to know you and like you he was the truest friend a man ever had."

"There's only one thing needed to make that a good story," suggested the dentist. "You ought to say that you married the captain's daughter."

"I am not going to sacrifice truth in order to make a fancy romance," replied "Doc."—Chicago Record.

From Pulpit to Mining.

The Rev. Frank B. Vrooman, who says that he has been frozen out of the pastorate of the People's church, Chicago, is going to the Klondike to direct a mining company and will not return to the pulpit. He is a lineal descendant of Count Egmont, prince of Gavre, who was beheaded by the Duke of Alva during the persecutions of the sixteenth century. He is a Harvard man, but has spent much time at Oxford and in Berlin, and studied sociology for a year in London, where he lived at Toynbee Hall. While he was at Oxford he filled the pulpit of the Holloway Congregational church, which eventually gave him a call, but he received at the same time a call to succeed the Rev. Thomas K. Beecher of Elmira, N. Y., and accepted it. After filling this place for 18 months he returned to London for awhile, but soon accepted a call to the Salem Street Congregational church of Worcester, Mass. His difficulties in the Presbyterian church arose from the fact that he had no metaphysical theory concerning the doctrine of the Trinity.—New York Tribune.

What Canada Wants.

Canada wants men, not walking effigies
Who smirk and smile with art polite and sport
The borrowed vesture of their richer friends,
But men of souls capacious, who can plant
The standard of their worth on noble deeds
And dare respect their conscience and their God.

Canada wants honest men, who shall lay
Her empire's cornerstone secure upon
The solid granite of eternal truth
And build her towers and all her columns hew
From the deep quarry of a nation's love.

Canada wants progressive men—men who
The stirrings of ambition feel—to join
The glorious ranks of those who lead the van
In freedom's sacred cause and pour the wealth
Of heaven born genius at their country's shrine.

Canada wants independent men—men who,
Regardless of applause, will speak the truth;
Men who will spurn a bribe and scorn to bend
In cringing self abasement at the feet
Of titled villainy; men who have drunk
From freedom's sacred fount and who their necks
Will never bend to wear the bondsman's yoke;
Men from deceit who'd tear the mask and show
The knave in all his nakedness and guilt.

Canada wants virtuous men—men with their hearts
Attuned to holiness; men who will take
The Bible as the charter of their faith,
Adore the God whom it reveals and learn
With gratitude sincere to sound his praise.

Canada wants heroic men—men who shall dare
To struggle in the solid ranks of truth,
To clutch the monster error by the throat,
Hurl base oppression from her seat, break down
Her walls and let the world with pæans
Of universal rapture usher freedom in.

Canada wants noble men, not those who trace
Nobility through tortuous channels of Hereditary blood and, boasting of Ancestral worth, swell with profound conceit
At every mention of their selves,
But men of noble souls; men tested well
In life's great struggle, tempered in the forge
Of hard experience and fortified against
Temptation's wiles by purity of heart;
Men who will dare assert their rights and do
What duty bids, though all the world should sneer.

Canada wants patriotic men—men who
Can feel their bosoms throb at mention of
Their country's name; men whose allegiance is
Not based on selfishness, whose honesty of soul
Would scorn promotion's highest seat
If treason were the price; men who will guard
Her soil with sacred care and when she sounds
The trumpet of alarm will grasp their sword,
Rush to the battlefield with martial tread
And, fearless, hurl destruction on her foes.

These be the men, O Canada, to spring
From out thy virgin soil! These be the men
To wield the scepter of thy power, extend Dominion o'er thy vast estate and write
In history the glory of thy name!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 3. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—How to make God's will our will and the result.—Phil. ii, 1-13.

The human will and the divine will are in constant conflict. "The carnal mind is enmity against God." In this sad fact lies the root of all sin. We prefer our own will to the will of God. Rebellion against God's will is the result, and this is sin. We fail to recognize the fact that we are God's, that we are bound to Him by every sacred tie of life, because from Him comes life and in Him we live and move and have our being. We look upon ourselves and not God as the director of our destinies, and we act "my will, not Thine, be done."

The mission of Christianity in the world is to lead the will of man into subjection to the will of God. Self surrender to God is the battlecry of Christianity. It is only by complete and absolute surrender that we attain to the standard of Christian perfection which it is the will of God that we should attain to in this life. It is only when we can say, "Nevertheless not my will, but Thine, be done," that we have reached the goal to which the Master, both by precept and example, points us. What will help us to make God's will our will? How can it be done?

1. The example of Christ should encourage and help us to this end. Paul in the topical reference exhorts the Philippians to humility, to self abasement, upon the ground of the example of Christ. "Let this mind," he says, "be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus, who being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God, but made Himself of no reputation * * * humbled Himself and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." Christ was God. In claiming divinity He would not have been like a robber clutching a prize. It was His just possession. Yet He became obedient to the will of God even to the cruel death of the cross. If He, possessed of such equality with God, could thus submit His will to God, what an inspiration it should be to us to submit our will to the will of God.

2. The fact that in doing God's will we work out our own destiny in life should encourage us to submit to God's will. "Work out your own salvation," says Paul, "with fear and trembling, for it is God which worketh in you both to will and to work of His good pleasure." God has worked into us that which we should work out, and in the working out of which we accomplish the purpose for which God brought us into the world. To do this is to succeed in life. Not to do it is to fail. The result of submission is therefore exaltation. Through humiliation we are exalted.

Bible Readings.—Ex. xix, 1-8; Math. xxvi, 42; Luke xxii, 41-44; John ii, 1-11; vii, 17; Acts v, 29; Rom. ix, 14-16; Eph. vi, 1-6; Col. iv, 12; I Thess. iv, 1-7; v, 18; Heb. xiii, 12-21; Jas. iv, 13-17; I Pet. ii, 11-25; I John ii, 15-17; iii, 21-24.

Power of Example.

A man who had long been an attendant at a Glasgow church without making any profession of religion presented himself one Sunday for membership. He was asked by the examining committee if any special sermon by the pastor had influenced him to take the step, and he replied, "No."

He was asked if any member of the church had been talking with him on the subject, and he said, "No."

On being urged to give the reason, he said: "There is a man who has worked beside me in the shop for several years who I knew bore the name of Christian. I have watched this man, and his patient, faithful daily work and consistent walk, though he has said no word to me in regard to religion, have made me a believer in its reality and have led me to the Saviour whom he owns as his Master, and have also led me to desire to be numbered with the people of God."—Exchange.

The Instincts of the Heart.

Give free and bold play to those instincts of the heart which believe that the Creator must care for the creatures He has made, and that the only real effective care for them must be that which takes each of them into His love, and knowing it separately surrounds it with His separate sympathy. There is not one life which the Life Giver ever loses out of His sight, not one which sins so that He casts it away, not one which is not so near to Him that whatever touches him touches Him with sorrow or with joy.—Phillips Brooks.

Much the Wiser.

He who keeps his tongue in his heart is smart, but he who keeps it in his head is much the wiser for it.—Jewish Messenger.

Prudence and Providence.

No one can be provident of his time who is not prudent in the choice of his company.—Helpful Thoughts.

"It Is the Lord."

When from the path all early flowers are gone
And winds are scattering withered leaves alone;
When we have only faded sheaves to offer
And darkness settles over vain endeavor,
The tempted heart may trust the holy word;
Not destiny compels. "It is the Lord."

"It is the Lord" who knows how useless, weak,
Are the false, gilded baubles we would seek.
How underneath the homage of bright fame
There lurks a sinful trusting in a name
And looking only to earth's sole reward
We would forget the author—Christ, the Lord.

In hours of happiness, when blessings come
Like circling doves around the door of home,
And on the dwelling sunshine pours its tide,
While peace and love, sweet angel guests abide,
It is not chance that times of bliss decree,
"It is the Lord" who gives prosperity!

For each bright day upon the life bestowed,
For every evil conquered, sin removed,
For all the hopes of golden hours beyond
And all the freedom of sin's broken bond,
Oh, praise him, for it is not due to thee,
"It is the Lord who gives thee victory."

GOLD SCHEME EXPOSED

Deposit of Worthless Checks and Drafts In a Boston Bank.

Devotion of Two Women to a Man In Trouble.

Mayor of Gloucester Told by an Alderman That He Lied.

Boston, Oct. 2.—Yesterday detectives of the bureau of criminal investigation, aided by the Continental bank officials, exposed a bold scheme to build up a business by spurious check process. A man appoed to be C. P. Neuberger, but who claimed to be Louis Shapiro, a dealer in trimmings at 97 Oliver street, is under arrest, charged with uttering a forged check on the Continental. The detectives say that they hope to bring forward in good time several more forgeries, and possibly cases of attempting to secure money by false pretenses.

The prisoner, it is charged, secured a book from the Continental bank, showing deposits aggregating about $9,250.98 upon checks and drafts purported to have been made payable to the Manhattan Clothing company, of which he was proprietor, by such reliable New York firms as Siegel, Cooper & Co., and Smith, Gray & Co. Several checks of small amounts purporting to have been made by Smith, Gray & Co., payable to the Manhattan company, were placed with the Continental people the day following, one of which was for $300. Later a check for $1400, made payable to the Manhattan Clothing company by one "P. Cohen" through the Bowery National bank of New York, excited the suspicion of the Continental people, and in reply to an inquiry the Boston bank people were told that such a person as P. Cohen had no account with the Bowery bank. Yesterday, when Neuberger again called at the bank to make "deposits," he was placed under arrest. A conference between Captain Dugan and the firms mentioned in the checks showed that all the papers were forgeries.

Told the Mayor He Lied.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 2.—A short and spicy meeting of the board of aldermen resolved itself into a wordy warfare between Mayor Cook and Alderman Merchant, who have been at logerheads during the past year. The city has recently been indicted for leaving Gloucester avenue in a dangerous condition, and last night Deputy Sheriff Cronin served the papers on the board. In a communication the mayor tried to lay the blame on Alderman Merchant, who is chairman of the committee on highways. Merchant attempted to explain, and the more he talked the angrier he became.

The mayor attempted to interrupt him several times, saying that the money had been appropriated for the work, but the aldermanic committee had otherwise spent it. Quick as a flash with his finger pointed at the mayor, Alderman Merchant exclaimed, "I tell you you lie." Immediately confusion reigned, the mayor pounding with his gavel and ordering the alderman to be seated, which the latter refused to do.

The mayor then called on the city messenger to expel the angry member from the chamber, and that official started to perform that duty when the alderman dropped into his chair. The mayor remarked that such talk and actions were disgraceful, and that the alderman at least should act the part of a gentleman, to which Alderman Merchant responded that the mayor should set the example. At this juncture some one moved to adjourn and the colloquy ended.

Women Stand by Him.

Alfred, Me., Oct. 2.—Everyone is talking about Willard C. Merchant, who is charged with larceny, and his sweetheart, Lida Fairfield of Kennebunk. This girl has stood by Merchant through thick and thin when everyone but her and his own mother had deserted him. There was a supposed defect in the indictment against Merchant at the May term of court, and the state asked that the case be not prossed. A new warrant was taken out, and when he was bound over yesterday to the January term of court in the sum of $1000, Miss Fairfield, to whom he was married last evening, became his surety.

The case of Mrs. Jacob R. Wissell, who was indicted with Merchant, has been continued to the January term. Her home is in Chelsea, Mass., but for a day or two past she has been stopping in Kennebunk. Although her physician stated that she was too ill to make the journey without endangering her life, the authorities insisted upon her being brought here, and this was done, her physician accompanying her in a carriage.

Merchant and Mrs. Wissell were indicted for the robbery of summer cottages on the seashore between Kennebunkport and Ogunquit. Goods to the value of $2000 were stolen, and it was claimed that they were traced to Merchant. A part of the stolen property was found in a house occupied by Mrs. Wissell at Kennebunk Landing, and she was indicted as an accomplice.

Smashup at Medford.

Medford, Mass., Oct. 2.—The Canadian Pacific express over the southern division of the Boston and Maine railroad, due in Boston at 8:30 o'clock last night, met with an accident at West Medford at 8:20 whereby 30 persons were more or less injured, but none it is believed fatally. There were eight cars on the train, and the three rear coaches were derailed. Those injured most seriously are as follows: A. A. Serva, Somerville, Mass., back injured; R. W. Fuller, a Harvard student, residence unknown, hip injured; Mrs. A. M. Allen, Chelsea, Mass., serious injury to spine; Mrs. A. C. Fiske, Cambridge, Mass., general bruises; George Baker, Montrose, Pa., left hand and fingers crushed; W. A. Bond, Lynn, Mass., injured about the head and back; Mrs. John W. Palerey, Chelsea, Mass., injured about the back, hips and side; George F. Jenkins, Whitman, Mass., right leg broken, arms and back badly bruised; Mrs. Rowend Ely, Boston, spine injured; Miss Sougncott, St. John's, N. F., general shaking up; Mrs. A. Anderson, St. John's, spine injured; John T. Ely, Boston, badly bruised.

Car 997 jumped the track, owing it is claimed to a defective truck. The rear truck turned completely around, throwing the car partially on its side, while car 427, the next one ahead, was partially derailed, and the sleeper was thrown over on its side. The passengers in all of these cars were pitched out of their seats and precipitated into a struggling mass. Many were bruised about their limbs and bodies, while every one on the train was badly shaken up. The three cars broke from the rest of the train and were left behind. The air brakes were applied as quickly as possible after the engineer received the first intimation of danger.

Politicians Entertained.

Hamilton, Mass., Oct. 2.—Never before has there been such a galaxy of politicians and official stars gathered in Essex county as was the case yesterday when the Essex club and guests to the number of 250 gathered, on invitation of its president, George von L. Meyer, at his beautiful estate "Rock Maple farm," in this town, together with Governor Wolcott, Lieutenant Governor Crane, Senator Lodge, Congressmen Moody, Knox, McCall and John Simpkins, and General Curtis Guild, Jr., General Francis H. Appleton and other gentlemen. There were present undoubtedly all living office holders, present and past in Essex county. Besides enjoying the hospitality of the host as regards a mere outing, the occasion was also given the guests and members semi-officially to ratify the nominations of the state convention which at the proper time was done amid great entnusiasm.

Benefit Life's Depts.

Boston, Oct. 2.—The liabilities of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association, as the receivers find them, aggregate $1,160,710. Of this amount one-half is for death claims, upon which proofs have been furnished and accepted by the company, 33 per cent more is for death claims upon which no action had been taken at the time of the appointment of receivers, and 10 per cent is for death claims upon which suits are pending.

For the purpose of making an approximate estimate of what claimants upon death and allowed disability claims will probably receive, it may be said that the allowed liabilities will amount to a round $1,000,000 and the assets will do well if they do not shrink below $450,000; so that after allowing for the expenses of a receivership there will be something like 35 or 38 cents on the dollar for claimants.

NEW YORK'S DEATH RECORD.

New York, Oct. 2.—A wave of suicides, which in one instance led to the destroying of the lives of four innocent children, passed over this city yesterday. For months the daily record of cases of self-murder here has not exceeded the average of two. Usually on dark and dismal days the despondent and melancholy seek solace in death. Yesterday, however, was an exception to this rule. The weather here for several days has been balmy and delightful, and yet last night the bodies of nearly a dozen persons, who met tragic fates, were prepared for burial.

The first of the series of suicides was reported from the Hotel Devonshire, where Harmon S. Burt, a prominent church member and assistant superintendent of the Norwich, Conn., stove works, who had registered as E. W. Smith, Providence, poisoned himself. The disgrace of being arrested is the only motive known for Burt's suicide.

H. S. Burt was last seen by his Norwich friends at the police station there Monday morning. Shortly before that time he had been arrested during a general raid on the disorderly houses of the town. Bonds of $100 were frnished in his case and, although he had seemed overwhelmed with shame and had nearly fainted when brought into the station, he started, apparently, for his boarding place. It was not until time for court Monday morning that his absence from town was discovered.

Next a man over six feet tall and weighing 225 pounds, who had registered as "C. F. K. Royce, San Francisco, Cal.," was found asphyxiated by gas at the Grand Union hotel. The stranger, who was well dressed, was apparently penniless. Only a collar button was found in his pocketbook He had no papers

This was followed by the finding of Mrs. Caroline Rivinius and her four children dead from gas at the West Shore hotel. In room 35 was the woman, with the youngest child clasped tightly in her arms, while the other children were found in room 34. The youngest child which was with the woman bore an expression of agony on her face. It seemed as though death had come hard, and the woman had had to hold her to prevent her making an outcry. The clerk was convinced that the four children had been murdered, and that the woman had committed suicide. The cracks of the windows were closed up tightly by being filled in with clothing, and the top and bottom of the doors had been similarly dealt with. Wet paper was stuffed in the keyholes. The gas cocks were wide open and the gas must soon have filled the two rooms and rendered the occupants unconscious. She was the wife of a soldier at the West Point Military academy.

After breakfasting with his bride of a day at the Murray Hill hotel, Dr. Robert N. Flagg, a prominent physician of Yonkers, N. Y., suddenly became a maniac and jumped out of a second story window. He landed several feet out from the window, striking the sidewalk almost at the edge of the flagging. He was conscious when picked up. His skull had been fractured, his leg broken and he received severe bruises. He died last night.

The other and minor suicides were those of Theodore Miller, a clothing cutter, who shot and killed himself on Seventh avenue; Rudolph Knoche, who poisoned himself with carbolic acid on Fifty-eighth street, and Michael Walsh, who is believed to have drugged himself to death at the Fulton hotel.

In the suburbs of the city several self-murders are also reported. One important event worth mentioning in this connection is the mysterious deaths of Frank Hawley and E. L. Hoffner of South Norwalk, Conn., who conducted a shooting gallery range at the White Plains fair. The men stopped at Matthies' hotel. Yesterday morning they were found dead in bed, the room full of gas. It is believed that their death was the result of an accident, however.

LOST THROUGH ERRORS

Tables Turned on the Troublesome Team From Washington.

Regulars of the Baltimore Club Allowed a Respite.

Monarchs of the Turf Showed Great Speed on an Illinois Track.

Baltimore, Oct. 2.—The orioles had no trouble in trouncing the senators yesterday, although the latter hit Hoffer freely. Several errors upon the part of the visitors did the trick, in spite of the fact that the home team had a patchwork nine in the field, and that the visitors were anxious to win in order to make their hold upon sixth place more secure.

O'Brien played in Keeler's place to allow the littles fielder to nurse a sore finger and get ready for the Temple cup series, and Quinn officiated in lieu of Jennings, who took a trip home to get ready for his coming nuptials, which are booked to take place at the end of the cup series. Catcher Bill Clarke took Doyle's place at first to give the regular man a rest, and Bowerman acted as backstop in order to limber up a bit in the event that he should be needed in Boston next week.

The Baltimores took the lead in the first inning, the run being the outcome of a force hit by Stenzel, who stole second and third, scoring when Tucker dropped Quinn's little fly. Neither side got anything after that until the fifth, when the orioles scored four on four balls to Bowerman, a scratch hit by McGraw, a bad throw by Farrell, scoring Bowerman, four balls to Kelly, a hit by Stenzel, scoring McGraw, another by O'Brien, bringing in Kelly, four balls to Quinn, filling the bases, and four more to Reitz, forcing Stenzel across the plate, all after the first two men up had been put out. The visitors got two in the seventh on Leahy's single, Wrigley's single, McJames' fly out to left, scoring Leahy. Gettman flied to Stenzel, Demont singled and Farrell's bunt to McGraw scored Wrigley. Each side made two runs after that, one a home run by Stenzel in the ninth, but they did not affect the result. The score:

Washington	0 0 0 0 0 0 2 2 0—4

Batteries—Hoffer and Bowerman; McJames and Farrell.

Good Hold on Sixth Place.

Pittsburg, Oct. 2.—By winning two games from Cleveland yesterday Pittsburg secures a good hold on sixth place. The first game was full of costly errors by the home team, but was won in the ninth by Hoffmeister knocking a three-bagger when the bases were full. The second game was won by the pirates hitting at times when it meant runs. Hoffy had only one hit, but it was a long one to left field on which he made a circuit of the bases. The game was called on account of darkness. The score:

Cleveland	0 3 0 3 0 0 0 1 3—10

Batteries—Hawley and Merritt; McAllister and Criger.

Cleveland	0 0 2 0 0 0 1—3

Batteries—Hartings and Sugden; Wilson and Criger.

Greatest Ever Seen.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 2.—Ritchey's errors with two men on bases in the third inning gave the colonels the game yesterday. Breitenstein was quite effective, Nance and Clarke being the only men to connect safely with his delivery. Clarke made the greatest catch ever seen here in the ninth inning, robbing McPhee of a triple. The score:

Louisville	0 0 3 0 2 0 0 0 —5

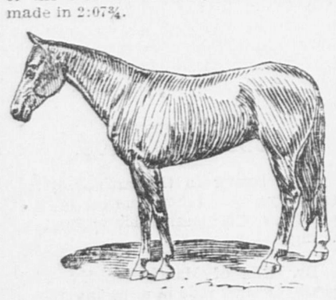
Batteries—Cunningham and Dexter; Breitenstein and Schriver.

STAR POINTER'S FEAT.

Lowered the Pacing Record to Half a Second of Two Minutes.

Springfield, Ills., Oct. 2.—Sixty-five thousand people saw Star Pointer not only maintain his reputation as the king of pacers by beating Joe Patchen, but also lower the world's pacing record in a race by half a second, making the mile in 2:00½, the record in a race having been 2:01, which Star Pointer made on Saturday, Sept. 18, at Indianapolis, when he defeated Joe Patchen. Star Pointer was greeted with tremendous cheering by the assembled thousands as he passed under the wire in the third heat, and the announcement of the lowering of the world's pacing record in a race was received with tumultous applause. The record for 1897 for stallions was also broken by William Penn in the first heat of the free for all trot, the mile being made in 2:07¾.



STAR POINTER.

The great race between the two fastest pacers in the world had the result of bringing on the grounds the largest crowd ever assembled there. On the first they got a nice start, Patchen having the pole, but after going a few hundred feet Star Pointer broke badly, and before he recovered Joe Patchen was about an eighth of a mile ahead of him. Patchen finished the heat in a jog in 2:14 amid cheers, with Star Pointer 200 to 300 feet behind. The first quarter was made in 30½, the half in 1:02¼, three-quarters in 1:36¾, and the mile in 2:14.

Star Pointer was given the pole in the second heat, and the two horses started even, but Joe Patchen soon broke and lost a dozen or more lengths. He gained on Pointer toward the three-quarters and rapidly overhauled him, McCleary holding his horse back. Down the home stretch it was a pretty fight between the two, but Pointer maintained his lead and passed under the wire half a length ahead. Pointer made the first quarter in 30, half in 1:03, three-quarters in 1:36½ and the mile in 2:06. The last quarter was made in 29½.

JOE PATCHEN.

The third heat was a wildly exciting one, and was a race for blood from the start. After three ineffectual attempts the horses got off together. Pointer soon took the lead, and in the first quarter he was one and a half lengths ahead. The black pulled up some toward the half, and when that was reached Pointer was but three-fourths of a length to the front. Then Patchen lost, but gained again, and at the three-quarters was not quite one length behind. When near the wire Patchen fell behind, however, and Pointer won by five or six lengths. The time by quarters was as follows. First, 29¾; second, 1.00; third, 1:30½; mile, 2:00½.

The weather was intensely hot, and scores of men and women, of the thousands who had stood in the sun along the race track for hours with the mercury 91 degrees in the shade, fainted.

Outdoor Event of the Season.

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—The three days' cricket match between the English and Philadelphia teams has resolved itself into the outdoor event of the season. The attendance yesterday afternoon numbered 5000, of whom at least 600 were women. The match is the third of the series between Captain Warner's team of English amateurs and Philadelphia men. The first match, in which Philadelphia was represented by a team of 22 "colts," was played on the Germantown club grounds at Manheim and resulted in a draw. The second on the Belmont club grounds was won by the Philadelphia picked eleven by four wickets.

The Englishmen played a careful and steady defense of the wickets. When their last man was retired they had put together the splendid score of 322 runs. Of this total Chinnery, Jessop, Leveson, Gower and Marriott obtained 256 by the cleanest kind of hitting, and with good fielding on the part of their opponents. Six of Philadelphia's best bowlers were tried against them, but they punished all alike, and King, the Quaker city's crack bowler, received the most severe drubbing of all.

The Philadelphians began their inning, and in the 15 minutes they were at the bat before stumps were drawn they had lost two wickets for 18 runs. They continued their inning today.

Roller Polo League.

POLO LEAGUE IN MAINE.

Rockland, Me., Oct. 2.—At a meeting of the Maine Roller Polo league it was voted that no players recognized as under contract to the National league shall be played by any Maine league team in any championship game under the penalty of a fine of $25 by the offending club for each player so used, and forfeiture of the game to the opposing team. The fine is to be paid within five days of the offense, under the penalty of forfeiture of the franchise.

It was voted to continue the negotiations concerning the agreement offered by the National league, referring principally to the recognition of contracts and reservation of players. It is understood that the members of the board of arbitration will consist of the presidents of the two leagues, they to select a third man.

Interest In a Football Game.

Waterville, Me., Oct. 2.—As Colby is probably the representative football team of Maine this season, every football enthusiast in New England will look with interest for the outcome of today's game with the Worcester polytechnic institute team. It is not especially the personnel of the team, but the fact that the team has been coached by ex-Captain Wharton of the University of Pennsylvania, who introduces the "new school of football," which has never been played in New England.

Practice Game Played.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 2.—The candidates for the Harvard baseball team were called out by Captain Rand yesterday to begin the regular fall practice. Over 40 men came out, including all of last year's men who are still in college, with the exception of Haughton, who is playing football. Two nines were picked, captained, respectively, by Burgess and Chandler, and a seven inning practice game was played.

Ended In a Fizzle.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 2.—The Steinert cup series is practically concluded. Dineen, Toronto's crack pitcher, said yesterday, that Toronto would not play any more games in Syracuse, and as the Syracuse players said the same of Toronto, the series has ended in a fizzle the score being: Toronto won, 3; lost, 1.

Killed by Aconite.

Fall River, Oct. 2.—News has reached this city of the accidental death in Westport Wednesday night of Miss Perry, an 18-year-old adopted daughter of Rev. Mr. Perry of that place. She attended a service Wednesday afternoon, and upon her return was slightly indisposed. She took what she supposed was Jamaica ginger, and retired. Mrs. Perry was later attracted to her room by groans and arrived just as the girl expired. An examination revealed the fact that she had taken a dose of aconite by mistake, an empty bottle which had contained the poison standing nearby. As there was nothing to induce self-destruction, there is no question but what the act was purely accidental.

Croup Quickly Cured.

WOLLASTON PEOPLE now claim that the New Haven road had no right to move the station across the tracks to the east side as under Chap. 112, Sect. 157 of the Public Statutes, "A railroad corporation may relocate passenger stations or frieght depots with the approval in writing of the board and of the City Council of the city or the Selectmen of the town in which such stations or depots are situated." It is claimed that the New Haven road never asked nor received permission from the Railroad Commissioners or the Council for permission to change the location of that station. It appears as though the Wollaston people were able to make matters about as uncomfortable and interesting for the road as the road can for them, In the meantime the rest of the city is an interested spectator in this game of tit-for-tat which is being so ably played by the Wollaston people on one side and the New Haven road on the other.

ALTHOUGH THE legal residence of none of the Republican State candidates is in Norfolk county, it is a fact that His Excellency Governor Wolcott has a summer home at Milton, and that he has been renominated. Norfolk county has its full share of candidates, but it has many good men.

ONLY 89 cities and towns out of 352 were represented at the convention of the Gold Democrats. The number of delegates was 336. The vote of Candidate Prince last year was 14,164.

THE HERALD'S reproduction of Dr. Everett's attitudes at the convention are true to life, but the Herald rubs it in when it says, "Dr. Everett is the same old gingersnap."

McINTIRE HELD.

Quincy Court Finds Probable Cause and Case Goes to Grand Jury.

The continued case of John McIntire, for breaking and entering the house of Christian P. Anderson at Adams shore, Quincy, April 7, and the larceny therefrom of a silk umbrella and a feather boa, was heard in the Quincy court this morning.

Mr. Anderson recognized the goods taken. Officer Connelly recognized the defendant as one of the men whom he saw run from the house on the day in question.

A Boston witness testified to seeing McIntire and others go off in the boat on the 7th of April. Inspector McKay testified to finding out the names of the parties who broke into the house. All had been arrested except McIntire, who had kept out of sight. He had been arrested once in Boston, but got away from the officers at the station.

Officer Flynn testified to arresting McIntire on the night of Sept. 30, also as to McIntire's record.

McIntire testified that he was in Boston the 7th of April and had nothing to do with the break.

The court found probable cause to believe McIntire guilty, and held him in $800 for the grand jury.

Boston Food Fair.

The Boston Food Fair at Mechanics' Building, Boston, bids fair to score the biggest success ever known in the exhibition line. Five hundred souvenir spoons given away to first five hundred purchasing tickets every morning. Different designs every day. Four-thousand-five-hundred articles distributed to the people daily from the big give-away department. Articles vary in cost from five to twenty-five cents, and include soap, gelatine, confectionery, cocoa, salt, baking powder, etc., etc. Full-sized packages, not small samples. Sousa's band will be at the Boston Food Fair, and to use the words of a humorist, the only ones present who will be unhappy will be those who are absent. There will be music in the air at the fair. Everyone who possibly can should enjoy these concerts. To enjoy good music is part of one's education. You will never have another chance to hear Sousa for a 25-cent admission ticket. Reeves' band and Salem cadet band are other notable attractions in the musical department. The Maine department with "Fly Rod" and her hunters' camp, the Household Institute, with cooking lectures daily, the bakers' department with its immense arena, the agricultural department and the Irish exhibit with its blarney stone, are some of the special features.

X RAYS SAVED HER.

By Their Aid a Hatpin Was Removed From a Little Girl's Stomach.

By means of the X rays and laparotomy a hatpin, 5½ inches long, was removed from the stomach of a little girl at the German hospital in Newark, N. J., on a recent evening. The operation was in every way successful, and unless something unforeseen occurs the child will recover fully.

The child is Lena Strippe, the 3½-year-old daughter of August Strippe of Harrison. She was playing on the floor and found the hatpin, which she promptly put into her mouth. It slipped head downward into her throat. Though a woman relative tried to pull it out by the point, the child's breathing caused it to slip farther down.

Little Lena was taken to the German hospital, and the surgeons there decided to try laparotomy to save her life, though they were not oversanguine of the result. It was necessary to use the X rays in order to determine the exact location of the pin.

The result was a remarkably clear shadowgraph showing the pin, its head in the stomach and the rest extending into the esophagus. The point was within a short distance of the heart, and the surgeons realized that if it were disturbed it might pierce the vital organ and cause instant death. The little girl was taken back to the hospital and laid upon an operating table after being placed under the influence of ether.

An incision was first made in the abdomen and then the whole stomach laid open. The operation had not proceeded very far when the head of the pin could be seen protruding from the opening into the esophagus. It was grasped with the fingers and carefully drawn out. Then the cuts were sewed up.—Exchange.

FLEW THROUGH THE CAB.

A Misguided Owl Dashes Through Window Glass Into the Face of an Engineer.

Mike Murphy, engineer of the "blue flier" on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was badly cut in the face by flying glass from his cab window early on a recent morning. Mr. Murphy was coming down the big hill at Caseyville, Ills., at a high rate of speed, and, the air being quite fresh, he kept his cab window closed. All at once he heard a crash, and the next instant blood covered his face, the result of particles of glass from his cab window striking him.

He hastily reversed his engine, and as soon as he had washed the blood from his face looked around for the cause of the accident. He expected to find that some miscreant had thrown a missile through the window, but in a corner of the cab lay a big owl which had passed through the window. The owl was slightly disfigured, but would have been able to fly had Mr. Murphy permitted it to escape. He brought it to East St. Louis and will keep it as a memento of the fast run at Caseyville. Railroad men contend that the electric headlight so blinded the owl that it could not see to escape and that it plunged through the glass in its half dazed condition.—St. Louis Republic.

HER BONES ARE BRITTLE.

For the Fifteenth Time a Little Girl Sustains an Osteal Fracture.

Mary Shuff, the 11-year-old daughter of Francis R. Shuff, living in South Corona street, Denver, has been singularly unfortunate as the victim of accident. During her short life her bones have been fractured 15 times. The other evening she sustained the fifteenth injury, her left leg having been broken above the knee.

The little girl was attempting to alight from a tramway car when she fell upon the pavement. She was carried into a drug store, and later removed to her home. Mary has had the bones of both her legs and both her arms fractured in different places. An injury to her right leg some time ago made it shorter than the left, but later a fracture of the left leg made both limbs of equal length again. The police surgeon described the girl's condition as rachitic—meaning that the bones contain more mineral matter than animal, making them brittle and easily broken.—Rocky Mountain News.

An Industrious Cat.

After having been twice shot without being hurt in the very act of stealing chickens a Maltese cat of Pikesville, Baltimore county, Md., was finally dispatched by a citizen who had lain in wait all night for it in his henhouse. According to the neighbors' records, the cat had carried off 100 chickens in a few weeks, and the owners of the chickens were under the impression that a gang of thieves was at work in the neighborhood.

ODDS AND ENDS.

THE RACE

for commercial supremacy is open to all comers, of course; but there can be only one winner in each community.

What determines, then, the identity of the firm which "leads the bunch?"

All, apparently, have the same start—all have an open course—all meet substantially the same conditions in the way of surroundings.

Unquestionably the winning firm is that which does its business on the best principles, having due regard for reliability, (in goods and statements alike) courtesy, enterprise and generally high-grade storekeeping methods.

We endeavor to put in practice as many of the "winning" qualities as possible.

How well we succeed we leave YOU to say.

If our experience of nearly twenty years in catering to the wants of the Quincy public is of any value we ask a fair share of favors now and in the future, with the assurance that it will be our earnest effort to improve our service in every particular where needed.

Don't think because some one offers you one or two minor articles at less than wholesale cost that they are selling all goods that way. What they lose on one thing has to be made up on another. We sell at a uniform low price on our whole stock. Look us over.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars. free.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. Granite Business in Maine.

A dispatch from Bangor, Maine, says there has been a considerable revival of the granite industry on the Maine coast this year, and prospects are good for a brisk season in 1898. In Jonesboro the Bodwell Company has had a large crew at work all summer, getting out stone for the new postoffice building in Buffalo, N. Y. This is red granite, and the company has already shipped 56 caragoes, with many more to go before cold weather. The Buffalo contract will be completed next year.

Booth Bros. and the Hurricane Granite Company have completed their new railroad in Jonesboro, leading from their quarries to the river, a distance of a mile and a quarter. This road will be the means of expediting operations, and also of saving much expense to the company.

INCREASED ACTIVITY

Reported In Wool, Hides, Iron and Steel and Their Products.

New York, Oct. 2.—Bradstreet's report on the state of trade says: General trade is marked by increased activity in wool, hides, iron and steel and their manufactured products, but business in the quarantined districts remains at a standstill, and at all except a few northwestern distributing centers, in spring wheat states where business is relatively most active, there is a check to the demand for dry goods. Favorable reports come from a region extending from Knoxville to St. Paul and from Omaha to Milwaukee. The tendency is to increase estimates of the wheat crop and decrease those of the probable yield of cotton.

The prices movement shows a long list of unchanged quotations this week, including various iron and steel staples, wool, hides, print cloths, lumber, nails, copper, pork, beef, coffee and sugar. Increases are confined to a nominal advance for anthracite coal, 25 cents for bessemer pig iron, fractional gains for leaf tobacco, naval stores, butter, lard and another advance for woolen goods.

The total number of business failures in the United States for nine months is 9833, a decrease of 13 per cent from the corresponding total last year, but 6 per cent more than were reported in 1895, 7 per cent more than in 1894 and 11 per cent fewer than in the corresponding period of 1893. This year failing corporations, firms and individuals report $118,484,000 liabilities, a total of 30 per cent smaller than one year ago, about 6 per cent larger than nine months of 1895 and of 1894, and 64 per cent less than in the corresponding period of 1893. The rate of failure in proportion to the number in business is decreasing. With reference to liabilities the falling off is noticeably rapid.

The check in the movement of merchandise pointed out in Bradstreet's a fortnight ago has finally had an influence on the bank clearings, the total volume of which amounts to $1,218,000,000 this week, a falling off of 11 per cent from last week, 3 per cent from the corresponding total in 1891 and a small fraction of 1 per cent from the corresponding total in 1890, when the volume of business was heavy. Contrasted with the total for the last week of September, 1896, this week's aggregate shows an increase of 36 per cent, 7 per cent over 1895, 22 per cent more than in 1894, 64 per cent more than in 1893, and 16 per cent in excess of the like total in 1892.

Bank clearings for September form the largest monthly total since January, 1893, just before the panic, aggregating $5,521,933,332, an increase over August's very large total, amounting to 14.8 per cent, and a gain over the September total a year ago of 50.5 per cent. Very heavy clearings at New York account for a large portion of the increase shown over August and over September a year ago, that over the latter period at New York being over 67 per cent. Excluding New York city, the gain over September a year ago is 29 per cent. The largest increase is in the middle states group, but the New England, northwestern, southwestern and far western groups of cities report increases in excess of 30 per cent.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Frank Chigida and Joseph Jossi were burned severely by an explosion of naphtha vapor at Chelsea, Mass., last night.

Harry Wedge of Bolton, Vt., 12 years, had both legs cut off just above the knee by a train. He lived only two hours. The accident was caused by falling between the cars.

Robert J. Monoghan, a prominent lawyer of Chester, Pa., and Josiah Daniels of Woodstown, N. J., killed themselves yesterday in Philadelphia hotels. Monoghan was insane.

O. H. Merrick of Holyoke, Mass., announces his withdrawal as a candidate for the Republican congressional nomination in the First district. The Hampden county delegation will now go almost solidly to Lawrence.

Charles H. Lamphere, assistant manager of the Narragansett Pier railroad, and son of the president, George T. Lamphere, was drowned while fishing yesterday. His boat capsized. He left a widow and three children.

At the nominating convention of the Democratic alliance of Greater New York last night Henry George was unanimously nominated for mayor. The nominating speech was made by Charles Francis Adams. The nomination was greeted with enthusiasm.

A fire caught in the basement in the bowling alley of the Oxford club house, Lynn, Mass., last night from an unknown cause, resulting in a damage of about $1800. Nathan E. Wright, a hoseman, was badly cut about the hands in getting a line of hose through the window.

The much coveted prize known as the Mendelssohn stipedium has been won by Leonora Jackson, an American competitor. The competition aroused the keenest interest among musicians and students of music. The prize is 1500 marks. This is the first occasion when the stipendium has been won by an American.

Joseph Proctor, the veteran actor, died this morning at Boston after a long illness. Mr. Proctor was born in Marlboro, Mass., in 1816 and made his debut upon the stage in 1833 in "Damon and Pythias." He had in his time played with all the stellar attractions of his early days. Edwin Forrest and the elder Booth gave him aid and encouragement.

The Philadelphia Press says that negotiations are in process among a number of capitalists in Philadelphia, New York and Boston, which, if successfully carried out, will result in the substitution of American built steamships for the large number of foreign built crafts now engaged in the West India fruit trade. The new ships will be built by the Cramps, who are largely interested in the undertaking, and will be speedy, first class vessels in every particular.

A MASTER STROKE IN 19th CENTURY MERCHANDISING,

THE MANUFACTURERS' OUTLET CO.

For those truly intent on saving money, for those who wish to do some especially profitable buying in Clothing, Shoes or Hats for the winter, we instituted this sale in Boston, at the large double stores, 89 and 91 Summer St., and will continue it day and night until the stocks are sold.

A WORD OF WARNING. COME AT ONCE, for great as these stocks are, mammoth as they are in proportion, wonderful as they are in variety, it's but a question of a short time when this great sale will necessarily come to an end.

BALL RECORDS BROKEN

Phenomenal Feats All Along the Line.

EVEN ROWDYISM HAS A RECORD.

Chicago Critics Would Like to Retire Anson, but the Old Man Will Not Down. How National League Players Will Spend the Winter.

And still the records come. Eighteen hundred and ninety-seven in baseball must be considered the season of record breaking. The latest and most remarkable feat of all is accomplished by a new recruit in the National league ranks, young Gettman of the Washington club. Two months ago his name was not known outside of a very small territory in which he played for a minor league club. His work there attracted the attention of the Washington management, and his release was purchased. His success was instantaneous. He was less than a month among the major stars when he made the phenomenal record of ten successive base hits in ten successive times at bat. This was accomplished in two games. In the first he faced the pitcher four times, making two singles, a double and a home run. Next day he went to the plate six times and secured four singles, a triple and a home run.

President Young is quoted as speaking officially when he says that this is the batting record of the National league. While there is scarcely a doubt that it is true, Mr. Young's announcement is merely one of memory and must not be taken as official. His records cover 22 seasons, about 15,000 games and the individual batting achievements of from 120 to 180 players each season. To make an examination of these records for the sake of comparing Gettman's work with the best ever made by a National league player would require the exclusive time of one man for at least a fortnight, a sacrifice which President Young could not afford to make in such a case.

The other recent record belongs to that honest, deserving, popular pitcher Cy Young, who shut out the Cincinnatis in Cleveland without a hit in nine innings. Several scorers attempted to destroy Cy's laurels by scoring a hit in one play which the official scorer and the best judges of play pronounced an error of the fielder. It was a hard hit grounder which the infielder stopped, but threw wide to first base. It is agreed that the fielder had plenty of time to recover himself before making the throw. The feat of nine innings and no hit therefore goes upon the official record of the year. Rusie is Young's nearest competitor in this respect. He held the Cincinnatis down to one hit in eight innings at the Polo grounds on their last trip east. As the Ohio team faced both pitchers when these records were made it looks as if the weak batting of Ewing's men had something to do in placing the laurels.

Another unfortunate record was also kept up to the very end—the extremely disorderly conduct of players on the diamond. Hawley committed his second offense on the Pittsburg ground by assaulting Monte Cross during the progress of a game. And in one of the Pittsburg-Louisville games in the latter city the umpire removed four disorderly players of the two nines from the field. Then Hoffmeister of the Pittsburgs threw the ball at that official. The two would have been sent from the field, but the Pittsburg club's supply of substitutes had already been exhausted. A heavy fine was therefore substituted.

If Ponce de Leon were alive today and knew Anson, he would certainly ask the latter, "Where did you find it?" Ponce spent considerable time, so 'tis said, in search of the fountain of youth. He didn't find it. What he failed to do Anson has done. The grand old man's fountain is filled with abstemiousness, temperance, regular hours, constant activity and strict observance of the laws of hygiene.

For two months past Chicago critics have been devising ways and means whereby Anse could be retired next year and the captaincy of the Colts put into the hands of either Ryan or Griffith. For weeks the veteran held his peace. When he did speak, there was no uncertainty in his meaning. "If I am alive and well next season," said he to me recently, "I'll be leading the Colts in another campaign from the same old corner of the diamond. Just bank on that, no matter what you read in the newspapers. I guess you'll find when the figures are published that your Uncle Adrian has played as well this year as the average star and maybe overtops some of them.

"And now mark another thing. I'll bet all the personal goods I possess, and I can muster quite a pile, that the Chicago team will be right in it at the finish in 1898. Yes, and with the exception of another battery I will have the same team with which I finish this season. I am perfectly satisfied with it. It was hard work to find a satisfactory second base man, but I have one now at the sacrifice of a pitcher. I can get other pitchers, but second base men are not picked up every day. We got a bad start this year and a bad start is the hardest kind of a handicap to beat. Once a team gets into the rut it loses confidence, and lost confidence in the best of baseball teams is very, very hard to overcome."

Those who imagine that they can work up a sentiment in Chicago which would force Anson from the nine do not know Anson or his authority in the Chicago club. When he quits playing, it will be at his free will. His word is practically law in the affairs of the team. In signing and releasing players he need consult no one. He insists on giving his players the best accommodation he can find while away from home. The club at his instigation pays larger hotel bills and puts up at higher class hotels than any in the League. The best is none too good for his Colts. Winning or losing, this policy has been carried out year after year.

About 200 National league players under reservation or contract for next season will be given their liberty for the winter on Oct. 15, when all contracts expire. A score or more will make that southwestern-California tour, which, after all, seems to be going through. The rest will follow their practice of former years. A very few have an established business in their city residence to which they devote their winter days. Quinn is partner in an undertaking establishment in St. Louis, O'Connor owns a small grocery in the same city, Zimmer has a standing winter clerkship in a Cleveland clothing store, McGraw and Robinson are of the few who have made a success in running a saloon, George Davis goes out through the New England circuit as business manager of a theatrical road show, Dexter does reportorial work for a local newspaper at his home in Evansville, Ind.; Hart is a printer and works when he can get employment, and Nichols is associated with Charley Bennett in a cigar "emporium" in Detroit. With the exception of a few more who contract to coach college teams in the spring, nearly all of the 200 take it easy and wait for the next season to roll around.

There are some devoted huntsmen among the lot, of which Anson heads the list. Every autumn after the season closes he goes up into the Dakotas and southern Canada on a shooting expedition of several weeks' duration. Among his many sporting talents is that of an expert marksman, and he never goes back to Chicago from one of these trips without taking with him proofs of his prowess as a huntsman. McPhee is another "regular" hunter. His field has always been the Indian Territory and the southwest. Meekin, Breitenstein, German and a few more are fond of the gun, but they seldom go far from home and are satisfied with smaller game. Rusie takes the first train for Indianapolis. His devotion to wife, father, mother and brothers is something to be admired. They live together, and once "in their midst" the famous pitcher is dead to the world till contracts call for duty in April. To most of the "loungers" the six months of idleness becomes a restless burden before the new year, and the call to duty at the end is hailed with feelings of delight such as is experienced by the bound boy in harvest time when he hears the dinner bell. To those who have saved little or none of their salary with which to pay for amusement the winter days are especially distressing if their homes happen to be cast in some humdrum village or hamlet. The contrast from its dreamy, homely quiet to the excitement of being idolized by whooping rooters and the luxuries of palace cars and swell hotels must make the final months of their winter "rest" as pleasant as a term in jail. There is a hard side to a baseball player's life sometimes, but it doesn't appear during the terms of his service for his club.

AQUATIC BOXING.

A New Sport Which Is Both Unique and Exciting.

Boxing with bladders in water is a new sport recently evolved in New England. A recent bout of this kind was between George Whistler, the champion water walker, and F. A. Bacon. The contestants walked into a lake, equipped with water walking shoes and stout bladders tied to short sticks. Time was called and for half an hour the two men belabored each other with the bladders until Bacon failed to come forward in answer to the referee's call. Both men toppled into the water several times. The contest was both exciting and amusing. Bladder boxing bouts are likely to become popular and several athletic clubs are placing this novel entertainment on their amusement cards.

College Bowling.

Friends of bowling would like to see the game elevated by introduction into leading colleges. Bowling has for a number of years been quite popular with collegians, particularly in the New England states, Brown university students being the most active in the sport. At the Rhode Island university more than 100 students were candidates for last year's team, and the team boasts of a bowling coach to look after the sport. Brown, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Cornell and Rutgers will probably make up the proposed league, with a possibility of Yale, Columbia and Harvard also entering. Arrangements have already been made for a telegraph team match between Cornell and Pennsylvania. Each team will bowl on its own alleys, and the scores will be telegraphed from one to the other at frequent intervals. Pennsylvania will have two teams this year—a varsity for which undergraduates must qualify according to the same eligibility rules as govern the other athletic teams of the university, and the Houston club team, to which both graduates and undergraduates will be eligible.

Harvard and West Point.

It is evident that a strong friendship exists between West Point and Harvard on account of a pleasant incident that occurred in connection with last year's football game. The cadets offered to guarantee to the crimson kickers to cover the expenses of a trip to West Point. It was accepted, but when the Harvard boys learned that their hosts could collect no gate money they insisted on returning the sum received. Not to be outdone in generosity, the West Pointers used the money to purchase a handsome loving cup, which is now one of Harvard's most cherished trophies.

SHERIDAN BLOCK.

An Actor Who Has Distinguished Himself In a Wide Range of Characters.

Those persons who contend that there is no business or profession in which the element of chance enters more largely than in theatricals would seem to be able to find support for their theory in the career of Sheridan Block. There are many actors who are forever bewailing the lack of opportunity to get their "chance." Some of these, when they do get it, fail miserably, while others, to use the vernacular, "make good" and are thereafter privileged to select their engagements from among the many advantageous offers which are sure to come to them. With Mr. Block the "chance" has come several times, and he has always demonstrated that he was equal to the demands made upon him, but in spite of it all he has never reached that degree of eminence to which his unquestioned ability would seem to entitle him. His methods are artistic, and he is a more than ordinarily conscientious actor. His services are almost always in demand, and he never fails to give satisfaction to the public as well as his employers, and yet very few persons would mention him offhand as one of the leading actors of this country. Still he is a young man of exceeding promise, and while his lines of work have perhaps become slightly tangled it is certain that eventually he will take that position in the theatrical world for which his ability and experience so thoroughly qualify him.

SHERIDAN BLOCK.

Sheridan Block is a New Englander. After graduating from Boston university he was engaged by Daniel Frohman to appear as Dave Hardy in "Esmeralda." His progress thereafter was upward. Among the many leading roles he has been called upon to play he has scored heavily as Colonel Prescott in "Held by the Enemy," Count Musso Danella in "Mr. Barnes of New York," a remarkably virile impersonation, and with Maud Granger as George Deshamel in "Article 47," Sartorys in "Frou Frou," Armand in "Camille" and in many other similar parts. Miss Granger complimented him as one of the best Armands on the American stage. He was jointly featured with Emily Rigl and Joseph Haworth in "The Crust of Society" at the Union Square theater, New York. Latterly he appeared in "Captain Paul" at the opening of the Castle Square theater, Boston, he and E. J. Henley playing the two brothers.

In the original production of "Darkest Russia" he achieved a pronounced success. In 1894 he appeared in leading roles with the Boston Museum stock company. An instance of one of his recent successes is related with much enthusiasm by the authors of "Northern Lights," in which Mr. Block appeared as the psychological Dr. Sherwood, who say that he greatly aided the play by his forceful and artistic performance. Mr. Block is a scholarly and experienced actor and should prove a worthy acquisition to any first class organization or to any of the New York stock companies.

A Talented Singer's First Appearance.

Jessie Bartlett Davis gives a graphic description of her first interview with pompous Colonel Mapleson. "I asked him to hear me sing," says the fair contralto, "and see what he could do with my voice. 'My dear child,' he replied, 'go away and don't bother a busy man. Hundreds come to me with the same request every week, but I am too busy to hear them or you.' 'Well,' I retorted, 'I've made up my mind to sing in Italian opera, and shall haunt this theater until you do hear me.' And so I did. I waited in that theater every blessed day for two weeks, till I obtained an audience with the colonel, who complimented me upon my voice and said I had a wonderful ambition. This was on Saturday, and he informed me that the only opportunity for me to appear would be on the following Monday evening, when 'Faust' was to be given. I knew but very little Italian, but set out to learn my part, and the way I studied was something fearful, never sleeping from Saturday morning till I made my appearance on the stage, when my rendition of the love song to Marguerite won the applause of the audience and the good will of Patti, who then and there took my face in her hands and kissed me. Of course I felt repaid for my hard work and was supremely happy."

How Barnet Prepares a Ham.

Among the delicacies at a dinner given to Sir Henry Irving in Boston during his last visit to this country was a real sugar cured Virginia ham. "The way to cook a ham of this sort," asserts R. A. Barnet, who was largely instrumental in securing it for the feast, "is to begin with the parents of the pig and tenderly nourish the infant from its birth up. A diet of acorns, chestnuts, apples, carrots, onions and green peppers can be recommended as giving the flesh of the tender porker fineness, fat and flavor. A ham taken from the haunch of this youngster and properly cured in sugar should be boiled in cider, having first been wrapped in new mown hay. When served with a brown sauce, dashed with champagne and with a tankard of bitter ale in easy reach, few more succulent dishes can be offered an epicure."

Sadie Martinot's Mistake.

"The mistake of my career," explained Sadie Martinot to Frederic Edward McKay recently, "was when I threw down my part in the rehearsal of 'Nadjy' at the Casino quite a number of years ago. I had just returned then from several years in Paris and had become possessed of the petulance of the Parisian. Since then, in my quieter moments, I have felt that I had laid the foundation for a capital reputation as a wayward, troublesome actress—a terrible bugaboo to messieurs the managers. I hope, however, that by this time I have eradicated that impression. I firmly believe that the breath of theatrical life is acquiescence on the part of the player."

HELD UP IN DAYLIGHT.

Audacious Act by Five Bandits In Indian Territory.

Section Hands Compelled to Flag Train.

Passengers and Pouches Robbed, but the Safe Stood Attack.

El Reno, I. T., Oct. 2.—The police were incredulous today when word reached them that a passenger train on the Rock Island road had been held up Friday forenoon in an isolated region on the line by bandits. Preparations for a night attack had been made by the railroad authorities. Evidently the outlaws knew of the presence of guards on the trains, and as they did not care to risk their precious lives in an encounter and felt the need of replenished pocketbooks, they hit upon the daring plan of a daylight attack. Its success was not as great as the planners had hoped, for the principal object of their cupidity was not as responsive to the demands as were the passengers and trainmen. Still the risk incurred was not without compensation.

Yesterday morning the trainmen were completely surprised, and so were not prepared to offer resistance when five masked men came upon them at a lonely siding. The place is uninhabited, and the only persons in the vicinity at the time were four section hands. These men flagged the train, the robbers having compelled them to do so. The bandits were hidden at the time in a brush pile and jumped out as soon as the train had taken the siding.

Under the pressure of winchesters and ugly looking six-shooters, the trainmen, the express messenger and the score or more of passengers were made to climb down from the train and stand in a line, hands up, on the prairie along the railroad. While three of the robbers covered the badly frightened crowd with their guns the other two coolly and carefully robbed them. The bandits secured about $300 in cash and much other valuables in the way of watches and jewelry as were in sight. The few women were not compelled to give up their valuables, and Mrs. Roe, who was sick, was not compelled to leave the coach. Jim Wright of Minco showed a disposition to resist when the bandits ordered "hands up." They shot one of his ears off to prove to his satisfaction that his bravery was ill-advised. Wright's hands went up at once.

After the passengers and trainmen had been thoroughly plucked three of the bandits turned their attention to the express and mail coaches, the others standing guard over the helpless crowd on the prairie. The registered mail pouches were quickly rifled, but the through safe in the express car resisted all the force and ingenuity of the road agents. When the messenger had convinced the bandits that he could not open the strong box they resorted to dynamite. Several heavy charges were exploded, but the safe proved burglar-proof, though it was badly shattered. Having taken possession of everything that they could carry away the bandits mounted their horses and rode off to the west.

As soon as the trainmen could collect their wits they got their scared passengers aboard and hurried on to the next station house, Chickasaw, from which point the railroad officials were notified of the holdup. At Chickasaw a posse of citizens was hurriedly formed. The posse set out in pursuit of the gang.

Divorce In Dispute.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 2.—The validity of a divorce secured by a Waterbury woman in North Dakota and its effect in Connecticut has been brought into question in the superior court in the divorce proceeding of Edwin Hart against Etta J. Hart. He brought a suit in June against his wife, and after it had been instituted she went to North Dakota and secured a divorce under the expeditious system used in that state.

Colonel Burpee, who appeared for the husband, stated that he did not see as the western divorce had any effect upon the proceedings in this state. Judge Roraback reserved his decision.

National Debt Increased.

Washington, Oct. 2.—The monthly treasury statement shows that at the close of business Sept. 30, 1897, the public debt, less cash in the treasury, was $1,012,122,713, an increase since Aug. 30 of $3,797,592. This increase is accounted for by a corresponding decrease in the amount of cash on hand.

The cash in the treasury is $850,368,631, against which there are demand liabilities outstanding amounting to $635,175,844, which leaves a net cash balance of $215,192,787.

To Stand by Tracey.

New York, Oct. 2.—Senator Platt, when asked regarding a published statement reasserting that the regular Republicans were conferring with the Citizens' union and German-Americans' organizations regarding the possible withdrawal of General Tracey in favor of Seth Low, said: "No; we are going to stand by Tracey, and we are going to elect him. I wish I was as sure of salvation as I am that Benjamin F Tracey will be the first mayor of Greater New York."

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

Some men are afraid of death, some are not. Most of us would rather not meet the grim destroyer today. We would rather put it off until to-morrow, or until next year. Mere wishes do not count for much in the matter. A man may not want to die. He may not want to be sick. He may wish and hope and pray that he will not be one or do the other, but wishing and hoping won't help him. It is what he does, and not what he wishes that serve his purpose. If a man is losing flesh, and is nervous, irritable, sleepless and debilitated, he may wish he would get well, but one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will do more than an ocean of wishes. If a man is on the way to consumption, he should make a stop as quickly as possible. He should put on brakes. He needn't be afraid he has consumption if he will do the right thing—if he will just take the right medicine. The "Golden Medical Discovery" cures incipient and well developed consumption. Consumption is a germ disease and a blood disease. The "Golden Medical Discovery" kills the germs and purifies the blood. It increases the appetite, helps digestion, makes assimilation perfect, and so builds up solid, wholesome flesh. Hundreds of grateful people afflicted with consumption, bronchial, throat and kindred diseases, have testified that it has actually saved their lives. For the sake of the information they contain, some of these letters have been included in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a thousand page, illustrated book, which will be sent free on receipt of twenty-one (21) one-cent stamps to pay for mailing only. Every family should have a copy for ready reference in case of sudden sickness or accidents. World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

A Pungent Address.

Perhaps the most complimentary observation that we can make concerning the address of Dr. Willian Everett in Faneuil Hall yesterday, when he accepted the gold Democratic nomination for Governor, is that it was thoroughly characteristic of the speaker. It was pionted, pungent and pellucid all the way through, revealing the speaker's fine contempt for what he graphically called the meaningless fetish of party regularity and allegiance. People may agree or disgree with Dr. Everett; they can scarcely help admiring his robust independence. And this address is a very good sample of it.—Herald.

Keith's Theatre.

The week of Oct. 4, Mr. Morris will play a return engagement at Keith's, supported by Miss Jane Lennox, a very capable actress. The programme will also include a famous troupe of acrobats and tumblers, known throughout Europe as the Carl Damann organization, and which will constitute the first of Mr. Keith's winter importations, several others being under contract for early appearance. The biograph is a bigger feature than ever before, the marvelous Haverstraw tunnel picture proving to be the biggest hit of anything yet exhibited by the marvelous invention. The photographing apparatus is about Boston making pictures, and street scenes on Washington, Tremont and other busy thoroughfares, a bicycle race on Charles river park, scenes in the harbor, etc., will soon be shown.

RESCUERS PERISHED.

A Mother's Love Responsible For the Death of Herself and Sons.

Their Dwelling Caught Fire Sunday Morning.

All Had Escaped at First, but the Parent Did Not Know It.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 4.—A special to The Union from East Longmeadow says: A horrible house burning tragedy, in which three lives were lost, occurred early Sunday morning in the center of this village. The home of George Brownlee caught fire from a chimney at 1:15 o'clock in the morning, and, although Mrs. Brownlee, her husband and the two sons, Thomas, aged 21, and James, 19, escaped in their night robes, Mrs. Brownlee and Thomas a few minutes later were burned in the building, their bodies being buried in the ruins.

Mrs. Brownlee, losing her head, rushed back into the house, thinking her sons had not come out. Then Thomas rushed after her to save her, with James after Thomas. The two former were overcome, while James got out, but was burned so severely that he died at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Mr. Brownlee himself was badly burned on his hands and feet, but will recover. The bodies of the victims, which were nothing but shapeless masses of flesh, were taken out at 6 o'clock in the morning. Thousands of people went out from this city Sunday to hang around the ruins and talk of the horrible tragedy.

Railway Collision In Rhode Island.

Providence, Oct. 4.—A head-on collision occurred yesterday morning at the Warwick station, the Warwick and Oakland Beach branch of the consolidated, between the train leaving this city at 8:20 o'clock and the one leaving Buttonwoods at 8:55. The two engines came together in front of the depot platform, and the result from the wreck delayed traffic for several hours. Both engines, with the tenders and the baggage cars of each train, were considerably smashed. James Lyman, the only passenger in the smoking car of the northbound train, was badly shaken up. The engineer and fireman of the southbound engine jumped and saved their lives. The cause of the collision is not fully known.

Citizens Captured Burglar.

Deering, Me., Oct. 4.—Five or six residents in this city were entered by burglars Sunday morning and several watches and considerable money were stolen. One of the burglars was captured by citizens. He gave his name as William Howard. Howard had three watches and $195 in money. One of the watches, a valuable gold timepiece, was identified as one stolen from the sleeping room of Clerk of Courts James E. Howey of Alfred. Howard has confessed to burglarizing this house, also the residence of United States Marshal John B. Donovan at Alfred.

Heavy Loss In Cambridge.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 4.—The extensive property of George H. Rugg, coal and wood dealer, and William F. Holmes, hay and grain dealer, was almost totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The total loss will reach about $22,000, of which $12,000 will fall upon Mr. Rugg. He was insured for $8000. Mr. Holmes estimates his loss at $8000 to $10,000, with an insurance of $6000. The origin of the fire is unknown. James Jefferson, a fireman, was overcome by smoke, but recovered.

Hay, Horses and Tobacco Burned.

Amherst, Mass., Oct. 4.—The large barns owned by Smith & Coggshall in Plainville were burned to the ground last night. The fire started in the rear of the barns from an unknown cause. Two horses, 60 tons of hay, a large assortment of farming tools and the product of three acres of tobacco in an adjoining shed were burned. The loss on the barns and farming tools is partially covered by insurance.

Struck on His Head.

Newton, Mass., Oct. 4.—John Shaughnessy of Nonantum received fatal injuries on attempting to alight from a moving electric car at Bemis yesterday afternoon. He lost his footing and struck heavily on his head. He was later removed to the Newton hospital, where he died three hours later from internal hemorrhages. He was unmarried.

Buildings Wiped Out.

Portland, Me., Oct. 4.—The wooden station of the Maine Central and the Grand Trunk railroads at Yarmouth Junction were wiped out by fire Sunday afternoon. A set of buildings adjoining, owned by Joseph Raynes, consisting of a small shop, a house and a stable, were also burned to the ground. The total loss is estimated at $10,000.

Fell Overboard While Fishing.

Boston, Oct. 4.—While fishing in a boat on the Mystic river last evening, Edward W. Ellard of Charlestown lost his balance and fell overboard. He was pulled out by his brother after being in the water some time, but was too far gone to be resuscitated.

FORTUNATE ESCAPE.

Cotapaxi, Colo., Oct. 4.—The first section of the Denver and Rio Grande narrow gauge train met with an accident just west of here yesterday morning that is believed to have been caused by the spreading of the rails. Two passengers were killed. The train was composed of one baggage car, three tourist cars, one coach, three sleepers and a pay car. The coach, the sleepers and the pay car left the track and rolled over on their sides.

The wreck occurred at end of a trestle, the last car of the train having only passed across the bridge. Had the accident occurred while the train was crossing the trestle the loss of life would undoubtedly have been very great. The following is a list of the dead and injured: Dead, Mrs. McIntyre of Silverton, killed outright; Fred Feyler of Cincinnati, died on the train going to Salida.

Seriously injured, Mrs. Robinson of Delta, head injured; Mrs. Mary Johnson, Telluride, shoulder injured; Frank E. Adams, Telluride, cut on head; Miss Ada Crompton, Delta, slightly injured on head; Mrs. Saunders, Salida, cut on lip and left shoulder.

Slightly injured, Miss Laura Gates, Denver, cut on head; Mrs. James Kirk, Montrose, slightly bruised; Mrs. G. N. Compton, Denver, back slightly injured; J. H. Shay, Telluride, left leg and right shoulder hurt; Lulu Chase, Denver, bad cut over right eye; F. H. Posey, Denver, right arm bruised, head cut; John Molling, Telluride, slightly hurt; C. H. Berndesfer, Telluride, right side and face scratched.

A number of the more seriously hurt were taken to Salida, where they are being cared for. Those who could continued their journey to Denver. The wrecked train was bringing excursionists to Denver to attend the carnival exercises.

Mysterious Suicide.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct 4.—A woman known as Mae Gleason, 23 years of age, committed suicide in a boarding house at Glenham, Duchess county, Saturday night, under mysterious circumstances. The girl, whose right name and residence are unknown, was very beautiful, having a wealth of brown hair and a face that denoted refinement and culture. She had been an inmate of the house for four weeks. She often spoke of Philadelphia and may have lived there. Saturday night there was unusual gaiety in the house and Mae, who was an accomplished pianist, played for four other girls to dance. She was the liveliest one of the party and seemed to be in the highest spirits. At midnight one of the girls retired to her room, locking the door.

Shortly before 2 o'clock the Gleason girl arose from the piano and rushed up to the room where the other girl was asleep. She burst in the door and went to a mantelpiece where a two-ounce vial of carbolic acid stood. She drank its contents and sank to the floor. The other girl at once gave the alarm and a doctor was sent for, but the young woman was dead within five minutes after she drank the poison.

Strychnine In Coffee.

Schuyler, Neb., Oct. 4.—Frank Steinad came in from Shell Creek, nine miles northwest, to summon a physician to the home of Frank Davis, whose family had been poisoned. Dr. Sixta hastened out and found four of the seven children and their mother dead, a fifth child in a dying condition, and a sixth victim sick. Mr. Davis and his eldest son left early in the morning before breakfast. When the meal was prepared those remaining sat down, and in the course of the meal Mrs. Davis made the remark: "Eat a good breakfast and we will all go together."

The old est son became suspicious after this remark and refused to eat. A daughter younger than the son, after drinking half a cup of coffee, became sick. The rest of the family also partook of the coffee. Strychnine had been put into the coffee, which soon showed its effects. Those not prostrated spread the alarm, but not soon enough to avoid the fatal effects noted.

Scene of Destruction.

Winnipeg, Oct. 4.—A prairie fire raged all over the country Saturday, and Sunday's sun dawned upon a terrible scene of death and devastation. Farm houses, implements, crops and live stock were everywhere consumed and many farmers lost their all. A most lamentable story comes from Beausejour, 40 miles east of this city, where two women and five children named Moreski were burned to death. Fire came upon their house from two directions simultaneously and shut off all means of escape. Only a few charred remains were found yesterday morning.

There were many narrow escapes. Carcasses of horses, cattle and sheep are lying all over the district, and a number of families of foreigners are homeless and destitute.

Terrible Experience.

Bombay, Oct. 4.—Henry Savage Landor, the well known artist, traveler and writer, and grandson of the celebrated Walter Savage Landor, has just returned to India after a most terrible experience. He had undertaken an exploring tour in Thibet, but he was abandoned by all the members of his company except two coolies. Finally the Thibetans arrested him by an act of treachery, sentenced him to death and, after torturing him with hot irons, actually carried him to the execution ground. At almost the last moment the execution was stopped by the grand llama, who commuted the sentence to torture by the "stretching leg," a species of rack which greatly injured Mr. Landor's spine and limbs. After being chained for eight days he was released. Mr. Landor has no fewer than 22 wounds as the result of his torture

Germany's Symyathy.

Berlin, Oct. 4.—The Berliner Post, in an article on the Spanish crisis, rebukes the German Democratic papers which have advocated the separation of Cuba from Spain. The writer of the article foresees that the attitude of the United States is "likely to prove a stumbling block to any Spanish ministry, however liberally Cuba may be treated." He adds: "Although Germany has no direct interest in these complications, it is wrong and politically unwise for German papers to adopt a haughty tone towards Spain, as she deserves all the sympathies of Germany."

IN THE JAWS OF DEATH

Night of Agony For the Crew of a Capsized Vessel.

Clung Desperately to Spars During a Violent Storm.

Atlantic City, Oct. 4.—The crew of the schooner wrecked off Long Port Saturday night were rescued yesterday and landed on the beach at Ocean City. The luckless craft was the Henry May, Captain W. O. Perry, from Portland, Me., with a cargo of railroad ties. For over 24 hours the captain and his five men faced death.

The story of their dread experience was told by Captain Perry after food and warmth had restored him. The vessel ran into the violent northeast gale, which raged along the coast Friday night, when off Barnegat. She was headed for the Delaware breakwater, but the storm grew in fury and the vessel sprang aleak. All hands were called to the pumps, but they were feeble against the roaring waters. Head on the weakening ship drove crazily before the storm, when a crash sounded above the screaming of wind and waves, and the mariners knew that the sails had gone. A moment later the ship swirled in a tremendous sea and capsized. This was off Longport.

Meanwhile she was sighted from shore, but the task of rescue then was hopeless. It was clear that no boat could brave the sea for more than a few minutes. The Ocean City life crew decided to try, and Peck's beach crew turned in to help. The lifeboat was launched, and almost immediately a huge wave broke over her and flung her angrily back upon the sands. Again and again was the attempt made, only to meet with the same rebuff. Eventually the futility of the work was recognized, and the would-be rescuers were despairingly compelled to abandon it.

The news of the wreck had spread and the beach was thronged with persons helplessly gazing at the tossing hull. She drifted slowly down the coast, her anchor chains dragging and wave after wave breaking over her. When she capsized a thrill of horror went over the onlookers, but a moment later the forms of the sailors were seen clinging to the plunging hull. Captain Perry tried to give some notion of what they felt as they watched the failing attempts at rescue.

Death loomed before them, but they prayed that it might be balked. Night fell like a pall. With the cold benumbing their very faculties and exhaustion creeping over them, they clung to the spars with the desperate love of life known only to those who have faced death. Thus the awful night passed. With the welcome sunlight came a lull in the storm, and they knew their prayers had been heard.

At the first streak of light the weary watchers on shore put out a boat, safely reached the wreck and carried the weakened seamen back to earth. There was a burst of joy when the gallant boat crunched against the sands, and the storm-bound sailors were tenderly lifted out. Women hugged the lifesavers, men danced madly about and a cheer went up louder than the breaking waves. Then all were fed and warmed. Captain Perry says this is his last sea trip. He thinks the hull of the schooner is worth saving. She was owned by the Berlin Mills company of Portland.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 4.—The British barkentine St. Peter was partially dismasted in a hurricane that struck her on the night of Sept. 8, compelling her to put about for Halifax in order to repair the damage. Captain Skaling brings the startling report that the storm through which the vessel passed was the cause of sending to the bottom a four masted iron sailing ship which must have carried a crew of at least 45 or 50 men. The St. Peter and the other vessel had been sailing within sight of each other all day on the eighth, but never came within hailing distance. The name of one could not be distinguished from the deck of the other. When evening closed in the big ship could be plainly seen, and her lights were in sight for some time after dark.

Then the hurricane swept the ocean and the crew of the St. Peter had all they could do to keep their vessel afloat. She was thrown on her beam ends and remained in that position for 10 hours, during which time the crew were lashed to various parts of the deck work. The jib-boom and all head-sails, the main-top gallant mast, maintop-mast and other spars and sails were carried away, as well as the deck load and nearly all the water casks.

When the St. Peter righted on the ninth nothing was to be seen of the four master, but shortly afterwards the barkentine passed the floating wreck of a ship's deck and deckhouse, which the crew identified as belonging to their sailing companion of the previous day. The conditions of the St. Peter rendered it impossible for the crew to make an examination of the wreckage in order to learn the name of the ship, but Captain Skaling is satisfied that the other vessel went down with every soul on board.

WE DOUBT if any other section of the city could have taken hold of a public question in the decisive way in which the people of Wollaston have handled their now famous fence case from the beginning to the end. From an outside point of view they have not made a single misstep from the time they asked the Commissioners for the hearing down to its close. It goes to show what strength there is in united action, in able leaders and in knowing what you want. It is safe to predict that Wollaston will get something, even if she doesn't get all that she asks for.

Barre Combine.

It looks as though the Boutwell granite company was to be in the Barre combine after all. The Times says: "Now that all efforts to purchase the Boutwell quarries have fallen through and they have been put into the combine, the success of the combine is practically assured. With proper management the consolidation can be made a benefit to the trade and ultimately to the city. Experience is against such a probability but we hope this will be an exception to the general rule. The first to suffer will be the men who have good positions as foremen on the hill and ultimately a cheaper class of labor will be employed on the quarries. But further than th's the company can do little. Preparations are already being made to ship more outside granite into this city, and our small manufacturers will be invited to locate elsewhere and they will go, unless they receive liberal treatment at the hands of the syndicate."

Back Pending Hearing.

The stone cutters employed at the yards of Thomas & Miller, who went out on Friday morning of last week, returned to work this morning pending a settlement which will probably be reached tonight, when Messrs. Thomas & Miller and the workmen will be given a hearing before the joint executive committees of the manufacturers and men.

ARRESTED IN BANGOR.

H. O. Rideout, Well Known at Wollaston, In Trouble.

The following despatch of Saturday from Bangor relates to a Wollaston young man:

H. O. Rideout of Boston was arrested at Bangor Saturday afternoon on a warrant charging him with defrauding the Hotel Louder out of the price of two weeks' board and was locked up to await trial.

Rideout came to Bangor several weeks ago, and since then has gotten into various difficulties. He tried to make a living by peddling ink, but was unable to meet his bills, and seemed to be utterly penniless. He was very thinly clad, and took a bold method of getting suitable clothes. He borrowed a costly bicycle from John L. Parker and left the weeel at W. H. Salley's store as security for a suit of clothes, saying that he would receive a check in a few days from Boston, but that he needed the clothes right away.

Some days ago Secretary Jordan of the Y. M. C. A. received a letter from Rideout's father, who is an insurance agent in Boston, asking if the young man was here, and saying that he was partially demented from a blow on the head received three years ago.

Rideout had purchased a ticket for Waterville, and was just about to board the train when arrested. Unless friends come to his rescue, he will be tried and sentenced Monday.

Porter the Champion.

The finals for the championship of the Wollaston Golf club were played Saturday between Robert B. Porter and E. H. Brock. It was a 36 hole contest and was very evenly fought from first to last, many of the holes being halved. Eighteen holes were played in the morning and Mr. Porter only led by 1 up at noon, his score being 90, while that of Mr. Brock was 91.

Better scores were made in the afternoon but again Mr. Porter led and he won the championship by 4 up.

At East Milton.

The East Milton Athletic Association played its first game of foot ball Saturday afternoon at the playground in East Milton with the Burdetts of Boston. East Milton had the best of the game from the start. They scored one touchdown in the fisrt half and were playing a good game. Just before half time the Burdetts found fault with a decision and their coach advised them to leave the field, which they did. The game was given to the East Miltons.

Other Matches.

The eleven of the Hyde Park High school defeated the Dorchester A. A. 6 to 4.

The eleven of the Dedham High school was defeated Saturday by the Maugus A. A. of Wellesley.

Not Caught Napping.

Sidney Cushing of Boston conducted a still hunt against Col. Lovell for the councillor nomination but did not quite succeed. No contest was expected and only 196 of the 256 delegates were present. The only ballot taken gave Lovell 115 and Cushing 63, and the renomination of Col. Lovell was made unanimous.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. The Fence at Wollaston.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The fence at Wollaston might serve as a subject for a brief article on the most advanced thought regarding government. Who are our governors—the railroad corporations, or the voice of the people?

'Tis said that the American people are more patient regarding public nuisances than any other nation—they laugh at them good naturedly, seeing in them mostly a huge joke; for are they not a free people, could they not easily put an end to them all, were they so disposed?

In many countries, particularly in Australia—the land of advanced economic thought, the government, i. e. the people, own and control the railroads. This idea is distasteful to most of us here, because of our growing distrust of the people. They must not be trusted with great affairs.

Look at the situation in Wollaston. Two of our honored citizens have lost their lives while attempting to cross the track. Where lay the blame, if any, it is not our purpose here to inquire. Had the people of Wollaston regarded the situation full of danger, it was for them to act, and to solicit assistance from the railroad, and the voice of the majority would have been patiently submitted to. But no, the people are treated as babes, incapable of self-preservation, a high board fence is placed in front of the track, shutting of convenient ingress and egress to the depot, thus interfering with the free coming and going of the whole people.

It is claimed that the railroad corporation have a right to do this "because the fence is built upon their property." This argument only shows how false are our ideas regarding the term property, and also how few of us have seen wherein lies the real power of a railroad to become a monopoly, the soft outer fringe of whose robe, may be stronger than the loins of the people.

The real property of railroads consists in all those things that have been produced by human labor:—such as rails, cars, engines, depots, etc., all the rest is privilege,—called by some a franchise, a right of way, through towns, cross public highways, over farms, etc., which privilege has been granted the corporations, by the people, through their representatives, and this privilege of running swift trains forty miles an hour over this road, is so valuable, that all railroad stock, and sometimes one half the bonds, are issued upon it. The real capital or property of the railroad then, is comparatively small; the privilege, the water upon which stocks are issued, is a social one, granted them by society; but with the understanding that they serve the public, and not become its masters.

'Tis the same with our street railways. We give a private industry the free use of our public streets with the expectation that they shall serve the public. How do they do it? A strip of land need be only five feet wide, if it stretches a thousand miles, and is the only strip over which freight and passengers are allowed to be carried with swift, easy convenience. It is master of the situation, and those who ride or send freight must pay the price asked. There is no competition. It has a monopoly of the traffic. True no business men would agree to go to the enormous expense of laying tracks, building cars, etc., unless they were assured of exclusive possession. The New Haven railroad and the street railway of Boston have beaten off every competitor. They find it profitable to employ men with large salaries, to watch in the lobby of our legislatures, that the people's representatives do not grant similar privileges to any Meigs or Boynton railroad, that by no chance competition may lower fares to five or three cents.

Is this not a proof that those industries which require such large capital to conduct them, also require competition must be killed? Is it not a proof that they should be taken out of the hands of private enterprise, and conducted by the people, and in the interests of the people; or better still, (and this is the latest, most advanced economic though regarding these monopolies)—all road beds, whether they contain rails, or rails with electric lines, all road beds and lines should be public highways, owned and kept in repair at public expense, free to all to walk, drive, or to any business man, or company of men to put on cars to carry freight or passengers, provided they strictly adhere to the rules of the road. Such an arrangement would soon double the track of every railroad in the country, greatly lessen the rates for freight and passengers, and double the traffic.

Some of our far-sighted men, who on the one side behold the restlessness of the people with alarm, and on the other the encroachments of monopoly in directing legislation, are convinced that the perpetuity of our free institutions alone, lies in our soon adopting the latter course herein described. E. S. T.

Council Business.

At tonight's meeting of the City Council the orders laying out Whally road as a public way and granting the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co., a location for poles on School and Franklin streets and on Standish avenue will come up for second readings.

The Committee on Streets will probably report an order for a public hearing on petition of the Quincy & Boston street railway for a location for another track from Saville street to Adams street and from Squantum street to the Boston line at Neponset bridge.

At the last meeting of the Council the Committee on Finance was requested to report on the order for an engine house lot at Norfolk Downs and a report is therefore expected from them.

To Lose its Charter.

The Council of Administration of the Grand Army have decided to annul the charter of Fletcher Webster Post of Brockton. The trouble started in 1896 when the post refused to elect delegates to attend the encampment because it claimed that the delegates of the previous year were used discourteously, not being recognized, and their resolutions were not put on the calendar. The post was also accused of using disrespectful language to Department Commander Derby. The post has transferred its property to a corporation so that they will hold it though they lose their charter.

DR. EVERETT'S VOTE.

The Ledger Offers a Prize For the Nearest Estimate.

Quincy is honored by the selection of one of her citizens as a gubernatorial candidate, and there is interest as to the strength he will develop in his own city. No one predicts that Dr. Everett will be elected, but as the chances of Governor Wolcott will not be endangered it is probable that the doctor will receive a large complimentary vote.

All the Ledger readers cannot vote at the polls on election day, but the Ledger knows no sex, age or condition, and asks everybody to vote by the use of the blank which will be found on this page. What will be the vote of William Everett in Quincy on November 2? A prize of $5 is hereby offered by the Ledger for the nearest estimate of the Quincy vote.

In case of a tie on the Quincy vote, the estimate on the State vote of those thus tied will be considered in reaching the decision. It is therefore important that a close estimate of both the city and state vote for Dr. Everett be made.

Last year Frederick O. Prince of Boston, who run as the National Democratic candidate, received but 111 votes in Quincy and 14,164 in the state.

Short letters of from 100 to 200 words with reasons for or against a vote for Dr. Everett will be welcomed and will be published when space permits.

The polls will close at 4 P.M. on Saturday, Oct. 30. Direct all estimates to

A SPITE FENCE.

It Stands Twenty-seven Feet High and Overshadows the House Next Door.

One of the highest spite fences ever erected has just been built in Bloomfield, N. J., by Mrs. Charles Herold between her property and that of Mrs. William Frank, on upper Broad street. Some time ago Mrs. Frank had a store building put up, the front of which came to the sidewalk line and shut off the view from the Herold residence. The store and upper floor were lately occupied by Frank Kopperman, a grocer. The fence is 27 feet high and 45 feet long. It is about three feet from the Frank house on the front, and a space of about 12 inches intervenes on the rear. It is painted black on the Frank side. The result has been to entirely close off the view on the north side of the Frank house and to darken the rooms. The spite fence is all on the Herold property, but close to the division fence.

On the inside of the fence, to the rear, long sticks have been nailed to the high posts, so that they come directly over the division fence. The result is to prevent the opening more than half way of the blinds on the Frank house. About five feet from the ground is a "peephole," closed by a door about 18 inches square, which opens from the Herold side of the fence. Victor Herold, Mrs. Herold's son, says it was put in so that he could look through and see that nothing was hung on the fence. The "peephole" is directly opposite a window in the Frank house. The fence was built by Victor Herold, and he made life in the neighborhood miserable by getting up at 3 a. m. and hammering away for about three hours at the spite fence before he went to his regular employment.

England's Love For Us.

The suggestion of the revival of negotiations for an arbitration treaty, coming on top of the soreness caused by the Bering sea blue book, inspires the London Globe to the following fine assertion of the beauties of Anglo-Saxon brotherhood:

"The shuffling, violent and insolent policy pursued toward this country at Washington demonstrates the absolute futility of arbitration."

The Globe would "view with the greatest regret the prospect of war between this country and the United States," but "in her relations with England we are irresistibly reminded of a small boy relying upon the contemptuous good nature of a big fellow. America is the insignificant urchin and the big boy who could swallow him at a mouthful is England."—New York Sun.

Teachers' Association.

The first meeting of the Quincy Teachers' Association will be held Thursday, at 7.30 P. M. at High School hall. The president of the Association, Mr. F. A. Tupper, begs leave to correct a certain misapprehension that is said to exist with regard to membership. All teachers who have ever paid the membership fees continue to be members. It is not necessary to rejoin the association every year, as the first joining was permanent. The payment of the merely nominal annual fee is all that is necessary to keep a member in good and regular standing. It is the intention of the president and the executive committee to make membership in this association so desirable that no Quincy teacher can afford to remain outside of the society.

The president of the association takes great pleasure in announcing that he has secured President Eliot of Harvard to address the association Wednesday evening, Dec. 15.

They have in Boston at the Zoo, commencing today, Oct. 4, the only real Alaskan natives in this country. They are twin sisters from America's Iceland, a pair of nuggets from Klondike who are the first inhabitants to come to America from that land of gold to which the eyes of the world are turned. They will be able to tell Bostonians and New Englanders who visit the Zoo where they are appearing, a good deal that is interesting about their life in the cold climate of the Yukon, and how the American gold seekers who are going up there will get through the horrible winter up there.

FITZ ON THE STUMP.

CORBETT'S CONQUEROR WILL HELP HIS FRIENDS GET OFFICES.

Says He Has Built a Speech Which Will Paralyze His Opponents—Gives a Few Samples—How He Boomed Bill Molloy. His Many Winning Ways.

Professor Robert Fitzsimmons, anatomist and expert in all that pertains to the solar plexus, has extended the wide sphere of his usefulness and entered the seething sea of politics in Westchester county, N. Y. He is in training for an arduous campaign and has written a number of speeches, all of them burning strings of rhetoric, thrilling with references to American liberty. Professor Fitzsimmons is a trifle hazy concerning which political party he owes allegiance to, but he is dead sure of one thing—he is out for Bill Molloy.

Bill Molloy lives in New Rochelle and is the candidate for sheriff on the Republican ticket and was nominated at White Plains, the nomination being ably pushed along by Professor Fitzsimmons.

"In politics? Sure! Why not?" said Bob last night, after returning from the clambake held at Port Chester.

"Here I've been living at Rye Beach all summer, and I'm a popular man. Show the gentleman what the people do when they see your papa"—this to young Bob Fitzsimmons, who is 21 months of age and knows a lot.

"See?" continued Bob proudly. "Even the kid knows. I'm an American citizen, and I'm a friend of Bill Molloy's. I wanted to show Bill that I thought he was all right, so I goes over to the convention with me pockets upholstered with Molloy badges. They all knew me over there, and I was a delegate before I had a chance to think. I guess there were 20 men there wearing Long badges—Long was ag'in Bill—that I thought I could handle. I'd just walk over to 'em gently, I would, get a good grip on the lapel of their coat, and say:

"'Here, what are you wearing a badge like that for? What's the matter with Bill Molloy?'—just like that. 'You know who I am,' I'd say. 'I'm Bob Fitzsimmons, champion of the world.' They all said they knew me, and every one of them asked me my advice about what he'd better do. Then I'd take a Molloy badge out of me pocket and pin it on, and you bet your neck they wore 'em too! Was he nominated? In a minute!

"Now, there's no reason why I shouldn't be in politics up here. I'm trying to buy property up in the village and locate here. I could make as good a bluff at holding office as a whole lot of the onions I know that draw money for looking wise. I can look as wise as any of 'em. Am I going to make speeches? Well, say, before I start out on the road, which will be in a few weeks, I'll boom Bill Molloy around here until his election'll be a cinch. Listen to this—one I've done many a time. Wrote it myself too:

"'Fellow citizens, here we stand like Roman gladiators, after the games, preparing for the feast. Like a hard wind through the trees is heard the sound of the voice of the people calling for'—I get in Bill Molloy for sheriff here.

"Well, it goes on like that all the way, and it's a bird. I spoke it up to a German Lutheran fair in Port Chester the other night, and, say, talk about a hit! They had a lot of magic lantern views there, and at the end they gave a picture of me, a profile—say, it was beautiful—that's on the level. The preacher had plugged up the game with me all right, and after they showed the picture I went back on the stage where it was dark. Then the preacher said they had seen the picture of the champion of the world. He would show him in reality. Then they turned on the lights, and there I was. I makes the speech all right, only instead of saying, 'Bill Molloy for sheriff,' I said 'more churches for the people.' At that, I think the people have got enough churches.

"In case I take a notion to go into politics here and run for office the people will find Bob Fitzsimmons just what he always was—on the level. I'll tell 'em just where I stand and just how I feel. There won't be any oofty goofy about the way I want things done, and whatever I say I'll do I'll do. I was over to the town hall the other night to a meeting and made a few remarks. I stood up there and told 'em the people wanted Bill Molloy for sheriff. I said, 'If there's a man here that don't think we want Bill Molloy, let him cough up his objections.' Was there any coughers? Not on your suspenders.

"I'm a temperance man, and I always talk temperance, but there is a whole lot of people that don't feel the way I do. I always keep liquor in my house, and when I feel like taking a drink I take it, but I'm temperance at that."—New York Journal.

Autumn Assurances.

Oh, keep looking forward to times that will smile,
To hours when the earth will be gay,
When jewels will sparkle, when mirth will beguile
A country serene as May.
Think not of the present nor grieve o'er your fate,
The promise behold of a glorious date.
So turn to your calendar gayly and wait
Till after election day.

There'll be nothing to do then but sit down and wish,
And things will come straight your way.
The handsomest garment, the daintiest dish,
Will be ready for all, they say.
We'll heed not the present.
We cannot go wrong.
Each candidate sings us the same dulcet song
Cheer up, all ye voters! It will not be long
Till after election day!

Fire Still Rages.

Columbus, O., Oct. 4.—A special to The State Journal from Chicago Junction says: "The prairie fire is still raging here. The flames have reached the gardens and village of the Hollanders' Celery company, and hundreds of men are fighting to keep the flames from entering the village. The wind at present is favorable. Over 3000 acres of farm land lie in waste. Many families have deserted their homes, leaving crops and stock to perish in the flames. The damage already done amounts to thousands of dollars.

New Cabinet Organized.

Athens, Oct. 4.—The new cabinet organized by Mr. Zaimis has met with a favorable reception from the press, most of which denounce Mr. Delyannis. The Scrip hopes that the "Greek Olliver" will cease to disturb the country he ruined, adding that "his return to power would be a national disgrace." The new ministers took the oath of office before King George. A large crowd assembled in the vicinity of the palace and gave them a sympathetic greeting.

To Be Paid In Silver.

Monterey, Mex., Oct. 4.—The managers of the large smelters of the Gugenheim syndicate, situated here and at Aguas Calientes, have notified their men that hereafter their salaries will not be paid in gold, but will be in Mexican silver at the ratio of two Mexican dollars for one gold dollar. It is reported that the same action will be taken by the railroad companies and other corporations in Mexico toward their office employes.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

STIVETTS' BATTING.

Patched Up Team of Bostons Defeated by the Brooklyns.

Michael, the Welsh Wonder, Sustained Defeat.

Great Interest In the Series of Games For the Temple Cup.

Brooklyn, Oct. 4.—The Brooklyn boys were anxious to win Saturday's game with the Bostons, as it meant a place in the first division, and they played good ball, while the Boston players looked on the game as merely an exhibition affair. In place of Tenney, Boston's phenomenal infielder, Stivetts, loomed up at first. He played the base all right and gave an exhibition of terrific batting. Captain Duffy danced about at second, while George Yeager, at third, gave a perfect burlesque of the only Collins. Mr. Yeager dropped flies, fumbled and made two throws that would have delighted Sam Wise, they were so far from the mark. At short was Robert Allen. Stahl was in left field and Hamilton in center. Out in right was that mind reader, Mr. Klobedanz. By some misunderstanding Kloby left his fielding glasses home, and had a hard time in finding the balls that went by him on the bound and over his head.

Lewis, who is slated to go against Baltimore in one of the Temple cup series, did not exert himself to any extent, which accounts for the number of hits. Fisher had all of the Bostons excepting Stahl and Stivetts guessing. The latter made himself solid with the crowd by cracking out a single, triple and a home run. His fourth crack would have resulted in a three-bagger but for a wonderful one handed catch by Hanivan. Griffin led at the stick for Brooklyn. Sheckard earned a berth for next season when he hit for two home runs. He also fielded beautifully. Brooklyn closed the season on even terms with Washington for sixth place. The score:

Final Games of the League.

St. Louis, Oct. 4.—The "browns" and Chicago split even in their doubleheader. The home team won the first by batting Griffith hard in the closing innings. In the second game Thornton fooled the locals badly. Score: First game, St. Louis, 10; Chicago, 9. Second game, Chicago, 7; St. Louis, 1.

Louisville, Oct. 4.—The season of 1897 closed here yesterday, the "reds" defeating the home team in an interesting game. Both Frazer and Rhines were touched up rather lively, but the latter was more effective when men were on bases. Captain Clarke was presented with a diamond pin by his admirers in the first inning. Score: Cincinnati, 9; Louisville, 7.

Games Saturday: Washington 6, Baltimore 3; Philadelphia 18, New York 5; Pittsburg 7, Cleveland 4; Cincinnati 9, Louisville 8; Chicago 8, St. Louis 2.

Al Want Manager Hanlan.

New York, Oct. 4.—The Journal publishes the following: "Edward Hanlon, the successful manager of the Baltimores, was recently the recipient of the most astonishing offer in the history of professional baseball. The owners of the Pittsburg club, which has had poor success in the pennant fight for some years past, desired to secure the services of the great Baltimore manager. They invited him to a conference and formally offered him a contract calling for $12,000 a year and a quarter interest in the club. Mr. Hanlon, however, decided to remain with Baltimore. In fact, H. R. Von der Horst, the principal owner of the Baltimore club, said if Hanlon left the club he would immediately sell out his interest.

Failing to secure Hanlon, the Pittsburgers engaged W. H. Watkins of Indianapolis, who was manager of the champion Detroits when Hanlon was centre-fielder and captain. The owners of the Philadelphia club also made an effort to engage Hanlon, but without success. Hanlon, who was at Hoboken Sunday, said that so far as he knew the orioles would start the season of 1898 the same as at present. He was disappointed at his failure to win four successive pennants, but said the finish was so close that it was no disgrace to come second.

The Baseball Combination.

Boston, Oct. 4.—Manager Selee is completing arrangements for the tour of the Baltimore-all America combination. The makeup of the teams will be as follows: All America—Lange, Burkett and Stahl in the outfield, Collins, Dahlen, Tebeau, Duffy or Nash in the infield, Powell, Rhines and Hastings pitchers, Donahue and Smith catchers. The men to wear the Baltimare colors will be: Clark catcher, Pond, Corbett and Horton pitchers, Jennings, Doyle, Reitz, Nash or O'Brien infield, Kelley, Griffin and Keeler outfielders.

The teams will work west to Pittsburg, Newcastle, Kansas City, then down to Texas, arriving at San Francisco about the second week of November, where they expect to remain until about New Year's. The players have been guaranteed expenses. If a profit is made the pot will be divided, half to the players and half to the three men who have backed the enterprise.

Bicyclists In a Mixup

Detroit, Oct. 4.—Saturday's national circuit bicycle races wound up with half dozen of the fastest of the racing stars badly spilled along the track. Just after the last eighth mile of the final event of the day, in the two-mile open professional, was reached, Tom Cooper's wheel struck that of Butler, who was just ahead. Butler and Cooper were badly thrown, and Bald, Mortens and Kiser tumbled over them in a bad mixup. Mertens' right side was painfully injured by a heavy fall on Cooper's handle bar. Bald received a hard blow in the side, and all had a severe shaking up.

Temple Cup Series of Games.

Boston, Oct. 4.—Interest in the Temple cup series of games which opens in this city today is nearly as rife as was that shown in the outcome of the race for the pennant. Nothing but the weather will keep down the attendance. The managers of both teams and the players realize the financial importance of the contests as strongly as they understood the necessity for playing for all they were worth while the issue of the championship was in doubt. It means more money in their respective purses if they secure a majority of the games than if they are content with only a minor portion and play listlessly. Besides there is prestige to be conserved. From talks with the Bostons it is obvious that they propose to play to win.

Wonderful Wefer.

New York, Oct. 4.—At the New York-Chicago Athletic club games B. J. Wefers, in the 150-yard dash, created a new world's record by one-fifth of a second his time being 14 3-5 seconds. J. H. Maybury of Chicago was second.

Of the 12 events comprising the special program, the New Yorkers won eight against Chicago's three, while one event resulted in a tie. Owing to the fact that the representatives of Chicago were more limited than those of the local amateurs, it was decided to figure only on first places. This is the same system which governs the annual competitions between the Oxford and Cambridge universities, and estimated on this basis the score reads: N. Y. A. C., 8 1-2; C. A. A., 3 1-2.

Defeated the Midget.

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—J. Frank Starbuck, or "Star," accomplished a feat Saturday on a one-third mile track that was hitherto thought impossible, at least by an American—he lowered the colors of Jimmy Michael, the Welsh midget, in the greatest 25-mile race ever run in this country.

That the time was not the fastest is accounted for by the wind that prevailed, though this helped on the way somewhat, for it was right on the riders' backs. Allowing for this great drawback, the time made, 47m. 2 1-5s., is very near record time, which is 45m. 57 4-5s., held by Michael.

Quaker City's Cricketers.

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—When stumps were drawn in the cricket game between a picked Philadelphia team and the English amateurs, the Quaker city representatives had a total of 380 runs for their two innings, with one wicket to spare for today's play. The Britons made 322 runs in their first inning, and it is thought they will easily overcome the Philadelphians' lead of 58 and what they may make on their one wicket.

Died of Yellow Fever.

Lewes, Del., Oct. 4.—The Norwegian fruit steamer John Wilson, 10 days from Bocas del Toro, Colombia, arrived at Delaware breakwater quarantine yesterday with her flag at half mast. The quarantine physician found the body of Chief Engineer Charles Petersen of Bergen, Norway, who died on the passage Friday last of yellow fever. The Wilson is one of several fruit steamers which are shut out of our southern ports on account of yellow fever, and are bringing their cargoes of fruit to Philadelphia and New York. The Wilson left Mobile Sept. 12 for a cargo of bananas. On the 15th the mate was taken sick and was landed on the 23rd at Bocas del Toro. The disease was there called malaria, but there is no doubt it was yellow fever. On the voyage north Petersen was taken sick on the 27th, and died Oct. 1. A coffin was taken aboard the steamer in the afternoon and the body placed therein, together with a quantity of slacked lime. It was then placed in an outer box and buried in the government burying ground by the crew of the Wilson.

George's Platform.

New York, Oct. 4.—After a wrangle at a conference of the representatives of the Democratic alliance, the United Democracy and the Young Democracy, all of which organizations are in favor of Henry George for mayor, it was agreed that the meeting Tuesday night at which Mr. George will be notified shall be held under the auspices of a committee of friends of the candidate to be named by him. The platform is to be one drawn up by Mr. George's representatives.

The opening address at the meeting will be delivered by Charles O'Connor Hennessy, temporary chairman. The notification will be made by Alfred B. Cruikshank on behalf of the United Democracy and by Frederick B. Adams on behalf of the Democratic alliance. Then will follow the speech of acceptance by Mr. George and the reading of the platform.

No Mediation In Cuban Affairs.

Madrid, Oct. 4. — The ministerial changes will not affect the instructions which United States Minister Woodford originally received from President McKinley. Both General Woodford and Mr. Sagasta, the premier, maintain absolute reserve on the question of American relations to Spain. Leading Liberals, however, declare that Spain can never officially accept American mediation in Cuban affairs.

Sagasta had a canference with the queen regent yesterday, and it is expected that the Liberal cabinet will be completed today. General Correa has accepted the portfolio of minister of war.

Death Record.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 4—Thomas Foley, aged 22, died at the city hospital Sunday as the result of a bullet wound in the head, self inflicted. He was out of health and had been insane.

Samuel W. Scott of Uxbridge, 78 years old, died suddenly of paralysis of the heart Sunday morning. He was a well known cabinet manufacturer.

William H. Briggs, an East Douglas lawyer, died of neuralgia of the heart in that town Saturday night.

Secured Conductor's Change.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 4.—Two men at the points of revolvers stopped a cable train one mile south of the city on the last run Saturday night, secured what small change the conductor had and escaped. Gripman Israel did not comply with the order to stop quick enough, and one of them fired a shot at him. No damage was done, and the conductor submitted to his pocket being searched. There were no passengers on the car.

FRIENDS OF CUBA.

Nothing but the Country's Independence Will Be Acceptable to Them.

New York, Oct. 4.—The Herald prints a number of interviews with leading Cubans on the subject of the situation in the island. They all declare that autonomy for Cuba is out of the question, but most of them are in favor of paying Spain a reasonable indemnity, providing she evacuates the island at once.

T. E. Strada Palma, representative of the Cuban provincial government, said: "To the Cuban patriots it makes little difference whether a liberal or a conservative ministry directs affairs in Spain. A change in government in Spain does not alter the case of the Cubans. They are now more firmly determined than ever to push the fight until the absolute independece of Cuba is accorded. I believe the Cubans are willing to pay a reasonable indemnity to Spain, providing she withdraws her troops from Cuba before the island is completely ruined."

H. J. De Varona said: "I believe autonomy would complicate, far from solving, the Cuban situation. Absolute independence is the aspiration of the immense majority of the Cuban people. Cuba needs a definite political regime. Spanish autonomy would not give it to the island. The only practical solution of the Cuban problem is absolute independence."

Dr. Henry Lincoln de Zayas said: "The Cubans are and have always been ready to treat with Spain with a view to a cessation of hostilities, providing the first condition be that Spain shall acknowledge Cuban independence."

Colonel F. Lopez de Queralta, formerly of the United States army and a veteran of the 10-years' war in Cuba, said: "I would like to see Cuba freed by force of arms; but to avoid further shedding of blood of innocent people, I would, though painfully, sign and give my consent to a compensation to Spain for the sake of getting rid of the Spanish."

E. Trujille, editor of The Porvenir, said: "Cubans are fighting for absolute independence and will accept no other solution."

BrigadierAgramonte, surgeon general of the Cuban army, said: "Cubans are firmly retermined to fight until absolute independence is accomplished. But a few millions more or less, providing the sum is reasonable, will be paid by them to Spain in order to avoid a prolongation of the struggle."

Regarding the plan for the purchase of Cuba from the Spanish government, General Emelio Nunez, who for the past 10 days has been in consultation with the junta leaders in New York, said: "I cannot see how the plans for the freedom of Cuba on the basis of a guarantee to Spain by the United States of an indemnity of $200,000,000 in cash can be displeasing to any of the parties, except that the amount is greatly in excess of the true value of the relics left by Weyler. The United States could afford to back up the proposition because it would have the revenue of Cuba to guarantee reimbursement, and would gain in the immediate improvement of its trade relations. I believe that, stern as our resolution is never to lay down our arms to Spain, the majority of our people are not so unwise as to imagine it better to fight to the last gasp rather than cease the struggle on terms so favorable as are now possible."

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

As yet no storm threatens New England, and the clear and pleasant weather seems certain to continue through Tuesday and probably Wednesday; the temperature will probably rise slightly, with winds generally from southerly points. Yesterday was generally clear in all parts of the country, and excepting the coolness over New England was seasonably warm.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Thomas Foley, 22, died in Worcester, Mass., from a bullet wound self-inflicted while insane.

Major Blackhurst has gone to England at the invitation of former Salvation Army officers to help establish the American Volunteers in that country.

It is announced that the battalion of troops stationed at Hazleton, Pa., will be withdrawn today. All the militia will then have left. The miners are nearly all at work, and affairs have again resumed their normal condition.

The outcery against the naval bill, which contemplates an appropriation of 410,000,000 marks, to be distributed over seven years, and the construction of a score of vessels, of which 10 are to be large ships, appears to have given the German government pause.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance af J. W. Pearsons of New Britain, Conn., of whom all trace was lost Sept. 15, was cleared up when his lifeless body was found in the woods on the outskirts of Winsted. He had committed suicide by shooting.

Gearge W. Keyser was found dead in the woods at Nashua, N. H., having shot himself probably four days ago. He evidently belonged in Worcester, Mass., and was a member of the Red Men and George Bencroft council, American Mechanics. It is a case of suicide.

Captain Kurdman and three lieutenants of the Salvation Army were arrested last night by the police for disorderly conduct in singing and playing musical instruments in the streets of Trenton, N. J. They had been warned to desist, but ignored the warning.

Leopold Slobski, aged 35, died at the South Norwalk, (Conn.) hospital from injuries received Saturday night in attempting to drive in front of a trolley car of the Westport and Saugatuck Street Railway company. His skull was fractured. A companion was also seriously injured, though not fatally.

Two troops of cavalry have been started for the Darlington Indian agency to keep order during the Choctaw election, which began today. The Indians are already beyond control, and the cavalry has been sent by order of the war department in response to an appeal from Major Woodson, the government agent.

While returning fram a party at Hamilton, Ala., six people in a boat were thrown into the Buttahatchie river and four of the occupants drowned. Those drowned were Lizzie Smith, Belle Key, Mary Swearingen and Ella Phillips. Their escorts, Robert and John Wright, brothers, who caused the boat to capsize by rocking it, saved their own lives.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Well Dressed Man Who Insisted on Having Money.

One Fall River Alderman Called Another a Fool.

Maine Man Won His Breach of Promise Case Against a Married Woman.

Wellesley, Mass., Oct. 5.—An unknown but well-dressed man caused considerable excitement here last night by holding up a storekeeper and afterwards a young woman, but from neither, however, did he obtain any money.

He first made his appearance about 9 o'clock at the store of Henry Tailer & Son, where he asked for money enough to send him to Boston. The clerk, instead of giving the money, sent the man to the railroad station and promised to follow shortly and purchase a ticket for him. The clerk, however, forgot to go, and the man, apparently after waiting until the last train had gone, returned to the store in a very threatening mood. He demanded money at once and used threatening language, but the clerk refused to give up a cent, and the man left the store.

Soon after this a young girl named Mary Maher reported to her father that an unknown man, whose description seems to tally with that of the person at Tailor's store, had stopped her and asked for money. She managed to escape and then ran home. Citizens, together with the local police, searched the town for the fellow.

Fletcher Post Protests.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 5.—At a meeting of the committee of Fletcher Webster post, G. A. R., last eening, a long statement of the facts of the controversy between the post and Department Commander Deane was issued to the public. The statement recites in detail the charges made against the post and the counter accusations against the department officials, which placed the onus of originating the present trouble upon ex-Department Commander Thayer in the 1896 convention by his "arbitrary conduct" in suppressing resolutions which had been forwarded by the post to be placed on the calendar, and by his subsequent conduct in personally insulting the delegates from the post. The statement then follows up the later developments in the case, which resulted in the annulment of the post's charter by the present council of administration, and concludes as follows: "In citing these facts which pertain to this case the committee of Fletcher Webster post, 13, enters its protest against the arbitrary methods which are now in vogue in the department of Massachusetts, and which are based not on the principles of the Grand Army of the Republic, but on the ideas which have grown up in the minds of ambitious men, that once in a commanding position in this order they can establish a system of control as arbitrary as that of a military despotism. Unless this is checked no post in this department is safe from liability to be hauled before the council of administration upon charges more or less flimsey, if it has the manly independence to do its own thinking and dares to speak its opinions."

The Thrifty Canadians.

Boston, Oct. 5.—Messrs. Woodworth and Lord, receivers of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association, have gone to Canada in the interests of the estate of the defunct association. The largest part of the nominal assets were with the Canadian department, and it is understood that the receivers will endeavor to come to some arrangement with the Canadian authorities by which the death claims can be paid and all funds over and above the amount necessary to pay them handed over to the receivers.

The funds of the association in Canada consist of real estate to the amount of $19,750, and United States bonds, on deposit with the treasury department, to the amount of $112,500. The death claims in Canada will not exceed $60,000, so if the receivers are successful in releasing the difference between these amounts, there will be a larger dividend to the American claimants.

The Canadians, however, already have expressed their intention of paying 100 cents on the dollar to the beneficiaries of dead members and dividing the balance among the living members, and this, without much doubt, will be done. A permanent liquidator has been appointed for the association in Canada.

Alderman Luby of Fall River.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 5.—In the board of aldermen last night the report of the committee on the bribery investigation came up for consideration. Alderman Luby objected to its consideration on the ground that it charged Hoag without evidence and that the committee took a recess before preparing it to see what the court did in the case. It was finally laid on the table for one month.

Among the list of appointments as constables was a name to which Alderman Hathaway objected because he had been told that the man took out naturalization papers before he had been in this country two years. Alderman Luby wanted an investigation of the charge, which he wanted put in writing. Alderman Hathaway replied that he made no charge, but that he had heard the report, whereupon Alderman Luby called him a fool. This created much confusion, and the debate came to a sudden stop.

Bad Way to Meet a Note.

Deering, Me., Oct. 5.—William Hyde, who gave his name as William Howard, the man who was arrested Sunday morning for burglary, yesterday pleaded not guilty to the three charges and was bound over in the sum of $3000.

Hyde claims to be a farmer. He says that he was unable to meet a note of $200, and almost 30 days ago concluded to get the money from persons in easy circumstances. He left his home at Sharon, N. B., for Boston, and later went to New Hampshire and Maine. He made his first attempt at entering and breaking at Alfred, and from there went to Biddeford, West Brook and Deering. He had almost the $200 when he was arrested and was trying to make his last break. He had, he says, no idea of continuing in a life of crime. He is doing his best to assist the police authorities of Deering in restoring the stolen money to the owners.

Bad Man Under Guard.

Barnstable, Mass., Oct. 5.—John T Carter, who, with Farrell and Menahan, was charged with shooting Officer Harry Bourne at Falmouth and the stealing of several horses with which to effect their escape, was brought here from Providence last Saturday and arraigned yesterday on the charge of breaking and entering the barn of Sylvanus E. Handy at Bourne, and the larceny of a horse therefrom. He pleaded not guilty and was held for examination on the 11th inst. in the sum of $1500. From information received by Sheriff Whitcomb he believed an attempt would be made to take Farrell and Carter from the jail. Consequently he placed three extra officers on duty at the jail in order to keep a night and day watch.

Salve For a Man's Heart.

Lewiston, Me., Oct. 5.—In the Melcher-Hadley case for breach of promise, the plaintiff being a man, Judge Emery reviewed the testimony and went into all the points of law involved in a clear and lucid manner. The case was given to the jury at 3 o'clock. At 11 o'clock they reported with a verdict for the plaintiff for $1789. It is understood that the jury stood 11 to 1 for the plaintiff on the first ballot, and that one man stood out for eight hours, finally yielding.

Injured in a Runaway.

Waterville, Me., Oct. 5.—Monday afternoon a serious runaway accident occurred at the east end of Ticonic bridge, wherein Vilbon Pomelieau and wife were thrown from a carriage, their horse having taken fright at a train. Mrs. Pomelieau saved herself by jumping. Her husband, in his endeavors to stop the horse, was thrown and sustained injuries to his spine and internal troubles, from which there are grave fears of death.

Crushed to Death.

Malden, Mass., Oct. 5.—A sad fatality occurred at the Maplewood station of the Boston and Maine railroad about 6:30 last night. Fritz W. Peterson, 16 years old, in alighting from a car fell under the wheels and was so badly crushed that he died almost instantly.

Millions For Weyler.

Havana, Oct. 5.—The steamship Reina Christina brought Captain General Weyler $2,000,000, it is officially asserted, to be applied in military expenses.

Today 1200 Spanish soldiers, sick or otherwise incapacitated, returned to Spain. As against these 200 arrived yesterday.

A Spanish column, while reconnoitering near Cagamali, captured an insurgent camp and secured 250 pounds of dynamite. At Botino, province of Matanzas, during an engagement between another body of troops and the insurgents, the insurgent leader, Martinez, was killed and eight insurgents were captured. The Spanish forces surprised a band of insurgents at Arroyo Manso, in the province of Pinar del Rio, and killed their leader, Serafin Garcia, and 30 men.

Piqua, O., Oct. 5.—A Pan-Handle passenger train, west-bound, was wrecked two and a half miles east of this city yesterday. It was running down grade at the rate of 40 miles a hour, and in crossing the frog at the Jordan switch it left the track. The engineer applied the air brakes, but the engine continued notwithstanding, at a terrific rate of speed, tearing up the tracks for a distance of 50 feet and going into a ditch. The tender went in the opposite direction, while the baggage car was thrown across the track.

Two day coaches were derailed, but they escaped little damage. The engineer sustained a terrible scalp wound and the fireman was hurt internally. C. S. McGowan, the baggage master was injured about the hip. None of the passengers was seriously injured.

Pope's Health Good.

Rome, Oct. 5.—All reports in Paris and London papers to the contrary notwithstanding, the pope is in excellent health. The Roman Observer says: The bad weather of the past few days has prevented the pope from continuing his walks in the garden of the Vatican. On Friday afternoon the pope received the members of several distinguished families, and on Saturday afternoon he received over 100 Italian and foreign visitors. On Sunday he admitted 50 visitors to his celebration of mass.

Dr. Laffoni, the physician of his holiness, confirmed the statements as to the satisfactory state of the health of the supreme pontiff, and emphatically denied the alarming reports circulated concerning the pope's health.

A Murderous Gang Caught.

Bombay, Oct. 5.—Damodar Chapekar Deccani, a Brahmin advocate, and 22 others have been arrested for the murder of Plague Commissioner Rand and Lieutenant Ayerst, while engaged last June in the Poonah district in enforcing the sanitary regulations. They were shot while leaving the governor's reception at Ganeshkind, the murderers being concealed behind trees. Lieutenant Ayerst died instantly and Mr. Rand shortly afterward. The arrested men have confessed to the murder, Deccani apparently being the principal in the crime. He has also confessed to having tarred the queen's statue in this city last year, and acknowledged other offences.

CONNECTICUT ELECTIONS.

Constitutional Amendment Establishing a Reading and Writing Test.

New Haven, Oct. 5.—Connecticut's "little town" elections were held last night, and while in some sections of the state there were surprising turnovers, the results show that the change from the vote of a year ago is not great. The cities of New Haven, Hartford, Bridgeport, Ansonia, Derby and the town of Naugatuck did not vote for officers of the town government, but they, with all of the 163 towns of the state, voted on the proposed constitutional amendment, which provides that voters must be able to read any portion of the constitution or the statutes of the state, and must be able to write.

With nearly every town heard from there is yet to be found a single town which did not pass the amendment overwhelmingly. The little towns, together with all of the cities except those named above, elected town governments and voted on the license question. License prevails generally, and very few of the towns changed their position on the liquor question.

The few contests which prevailed were made on lines altogether local, with no national issues at stake. In New London, Cyrus G. Beckwith, a Democrat, won handily in the mayoralty contest and the town went Democratic. Middletown experienced a Democratic sweep, the Republican incumbent of the town clerkship for 30 years being overwhelmed. The Republicans secured a few minor offices there, but it was a Democratic day. In Norwalk and South Norwalk city elections were held and Democrats won in both places. The rest of the ticket in those places was divided.

Sectionally speaking, Fairfield county showed the greatest Democratic gains. In that county last year the Republicans elected their men in 16 towns. This year they were successful in but nine, with five towns missing, including Stamford. The northern counties of the state, especially Hartford county, proved to be as rock-ribbed Republican as ever, with almost no changes. In Danbury the Republican candidate for the town clerkship surprised everyone by winning, while the rest of the ticket was defeated.

Woman Distributed Her Wealth.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The will of Elizabeth Hammond Stickney makes a number of munificent bequests to benevolent, clerical and charitable institutions. Her estate is largely personal property, only $75,000 being in real property. The largest public bequest was $75,000 to the art institution and the same amount to St. Luke's hospital. A sum of $23,000 is given by the will to the trustees of St. James Episcopal church.

COUNCILMAN SPRAGUE does not propose that Ward Five and Six shall longer go without adequate fire protection. Many were doubtless surprised to hear from the chairman of the Finance Committee that there was no immediate need of steps being taken toward a new fire station in this part of the city. Not only does Wards Five and Six need better fire protection but is a wise precaution for Ward One. We should not wait for a conflagration to teach us the lesson that we need more apparatus.

THE CITY of Lynn is getting well advertised this week. It is "Merchants' Week," and attractions have been prepared for each day, which are attracting thousands of people to the city. The Lynn Item set forth the advantages and progress of the "Shoe City" in a carnival edition, and the Boston dailies are giving the festivities of the week considerable space. Merchants' week is growing in favor and should be observed in Quincy next year.

CITY CLERK KEITH believes in giving a good notice of the meetings for registration, and of the polling places, and in fact, all matters relative to elections. Preparations for elections are the most exacting duties of the City Clerk during the year, as there is considerable machinery under the new election laws, but the preparations are so carefully made in Quincy that there are no hitches and no irregularities.

THE NEW street railway company, which is seeking a location in Quincy, will not be a dangerous rival of the Q. & B. Few in the city know just where Randolph avenue really is.

COUNCILMAN FIELD was better prepared for his duties as President pro tem last night and the business of the City Council went along smoothly.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Unfavorable Report on Norfolk Downs Fire Station.

Another Street Railway Asked for Location in Quincy.

Commissioners Asks to Have Receipts Credited to Streets.

In the absence of President Bryant Councilman Field called the meeting of the City Council to order on Monday evening and upon roll call was elected President.

The absent members were Councilmen Badger, Bryant, Edwards and Geary.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication appointing George B. Wendell a weigher of wood and coal which was confirmed.

The Commissioner of Public Works forwarded a communication stating that the receipts of his department amounted to $2107.91 which he should like credited to Highways. To Committee on Finance.

PETITIONS.

A petition for soldiers relief was received from Able A. Cain. To Committee on State Aid.

UNDERGROUND CONDUITS.

The New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. petitioned for permission to lay underground conduits on Hancock, Washington, Temple and Granite streets and on Quincy avenue. Also for a location for poles on Squantum street and Newbury avenue. Both were referred to the Committee on Streets.

ANOTHER STREET RAILWAY.

The Boston, Milton and Brockton street railway petitioned for a location of tracks on Randolph avenue between the Randolph and Milton lines. Laid on the table until later in the evening when an order was adopted for a public hearing Oct. 25.

SQUANTUM STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing Oct. 18, on the petition that Squantum street be widened between Atlantic street and the Old farm meadows. Adopted.

DOUBLE TRACK.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing Oct. 25, on the petition of the Quincy & Boston street railway for a location for another track on Hancock street between Saville street and Adams street, and between Squantum street and the Boston line. Adopted.

TEMPORARY LOAN.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on the order authorizing the City Treasurer to borrow $100,000 in anticipation of taxes. Passed to be ordained under suspension of rules.

NEW FIRE STATION.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass an order appropriating $2000 for the purchase of land at Norfolk Downs for a fire station.

Councilman Sprague asked the reason of that report.

COUNCILMAN SPRAGUE.

Councilman Anderson said. The price was too high, that there was no immediate necessity to purchase lot. If order was passed it would involve an extra expense. That it would be unwise to purchase until it was settled what was to be done with Brook street and the Council was not justified at the present time.

Upon motion of Councilman Sprague the order was laid on the table.

CALENDAR.

The order laying out Whalley road as a public way took its second reading, and under the suspension of the rules was passed to be ordained.

The order granting the New England Telephone Co. a location of poles on School and Franklin streets and Standish avenue took its seond reading.

It was then amended so as to allow the Electric Light Co. to use the poles to attach wires for city lighting without charge or expense.

The rules were then suspended and the order passed to be ordained.

Councilman Sprague moved, and it was voted, that the Committee on Streets report at the next meeting upon the petition to widen and relocate Squantum street, between Hancock street and the Milton line. Adjourned 8.15.

TALK OF THE CITY.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

There were no civil cases at the District court today.

Mr. W. M. Marsden of Wollaston has been ill for over a month.

Several trolley car parties to the Brockton fair are being formed.

The Swedish Lutheran church is to hold a three days' fair this month.

Mrs. Blanchard, Mrs. Hislop and Mrs. Mary A. Wood returned Sunday from a visit to Saratoga.

Charles S. Jose, clerk for E. H. Doble & Co., has returned from a three weeks' visit to Saco, Me.

Mr. J. Arthur Sparrow of Wollaston is making an extended business trip through the Western states.

Registration for the State election will close on Wednesday of next week. Opportunities to register will be offered Oct. 6, 9, 12 and 13.

Messrs. Quincy A. Faunce, A. G. Olney and E. H. Sanborn of Wollaston are on their annual fox hunting campaign in the Concord woods.

Dr. John A. Gordon returned on Saturday from his extensive tour of Europe. He reports a very enjoyable trip and is in the best of health.

Judge Humphrey is holding an inquest today on the death of Mrs. Deborah Jones, who was killed by the street cars at South Weymouth last Thursday.

The Fenno estate on Goffe street which was advertised to be sold at auction Oct. 16 has been sold at private sale. The furniture will be sold on the date advertised.

A letter received from Rev. A. A. Brown on Saturday states that Mrs. Brown is doing nicely and it is now thought that she will recover the entire use of her limbs and will not even be lame.

Landlord Barrows of the Greenleaf exhibits a box of beautiful little stones taken from one of the lakes of California. They are of all shades and colors and among them are several crude opals.

The Ladies' Benevolent society of the Wollaston Baptist church holds its first social Wednesday evening. During the evening the members will tell how they earned their dollars which they promised to give to the treasurer of the society.

Supt. H. W. Lull will open the discussion at the 26th meeting of the Massachusetts Town and District Superintendents' Association in Springfield on Friday, on the subject "The Proprieties which should prevail in Pirating Teachers."

We had the pleasure of examining a new invention of Mr. William Glennon of West Quincy. It is a self-winding chalk line. It is a very useful article and must command a ready sale. But his latest invention is a revolving chalker for billard cues.

It will not be long before peddlers who have no license will learn to keep away from Quincy. Many of these people carry goods similar to those sold by our business men. As the latter pay taxes and help support the city they can rightly complain of peddlers.

"Experience as a Teacher" was the subject of Rev. Preston Gurney's discourse at the Wollaston Baptist church on Sunday morning. At the close of the sermon a communion service was held. At the Bible school rally Sunday was observed and instead of class exercises a general serice was held.

Work was commenced this morning by contractor Williams moving the building at South Quincy occupied by F. H. Crane & Sons from its present location near the railroad track across Liberty street to land owned by the firm in the rear of Vogel's stone sheds. Messrs. Crane & Sons are also to erect a grain elevator near their building.

Norfolk County Truants.

A truant school is supported by Norfolk, Bristol and Plymouth counties at Walport. A report shows that there are now 53 truants at the school, all boys. Bristol county contributed 32, Plymouth county sent 12, while Norfolk county's total was nine truants.

To board the 53 truants this last quarter cost $1,274.19, of which sum $772.68 was appropriated as Bristol county's share, $301.76 on Plymouth county share, $199.75 as Norfolk county.

OF QUINCY,

FOR GOVERNOR.

Is as follows:

In Quincy..... votes.

In the State..... votes.

When driving out these fine autumn days a box of Weddings are Ripe

"about this time"—as that venerated authority, the "Old Farmer's Almanac," would put it.

Well, our advice to those about to get married is NOT the celebrated "London Punch" version, "Don't!" but directly the reverse, DO!

Tell you what it is, business would go to the bow-wows if matrimony were not encouraged,—even on the ground of expediency alone.

The more young Quincy couples who join hands and fortunes, enter upon housekeeping, and begin buying Boston Branch groceries, the better for themselves and for us.

And this suggests the thought which we've previously mentioned—how great an effect is exerted by good groceries (Boston Branch groceries, in fact) upon the present and prospective population of our city in respect to good health, good spirits and good morals.

Well packed Canned Vegetables and Fruits are wholesome and healthful. Cheap, poorly packed, they are poor stuff. The scarcity of fruit this season will oblige many to use canned goods or go without. You can rely on our stock as being the best packed. And we have a very large stock, bought direct from the packers, of selected quality. It includes Tomatoes, Peaches, Peas, Corn, Plums, Apricots, Cherries, Blueberries, Strawberries, Salmon, Lobster and many other varieties at lowest prices at which good quality can be bought.

DR. EVERETT'S VOTE.

The Ledger Offers a Prize For the Nearest Estimate.

Quincy is honored by the selection of one of her citizens as a gubernatorial candidate, and there is interest as to the strength he will develop in his own city. No one predicts that Dr. Everett will be elected, but as the chances of Governor Wolcott will not be endangered it is probable that the doctor will receive a large complimentary vote.

All the Ledger readers cannot vote at the polls on election day, but the Ledger knows no sex, age or condition, and asks everybody to vote by the use of the blank which will be found on this page. What will be the vote of William Everett in Quincy on November 2? A prize of $5 is hereby offered by the Ledger for the nearest estimate of the Quincy vote.

In case of a tie on the Quincy vote, the estimate on the State vote of those thus tied will be considered in reaching the decision. It is therefore important that a close estimate of both the city and state vote for Dr. Everett be made.

Last year Frederick O. Prince of Boston, who run as the National Democratic candidate, received but 111 votes in Quincy and 14,164 in the state.

Short letters of from 100 to 200 words with reasons for or against a vote for Dr. Everett will be welcomed and will be published when space permits.

The polls will close at 4 P.M. on Saturday, Oct. 30. Direct all estimates to

CONTEST EDITOR,
Ledger Office, Quincy, Mass.

Have Local Pride.

CONTEST EDITOR DAILY LEDGER:

I am glad to see that the DAILY LEDGER is endeavoring to awake our interest among Quincy people in the candidacy of Dr. William Everett, our townsman, for governor. Quincy should have a local pride and give the scholarly doctor a big vote, if not a majority, upon election day.

Quincy points with pride to the fact that it is the city of presidents and the birthplace of John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence: but this is almost ancient history. We have today gentlemen of ability, and they should be pushed to the front when opportunity offers. Dr. Everett is worthy of a large complimentary vote. The late William E. Russell, who proved one of the Bay State's most popular chief magistrates, was not elected the first year he was a candidate, but he grew in favor each succeeding year. Perhaps next year, with a united Democracy, Dr. Everett, if a candidate, will have a fighting chance. L. O. CALPRIDE.

Quincy, Oct. 4, 1897.

Estimates Arriving.

The Contest Editor has already received several estimates of the vote of Dr. Everett both in Quincy and in the State. The first estimate placed his vote in Quincy at 222, just twice that given the National Democratic candidate last year but puts the vote of Massachusetts at 12,416 which is less than was given Candidate Prince last year. Most of the Quincy estimates are in excess of last year but a few are less. Some put the Massachusetts vote much higher than in 1896. What is your estimate?

Food Fair Open.

The Boston food fair was auspiciously opened Monday with speeches by President Carpenter, Governor Wolcott, Mayor Quincy and others. The souvenir spoons attracted a large number at the opening of the doors at 10 A. M., and this feature promises to largely increase the attendance each day. Most of the exhibits were in order and the food fair of 1897 is the biggest and best yet.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. ONE CASE SETTLED.

Thomas & Miller Must Pay One of Their Men.

The joint committees of the Granite Manufacturers and Granite Workmen met Monday night to consider the matter in dispute at the yards of Thomas & Miller.

It seems that there were two stones that were spoiled, and that Mr. Miller kept back something over $2 from each man.

The first case considered was that of Patrick Igo, and in this case the joint committee, from whose decision there is no appeal, decided that Mr. Miller shall pay to Igo before the next pay day the amount deducted from his pay.

The case of George Anquist, the other workman, the statements of Mr. Miller and Mr. Anquist conflicted somewhat, and the matter was laid on the table. A committee of two from each board was appointed to view the stone spoiled and report at a meeting to be held Friday evening.

Vincent Lecture

Mr. Leon H. Vincent of Philadelphia delivered the first of his series of four lectures on modern writers at the Wollaston Congregational church on Monday evening before a cultured audience which filled the auditorium. His subject was that most difficult of writers to talk about,—"Ruskin."—Mr. Vincent was thoroughly at home with the great author and invested his whole life and works in such a charming, informal discourse that the large audience was literally held spell bound. His style was chaste and pleasing, at times racy and pungent, with flashes now and then of gentle humor, while the delivery, in the main colloquial, was easy, graceful and peculiarly effective. Next Monday evening he will lecture on George Elliott.

Law Library Association.

The lawyers of Norfolk county met at Dedham on Monday and voted to organize the Norfolk Law Library Association. Louis A. Cook, the clerk of courts, was chairman and Erastus Worthington, the Dedham justice, secretary. The following committee was appointed to draft bylaws and nominate officers:

Charles F. Jenney of Hyde Park, Asa French of Braintree, Oscar A. Marden of Stoughton, Thomas E. Grover of Canton, Frederick D. Ely of Dedham, Albert E. Avery of Braintree and John W. McAnarney of Quincy. Adjourned to Oct. 18.

"Thunderer" Against Silver.

London, Oct. 5.—The Times, in a special article this morning, says: The Wolcott commission intends to request the government to give a final and immediate reply to its monetary proposals. After giving a review of the history of the question the writer of the article concludes: The core of the whole subject is the question whether bimetallism is wise or foolish. The United States and France say yes. On behalf of Great Britain it is decided to say no; but if yes is to be answered on behalf of India, we shall be in a net of contradictory propositions indeed, for the keys of the Indian mints are in Downing street no less than the keys of the London mint.

Amnesty Considered Probable.

Washington, Oct. 5.—One result of the formation of the Sagasta cabinet, it is believed will be the granting of amnesty to American prisoners held in Cuba and the pardon of many Cubans condemned to imprisonment on the island of Couta. The Competitor prisoners, it is expected, will be released early, and also Miss Cisnero. Concerning pending claims such as that of Dr. Ruiz, it is said that a commission probably will be proposed to deal with all claims arising during the rebellion, and there are intimations that steps toward the creation of such a commission are now under way.

Caught In a Prairie Fire.

Millers, S. D., Oct. 5.—Persons just in from 20 miles north state that as a result of a prairie fire one man had died and three others may die. Seven or eight were badly burned, one family of five, named Preston, all being in a dangerous condition. Hundreds of tons of hay and grain were destroyed. The fire was caused by men making a firebreak.

PLAYED IN MOONLIGHT

Opening of the Temple Cup Series Long Drawn Out.

Hamilton's Work In the Eighth Redounded to Their Benefit.

Boston, Oct. 5.—The new champions took the first game of the Temple cup series, defeating the Baltimores in a close contest more through a combination of lucky hits and daring base running, assisted by darkness in the last two innings, than by great superiority of play. Neither team showed champion ball, while the work of the home team was at times very much below the mark.

The orioles batted Nichols out of the box, and would have given Lewis a similar dose if they could have seen the ball in the last two innings. As it was, the game ended in the moonlight, the umpires keeping the players at it until sometime after sundown. The weather was perfect, a mild Indian summer day with no wind and a clear atmosphere that was conducive to snappy playing. One of the biggest crowds of the year turned out, and, with the assistance of the famous "rooters" and two bands, the enthusiasm when the home team took the lead in the sixth inning was almost unparalleled on the South end grounds.

Only two bases were allowed on hits into the crowd at left field, and this also militated against the visitors. Jennings was easily the star of the game, his batting being terrific, while his great work at short was much better than that of his rival, Long. For the home team Captain Duffy led his men in hitting and base running, while Hamilton took two flies in center field on the dead run.

Baltimore started the game like winners, pounding Nichols hard and, before the home team realized it, four runs had come over the plate. Boston, however, was equal to the occasion, and hit Nops just as hard and scored three runs. In the second Baltimore went out in short order, and Boston could not score. Baltimore added one in the third through fine batting of Kelley and Reitz. Long bunted well in the fourth and scored on Bergen's single and an out. Both teams scored two runs in the fifth, the visitors through hard raps by Jennings, Kelley, Stenzel and Doyle, and Lowe's poor throw, and the home team by two errors and daring running.

Then the visitors started in to clinch the game. McGraw, Jennings, Kelley and Doyle all hit safe and hard, and but for fine work on Long's part more than three runs would have been scored. The home team, however, were not discouraged and, encouraged by the rooters, they pounded Nops all over the field and, by taking desperate chances, secured five runs, taking the lead in the seventh, Lewis, who had taken Nichols' place, being hit hard. The Bostons had a fine chance to score in their half, but could not quite connect.

Then came a kick for the game to be called, but though the sun was out of sight the play went on. Hamilton saved the game in the eighth by two marvelous catches, and the Bostons went in to win. It did not take long for the two necessary runs to come over the plate, and again the home team was ahead. The last inning was begun in the rapidly fading twilight, and while the Baltimores tried hard to see the ball, and did succeed in making a couple of hits, the strain was too much and after two had struck out Long threw the last man out at first. Victory With Seven Wickets.

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—The three days' cricket match between a picked eleven of Philadelphia amateurs and Captain Warner's English amateur team was concluded yesterday and resulted in a victory for the Englishmen with several wickets to spare. Friday the Englishmen made 322 in their first inning. Saturday the Philadelphians were retired in their first inning for 132, and in their second inning they scored 248 runs with the loss of nine wickets. Yesterday Scattergood and Morton, the Philadelphia "not outs" of Saturday, went to the bat to finish the inning. Scattergood had scored seven and Morton one when the latter was bowled. This ended the Philadelphias' inning for a total of 256 and a grand total for the two innings of 388.

The Britons then went to bat for their second inning with but 67 to make to win the match. When they had scored 70, with seven wickets to fall, the game was ended.

Fast Riders Were There.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 5.—Yesterday the local plank track maintained its reputation as being one of the fastest in the country. In the half mile handicap, amateur, E. W. Peabody of Chicago made a new world's record of 100 1-5. A. C. Mertens, John S. Johnson and Earl Kiser on a triplet likewise made a world' record for a mile, going the distance in 1:46 4-5.

In the professional events, A. C. Mertens of Minneapolis and Nat Butler of Boston proved to be the stars of the day. The former won the mile open professional in a desperate finish with Butler, while the latter won the one mile handicap in hollow style, being many lengths in front of Cooper who was second.

May Irwin's Gift to the Bostons.

Boston, Oct. 5.—The Boston Baseball club was formally presented with a pennant as National league champions at the Tremont theater last night. Mayor Quincy made the presentation speech, and Manager Selee accepted the prize in behalf of the club, the members of which, together with the Baltimore team, occupied all the boxes of the theater.

The theater was crowded with friends of the players and ardent followers of the game. At the conclusion of the second act of May Irwin's play, "The Swell Miss Fitzwell," Mayor Quincy and Manager Selee appeared before the curtain, and the former in a few words presented the pennant. His honor attributed much of the nine's success in years past to the fact that there have been very few changes in the management of the club. Mr. Selee in a few words expressed his acknowledgment of the pennant, saying that hard, earnest work had brought it to this city.

The pennant is the gift of Miss Irwin, and is a magnificent triangular banner, with the words, "Champions of 1898," in red letters on a background of white silk. Captain Duffy of the team was repeatedly called for, but would only bow his acknowledgment to the ovation.

The Police Interfered.

New York, Oct. 5.—The Greenpoint Athletic club held its weekly boxing show in Brooklyn last night, but the program, which consisted of four 10-round bouts, was cut short by the interference of the police and referee in three of the scheduled events. Jimmy Ciare of Long Island City and Eddie Sweeney were the star boxers of the night, and they mixed things up so lively in the opening round that a knockout was looked for in the second. Sweeney had decidedly the bad end of the second round, as Clare uppercut him on the body with his left, and sent his right across twice so heavily that Sweeney whirled around and looked as if he were going out. Just then the police interrupted the boxers and Referee Ward sent the fighters to their corners. The spectators were yelling for more, but the police were obdurate and the referee decided the bout a draw.

Jack Kemp of Greenpoint received such a hammering from Joe Cain, the captain of the Brooklyn Athletic club, in the opening bout that the referee stopped them in the third round and declared Cain the winner.

To Follow Harvard's Example.

New York, Oct. 5.—A special to The Herald from New Haven says: The most important piece of athletic news that has come from Yale in many years leaked out last night. Yale is about to follow the example of Harvard in boating. If she does not adopt Harvard's plan in full of placing an English coach at the head of her boating, she will at least have the advice and assistance of two of the most famous oarsmen England has produced. Guy Nickalls, the most famous oar in England, and J. G. Gold, the stroke of both the Oxford and Leander eights of the last two years, will come to the United States within the next two weeks.

Reversal of the Fates.

Baltimore, Oct. 5.—Jim Janey of Washington knocked Loh Beckwith of Cleveland out in four hot rounds here last night. The fight took place at Hess' park under the auspices of the Eureka Athletic club. Janey had the best of the argument from the start, knocking Beckwith through the ropes and sending him to the floor twice before the final blow. Beckwith knocked Janey out a month ago, and the result last night was a surprise.

Killed at a Crossing.

Willow Springs, Mo., Oct. 5.—A passenger train on the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis railway ran into a wagon containing seven persons at Dean Man's cut, three miles north of here, instantly killing six and fatally injuring the other one. Those killed were: Philip L. Wooten, Philip Wooten, Jr., Amanda Wooten, Dora Wooten, Mrs. Francis Mulbrey and an infant child four months old. Philip Wooten's wife is so badly hurt that she cannot live. The train was stopped and the dead and injured were brought here.

Conductor Hallaway says that proper signals for the crossing were given, but were not heard. The crossing is considered one of the most dangerous in the country, being at a curve and heavy grade. The persons killed lived in Texas county, Mo., and were on their way to Arkansas to pick cotton.

Intensely Bitter Fight.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 5.—The fight between Halifax and St. John, N. B., to be named as the port where Canadian mails are to be landed from Europe in winter is growing intensely bitter. Yesterday a joint committee of the Halifax city council and Board of Trade held a meeting at which the proposal of the Dominion government to allow the steamships carrying the winter mails between Canada and England to take them and land them at St. John instead of Halifax if they preferred the former port was strongly denounced. A resolution was adopted which insists that the steamers shall only be subsidized to come to this port with and for the English mails in winter. The commercial community of Halifax has been deeply stirred up, as the mails have been brought to and taken from Halifax for half a century.

Started by a Gas Jet.

Austin, Pa., Oct. 5.—A fire which originated in Weed's livery barn destroyed about 100 buildings, including many residences, the Methodist church, the Presbyterian church, the Opera House, Welch's meat market, Hellwig's drug store and Gallup's livery stable, made about 500 people homeless and caused a property loss of about $150,000. The fire was started by a load of hay being run into a gas jet.

The buildings were mostly occupied by the employes of the Goodyear mills. It was necessary to blow up a drug store with dynamite in order to save the business portion of the town. The only fire protection of the town was that furnished by the Goodyear mills, and the 400 men employed there were ordered out to stop the progress of the fire.

SMITH-DIXON FIGHT.

Lightweight Championship Decided on Pacific.

California Boxer Retrieved a Previous Defeat.

Seemed to Have Best of the Encounter From the Start.

San Francisco, Oct. 5.—Solly Smith of Los Angeles was given the decision over George Dixon of Boston in a 20-round fight last night. The match was virtually for the championship of the featherweight class, and Smith is now at the top.

The fight was not a remarkably fast one, the men taking no chances except in two or three rounds, when Dixon attempted to force matters. Smith, however, who has greatly improved since he met Dixon, had all the better of the infighting, using his right with great effect both on the body and head. Smith was cool throughout the fight, and came out without a mark of any kind. His blocking and ducking of Dixon's leads were the features of the fight and kept him out of harm's way.

In the first round of the principal event Smith landed a left swing on Dixon's face and repeated it on his head without a return. Smith tried again with his left and was countered with a left hook on the face. Dixon forced matters, but his leads were blocked. Solly sent in a left swing good and hard on the neck as the gong sounded.

Round 13—Solly tried repeatedly with his right for the jaw, but Dixon blocked them all. Nothing was done in this round.

Round 14—The 14th opened like a hurricane, but after two or three ineffectual mixes they eased up. Solly got in a staggering right hander on Dixon's jaw.

Round 15—The 15th was Smith's round. He landed three lefts and a right on the body without a return.

Round 18—The 18th was about even. Solly got a right on the head and two on the body, and got two or three lefts on the face in return.

Round 19—Smith swung viciously with his right for the jaw, throwing his whole weight with the blow. George avoided it, however, and gave Solly a hard left on the jaw.

Round 20—In the 20th and last round, Smith forced the fighting and punched George in the body and head with his right. In the mixes Smith had all the best of the infighting.

George Green, the referee, had no hesitancy in awarding the decision to Smith. The decision was received with no signs of dissatisfaction by the audience, still had the men not agreed to have a decision, whether both men were on their feet at the finish or not, a draw would not have been a bad decision.

When love knocks at a woman's heart he usually comes in disguise. Doesn't want it known what he's up to. If she knew all about the little rascal, would she let him in? That's a question.

Women are apt to look upon love and marriage as purely a matter of sentiment and affection. That is pretty nearly right; yet there is a practical side to it too; and the best way to preserve the ideal aspect of marriage and maternity is not to forget the practical part of it. A woman cannot be a thoroughly happy wife and mother unless the distinctive physical organism of her sex is in a healthy and vigorous condition. The best friend that woman ever had is the "Favorite Prescription," of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Chief Consulting Physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. The "Prescription," is a perfect and infallible remedy for every form of "female weakness." It cures by restoring health and strength to the internal organism, which cannot be reached by "local applications;" thus the cure is radical, complete and constitutional.

Dr. Pierce's eminent reputation as a physician of wide learning; and his special knowledge of the delicate and intricate organism of women, accounts for the unparalleled confidence, which women place in his "Favorite Prescription," over every other remedy. Its use obviates the necessity of dreaded "examinations" and the stereotyped "local treatments."

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Dear Sir:—I suffered fourteen years with female weakness, nervousness, and general debility, trying everything I could find to help me—all to no avail. I then heard of Dr. Pierce's medicines and although I was thoroughly discouraged, I thought I would try once more to find relief. I took your "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription," and too great praise cannot be given for the rapid relief they gave me. I am now free from the former troubles. Very sincerely yours, (Mrs.) Mary J. Stewart.

SOMEBODY KILLED HIM

Verdict of a Coroner's Jury In a Mysterious Death.

Malone Supporters Are Angry Over Choice of Lawrence.

Body of a Woman Exhumed, and Its Whereabouts Unknown.

Rockland, Me., Oct. 6.—The coroner's inquest over the remains of Charles W. Bowen adjourned last night, after a two days' session. The verdict rendered was that Bowen was killed on the premises of Lucinda C. Foss with a blunt instrument in the hands of some person or persons unknown to the jury.

Startling pieces of testimony were brought out at the inquest. A neighbor testified to hearing two shrieks at midnight, the sound being in the direction of the house of Mrs. Foss. Five witnesses eestified to seeing and talking with the deceased Saturday afternoon, and that he was not intoxicated at the time. This is in direct opposition to the evidence of Mrs. Foss, Dickey, Lizzie Green and Curtis. Other witnesses gave evidence to show that Bowen had money at the time of his death, but none was found on his person.

Drs. Judkins and Woodside, who performed the autopsy, testified that the various organs were in good condition; that no trace of any amount of liquor was found in the stomach, and that in their opinion deceased was not intoxicated when he was killed. It was also brought out that Bowen and Curtis had words Saturday, and but for the intervention of the Green girl blows might have followed, and in fact Bowen did make a lunge at Curtis without reaching him. The matter is now in the hands of the county attorney, and arrests are expected today.

AT A COUNTY FAIR.

Candidate Williams Told the Farmers Their Problems Concern the World.

Athol, Mass., Oct. 6.—George F. Williams, the Democratic candidate for governor, was one of the attractions at the Worcester county fair yesterday. He made two speeches, in the chief of which he said that it is easy for the manufacturer to obtain legislation affecting his industry, localized as it is; it is easy to make tariffs to help certain of our industries, but it is impossible to make restrictive laws which send very much influence agriculture in the United States, because the influences which control the farmer's prosperity are mainly from abroad. "It is in the markets of Liverpool and London that the prices of agricultural products, the world over, are in the main fixed; therefore the problems with which you have to deal are world problems, and are not confined to Massachusetts, or indeed to our own land. You are therefore unable to organize politically, or to make your united influence felt upon the legislature. It is therefore the greater duty of the statesmen and thinkers of the country carefully to consider your interests and work out the problems which confront you."

Continuing, he said it was not his intention to talk politics, but he wished to call their attention to certain facts. He then referred to the agitation in the interest of the farmers which had been going on abroad in the last few years, to the investigations made by the English agricultural commission and the proceedings of the great international agricultural congress in Buda-Pesth, and said that both bodies had decided that it was the monetary condition of the world to which the tremendous fall of agricultural products must be attributed.

"Now, my friends, this is not politics; it is economics," said Mr. Williams, "and when the leaders of European agriculture, and the leading statesmen of the continent and of England are agreed on this point, it is time that the farmers of New England studied at least in unity to remedy their distress. But to do this you must look beyond the press of New England, which is not the press, but the sup-press, so far as the facts are concerned on this measure of public policy."

Malone Men Sullen and Sulky.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 6.—George P. Lawrence of North Adams had a walk-over for the Republican nomination in the First Congressional district yesterday afternoon. The convention was held in the city hall in Holyoke, and 191 delegates were present.

Harry A. Field of South Deerfield presented Mr. Malone's name and urged his nomination on the ground that Franklin had the right to demand that the nominee be from that county, not having been represented in congress in 25 years. The nomination of Malone was seconded by Editor Hall of Greenfield.

Lawyer Parkhurst of North Adams then presented the name of President Lawrence in an able speech. William H. Brooks of Holyoke seconded the nomination. An informal ballot gave Lawrence 141 votes and Malone 49. The formal ballot gave Lawrence 147 and Malone 39. Ex-Congressman Whiting presided over the convention.

As soon as the vote was announced Mr. Snow of Greenfield, a Malone man, jumped up and moved an adjournment. The president stated that he must be given time to declare the ballot before he would put the vote to adjourn. The Malone men were sullen and sulky after the convention, and none of them would show the courtesy of making the vote unanimous.

Lawrence Solemnly Accepts.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 6.—President George P. Lawrence, when seen at his home in North Adams, said: "It is impossible for me to express my deep appreciation of the great honor which has been conferred upon me by the convention at Holyoke. I believe the Republicans of the First district will be witness to the fact that I have in no way sought this nomination. When I requested the voters not to consider my name I did so with the belief that my request would be granted and the full expectation that the nomination would go to another. Had this been the outcome no one would have supported the candidate more earnestly than myself. The nomination coming under such circumstances is an expression of confidence and regard most gratifying to me, and is an inspiration to earnest and conscientious effort. It brings with it heavy responsibilities which I solemnly accept."

Story of the Accused Believed.

Boston, Oct. 6.—Tuesday four colored men with bandaged heads appeared before United States Commissioner Fiske as complainants against Captain James Creighton and First Mate John Carlson of the Susie M. Plummer, charging them with assault on the high seas. The testimony brought out the fact that on the night of Sept. 27, the first mate ordered the crew of four men to haul in the sails, but the colored men took exceptions to the manner in which the command was given. After giving the order a second time, Mate Carlson said the men ran towards him with knives, and he ran forward where he could pick up a belaying pin. As soon as the men reached him, he said he struck the first man within reach, and probably struck the others immediately after. He did not know whom he hit.

Captain Creighton testified that from the time the vessel left Philadelphia, the men were not inclined to work unless they were asked more than once. Second Mate Williams also testified that the crew was troublesome.

After the hearing the captain was discharged and the mate held in $2500 for the district court.

In the afternoon Carlson was arraigned before Judge Brown, and after a careful hearing the latter ordered the prisoner discharged.

Will Stands as Made.

New Haven, Oct. 6.—Tuesday Judge Townsend of the United States court handed down a decision in the case of Hugh Duggan et al. against W. J. Slocum, administrator of the estate of the late Rev. John H. Duggan of Waterbury, on a demurrer to the bill in equity. The will of the deceased was contested by heirs residing in Michigan, Ireland and Canada. They claimed that the provisions of distributing an estate of about $20,000, providing for the establishment of a library and reading room in connection with St. Patrick's parish in Waterbury, and a Roman Catholic protectory for boys at Hartford, were invalid. They asked that the will be set aside. The administrator filed a demurrer. Judge Townsend sustained the demurrer and dismissed the bill.

Struck Against a Spy.

Middleboro, Mass., Oct. 6.—In the district court yesterday came the sequel to a strike disturbance originating at the Leonard & Barrows shoe factory. Last Friday 10 Armenian shoemakers went out because another Armenian, looked upon as a Turkish spy, by name Peter Gortanian, was permitted to remain in the employ of the firm. Other Armenians were sent for from out of town to replace the 10 strikers, and the latter loitered about and made it unpleasant, especially for the alleged spy. Peter was assaulted by two of the strikers, Gup Habernson and Septaman Aredislan, with wooden clubs, and he received three blows on the head. Aredislan and Habernson were each fined $25.

Colonel Pease Resigns.

Woonsocket, R. I., Oct. 6.—At the head of the editorial column of The Reporter yesterday afternoon, Colonel Leroy B. Pease, who established The Reporter in 1873, and has since been its publisher and manager, announces that he has tendered his resignation as president and a director of the Woonsocket Reporter company, to take effect as soon as the vacancy can be filled, at which time his interests in Woonsocket's pioneer daily will cease. The company, which purchased The Reporter in 1890, will continue its publication without material change.

Good Feeling Restored.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 6.—In the board of aldermen last night Alderman Merchant, who created so much confusion at the meeting last Friday night by his attack upon Mayor Cook, arose on a question of privilege and made a full apology to the mayor for his remarks, which was accepted by the mayor in the spirit in which it was tendered.

K. of C. National Council Met.

New Haven, Oct. 6.—The national council of the Knights of Columbus met here yesterday for the purpose of considering proposed amendments to the constitution. Farmington, Me., Oct. 6.—Charles O. Hewey of Phillips, who was convicted last month of an assault on Drusilla M. THE LUETGERT CASE.

Prisoner Changed His Mind About Appearing as a Witness.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The end of the Luetgert murder trial is nearer than was thought. The defence yesterday rested its case, and there is nothing to come but the rebuttal evidence of the state and the arguments of the attorneys—probably about two weeks in all.

Soon after court convened Tuesday ex-Judge Vincent and Attorney Phalen asked permission to consult with their client privately. Judge Tuthill said they might do so, and Luetgert and his lawyers retired to a private room. It was known that the matter under consideration was whether or not Luetgert should go upon the witness stand.

Ex-Judge Vincent vigorously opposed the suggestion. He pointed out to Luetgert that William Charles, his business partner, had told practically the same story that Luetgert would tell. Attorney Phalen was inclined to favor Luetgert's desire to go on the witness stand. He thought that the prisoner might be able to explain some things more satisfactorily than other witnesses. He also believed that the absence from the stand of the principal actor in the tragedy might prejudice him in the eyes of the jury. However, Phalen was willing to admit the logic of Vincent's position, and Luetgert said he would abide by his council's advice.

The first witness called after the consultation was Mary Charles, wife of Luetgert's business partner. She said that upon several occasions Mrs. Luetgert had said to her: "I am going away. My husband has failed in business, and people will now point their fingers at me and say, 'She is the wife of the sausage maker who failed.' I cannot stand that."

On May 1 she saw Mrs. Luetgert for the last time. It was about 11 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Luetgert again said she was going away, and repeated that she could not stand the disgrace the failure had brought upon her family.

"She turned away, and I never saw her again," continued the witness. Mrs. Charles further testified that the rings found in the vat were not Mrs. Luetgert's rings.

As the evidence in the trial is practically all in, an estimate of the relative strength of the prosecution and the defense respectively is the sole topic of discussion. "We have made out as strong a circumstantial case as it was possible to present," said State's Attorney Deneen. ExJudge Vincent was apparently highly pleased over the status of the case. "We have met them at every point and checked them," he said. "They have failed to show beyond a reasonable doubt that Mrs. Luetgert is dead. In my judgment a case has not been established under the indictment."

Luetgert is confident he will be acquitted.

FIVE MEN KILLED.

Partisans In Santo Domingo Have a Fierce Battle on the Street.

New York, Oct. 6.—The first news of a most serious riot at Santo Domingo, in which five men, one of them rich, and the others more or less well known, were killed and over 30 more men wounded, was brought here by Harrison R. Williams, until recently United States consul at San Jose, Costa Rica. The riot was between influential partisans of President Iglezias and his opponents. The two parties had planned a demonstration in their club rooms in Santo Domingo three weeks ago last Sunday. On the afternoon of that day they paraded through the streets. About 100 men were in both marching parties.

They met in the main street opposite the cathedral. Both sides had swords, when some one fired a pistol. In a twinkling bullets were whizzing plentifully. Knives were used and stones hurled. Every man was bent on bloodshed. The priests came running out of the cathedral and called on the rioters to desist. The riot waged for some little time longer, but finally the efforts of the priests were successful.

The ground was then found to be strewn with bleeding men. Three were already dead and 30 or more wounded. Many of the wounded and two or three of the dead were carried away by their friends. Current report had it that over 60 had been wounded. The latter were taken into the cathedral and cared for. Two of them died the next day. Among the killed was Mr. Zamora, one of Costa Rica's richest men.

When Iglezias heard of the affray he immediately declared himself dictator, Mr. Williams says. He did this so as to make absolute the assurance of preserving the peace and having no repetition of the deadly riot, and that he will be re-elected president, not because he had announced himself dictator, but because the majority of voters support him.

Redmond Makes Denial.

London, Oct. 6.—John Redmond, Parnellite member of parliament for Waterford, in the course of an interview, denies the statements which have appeared in the United States representing him as opposed to the candidacy of John Daly for the mayoralty of Limerick. Mr. Redmond says: "The Independent league is taking no part whatever in the matter, as it is purely local. I may say also that none of us attach any importance to the agitation for a royal residence in Ireland. It is quite untrue that Mr. John Parnell has ever advocated it."

Held In Quarantine.

Galveston, Tex., Oct. 6.—Dr. Guiteras, yellow fever expert of the marine hospital service, en route to Galveston from New Orleans via St. Louis to examine health conditions here, was held up by Houston quarantine officers, and is now in the camp of detention at Spring station, north of Houston. There is no objection to Dr. Guiteras' coming into Galveston, and he will be escorted here by the health board as soon as released from Houston.

THE SITE to be selected for the location of a new fire station in the north wards is of considerable importance. The apparatus located therein will be called upon quite as much to protect the property of the business section of the city in Ward One as either Ward Five or Ward Six. When the apparatus of the present station is called to Quincy Point, Quincy Neck, West Quincy or Houghs Neck, the apparatus of the new station should be handy to cover Ward One and the remainder of the city. The site most prominently mentioned is within a mile of the Boston line, and a location near Beale street would protect Atlantic quite as well and at the same time give Wollaston and Quincy better protection.

ALL THE conventions in which the Quincy Republicans are interested have now been held, and it is a singular fact that with one exception all the Quincy ticket has been renominated. Mr. Hewins of Medfield for Norfolk County commissioner is the exception, and he will undoubtedly be elected.

Cup Presented.

Amid speeches and other festivities the Wollaston Yacht club awarded the Baker and Burgess cups to the fortunate winners on Tuesday evening. In the Baker cups the first was awarded to Fred W. PASTOR ORDAINED.

Rev. Fred T. Knight Installed at Norfolk Downs.

Notable Gathering of Clergymen at the Council.

The exercises of the recognition of the Park and Downs Union Congregational church of Norfolk Downs and the ordination of Mr. Fred T. Knight as its pastor at the little church on Rawson road, Norfolk Downs, on Tuesday afternoon and evening, was an event not soon to be forgotten by those who were present to witness the ceremonies. Not in the history of New England has there ever been such a gathering of noted men of the clergy and so large a representation of churches assembled to take part in the ordination of a minister as that which met to ordain Mr. Knight, pastor of the above church.

A council of churches in the afternoon to take action upon the recent organization of the church and approved the same. Hon. S. C. Dosling was moderator, the Rev. A. H. Plumb scribe, the Rev. P. H. Eplar assistant scribe.

After the business of the day the fifty representatives were invited to a sumptuous banquet prepared by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

During the intermission a large number visited the beach under the escort of Mr. A. L. Baker, and the bracing air from the beautiful Quincy bay served to invigorate them to greater strength and earnestness for the evening service.

At 7.30 the hymn "Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty!" was sung by the two hundred present with a zest that awakened every one to the situation and prepared them for the good and wholesome words that followed from the lips of the distinguished divines who so ably conducted the service. The programe was:

Doxology.
Benediction, By the pastor.

The singing by the quartette of the Wollaston Congregational church was a feature, their singing being excellent. The quartette was composed as follows: Mr. S. M. King, tenor; Miss Mary V. Hastings, soprano; Miss Eva A. Dickey, alto; and Mr. R. B. Witham, bass.

Mr. Knight the new pastor was born in Charlestown, is a graduate of Harvard college and the Cambridge Law school. For eight years he practiced law in this city. Becoming interested in the Christian Endeavor movement he was called to prepare for the ministry. In 1895 he graduated from the Hartford Theological Seminary.

Rev. F. T. Knight, for that is his title now, is a man of pleasing address and endears himself to all who come in contact with him. He certainly should feel proud at the flattering prospects before him. The Park and Downs is growing fast, which promises a good field for such a man as Mr. Knight to work in. It is not saying too much to predict that in the very near future the Park and Downs Union Congregational church will rank well in numbers with any church in the vicinity.

The church was tastefully decorated with flowers. On the platform surrounding the pulpit were handsome ferns and palms, adding beauty to the surroundings, as only flowers can do.

The Boulevard.

Mayor Adams accompanied the Metropolitan park commissioners and their engineers on Monday over the route of the proposed boulevard along the shore of Quincy bay. It is probable the boulevard will extend beyond Atlantic to Squantum, as land has been given to Squantum Head. Being such an historic point and beautiful spot it is proper the boulevard should be thus extended.

The Carlton club, London, has about 4000 members, and is the richest in the world.

The popular belief that the sap of trees goes down into the roots in winter and rises again in the spring is false.

MILTON LOCATIONS.

It now looks as through Milton proper, which has long been free from street railways, will soon be connected with the outside world by trolley cars. Two companies are seeking a location in the town, the Quincy & Boston, and the Boston, Milton & Brockton. The latter company is composed of local capitalist who have recently organized with a capital stock of $80,000.

It is more than probable that the franchise will be given the local company, it having agreed in consideration of being given a location to give five cent fares all over the town. A survey of the proposed route has been made and plans have been filed with the board of selectmen. Two routes are asked which will give the new company connections at Randolph with the Brockton street railway, at East Milton with the Quincy & Boston and at Mattapan and Milton Lower Mills with the West End.

The second route is for the junction of Adams street and Edge Hill road at East Milton, thence via Edge Hill road, Pleasant and Quarry streets, to the first location on Reedsdale road; thence over the first location to Central avenue thence via Brook street and over private land to Thatcher street to Blue Hill Parkway to the Boston line connecting with the West end on Blue Hill avenue at Mattapn.

The Selectmen held a meeting Tuesday evening at which they voted to call a special town meeting for Tuesday evening, Oct. 26, at which the following articles will be considered:

To see if the town will accept the reserved space for street railways as laid out by the Selectmen.

To see if the town will vote to employ a surveyor of highways in place of the Board of Selectmen.

To see if the town will appropriate $6000 to complete the sewer from the Boston line to Brook road at Mattapan

To see if the town will pay John Marshall $125 for a drain on Capen street, built in 1894.

The last article is evidently aimed at the street railway, and if adopted will postponed for an indefinte period the building of the road. This article reads: To see if the town will appoint a committee to consider the street railway matter and report at a future meeting, and to appropriate $1000 of its use.

The street railway was made one of the issues of the annual meeting in March which resulted in two of the old members of the board being defeated, and the election of two men who it is said favored the street railway. It is claimed, if the article passes, that the committee will be appointed by the chairman of the meeting, who is almost sure to be one opposed to street railways. The result would be that he would appoint gentlemen known to be with him and it would be a long time before the committee would report, and then it will be against street railways.

The majority of the people, however, want the street railway and there is not much likelihood that this article will be adopted

Home of the Quincy Family.

Few people who walk up and down Washington street Boston, in the neighborhood of Winter street, the very centre of the shopping district of the city, can easily realize that this section of Boston not fifty years ago was a residential section. Indeed, there were great numbers of residences on Winter street and Summer street at a time much less than fifty years ago. In a most interesting article entitled "The Story of an Old House and the People Who Lived in It," Mrs. Sarah H. Swan, in the October number of the New England Magazine, gives us the history of a house which stood for a century, down to the time of which we speak, at the corner of Washington and Winter streets. The people who lived in it at successive periods were connected with various leading families of Boston, and touched the life of the city, when it was little more than a large town, in most interesting ways. Mrs. Swan's story is instructive and entertaining, and is made more vivid by the curious old portraits and sketches which adorn its pages. Her article will be a delight to the Boston antiquarians and Quincy people in general.

SHED AND QUARRY.

Many Granite Monuments Being Turned Out in Quincy Yards.

Although the general complaint seems to be that the granite business in Quincy is rather dull it is a fact that there is more work in Quincy today than there has been for some time.

McIntosh & Son are busy having a large amount of work on hand.

A. Marnock & Co. report business as being a little better for while it was not expected to see much of an increase in business this fall there is considerable work in the market and there is quite a demand for estimates.

T. F. Manex has a large amount of work on hand all of which is of the ordinary size. He is cutting an all polished monument of Quincy granite the base of which is 10 by 10.

S. Henry Barnicoat has recently booked an order for a large sarcophagus monument to be surmounted by a sitting figure of "Grief." The die has four raised polished panels. He also reports orders for several other good sized jobs.

Among Joss Bros. & Co. recent shipments was a spire job standing twenty-five feet high. The base was 5-8 by 5-8 and was for Philadelphia parties. They also shipped last month two cottage monuments to New York parties. All were cut of dark Quincy stock.

McDonnell & Sons have orders for two $10,000 tomb jobs for western parties which will be cut at their Barre plant. They have recently shipped a large statue of "Memory" leaning against a cross ten feet high. This will be set up in Geneva, N. Y.

Joseph Walker of the Aberdeen Granite works has just completed a handsome all-polished sarcophagus job of dark Quincy stock. He reports having quite a demand for estimates.

Swingle & Falconer are always busy and have a large amount of work on hand. On visiting their extensive plant one would not for an instant think business was quiet. Monuments of all sizes and granites can be seen at their yards and they keep a large force of men constantly employed.

DR. EVERETT'S VOTE.

The Ledger Offers a Prize For the Nearest Estimate.

Quincy is honored by the selection of one of her citizens as a gubernatorial candidate, and there is interest as to the strength he will develop in his own city. No one predicts that Dr. Everett will be elected, but as the chances of Governor Wolcott will not be endangered it is probable that the doctor will receive a large complimentary vote.

All the Ledger readers cannot vote at the polls on election day, but the Ledger knows no sex, age or condition, and asks everybody to vote by the use of the blank which will be found on this page. What will be the vote of William Everett in Quincy on November 2? A prize of $5 is hereby offered by the Ledger for the nearest estimate of the Quincy vote.

In case of a tie on the Quincy vote, the estimate on the State vote of those thus tied will be considered in reaching the decision. It is therefore important that a close estimate of both the city and state vote for Dr. Everett be made.

Last year Frederick O. Prince of Boston, who run as the National Democratic candidate, received but 111 votes in Quincy and 14,164 in the state.

Short letters of from 100 to 200 words with reasons for or against a vote for Dr. Everett will be welcomed and will be published when space permits.

The polls will close at 4 P.M. on Saturday, Oct. 30. Direct all estimates to

CONTEST EDITOR,
Ledger Office, Quincy, Mass.

Quincy Can Wait.

Contest Editor:

Should Dr. William Everett be elected to the office of Governor of this Commonwealth, seems to me a question that should receive but one answer, an emphatic No! Few reasons can be advanced why he should be elected, but there are many why he should not.

In the first place, the gentleman who now occupies the gubernatorial chair has been tried in the balance and not found wanting and when we have an officer faithful to the trust imposed in him by the people, why change to an unknown quantity. Then, again, the state demands for its chief executive someone who has qualifications other than a thorough knowledge of Greek and Latin. They demand someone in the Governor's chair whom they can approach; someone who, while possessing the dignity due to his office, will step down from his plane to the level of the ordinary man; someone who is, in a measure, popular in his own town; one who has some sociability in his makeup. No, Mr. Editor, for the present we can do without a Quincy man as Governor. Seriously, how would the doctor look perched upon a horse reviewing a dress parade at some of our brigade musters.

NONE IN MINE.

The Estimates.

New estimates of the vote for Dr. Everett for Governor have been received today. The following facts will be of interest:

Highest Quincy estimate,	275
Lowest Quincy estimate,	83
Highest State estimate,	18,555
Lowest State estimate,	10,000

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. ☞ Medford will not secure five cent fares on the street railway to Boston, as the West End Street Railway Company has notified Mayor Lovering of Medford, that it will not accept the conditions of the grant of a double track in Medford, under the condition. The Aldermen thereupon reconsidered their grant and voted to give a public hearing on the matter in City Hall, Friday evening, Oct. 22, the citizens to be notified as well as the West End, of the hearing.

MORRELL DROPPED.

County Convention Unanimous for Hewins for Commissioner.

The Norfolk County Republican convention was held this morning in Wesleyan hall, Boston, and was in marked contrast with the one of a year ago when the court house ring was overthrown.

Samuel R. Moseley, the Hyde Park editor, called the conention to order, and was elected temporary chairman with Charles C. Henry of Wellesley as secretary.

The committee on credentials reported 110 of the 127 delegates to be present.

The temporary organization was made permanent.

Henry H. Faxon of Quincy then took the floor and cautioned the convention as to nominations. We have been too easy and careless and the court house at Dedham was a monument to colossal extravagance. He advocated the removl of the tablet which bore the names of the county commissioners who remodelled the building.

Ex-Senator Darling of Hyde Park endorsed much that Mr. Faxon said, proceeding claimed he had been instrumental in bringing about the investigation.

Judge French of Braintree presented the name of James Hewins of Medfield for county commissioner for three years.

Representative Gibbs said Brookline had a candidate but so good a name had been presented that he took pleasure in seconding the nomination.

J. P. S. Churchill of Milton moved the renomination of John H. Burdakin of Dedham for Register of Deeds, and F. W. Darling of Hyde Park presented the name of C. H. Smith for County Treasurer. Both were nominated by acclamation.

A motion was made that the district committee be reelected for another year.

John Graham of Milton wished to withdraw and J. Walter Bradlee was substituted. Otherwise the committee will be the same.

Henry H. Faxon created quite a scene when he asked if it was Mr. Bradlee senior or Mr. Bradlee junior, and cast some reflection on the former. Mr. Faxon regretted his thoughtlessness when reminded of the death of Mr. Bradlee senior.

A Trip to The Garden of the Gods.

It is a very wide territory that these majestic peaks and uplands cover, and their widely varying attractions are a never failing source of enjoyment. Every locality has its own distinct features, and the tourist can spend weeks in observation, never tiring, so absorbing and interesting are these ever changing charms.

Bethlehem lays particular stress upon its wonderful atmosphere; so dry and clear is it that hay fever victims find it a most desirable abiding place. Its location is superb, commanding a fine view of Mt. Washington and the Presidential Range, of the beautiful Franconia Mountains, and for that matter every peak and place of note is easily discernible.

That the gem of localities in the vicinity of Echo Lake is an ideal spot and it is no wonder that the "Old Man of the Mountains" chose this as his abode, for everything hereabouts is decidedly beautiful.

Franconia and the Flume, Fabyans and the Mt. Pleasant House, Crawfords and Twin, Jefferson and Lancaster, The Summit and a score of other resorts, abound in interesting sights, and in every direction lead paths and drives revealing unexpected and astonishing surprises.

Cascades, waterfalls, picturesque nooks and beauty spots are everywhere, and in fact the whole White Mountain region is beautiful enough to have been the "Art Garden of the Gods."

Until Oct. 9 the Boston and Maine Railroad will sell reduced rate tickets to all principal mountain points, from its principal stations.

These tickets provide for various routes, and side trips may be taken from Fabyans and Bethlehem Junction at reduced rates.

For information inquire at ticket offices.

"For five weeks I lived on cold water, so to speak," writes a man who suffered terribly from indigestion.

He could hardly keep anything on his stomach. What stayed wasn't properly digested and gave him terrible pangs.

This is not an uncommon case. Dyspeptics don't get enough nourishment. They are generally thin and weak.

They may eat enough, but they don't digest enough. Much of what they eat turns into poison. If this keeps on there's no telling what disease they may get next.

ANDREE NOT IN IT.

An Expert on Arctic Matters Says the Balloon Has Been Abandoned.

Speculation upon the fate of Andree, the polar balloonist, is still rife, and a good many of the speculators do not know what they are talking about. It is impossible that Andree is now floating in his balloon over Siberia, because his airship could not hold its gas during the sixty odd days which elapsed between the ascension and the day the airship was alleged to have been seen in the Yenisei country.

If there is any balloon there, it probably is Andree's, but Andree is not with it. A month or six weeks ago Andree was doubtless compelled to descend to the ice or to the earth, if he was then lucky enough to be over terra firma. In making his descent it probably was necessary to cut loose the car from the airship in order to save the provisions and equipment. Relieved of all this weight the balloon would ascend till the rarity of the atmosphere caused it to lose ascensional force again.

As a derelict, an aimless wanderer in space, it is possible the balloon has remained afloat, with nothing but itself to carry from July 11 to Sept. 14. It is therefore barely possible, though highly improbable, that the polar ship was actually seen near Kraznoyarsk, Siberia. But if so Andree was not with it.—Walter Wellman in Chicago Times-Herald.

NO MORE MULES.

A Georgia Recorder Who Wants Some Other Kind of Security.

The recorder of Atlanta declared recently from the bench, "I announce that I will hereafter take no more mules as bonds for fines imposed in this court."

The recorder had been trying a case against Charles Broaden for throwing stones at another negro at the Central freight depot, and a fine of $3 and costs had been imposed. The negro asked to be allowed to drive his mule and wagon into the barracks yard until he could go off and get the money. It was then that the recorder delivered his pronunciamento against pawned mules. He has good grounds for his opposition, for he had been victimized once in allowing such a transaction.

A few days ago he fined Mose Pease, a negro drayman, $10 and costs. Mose asked to leave his mule in the yard as a bond until he could go off and get the necessary amount. The recorder concluded that this was a soft snap for the city, as the negro would be certain to return and claim his mule, but the negro never came back, and when the police inspected the mule they ascertained that the animal was nothing but skin and bones and was lame in all four legs. They sold him for 74 cents. That is why the recorder has soured on taking mules in pawn.—Exchange.

TOO YOUNG AND TOO OLD.

Odd Circumstances Encountered In the Formation of a Chicago Jury.

When Judge Brentano swore in a jury for the fall term in his court in Chicago the other day, he encountered the extremes of age in two individuals who stood side by side in line for examination as to their qualifications to serve.

The first person in the line was Adolph Heinz. He said he lived at 5,327 Armour avenue and was only 15 years old. When questioned as to how his name was drawn, young Heinz declared he did not know. He said he was the only person of his name living at the number given, that he had never voted and was at a loss to even venture a guess as to how his name got into the jury list. Heinz was excused. It is supposed his name was furnished by some one of the ward experts who have been employed at the rate of 3 cents a name to supply the names of persons who refuse to register in the different ward and therefore escape jury service.

Right behind Heinz came Bermann Subert of 934 West Adams street, who is 74 years old. He was excused because he was over age, and Heinz was let go because he was under age. In fact, Subert was exempt at the date of Heinz's birth.—Chicago Post.

His Ruling Passion.

Tabac was the first word uttered by a French deaf mute 25 years of age who recently recovered his speech. He wanted tobacco badly, and, after trying hard to make his want known, managed to get the word out, and since then he has talked fluently. Dr. Douard, who reports the case, thinks that it proves that the classical story about King Crœsus' son may be true. Crœsus, king of Lydia, was on the point of being slain by one of Cyrus' soldiers at the taking of Sardis, when his dumb son exclaimed, "Oh, Persian, do not kill Crœsus!" This has been held to be one of Herodotus' lies.

Her Heart Broke.

At Evansville, Ind., a 6-year-old girl died of brain fever on a Sunday night, and her 5-year-old sister cried incessantly for her until the following Tuesday night, when she went into delirium, imagined then that she was playing with her sister, and at 5 o'clock in the morning died, the doctor said of a broken heart.

EXPLOSION OF GAS.

Three Men Lost Their Lives---Mystery as to the Cause.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 6.—A heavy explosion of gas occurred in No. 2 slope of the Parrish Coal company at Plymouth yesterday, by which three men lost their lives. The names of the victims are: Isaac Edmunds, miner, aged 65, widower; George Eddy, driver, aged 22, single; Louis Richards, driver boss, aged 32, married.

The force of the explosion was plainly felt on the surface, and a rescuing party was sent into the mine. The place where the men were at work was reached last night and their bodies taken out.

The cause of the accident is as yet a mystery. One theory is that the men came unexpectedly upon a pocket of gas and set it on fire with their lamps. Another is that somebody carelessly left a door open which sent the gas in large volumes into the places where the men were at work. The company officials will made a thorough investigation. About 40 men were at work in the lower lifts of the mine when the explosion occurred. They all reached the surface, although some of them had narrow escapes from afterdamp.

Stole a Woman's Body.

Westbrook, Me., Oct. 6.—It was discovered last night that unknown persons hed despoiled the grave of Mrs. John Roberts of this city. Mrs. Roberts was buried Aug. 26, and yesterday the cemetery superintendent found that the grave had been opened, the body taken from the casket and the dirt loosely thrown in. County officials are at work on the case, but they have no clue. There are rumors connecting medical students with the affair, but nobody knows the facts.

"HORSE AND HORSE."

Temple Cup Contestants Have Each a Game.

Heavy Hitting by the Baltimores In Second Contest.

Boston, Oct. 6.—The weather of the second day of the Temple cup series was fully as satisfactory as that of the first. A soft southerly wind blew over the grounds at the South End, while the autumn haze cut off the fierce rays of the sun. The interest in the game was not, however, as great as Monday, although the enthusiasm of the supporters of the home team did not seem to be in the least abated.

The ardent "rooters" were on the grounds early, and watched the usual practice with just as much interest and keenness as at the beginning of a regular championship game. Everyone hoped for a somewhat better exhibition than that of the day before, and was vociferous when the players took their positions. Ground rules did not exist, and in consequence the crowd was kept in good spirits by the hitting and running.

No ground rules hindered long hits and the players, getting the full worth of these drives, ran bases daringly without fear of being called back. This added not a little to the game, and delighted the crowd beyond measure. Again the perfect weather made the game enjoyable, while there was only a small kick in the last innings on account of the growing darkness. The orioles won by keeping up their batting until the last.

The shining star of the two aggregations was Herman Long, the shortstop of the home team. His stops were fairly electrifying, and it is safe to say that such work had never been duplicated. One ball from Doyle's bat he picked up 20 feet behind second base, and retired the runner, while McGraw hit another one nearly in the same place, and met the same fate. His double play in the first inning was equally fine.

For the Baltimores, Stenzel's covering of center field was a notable feature of the game. Nine Boston players were retired in flies in that direction, and not one was dropped. For the visitors Corbett and Clark led in the hitting, while Hamilton came out with a clean score, his base running being of the finest description.

The Baltimores began on Klobedanz in the very first inning, and kept it right up to the fifth, when two bases on balls and a hit were followed by a home run by Reitz, which brought in four runs. Then Kloby came out and Stivetts went in, but the change did not seem to mend matters, for Clark banged the first ball pitched over the fence for the second home run, and Corbett followed with a two-bagger. Hits after that came in in necessary moments, and the visitors manged to win without difficulty.

Corbett, while wild at times, proved a stumbling block for the home team until the fourth, when six runs came over the plate, five of them being earned. However, he pulled himself together, and, barring the seventh, held the home team down in good shape. Although the brass bands were missing, there was much more genuine enthusiasm than Monday. Fast Time Against Wind.

Ottumwa, Ia., Oct. 6.—Seven thousand people from this part of the state saw Star Pointer and Joe Patchen go against their own records at Williams' mile track yesterday. Star Pointer turned the track in 2.01 1-4 against a strong head wind, blowing up the stretch. Owner Murphy says that considering the conditions it is the fastest mile ever made by Pointer.

Patchen started out well, turning the half in one minute flat, but a second running horse which picked him up at the three-quarters pole became unruly and scared Patchen, who finished the mile in 2:04.

Paddy D Broke, but Won the Race.

Portland, Me., Oct. 6.—At the second day's racing at Rigby in the stake meeting there were only two events on the program, the 2:29 trot and the 2:24 pace. In the 2:29 trot there were six starters, and every heat was a race from the start to the finish. In the first two heats Paddy D passed under the wire a winner by several lengths. In the third heat Paddy broke before the first turn was reached and was passed by Pilot Wilkes, who remained in the van until the turn into the stretch. From this point to the wire it was the prettiest race of the meeting so far. Pilot Wilkes went to pieces and was passed by Emma Westland. Paddy D made a heroic attempt to win, but broke once more and finished in fifth position. Emma Westland was first by several lengths. In the fourth heat Paddy D came to the front once more and won the race with ease.

In the 2:34 pace it was a walk-over for Big Ike, who took three straight heats with ease. La Honda led in the first heat until the wire was almost reached, when she broke and gave Big Ike the heat. After this La Honda broke again on the send-off in the second heat and, having run to the first quarter mark, was distanced and out of the race. Samaritana was satisfied with the second slice of the purse, and the third heat was a very tame one.

GEORGE'S FOLLOWERS.

Mass Meeting at Which the Free Trader Accepted a Nomination.

New York, Oct. 6.—Before a mass meeting of citizens that taxed the capacity of Cooper union last night Henry George accepted the nomination fc. mayor of Greater New York from the mass meeting, two Democratic organizations, the single tax payers and the Populists, and declared at the outset of his speech that he was a Jeffersonian Democrat. Jerome O'Neil of the Central Labor union presided over the meeting. Charles O. Hennessy took the platform as soon as the meeting had been called to order and nominated Henry George for mayor. His remarks were followed by a frantic outbreak of applause, and the nomination was made by acclamation.

When Mr. George, accompanied by T. J. Johnson, entered the hall, the crowd arose, and for several minutes there was a wild hurricane of cheering. Mr. George said: "Fellow Democrats, men who voted last year for William Jennings Bryan, I accept your nomination. From now until election I am yours; aye, and after election too. I am a Democrat. (Thunderous applause and cries of 'Not of the Hill stripe.') I cannot divide into parts the questions which I as a citizen have to deal with. For the same reason that I oppose this monstrous tariff in all its forms; for the same reason that I would vote wherever I could for the utter abolition of that tariff law; for the same reason I am opposed to the interference with individual liberty which you see here in New York. I am a Democrat in the Jeffersonian sense because I believe in the principles and stand for the philosophy of Thomas Jefferson. Upon that point my life has always been clear and consistent. It was for that I voted at the last election. Because the Chicago platform represented the idea of giving to the great common people what belongs to them that I stood for it, voted for it and was sorrier than I ever was before when it was defeated.

"The regular Democracy, the Democracy of Jefferson, tenders me the nomination tonight. I have sought for means to have some one else come forward and take this place. It was not until it was shown to me that unless I took this nomination, Mr. Croker's representative must poll the votes of the Democracy of Greater New York that I consented to stand. Gentlemen, now I accept. Such strength as I feel in me, such ability as I still can wield is for your cause. I am a Democrat, not a silver Democrat, nor a gold Democrat, but a Democrat that believes in the cardinal principles of Jeffersonian Democracy to whom this great principle is self-evident that all men are created equal."

WEYLER'S RELEASE.

New Premier Said to Favor Another General For Cuba.

Wealthy Spaniards In Havana Enter a Strong Protest.

Ruler Reports a Change For the Better on the Island.

Madrid, Oct. 6.—Premier Sagasta, in an interview, is quoted as saying that most important questions are now before the cabinet ministers. The latter have a thorough knowledge of the financial position of Spain, and possess accurate details of the war situation in Cuba and in the Philippine islands. The government, Sagasta is said to have added, will carry out its political and military program with firmness and sagacity.

When the premier was questioned regarding the future of Captain General Weyler, he said he supposed Weyler would resign, adding that if he did not do so he would be recalled. In conclusion he remarked that the most prompt action would be taken in the Philippine islands, where the situation admitted of no delay.

Weyler's Friends Rally.

Havana, Oct. 6.—The friends of Captain General Weyler made a grand rally in his behalf yesterday and did all they could possibly do to prevent his recall to Spain. They held a meeting, many of the wealthy Spaniards being present. Resolutions endorsing General Weyler were adopted with considerable enthusiasm, and a cable message was sent to the government of Madrid announcing that the representatives of the trading, mercantile and industrial communities assembled at the meeting were familiar with the state of the island of Cuba and were consequently satisfied with the course followed by General Weyler looking to an early and complete pacification of Cuba, and expressing fear that his recall will delay the pacification. In conclusion, the friends of General Weyler begged the Spanish press to trust in him and announced the intention of those present at the meeting, after making these recommendations, to abide by the government's decision. It was further agreed to organize a public demonstration in General Weyler's honor.

CAPTAIN GENERAL WEYLER.

Yesterday 116 of the most prominent and wealthy merchants and importers joined in a cable message to the new premier, congratulating him upon his accession to power, recognizing his high patriotism and requesting him to maintain Weyler at the head of affairs in Cuba. The dispatch said: "The government has the confidence of all the Spaniards in the island, who firmly believe that the plans of Captain General Weyler, in the exceptional conditions of the case, will soon terminate the war and effect pacification."

Cuba's Condition Changed.

Madrid, Oct. 6.—Captain General Weyler has written an official letter to General Azcarraga, forwarded before the resignation of the Azcarraga cabinet, in the course of which he declares that the condition of Cuba has "improved to a remarkable degree" since the date when he assumed control in the island. The captain general says that "the country has received a fresh lease of life."

He asserts that the Spanish general commanding in the eastern provinces reports an uninterrupted service of trains on all railroads. The telegraph is operating from Ciejoavlla to the city of Pinar del Rio. The letter, which is much commented upon, alleges that the Spanish army in Cuba is "being maintained in an excellent state despite the fact that the pay is six months in arrears."

The Ancients' Outing.

Buffalo, Oct. 6.—Shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon after days of expectation on the part of Buffalonians, the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company of Boston arrived in a special train over the New York Central. The train of 11 cars came in with a rush, and the members of the pride of Massachusetts got out of their coaches ready for their 260th annual field outing of the most famous military organization in the country.

Strikers Secure Concessions.

Boston, Oct. 6.—The members of the Pants Makers' union are on a strike, the contention being over an increase of 5 cents per pair, which means that men heretofore earning $7 and $8 a week may earn $10 or $12. Fifteen out of the 32 contractors have already granted the demands of the strikers, and signed an agreement with the union.

THE BALTIMORES TAKE ANOTHER.

Now Lead the Bostons 2 to 1 in the Temple Cup Series.

Boston, Oct. 7.—The weather at the start in the Temple cup game Wednesday was a duplicate of the perfect conditions of the two previous days, but before six innings hed been played the sky darkened, and if the shower had not come up, the game would have been called at the eighth. The enthusiasm, which in the two previous games was a marked feature, was utterly lacking, the "rooters" being apparently disheartened with the ease with which the Baltimores disposed of the Boston pitchers. Lewis was as wild as a hawk and when his delivery tempted the Baltimore batsmen they hit safely. Klobedanz was substituted too late to be of service in preventing the loss of the game. He had a weak spell in the last inning that he was in the box, and five hits were recorded. Sensational plays were lacking in the contest.

Lewis started in by giving McGraw his base, but pop flies shut the visitors out without a run. The home team looked like winners, for Hamilton began with a hit, but was caught stealing second. It was in the second that Lewis began to throw the balls off one side, and with three bases on balls and three hits, four runs came in, and it was only by fine fielding that it stopped right there. In the third, however, Lewis went utterly to pieces, and after four more runs were made, with two out, Klobedanz took his place.

The home team scored their only runs in their half of this inning, principally by bunching hits and a couple of bases on balls. The batting looked encouraging, and there seemed a prospect for another double figure game. It all ended, however, right there as far as the Bostons were concerned. Barring one in the sixth and two in the seventh, nothing like a safe drive was seen.

In the meantime the Baltimores were having trouble with "Kloby's" shoots, and for four innings the runs and hits were stopped. It was growing dark fast when the eighth started, but this did not hinder the visitors from finding the ball, and again there was a galaxy of safe ones, together with a two-bagger, all netting four more runs.

Lake was the first out for the Bostons, and Klobedanz followed with another fly to right, but just as Hamilton came to the bat a sudden shower came up, and the game was called, so that the score reverted to the seventh and, instead of being 12 to 3, was only 8 to 3.

The two teams were banquetted last night at Faneuil hall and today will play in Worcester. The score:

Creedon and McCoy Matched.

New York, Oct. 7.—Dan Creedon and Kid McCoy last night signed articles for a finish fight to take place between Dec. 15 and Dec. 30, and John Kelly, on behalf of the Canadian Athletic club, secured the attraction with an offer of $7500.

There was a misunderstanding as to the weight, Creedon wanting to fight at 158 pounds, weigh in at 2 o'clock the day of the fight, and McCoy wanting to make the same weight, but to weigh in at the ring side. They finally agreed to fight at catchweights.

Three sets of articles were drawn up, McCoy and Creedon signed them, and then the bidding began. W. A. Brady offered $10,000 and agreed to bring off the fight in Nevada next April. Two San Francisco clubs made offers on a percentage basis; Lewis Hausman of Chicago was willing to give $5000, and then John Kelly put in a bid of $7500, agreeing to bring off the fight in Canda and within 600 miles of New York. His offer was accepted. He put up $2000 to $1000 from each of the principals as forfeit money, and will name the date and place within the next 10 days. Creedon and McCoy will make a side bet of $5000.

No Fight Contemplated.

New York, Oct. 7.—Fitzsimmons and his manager, Martin Julian, deny that anybody has been authorized to act in their behalf in arranging a fresh match with Corbett. A letter to The Evening World, signed by Julian, contains no intimation that anything like a match with Corbett is acceptable upon any terms. Twelve "reasons" are given by the steerer of Lanky Bob's fortunes. Nothing is said in relation to Fitz' permanent retirement, and the public may recall having heard the reasons before, at one time or another, since the affair at Carson City.

Fitzsimmons is something of a letter writer himself, and only a few days ago announced that he had promised his wife before entering the ring at Carson that he would never fight again. It's a pretty little sentimental utterance, dressed up in a style that suggests a suspicion that Fitzsimmons has an accomplished secretary to put his thoughts into language.

Easy Victims For Yale.

New Haven, Oct. 7.—Amherst's lightweight football eleven proved easy victims for Yale yesterday afternoon. The blue put into the field a substitute eleven, containing seven freshmen, and won, 18 to 0. Amherst gave Yale one scare, however. In the first half McBride muffed a punt and Amherst got the ball at Yale's 25-yard line. The visitors advanced the leather seven yards more, but lost it on downs. This was the nearest Amherst got to scoring.

Train Held Up Within Six Miles of Kansas City.

Eight Masked and Armed Men Concerned In the Job.

Applied Dynamite to the Safe, but There Was No Explosion.

Kansas City, Oct. 7.—Bandits held up a Chicago and Alton express train last night at a point less than six miles from Kansas City. The robbery is the third occurring on that road within a year, all within 15 miles of this city.

The Chicago and St. Louis express, which pulled out of the union depot at 8:30 last night, was stopped by eight masked men at Evanston, a suburban stopping place just beyond Washington Park. Evanston is about eight miles nearer to Kansas City than Blue Cut, made famous by the notorious James gang, and which was the scene of two previous robberies on the Chicago and Alton this year, one on Dec. 23 last, and one on Oct. 23 last.

The train was stopped at Evanston siding by the explosion of torpedos which had been placed on the track. When the conductor and brakemen went out to ascertain the cause of the trouble they were covered with revolvers in the hands of four of the eight road agents. The other four quickly covered the engineer and fireman. The brakemen were compelled to uncouple the baggage and express cars from the passenger coaches. While this was being done one of the robbers busied himself by going through the pockets of Conductor Graves, who was robbed of $22.

In the meantime the bandits at the head of the train ordered Engineer Volette and his fireman to climb out of the cab. The engineer hesitated until a pistol ball was sent whistling by his ears. He and his fireman climbed down quickly, and two of the robbers immediately took their places. The others of the bandit crowd jumped aboard the baggage and express cars. This part of the train they ran up the track toward Independence, about a quarter of a mile. There they compelled the frightened express messenger to open the door of his car. The door once opened, they dragged the messenger by the legs. The messenger was compelled to walk back toward the other portion of the train.

After securing complete possession of the engine and baggage and express cars, the bandits placed 24 sticks of dynamite on the big safe and then lifted the smaller way safe on top of it. They applied the match, but for some reason the explosive did not go off. Apparently they were afraid to return to the express car, for after waiting a few minutes for the expected explosion they hurriedly left the place.

The trainmen who had been left behind with the passenger coaches waited a reasonable length of time for the robbers to complete their work, and then ran ahead to the engine and two cars. After some delay, for they too were afraid of the dynamite, they succeeded in lifting down the small safe, throwing out the dynamite. The engine was then run back to the train and coupled on, and after a full two hours' delay the express resumed the journey toward St. Louis.

Women Under Arrest.

Camden, N. J., Oct. 7.—Mrs. Mary Sammon and Mrs. Jennie Layton, two colored women, have been arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the deaths of three children, all of whom died under circumstances requiring a coroner's certificate. The matter first came to Coroner Lippincott's attention Wednesday, when he was called to the women's home in connection with the death of Joseph Breckenridge, aged 2 years, a foster-child of Mrs. Sammon's. The boy's lips and hands showed what looked like carbolic acid burns. Mrs. Sammon said the boy had been treated for a diphtheretic sore throat and denied having administered any poison. In view of the past deaths at the house and the present suspicious circumstances the coroner ordered the arrest of both women.

From an investigation it was learned that all of Mrs. Layton's five children had died and a coroner's certificate was required in each instance. The coroner said he was called to the house on Sept. 1 and gave a certificate in the case of Joseph Layton, aged 2 years, and four days later Erastus Layton, aged 2 months, also died suddenly. During the day a postmortem examination on the Breckenridge boy was made, but before arriving at a decision it was decided to submit the heart and lungs to a chemical analysis. The remains of the two Layton children may be disinterred and also examined. Meanwhile the women are held in custody.

Wollaston Sociable.

The Ladies' Benevolent society connected with the Baptist church of Wollaston held its first social of the season Wednesday evening. The vestry was very prettily decorated with dahlias, nasturtiums and hydrangeas. As the social was given with the idea of making people acquainted with each other, no set programme was followed but during the evening Mr. Clark of the church quartette sang a solo and Mr. Stewart and Rev. Preston Gurney gave some pleasant reminiscences of former travels. Chocolate was served during the evening by Miss Dorothy Beckwith, Miss Lillian Beckwith and Mrs. J. A. Sparrow. During the winter season these reunions are held every month and all who care to attend are welcomed.

Reception to St. John's Pastor.

CHURCH WEDDING.

With Pretty Reception at the Parish House.

Miss Mabel E. Oxford Becomes Mrs. George M. Bates.

The Bride Recently a Teacher in Our Public Schools.

Another pretty wedding was added Wednesday evening to the many church weddings of the autumn. Christ's church was the scene this time and all the available seats were occupied long before 7.30 by relatives and friends. The chancel was prettily decorated with hydrangeas, palms and smilax, and there were palms in the windows.

The bride, Miss Mabel Emma Oxford, is the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Samuel Oxford of River street, and was recently one of the popular teachers at the Coddington school. The groom, Mr. George Moulton Bates, is one of the enterprising young men of Waltham and is to be congratulated upon his choice.

The inspiring notes of Lohengrin announced the bridal party. In the procession were six ushers, Mr. John W. Corning of Baltimore, Md., Mr. Nathan Cheney of Cambridge, Mr. C. Eliot Harrington of Waltham, Mr. Francis C. Mann of Waltham, Mr. Samuel E. Oxford of Quincy, and Prof. Otis C. Skeele of Dean Academy at Franklin. Following the ushers came two pretty flower girls in white muslin, Misses Minnie and Ella Packard, the young daughters of Mr. and Mrs Walter M. Packard of Chestnut street. The bridemaids were Miss M. Amelia Bates of Waltham, a sister of the groom; Miss Lizzie Shepherd of Quincy, Miss Marjorie L. Souther of Quincy and Miss Pauline C. Wilkins of Quincy. The first two were gowned in Swiss muslin over pink taffeta silk, and the others in Swiss muslin over green taffeta. The bridemaids carried carnations.

The bride was charming in mouseline de soie over white silk, cut en train, with a tulle veil. She wore a brooch set with pearls, a gift of the groom and carried Bride roses. The bride leaned upon the arm of her father. They were followed by a cute little page, Master Joseph Allen French, a nephew of the groom and the best man He wore a black velvet Fauntleroy suit.

At the chancel the bride was met by the groom and his best man, Mr. Allen E. French of Waltham.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter Russell Breed, the rector, at 7.30, the full Episcopal service with the ring being used. The bride was given away by her father. As the bridal party left the church Mendelssohn's wedding march pealed forth. Prof. Wrigley was the organist and rendered fine music during the evening.

The groom's gifts to the bridemaids were rings with two hearts set with pearls, and the groom gave his best man and the ushers stick pins set with pearls. The bride's gifts to the flower girls were rings set with a pearl and turquoise, and to the page a white silk tie.

The reception was held in the Parish House, directly following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Bates were assisted in receiving by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Oxford and Mr. J. C. Bates and Mr. A. E. French. The wedding and reception were attended by many of the newly married couples in their bridal gowns.

Later the bridal party and immediate family were entertained at the home of the bride's parents which was prettily decorated with palms and cut flowers.

There was here a rich display of handsome and costly presents When the brides cake was cut the fortunate finder of the ring was Miss Erminia Kolb of Atlantic, and the coin went to Miss Fannie Cannon, while the possessor of the thimble is unkown.

Mr. and Mrs. Bates left that evening on a wedding trip of two weeks and upon their return will reside at 31 Ditson street, Dorchester. They will be at home December 1 and 8.

Kendrick—Cobb.

One of the prettiest home weddings of the season took place at 7.30, Wednesday evening, at No. 40 Tudor street, Chelsea, Mass., at the residence of Mr. J. Morrill Currier, the bride's uncle. The contractng partes were Mr. George H. Kendrick of Cambridge, formerly of Quincy, and Miss Carrie E. Cobb of Chelsea. The bride was becomingly gowned in a corn colored silk, with satin and chiffon trimmings, with batiste embroidery, and carried a bunch of bride' roses, tied with white satin ribbon.

Miss Lillian M. Currier, the brides' cousin, was bridesmaid, and wore a dress of cream colored moire silk, with trimmings of white satin ribbon and lace. She carried a bunch of yellow chrysanthemums. The groom was attended by his most intimate friend Mr. Guy H. Nason of Boston. Mr. Edmund D. Palmer of Hyde Park and Mr. Winthrop Bartlett of Chelsea were ushers.

The ceremony was very impressively performed by Rev. C. E. Jefferson, of the Central Square church of Chelsea. Mrs. Frank H. Benson of Quincy, a sister of the groom, played the wedding march. The house was profusely decorated with flowers, yellow and white being the predominating colors. An elegant spread was served immediately after the ceremony.

After a tour through the Provinces, Mr. and Mrs. Kendrick will reside in Arlington.

Too Many Stones.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It is, of course, impossible to keep all the streets of Quincy in perfect repair at once but there is one very prevalent source of discomfort to horses, vehicles and bicycles which could be removed and kept away at small expense and little trouble. I refer to the presence of loose stones in enormous quantities which may be found in almost any part of the city in most of our streets. Now these are a source of danger and inconvenience to travellers and the nuisance should be abated. I respectfully call the attention to the courteous and efficient Commissioner to this defect and ask the public's attention to it also. They could all be removed in a short time.

DR. EVERETT'S VOTE.

The Ledger Offers a Prize for the Nearest Estimate.

Quincy is honored by the selection of one of her citizens as a gubernatorial candidate, and there is interest as to the strength he will develop in his own city. No one predicts that Dr. Everett will be elected, but as the chances of Governor Wolcott will not be endangered it is probable that the doctor will receive a large complimentary vote.

All the Ledger readers cannot vote at the polls on election day, but the Ledger knows no sex, age or condition, and asks everybody to vote by the use of the blank which will be found on this page. What will be the vote of William Everett in Quincy on November 2? A prize of $5 is hereby offered by the Ledger for the nearest estimate of the Quincy vote.

In case of a tie on the Quincy vote, the estimate on the State vote of those thus tied will be considered in reaching the decision. It is therefore important that a close estimate of both the city and state vote for Dr. Everett be made.

Last year Frederick O. Prince of Boston, who run as the National Democratic candidate, received but 111 votes in Quincy and 14,164 in the state.

Short letters of from 100 to 200 words with reasons for or against a vote for Dr. Everett will be welcomed and will be published when space permits.

The polls will close at 4 P.M. on Saturday, Oct. 30. Direct all estimates to

CONTEST EDITOR,
Ledger Office, Quincy, Mass.

"Yours for Everett."

One of the guessers in the Globe contest accompanies his estimate for Dr. Everett with the following letter:

I am just enough of a partisan to decide that all my guesses shall be upon Everett's vote, for I would like to be the one to have the honor of guessing correctly on my favorite candidate for governor. I wonder how many Globe readers have carefully read the entire platform upon which he stands. It seems to me almost worth committing to memory as a concise declaration of sound principles in governmental policy. Yours for Everett.

New Estimates.

But few changes in the extremes of the vote of Dr. Everett for Governor appear from the new estimates, but his vote in the State is set higher. Let everybody vote.

Lowest Quincy estimate,	83

The entire coast line of the globe is about 136,000 miles.

There are three times as many muscles in the tail of a cat as there are in the human hand and wrist.

The conductor of a Michigan train recently received 4500 nice red pennies from 150 students, who rode a few miles and paid in the smallest coin known "just for fun."

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Forest Fire Victims.

Ottawa, Oct. 7.—Four bodies have been recovered near South Indian as a result of the forest fires. They are those of Mrs. Lavielle, Miss Stiles, her sister, and Mrs. Levielle's two children, one an infant, the other 12 years old. The women rushed from their house to escape to the clearing, but the smoke surrounding them they lost their way and ran into the flames. Had they remained in their house they would have been perfectly safe, as it was not touched by the fire.

Two or three houses are all that is left of a once thriving village at South Indian. Two houses and a hotel are all that remain of Casselman. The village of Cheney is obliterated. Over 60 of the most destitute were brought to this city and the others are being provided for at farm houses.

Heavy Sentence For Assault.

Boston, Oct. 7.—A sentence of not more than 15 years nor less than 12 years in state prison was imposed by Judge Dewey in the superior court upon James F. Quigley, Frank Steele and Robert Clark, alias Campbell, three of the four men convicted of murderous assault on Liquor Dealer McGuiness on the night of June 3 in front of his home in Roxbury. Exceptions were filed by counsel for both Steele and Campbell, and a petition for a stay of sentence will be filed today in behalf of Quigley.

Easy, Though Not Creditable.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 7.—Harvard defeated Bowdoin 24 to 0 yesterday afternoon. It was an easy though not very creditable victory for the home team, and the latter's loose and listless playing was worked for all it was worth by the plucky visitors. Twice their quick work on a Harvard fumble would not improbably have resulted in a touchdown had one tackler failed to bring down the runner. Back of the line, Harvard showed an improvement.

Exciting Game of Football.

Andover, Mass., Oct. 7.—Tufts college was defeated, 6 to 4, in an exciting football game with Andover. The latter scored a touchdown in one minute from the start by Tufts missing a return kick, but failed at goal. Tufts then scored, but also missed a goal, the half ending in a tie. The second half was a fight for every inch of ground, Andover finally getting a safety on Tufts shortly before time was called.

Dixon Retains His Title.

San Francisco, Oct. 7.—The decision, "Smith wins," rendered by George Green in the Smith-Dixon fight Monday night, does not deprive Dixon of the featherweight championship of the world. The decision was on points and nothing else. In order that Smith may acquire the featherweight championship of the world he must fight Dixon to a finish, which he declares he is ready to do at any time.

Aggies Easily Outclassed.

Middletown, Conn., Oct. 7.—Wesleyan defeated Amherst Aggies in the first home game of the season by the score of 18 to 5. The Aggies were easily outclassed, and the interest in the game was lessened by Wesleyan putting in new players to try them. At the end of 20 minutes' play in the first half the score stood 18-5 in Wesleyan's favor. The other half was not finished.

An Important Capture.

Boston, Oct. 7.—A den of alleged counterfeiters was broken up yesterday afternoon by the arrest of Antonio Volpe, 55, and his wife Elizabeth, 49, in the attic of a house in an alleyway off Portland street. A full and complete counterfeit outfit was found in their rooms.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

"ILLUSTRIOUS CHIEF."

Vanity of Captain General Weyler Touched by a Demonstration.

Strong Commendation of His Course by Loyalists.

Will Not Resign, but Is Ready to Accept Fate's Decree.

Havana, Oct. 7.—No arrests have been made or are contemplated because of the utter disregard shown by the populace for an injunction against a meeting of protest against his recall that was issued Tuesday by Captain General Weyler. Evidently the prohibition was not intended to be taken seriously, for the commander of the Spanish forces cooperated as far as he could in making the demonstration a success. His dignity was not outraged by the complete ignoring of the disapproval, and there was no display of anger on his part toward the leaders in the demonstration, which was a notable event of its kind. Various processions united and moved to the palace occupied by Weyler, in front of which 20,000 persons were assembled.

A number of deputations went to the palace, where they were received by the captain general. According to the official accounts, they assured him that it was the desire of all the loyal inhabitants of the island that he should continue at the head of the government and carry on the campaign against the insurgents. They also expressed "confidence that the Madrid government was inspired with altogether too high designs for the welfare of the country to withdraw the illustrious chief who had subjugated the insurrection."

Captain General Weyler, after thanking the deputations for their assurances, said he had accepted the command in difficult circumstances and without conditions. The success of the campaign could be estimated and properly appreciated by the country from the visible facts. In the course of seven months four important provinces had been nearly pacified, and he was confident of being able to pacify the two remaining provinces, at the proper time, with the 40 battalions ready for the task. He said he expected to be able to pacify Puerto Principe and Santiago de Cuba at an early date, "for the rebels there know me and fear me, and will not resist me. Still, I believe the war should be ended with war, here as everywhere else, and not with shameful dealings disgraceful to any fiation, and all the more so in view of the terrible condition of the rebels.

"I have followed the policy of the illustrious Canovas. I would like to please those who are demonstrating in my honor by remaining in Cuba, but the delicate position in which I have been placed has compelled me to request the government to dispose of my position in whatever way it may think convenient. However the matter may be decided, I shall always be profoundly grateful to the loyal inhabitants of Cuba who in such eloquent terms have expressed their absolute approval of the policy I am following to bring the war to a close. I care little for the criticism made by a section of the Spanish press, whose newspapers have been found even in expeditions landed in the island, or for the calumnies of the disguised or undisguised insurgents of the towns."

When Captain General Weyler appeared on the balcony of the palace, according to the official account, he was "frantically cheered" by the crowd, after which the various processions paraded through the principal streets for two and a half hours, shouting for Spain, the queen regent and the government. The entire demonstration was orderly, and is officially described as "witnout political color."

Weyler Will Not Resign.

Madrid, Oct. 7.—Mr. Sagasta, the premier, has received a cable message from Captain General Weyler, who offers his services to the government and says: "I shall not resign."

Mule Spinners' Convention.

Boston, Oct. 7.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, Henry Lloyd of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and Secretary Henry S. Mills of the Textile Workers National union addressed the convention of spinners upon the objects and aims of the trades union movement.

At the conclusion of the speaking Robert Howard presented resolutions expressing the thanks of the convention to President Gompers for his fidelity to the American trade union movement.

The executive board was advised by the convention to look into the complaints from the several districts, with a view to securing an improvement in the condition of cotton spinners.

To a referendum vote of the entire assembly was referred the question of raising dues so that a minimum rate shall obtain in all sections.

Fire Raged Two Hours.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—A fire that broke out in the Dexter park pavilion at the Union stock yards yesterday afternoon spread, and business houses and residences, being wooden structures, furnished ready material for the flames, which raged from 3 o'clock until 5 and then yielded to the vigorous work of the fire department.

The loss is estimated at more than $60,000, but it may exceed that sum, as the exact number of horses burned in the fire is not known. A number of persons were injured during the fight with the flames and one man, according to an employe of the stock yards, was burned to death.

Sign of Good Times.

Sanford, Me., Oct. 7.—Notices have been posted on the factories of the Goodall Worsted company announcing a general advance in wages. The firm employs 700 hands, running day and night. It has also been decided to give the operatives a Saturday half holiday all the year round.

Shot Through the Head.

Ubly, Mich., Oct. 7.—Duncan Paul, postmaster of Appin, was found dead in his office, shot through the head. It looks as if it had been a murder.

SETH LOW'S ACCEPTANCE.

Stands Upon the Platform of Direct Accountability to the People.

New York, Oct. 7.—Seth Low Wednesday night publicly accepted the nomination of the Citizens' union for mayor of greater New York at a large and enthusiastic mass meeting held in Cooper union. Charles Stewart Smith called the meeting to order and made the opening speech. Among other things, Low said: "The problem before the voters of New York at this election is not simply to secure a capable and honest administration of a govermental organization already in operation, but it is to install over an immense territory an entirely new city government; to unify and harmonize in this communities that have hitherto been separate and more or less conflicting, and to make the new agencies of government as efficient as these which they supplant throughout the length and breadth of the territory affected. Evidently here is a municipal problem of the first magnitude. There never has been a greater problem presented to the people of any city in this country or abroad. When it is considered that it affects the home and the business interests of more than 3,000,000 people it is evident that, in its municipal aspect pure and simple, this canvass lacks not one element of consequence to the voters of the city of New York.

"When party organizations have become political machines that respond absolutely to the will of a single man the very fabric of a free government is in peril. We might almost appeal against such a condition of things to the general government at Washington to make good in our behalf the constitutional guarrantee of a republican form of government in all states. I make that appeal now to the people of New York, in their own behalf and in behalf of free government, to elect this year officials who will be responsible directly to them and not indirectly to some person whom they cannot get at.

"In conclusion, I say to you, gentlemen, our ticket stands in this campaign, first, for the independence of the city; second, for the responsibility of the city official after his election directly to the people, and third, for the independence of the citizen in naming the candidate for whom he wishes to vote. Upon this platform I shall submit our case fearlessly to the people of the city of New York."

Conflagration at Detroit.

Detroit, Oct. 7.—The center of Detroit was the scene at 1 o'clock this morning of a conflagration which totally destroyed three large buildings and contents, damaged several others and threatened the destruction of at least an entire block of the most valuable property in the city. The blaze originated on the stage of the Detroit opera house. The flames quickly enveloped the roof of the theater and made a furnace of the interior. The opera house with all its contents, including the handsome scenery, costumes and equipments of the Julia Arthur company, was destroyed in short order.

The rear of the 10-story building occupied by the H. Leonard Furniture company caught fire and nothing of the structure or contents remains but the steel frame. The four-story building of the Michigan Table Supply company east of the theater was gutted and partially destroyed, and several other buildings were slightly damaged.

The Record Broken.

New Orleans, Oct. 7.—Yesterday proved a record-breaker, both as to the number of cases of yellow fever and the number of deaths that had been reported. The increase of cases was not unexpected. The weather has been warm and the large territory the board of health has to cover makes perfect scrutiny impossible. While the number of cases under treatment is in the neighborhood of 250, there are many houses which have not yet been disinfected, but in which the patients have been declared well. Less restraint than usual is imposed on the inmates of such premises, and the result has been that the number of foci has been increased. But the total death rate is still small in proportion to the number of cases.

One's physical feelings, like the faithful setter, search and point out plainly the fact of disease or health.

If a man is not feeling well and vigorous—if he is losing flesh and vitality, if he is listless, nervous, sleepless, he certainly is not well. The down hill road from health to sickness is smooth and declines rapidly.

At the first intimation of disease, the wise man takes a pure, simple vegetable tonic. It puts his digestion into good active order and that puts the rest of his body in order. The medicine that will do this is a medicine that is good to take in any trouble of the blood, the digestion, or the respiration, no matter how serious it may have become.

The medicine to take is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a remarkable remedy. It cures diseases in a perfectly natural way, without the use of strong drugs. It cures by helping Nature. It has a peculiar tonic effect on the lining membranes of the stomach and bowels. By putting these membranes into healthy condition, stimulating the secretion of the various digestive juices and furnishing to the blood the proper purifying properties, it reaches out over the whole body and drives disease-germs before it into the usual excretory channels. It builds up firm muscular flesh, makes the skin and the eyes bright.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been found wonderfully efficacious in the treatment of skin diseases—eczema, tetter, erysipelas, salt-rheum—from common pimples or blotches to the worst case of scrofula.

IMPEACHMENT EVIDENCE

Offered by the Government Against Witnesses For the Defense.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—The testimony in the Luetgert trial yesterday was more interesting to the general public than it has been at any time for the past two weeks. The dry evidence of the experts gave way to impeachment evidence offered by the state against the witnesses for the defense, who stated on the stand that Mrs. Luetgert had been seen in the vicinity of Kenosha within a few days after the murder is said to have been committed.

One of the strongest features in the rebuttal evidence was the testimony of Adam Brinker, a teamster for a soap factory. It was in reference to the tallow, grease and chipped bone which George Eland said he delivered at the factory on May 1, and which William Charles testified was procured as some of the ingredients of softsoap which was to be made for the purpose of thoroughly cleaning up the factory. Brinker said he hauled all the tallow and bone away from the factory May 1. He explained that it was his duty to do this once each week. He conveyed the material to a soap making firm by which he was employed. Brinker added that he knew Mrs. Luetgert quite well, and had seen and talked with her just prior to her disappearance. He said she talked rationally, and that she did much of her own housework. This latter statement was in contradiction of the story of Mary Simmering.

Deputy Sheriff Moan told what he found at the factory on May 4 when he made the seizure under the foreclosure. He took possession of everything in the grocery store connected with the factory. He found among other things 100 boxes of soap of different brands. This point was brought out to impress upon the jury that Luetgert did not require the soap it is asserted he proposed making.

Emma Schimpke was recalled, and an effort was made to show by her that all the impeaching evidence that had been produced by the defense on her testimony was the result of a misunderstanding of her story.

Today witnesses from Kenosha were called to refute the stories of the persons who stated positively that they saw Mrs. Luetgert in that town May 3, 4 and 5. It is expected that these witnesses will be confronted with the woman they mistook for Mrs. Luetgert.

Several of the witnesses were not of a high order of intelligence. One witness would not believe Scholey under oath because he said the latter had been his partner in a saloon venture and they had quarrelled and dissolved the copartnership. William Apfel, Andrew Larsen, Peter Wagner and other neighbors of the man who was so positive in his identification of a photograph of Mrs. Luetgert as the picture of the woman he said he saw in Kenosha two days after Mrs. Luetgert disappeared asserted without reservation that they would not believe Scholey under oath. Sharp cross-questioning by Attorney Phalen usually brought out the fact that at one time or another the impeaching witness had experienced trouble at the hands of Scholey.

Gordon Clark, who is connected with the firm from whom Luetgert purchased the barrel of potash, testified that he once explained to Luetgert that there was no difference between the brands of Hunyadie water. This evidence was introduced in rebuttal of the story that on the night of May 1 Luetgert sent Bialk to a drug store twice to get Hunyadie water because upon the first trip Bialk had secured the wrong brand.

The phonograph men are having fun with the case. Yesterday afternoon Luetgert refused to talk into a phonographic receiver until a contract was made that would assure him 50 per cent of the receipts. "Talk is cheap as a general thing," said he, "but my talk costs money."

Costly Living at St. Michaels.

St. Michaels, Sept. 16.—The general impression is that the boats that leave here from this time on will not be able to get over 1000 miles up the river before they will be frozen in. All independent steamers will be compelled to carry coal, as the natives have cut up all the driftwood along the river bank for over 100 miles and have sold it to the steamers owned by the big companies.

The new finds on Minook and Hunter creek continue to cause excitement, and there are now about 600 miners on the grounds. In St. Michaels sugar is 25 cents per pound; shot shells are 25 cents each; bacon, 35 cents a pound; blanket trousers, $8; chocolate drops, three for 25 cents; 5-cent calico, 35 cents a yard; cotton bandannas, $1 each; flour, $8 a hundredweight; candles, 35 cents a pound; small box of sardines, 50 cents.

Six men have probably lost their lives here as the result of a foolhardy attempt to sail up the 1850 miles of river which in some places runs down at the rate of eight miles an hour. The men, two of whom are named Abercrombie and Tate, were last seen in distress drifting out of the mouth of the Yukon to sea. Three men in a sailboat started up the river from here last week, and have not been seen by anybody since. Their names are Matthews, Roberts and Schultz.

Ancients at a Banquet.

Buffalo, Oct. 7.—The annual banquet of the Ancient and Honorable artillery was held at the Iroquois hotel last night and was a most elaborate affair. Covers were laid for 350. The guests' list included all the prominent citizens. Three hundred and fifty boxes of luncheon for the visiting company arrived in Buffalo yesterday morning from a Syracuse hotel and were divided between the Buffalo orphan asylum and the newsboys and bootblacks' home. The boxes were intended to reach the artillerymen at Syracuse, but, arriving too late, were shipped to Buffalo.

TESTIMONY DISCREDITED.

Yesterday Was a Bad Day For the Defense of Luetgert.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—One more day of evidence and the finish of the Luetgert murder trial will be in sight. The state announced yesterday that it had but few more witnesses, and that it would get through with them without much delay today. An adjournment will then be taken until Monday, when the defense will offer a small amount of sur-rebuttal, and the way will be clear for the arguments of the attorneys, which will take about one week.

It was a bad day for the defense. The evidence of two of their chief witnesses was almost destroyed. Mary Siemmering's evidence was torn to tatters. Members of the grand jury which indicted Luetgert testified to admissions the young woman had made before that body as to her relations with Luetgert until Judge Tuthill tired of it. Finally his honor said: "I will hear no more grand jurors. Their evidence is but a repetition. It seems to me that the principle upon which they are being questioned has been thoroughly covered."

Police Matron McMahon was placed upon the stand to deny Mary Siemmering's story that she had been subjected to humiliating treatment when she was placed under arrest and brought to the station. Matron McMahon declared it was untrue that the young woman was despoiled of all her clothing in her cell as she had stated, and that a policeman had stood guard at her cell door while she was without raiment.

Then came a herd of witnesses to impeach Luetgert's business partner. Mr. Charles sat in the courtroom and listened to his reputation assailed right and left. Alexander J. Sweeney, Philip Reitz, William Spanka and others, who had sustained business relations with Charles at the Fulton market, declared that they knew Charles' reputation for truth and veracity was bad. They told of business transactions they had with Charles in which they got the worst of the bargain through wilfull deception and a disregard for the truth on the part of Charles.

Abraham Selig, who bought the grocery department of Luetgert's sausage factory, testified that he found 159 boxes of soap in the store, and that much of it was "scrub soap." This was brought out to show that Luetgert did not need to make soap with which to clean the big sausage factory.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The European edition of the New York Herald asserts that the Indian government declines to reopen the Indian mints to silver.

Dr. Jameson, the hero of the Transvaal raid, will seek a seat in the cape assembly at the next general election. The chief plank in his platform will be "federation for South Africa."

Last night the Boston police arrested William Liponitis, alias Charles Brooks, who is said to be a fugitive from justice in Baltimore, where he is wanted for the alleged larceny of $700 in August.

The bodies of Louis and Leon Cholad, aged, respectively, 31 and 23 years, were found in the Evans mine at Beaver Meadow, Pa., yesterday. They were employed in the night shift and were overcome by foul air.

At the General Electric works in Schenectady all previous records for acceleration tests were broken. Before the officers of the Illinois Central railroad a third rail system train was made to go at a rate of 41 miles an hour in 50 seconds.

The governor of Massachusetts has nominated Elizabeth P. Sohier of Beverly as library commissioner; Orestes T. Doe of Franklin as trial justice of Norfolk county; Forrest W. Adams, Republican, and John J. Ahearn, Democrat, as supervisors of registration for Natick.

Adjutant General Stewart has issued warrants for $94,245 for the pay of the Third brigade and the Philadelphia city troop for services at Hazleton, Pa., during the strike. This does not include the cost of transportation and subsistence. The militiamen, 2500 in number, were on duty from Sept. 11 to Oct. 4.

Careful estimates of the losses caused by yesterday's fire in Detroit place the total figures at $640,000, with $535,000 insurance. Added to the many losses are those of the people who had household goods stored in the storage building, and of the contents of offices of professional people and others in the various buildings which were ruined.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, FRIDAY, OCT. 8.
Sun rises—5:50; sets, 5:13.
Length of day—11 h. 23 m.
High water—9:23 a. m.; 9:58 p. m.
Moon sets—3:43 a. m.

Threatening weather, favorable to showers, prevail in the northeast. This will pass to the eastward, with fair, cooler weather. The fair weather in New England will last through Saturday and probably Sunday, with rising temperature. Cool northeast winds, shifting to southerly, by Saturday afternoon or Sunday.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

Far Reaching Effect Possible.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 8.—In the case of the Enterprise Brewing company et al. vs George Grime et al., assignees, in which the Enterprise and Narragansett Brewing companies seek to recover $2675 alleged to be due them from the defendants as proceeds of the sale of the property of Finnegan & Fitzsimmons, insolvent debtors, M. G. B. Swift, counsel for the defendants, has filed an amended answer to the declaration of the plaintiffs. It sets forth that both concerns were foreign corporations and have no standing in this commonwealth, because no certificates of incorporation have been filed here. Therefore, they have no legal right to do business here.

Being unable to prove the standing of his clients, the defendants, under the answer at once, A. J. Jennings asked for a continuance, and the case went over until Oct. 18 or later. The action of the plaintiffs in this case is brought on a mortgage from Finnegan & Fitzsimmons, filed and recorded five days before the petition in insolvency.

The case as it now stands presents peculiar possibilities in the way of law questions. There is a possibility that the mortgage may be declared void Should the case have such a termination its effect would be far reaching in that many brewing companies now doing business in this state would be placed in a similar position to that of the plaintiffs in this case.

Handtub Record Is Changed.

Nashua, Oct. 8.—The Union Fire company of Pepperell, Mass., beat the world's record in a handtub contest at the firemen's muster here, the playing being 232 feet 4 inches. The record had been held for 22 years by the Eureka company of Hudson, Mass., which won it in Portland, Me., in 1875, playing 229 feet, winning the world's championship and a prize of $1000. The Eureka company played yesterday, but did not win one of the four prizes. The playing was the heaviest known in New England for 10 years. Of the 12 companies participating in the contest the lowest score was 155 feet.

HANGING THEIR FATE.

Death Penalty In Store For Eleven Fiends In Kentucky.

Maltreatment of a Married Woman at Their Hands.

Precautions Against an Outburst of Popular Wrath.

Cincinnati, Oct. 8.—An angry crowd gathered about the courthouse and jail in Newport, Ky., yesterday upon the announcement of a most shocking assault by 11 men upon the young wife of a switchman recently married. The sheriff was obliged to clear the corridors, and threats of vengeance were made.

Thomas Gleason and his wife started out on the Alexandria pike to visit a friend Wednesday night, when two men with revolvers and representing themselves to be officers separated husband and wife and dragged the shrieking woman into a field, where 11 men assaulted her. The penalty for this crime in Kentucky is death.

The ruffians were brought to preliminary trial before Judge Bennett, who held them all to answer to the grand jury without bail. Meantime, owing to the excited state of feeling and the insecurity of the Newport jail, the men were ordered to be taken to Mayville for safe keeping.

When the time came for the removal of the 10 prisoners to the Chesapeake and Ohio depot to take the train for Mayville there was such a menacing crowd about the jail that the sheriff called out the entire police force to preserve order. It was with difficulty that the men were taken to the wagons which conveyed them to the depot, and the crowd followed close after. At the depot and before the train arrived the situation grew more threatening. The police force finally had to charge the yelling crowd to prevent a rush at the prisoners. Fortunately the train soon came.

The prisoners are aged from 19 to 30, mostly without employment. Two or three are peddlers, and all are known to the police as a gang going together and often found drunk and disorderly. Their names are Meiner, Greer, Miller, Hending, Frank Bushmiller, Harry Bushmiller, Shannon, Heiner, Duhfoss and Schorte. The one last arrested, and who is still in jail awaiting identification, is William Croxton. The other 10 were recognized by Mrs. Gleason in the crowded courtroom. The men exhibited the most reckless bravado, one or two being drunk. They used vile language and displayed total indifference and unconcern.

Spain's Reply Not Ready Yet.

Madrid, Oct. 8.—A cabinet council, at which the queen regent presided, was held yesterday. When the ministers separated Premier Sagasta announced to the newspaper men that no final action had been taken in regard to the reply which Spain will make to the note of the United States handed to the Duke of Tetuan, when he was minister of foreign affairs, by the United States minister, Stewart L. Woodford. The Imparcial, however, says it learns that the reply of Spain will satisfy Spanish susceptibilities in making clear to President McKinley the resolute attitude which Spain maintains in regard to Cuba.

According to The Herald, Spain's reply to the United States will "point out that if American interests suffer by reason of the war in Cuba they (the Americans) are themselves to blame for it, inasmuch as the insurrection is assisted from the United States. We understand that the government will express its confidence that the new policy to be pursued with regard to Cuba will produce a change in the attitude of the United States."

"I'se Goin' Back to Dixie."

Colon, Colombia, via Galveston, Oct. 8.—All Colon is in a fever of excitement on account of the embarkation of 500 Africans for Sierra Leon, on board the British steamer Holyrood. Six hundred of these natives of Africa arrived here under contract a year ago, ragged and naked, and they are now returning to their homes in better condition. The remainder of the party have either absconded or, more likely, have died at various places along the canal route of beriberi.

The captain of the Holyrood is taking precautions to prevent an outbreak of the Africans while on the way across the Atlantic, and he made them give up the knives, revolvers, cutlasses and razors with which they were armed.

The canal company officials express themselves as being delighted to get rid of the African laborers. They say the latter have proved themselves expensive and indifferent workers.

David Loftus' Experience.

New York, Oct. 8.—David Loftus, 50 years old, recently sold a store in Everett, Mass., with the intention of going back to Ireland, where he was born. He arrived in New York yesterday and bought a draft on Dublin for £329. He had also $3000 in United States notes. He got drunk in the afternoon and went to Jersey City. He fell in the street and was helped to his feet by Delia Smith and Lizzie Griffin, who took him to their home, where he went to sleep. He awoke at 10 o'clock last night and found that his money and draft were gone. He informed the police, who arrested the women and Charles McCormick, who was found in their rooms. The draft and $60 were found on Miss Smith; the remaining $2940 are still missing.

Cakes of tea in India, pieces of silk in China, salt in Abyssinia and codfish in Iceland have all been used as money.

Last of the Gang.

Joseph Johnson, aged 17 years, who claims to be a musician, was arrested in Boston Thursday for breaking and entering the house of C. P. Anderson at Adams shore, Quincy, on April 7. There were four men concerned in this break two of whom were arrested shortly after, and their cases have been disposed of. The third man James McIntire was arrested a week ago and is now awaiting the action of the grand jury. Johnson is the last of the quartette and he has succeeded in keeping out of sight until Thursday, when he fell into the hands of officers of station one. The Quincy police were notified and Officer Barry went in and brought him to Quincy.

Fate Party.

A "Fate Party" was held at the residence of Miss Emma Curtin, Atlantic street, Thursday evening, in aid of the Memorial Congregational church and was largely attended. Everything seemed to be a fixed series of causes, a decree of fate, as every one was compelled to enter by the back way and pay a fee of 9 cents. Everybody was greeted with odd articles and odd looking creatures in various corners of the house. Fortunes were told and many other different and fated games were indulged in. Everybody left at a late hour with the opinion the fate was one of the oddest affairs that they had ever attended. It was a complete success.

STONE CHURCHES.

One Erected by a Single Man —Another from One Boulder.

There is a Presbyterian church at Hepburnville, Pa., that was built by one man. It is a beautiful stone structure built from great boulders taken from Brobst mountain. The name of the man who built this church was George Taylor, and he labored at it for more than six years quarrying and cutting his own stone and putting them in place when opportunity presented. The building is sixty by thirty-eight feet, with a square tower sixty feet high. Before the church was quite finished Talyor grew ill. His hammer, chisel, and trowel were laid aside, and they were never again taken up by him. In his will it was found that he left the church and all its belongings to the congregation. There remained a small debt, which was partially wiped out the first Sunday service was held in the building. A subscription was raised and a pretty memorial window was erected by the congregation in honor of the aged and untiring builder.

The following story comes from Waterloo, Ia. The members of the Presbyterian church decided to erect a new place of worship. Stone was scarce; in fact, there were no quarries and no rock suitable for building purposes nigh at hand. At last their attention was called to what was apparently a large boulder which stood in the middle of a plain about eight miles from the town. This huge mass of rock was like an island in the midst of a vast sea. About eight feet of it porjected above ground. The work of excavating this gigantic boulder was at once begun. When exposed to view it was found to be twenty-eight feet high, thirty feet long, and twenty feet wide. On this monolith the workmen began their labors with drill, hammer, and dynamite, and the enormous rock was converted into building stones. The pieces were conveyed to the town, and before long a wonderful metamorphosis was apparent, and then this giant boulder, after resting undisturbed for countless years and buried by the deposits of ages, was transformed into a beautiful church. In its rough state this great rock is estimated to have weighed more than 2500 tons.

Musical Night.

A meeting of the Quincy Teachers' Association was held Thursday evening at the high school. After the business of the evening was transacted the president, Mr. Frederic Allison Tupper, made some well chosen remarks, followed by a musical entertainment, with these numbers:

Piano solo, Miss Kauffmann; vocal solos by Mr. Griffiths, Miss Gale, Miss Lynn and Mr. Marceau. The singing of Mr. Marceau of the Quincy Mansion school of the Marsailaise in French was a particularly enjoyable part of the programme. A vote of thanks was extended to those who so kindly contributed to the evening's enjoyment. The next meeting will be held on Dec. 15 when President Elliot of Harvard university will deliver an address.

Quincy Man Killed.

William McKay of this city who has been at work in a granite quarry on Bald island, Maine, was instantly killed on Thursday by a falling block of granite which weighed forty tons.

The young man was about 25 years of age and is a son of Mr. John McKay, a stone polisher who resides at 64 Liberty street, South Quincy. He left Quincy about a year ago and has been employed at Bald Island since that time. He was a stone cutter by trade, which occupation he followed in Quincy previous to going away. His body will be brought to Quincy.

McKay was at work at the bottom of the quarry and the block which struck him fell about twenty feet. It took an hour for the workmen to get him out from under the stone.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. TALK OF THE CITY.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy.

Democratic Representative convention tonight.

It was almost as quiet as Sunday at West Quincy Thursday.

Several dances are advertised to be held at West Quincy this month.

The laying of the rails on the Wollaston loop will be finished this week.

E. H. Doble & Co.'s store was closed Thursday and all the clerks went to the Brockton fair.

The probabilities say that there is a storm coming and we shall probably get it early next week, if not before.

The current number of Harper's Weekly contains an excellent illustration of the Rooster under full sail.

The reason that it is difficult to find places on South street is because the street was numbered from one at each end.

Fifteen Quincy conductors and motormen have been ordered to Brockton to run on special cars during the fair.

Mr. Henry W. Marsden of Wollaston who has been in poor health the past few weeks, was able to go to Boston this week.

If the names of those from Quincy who attended the Brockton fair Thursday were published it would make quite a long list.

J. W. Anderson of Quincy exhibits white Plymouth Rock and single comb brown leghorns in the poultry show at the Brockton fair.

The paving on the north side of the tracks on Copeland street has been completed beyond Buckley street and the foundation is completed to Common street.

The case of Goodwin vs. the Quincy & Boston street railway company will probably be reached today in the third session of the Suffolk superior court before Judge Dewey.

The purse of $300 in the 2.30 trot at Brockton on Thursday was won in three straight by Alkalone driven by J. B. Benson formerly of Quincy; time 2:25 2.24 3-4 and 2.22 3-4.

At the whist contest by the members of the Granite City club on Wednesday evening, the first prize was taken by R. D. Gordon, and the second by Charles M. Jenness.

The cantata being prepared to present next Wednesday evening, Oct. 13, at the Washington Street Congregational church vestry, is a very pretty affair and a good deal of work is being put forth to have it a success.

The Norfolk South District Medical society held its monthly meeting Thursday at the United States hotel, Boston. Dr. John A. Gordon presided. There was a discussion on professional affairs, after which dinner was enjoyed.

Some 20 of the mothers—members of the Maternal society of Holbrook accepting the invitation of one of the members, Mrs. E. Newton Thayer, to spend the day with her at her seaside home at Great Hill, Houghs Neck, made the trip Tuesday over the Quincy street railway. A most enjoyable time was reported to have been had, certainly, though some of them were well advanced in years, the day's outing seemed to put new life in them.—Brockton Times.

Brockton Fair.

The best yet is the verdict of those who have attended the great Brockton fair. The attendance Thursday was also a record breaker, over 40,000 being attracted to this great show. There was a crowd everywhere, and so many attractions that one could not see all of them. On the track the exhibition mile by Marion Mills, the driveless pacer, was a pleasing feature, and the double team race was exciting, but all the trots and bicycle races were interesting. The platform events in front of the grand stand were all of the best, the balloon ascension and parachute jump a success, and the headlong drive from the high tower a daring feat. The ladies department, the vegetable and fruit exhibit, the cattle and poultry shows were all replete, and fakirs row and the other side shows were as alluring as ever. Today the wheelmen will own the grounds, but it will also be Governors day, and the attraction will equal yesterday.

MR. FAXON IN COURT.

Was Defendant This Morning at Salem.

Charged with Attempting to Influence Jurors,

Who Were Sitting Upon a Case in Essex County.

[Special to the DAILY LEDGER.]

In response to a subpœna issued by Judge Bond, Henry H. Faxon of Quincy appeared in the superior court at Salem this morning accompanied by his secretary Miss Brown, to explain the sending of a paper with an article on the evils of the jury system to jurors of the Superior court.

The paper indicated was published in Palmer, and had an editorial on the jury system and accompanying it were papers containing speeches by Mr. Faxon on the liquor question. Mr. Faxon's name was also on the wrapper.

At the time the copies of the papers were sent to the jurymen the court was sitting in Lawrence and attention was called to the fact by the District Attorney.

Judge Bond directed an investigation which was made by a State officer, with the result that Mr. Faxon was summoned into court.

It is claimed that the sending of these papers was to influence the jurors in liquor cases.

The leading editorial in the paper set forth that the edition had been "prepared for the purpose of calling the attention of the voters of Hampden county to the corrupt and dangerous conditions of our jury system." This was based upon the action of Judge Maynard in dismissing a jury in Hampden county after it had reported a disagreement in a liquor case, in which he considered the evidence was conclusive of guilt.

When the cases were called Mr. Faxon stated to the court that he did know that the papers were sent to this particular jury. He had told his clerk when she got hold of a list of names of jurors to send them papers. He further stated that he had been sending out circulars of a similar kind since 1883.

The court said that might be so but it was evident the attention of no Judge had ever been called to the matter.

As Mr. Faxon seemed penitent, and promised not to do so any more, the court dismissed him with a reprimand, upon the ground that his secretary had sent these particular papers without his knowledge.

Miss Eva M. Brown, secretary of Mr. Faxon, who had also been summoned into court, said that she had sent the circulars, and in doing so had acted under general orders, which were to send them to every jury list that she could obtain.

She further stated that she mailed this particular lot in season to reach the jurymen before they were empanelled, and if the mails had not gone wrong that they would have reached the jurymen in time.

Judge Bond also gave her a reprimand and dismissed the charge against her, on the ground that she was acting under orders.

It was brought out that what made this case particularly aggravating was that at the time the papers were received the jury were sitting upon a liquor case in which the principal witness for the government was one of Mr. Faxon's spotters.

This case has attracted a wide spread interest and there was quite a large attendance at the court to see the great apostle of temperance arraigned before the bar of justice.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The first report of attendance at our public schools for this school year is made by Superintendent Lull. The whole number Oct. 1 was 4340, which is an incease of 307 in one year, 478 in two years and 643 in three years. The Willard building has over 800 pupils and the Coddington, High and John Hancock follow in order with over 400 each. The Willard falls below 800 in average daily attendance, and the High and John Hancock fall below 400, but the Coddington has 439. The Willard leads in per cent., but the Gridley Bryant is a very close rival, while the average of all the schools is over 97 per cent. Out of 158,874 chances there were only 118 chances and but 225 dismissals. Less truancy is reported.

The report is for the four weeks ending Oct 1.

The Metropoliton water pipes have been laid as far as the railroad crossing at East Milton and the ground has been opened as far as Granite place. The trenches are about six feet deep and about 200 feet of pipe is laid per day. The inspector of the Metropolitan Water Commission on this section is Frank E. Hall of Quincy, ex-superintendent of the Quincy water works which is a sufficient guarantee that everything will be done in shape.

—A curious custom obtains in some portions of Spain in regard to betrothals. A young man who looks with favor upon a handsome senorita and wishes to gain her hand calls on the parents for three successive days at the same hour of the day. At the last call he leaves his walking stick, and if he is to win the desired bride the cane is handed to him when he calls again. But if he is not regarded with favor, the cane is thrown into the street, and in this way the young man is made to understand that further calls will be useless.

DR. EVERETT'S VOTE.

The Ledger Offers a Prize for the Nearest Estimate.

Quincy is honored by the selection of one of her citizens as a gubernatorial candidate, and there is interest as to the strength he will develop in his own city. No one predicts that Dr. Everett will be elected, but as the chances of Governor Wolcott will not be endangered it is probable that the doctor will receive a large complimentary vote.

All the Ledger readers cannot vote at the polls on election day, but the Ledger knows no sex, age or condition, and asks everybody to vote by the use of the blank which will be found on this page. What will be the vote of William Everett in Quincy on November 2? A prize of $5 is hereby offered by the Ledger for the nearest estimate of the Quincy vote.

In case of a tie on the Quincy vote, the estimate on the State vote of those thus tied will be considered in reaching the decision. It is therefore important that a close estimate of both the city and state vote for Dr. Everett be made.

Last year Frederick O. Prince of Boston, who run as the National Democratic candidate, received but 111 votes in Quincy and 14,164 in the state.

Short letters of from 100 to 200 words with reasons for or against a vote for Dr. Everett will be welcomed and will be published when space permits.

The polls will close at 4 P.M. on Saturday, Oct. 30. Direct all estimates to

BEATEN IN WORCESTER

Baltimores Added to Their Victories Over Boston.

Hickman Does Good Work In Box and at Bat.

Bicyclist Michael Adds Another to His Many Laurels.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 8.—The Boston league team played here yesterday for the first time in several years, and had as their opponents the Baltimores. The game was not exactly of the sort to make the real rooter grow enthusiastic, for it was merely an exhibition contest, and in consequence the men played rather listlessly. Nevertheless the score was close, some sharp plays were made, and the 2500 spectators on the whole enjoyed the exhibition.

Both teams indulged in hard hitting, Hickman, who pitched for Boston, led in that respect, getting a home run and a three-bagger in addition to a single. Three of the tour home runs made went over the right field fence.

Hughey Jennings, when he stepped to the plate in the second inning, was presented with a gold headed cane by Holy Cross college students. The two teams played today in Springfield. The score:

WONDERFUL MICHAEL.

Adds Still Another to His Long List of Broken Records.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8.—Jimmy Michael, the little Welsh wheelman, on the Willow grove track yesterday, chipped 2 1-5 seconds from the best American record for one mile paced. The record was 1:38 1-5, made by McDuffee of Boston about six weeks ago on the St. Charles track at Boston. Michael's time was 1:36. The fastest time for one mile was made by J. S. Stocks in England about a month ago, when he covered the distance in 1:35 2-5. Stocks was paced by motor cycles, and his time was not recognized by the L. A. W. on account of the character of the pacemaker.

Michael was paced by a sextet and a quad, and established the record after one trial, in which he equalled the track record of 1:38 4-5, made by Arthur Gardiner on the occasion of the national meet of last August. Michael, who has been training all this week on the track for trials at all records from one-third of a mile to 33 miles to be made next Saturday, received special sanctions for each day of the week, and his managers considered him in condition to make the trial for the mile record.

The first trial came off at 3:30 o'clock. Not a breath of air was stirring, and the track was in splendid condition. The pistol cracked just as Michael crossed the tape. The Welshman held fast to the sextet and was making ready to pick up the quad when the latter's chain broke. He caught the sextet again and held close for the mile, crossing in 1:38 4-5.

A brief rest followed and the second trial was made. The line was crossed on the start at a splendid pace, and on the quarter the remarkably fast time of 23 3-5 was announced; the third was covered in 31 1-5, and the half mile in 47 3-5. Here the little demon made a splendid pickup of the quad. The four kept a rattling good pace, which Michael showed his ability to hold by calling to them to go facter.

Broken by McDuffee.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 8.—The Brockton fair came fully up to expectations yesterday and beat all previous records by thousands. The much coveted goal of 40,000 people present was reached according to the best estimates. The weather was all that could be desired. The best previous attendance was 36,000 in 1895.

E. A. McDuffee of Boston broke the one mile track record for a single bicycle rider by two-fifths of a second, going the distance in 2:01 1-5 against time. Tom Butler went the mile in 2:01 3-5 last year. McDuffee was paced by three triplets.

Swartz's Sensational Run.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 8.—Swartz, the stocky rush of the 'varsity scrub, won great praise from the big crowd present at yesterday afternoon's hard practice at Princeton by bucking the hitherto impregnable 'varsity line and making a sensational run of 75 yards down the field. He was followed in his flying career by Suter, who succeeded in downing him by a magnificent tackle, but when but five yards intervened between Swartz and a touchdown. The play was a repetition of Suter's great run in the Harvard game two years ago.

Halifax Oarsmen Won.

Halifax, Oct. 8.—The double scull race between the Lynch brothers of Halifax and John McKay of Boston and Robert Johnston of New Brunswick was won by the local oarsmen without serious effort. They took the lead at the start and had little trouble in maintaining it, though the two boats kept close together until after the turn was made. The distance was three nautical miles, and was covered by the winners in 21.22. McKay and Johnston were over seven lengths behind. The prize was $150.

Weather Against Them.

Glenn Falls, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Owing to the unfavorable weather yesterday the attempt of John R. Gentry and Robert J to beat the world's record for double teams was postponed until today. Gentry will also start in single harness to beat Star Pointer's record of 1:59 1-4. In his work on Tuesday he covered a half mile in one minute without a pacemaker to urge him up to his best speed. The track was rough and slow when the trial took place.

Beaten by Thoroughbreds.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8.—A relay of six thoroughbred horses from the stables of Thomas W. South raced five miles yesterday on the Tigo bicycle track against four crack bicyclists, and the horses won in 9 minutes and 52 seconds, with the wheelmen only five yards behind. The race was the feature event of an afternoon's program of amateur bicycle races.

Good Time by an Amateur.

Cincinnati, Oct. 8.—Harry Sidwell of Covington, Ky., broke the world's amateur cycling record for two-thirds of a mile in a race against time on the Chester park track. The former record was held by Amos Hughes of Denver, 1:14 1-2 seconds. Sidwell's time was 1.09 3-4.

HUB OF THE UNIVERSE.

Boston, Oct. 8.—Edward J. Harrington of Charlestown, employed at the ropewalk in the navy yard, was caught in the shafting yesterday morning, and before assistance could be rendered he was injured internally, so that his recovery is doubtful. He is 24 years of age.

Antonio and Elizabeth Volpe, charged with making counterfeit money, were held in $2500 each for the federal grand jury. The principal evidence against the prisoners, besides the coin and implements found in the room occupied by the defendants, was a written and signed contract to make and deal in counterfeit coin, in which the name of one of the arrested persons appeared as a principal. According to the terms of the document, each was to contribute $600 toward capitalizing the enterprise. Accounts were to be strictly kept and the work was to be conducted according to prearranged plans. In case of the detection of any of the three principals named the others were to look out for themselves. It was a secret compact, and affords the police little assistance in their efforts to trace the other parties to it.

Mary Griffing, 7 years old, fell from a third story window at her home in South Boston yesterday and fractured her skull. She was taken to the city hospital, but was removed from there by her mother and taken home against the protests of the physicians. The child will probably die.

William C. Kingman, in a delirium resulting from typhoid fever, jumped from the window of his room in the fourth story while his nurse was absent. He struck on the brick sidewalk, fracturing his skull and injuring himself internally so that he will die.

The British steamer Honiton, Captain Hudson, from Progreso for this port, which put into Fortress Monroe Tuesday with sickness on board and Chief Engineer Bacon dead, left there at noon Wednesday and should reach here tonight. The vessel will be dealt with the same as ordinary cases. It is said that Captain Hudson and two members of the crew are sick with what appears to be yellow fever.

Vessels In This Country.

Washington, Oct. 8.—The annual report of Mr. Chamberlain, the commissioner of navigation, shows that the total documented tonnage of the United States June 30, 1897, 4,700,020 tons, is the largest for 21 years except 1893, when it was 4,825,071 tons. Our largest documented tonnage was 5,539,813 tons June 30, 1861. The steam tonnage amounts to 2,358,553 tons; sail tonnage, including barges and canal boats, 2,410,402 tons. Construction thus far indicates that at the end of the current fiscal year the steam tonnage for the first time in our history will exceed the combined tonnage of documented sailing vessels, barges and canal boats.

The total construction for the year, 801 vessels of 232,233 gross tons, is the largest annual output since 1891. The square-rigged sailing vessels has virtually ceased to be a product of American shipyards. No ships or barks were built in the United States during the fiscal year. The great lakes region for the first time in our history has built more tonnage than all the rest of the country, 120 vessels of 110,937 tons, compared with 771 vessels of only 115,206 tons.

Purpose of the Spanish Unknown.

Washington, Oct. 8.—The state department has not been officially informed of the purpose of the Spanish government to dissolve the cortes in December. It was expected, however, that it would be found necessary for the cabinet to go to the country in order to secure the support of a majority for the Liberal policy towards Cuba, inasmuch as the present cortes has a clear Conservative majority whenever that party's elements can be brought together.

Disappointment is felt at the remote date set for the convening of the new cortes, for it is presumed that any program for the settlement of Cuban affairs must be ratified, and if the cortes is not to meet until next March the long delay, it is feared, will give rise to irritation and perhaps be beyond the powers of endurance of the present administration. It is possible, however, that a prompt declaration of policy towards Cuba will be issued.

Hartford, Oct. 8.—The National Life association, whose president, D. S. Fletcher, and secretary, Henry T. Burns, a local saloon keeper, in June, 1894. He fled from the city at that time and has kept away ever since, except for secret visits to his parents. He came here to attend the wedding of his sister, and was put under arrest. He was held in $200 bail in the district court.

Jennie Horsewhipped Margaret.

New York, Oct. 8.—Jennie Russell, 30 years old, a discharged employe in the dressmaking department of the Wanamaker store, horsewhipped Margaret Donovan, a forelady of the department, in front of the store yesterday afternoon. THE UNITY CLUB.

A New President Elected—The Study of Germany Taken Up.

There was a large attendance at the first meeting of the season of the Unity Club in the Wollaston Unitarian church vestry last evening.

Previous to the literary programme a business meeting was held, Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop, the first vice-president presiding. Owing to the resignation of Mr. Charles E. Finch, Jr., the president, it became necessary to elect his successor. Mr. Eugene H. Sprague was elected to fill the vacancy, and as his election caused a vacancy in the vice-presidency Mr. George H. Collyer was chosen a vice-president.

The subject studied this year will be Germany. The evening was in charge of Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop. Miss Clara E. G. Thayer read an interesting paper on "the Teutons to A. D. 1024; the Rev. James E. Bagley a paper on Heine; Mrs. Alma Faunce Smith on Schumann, illustrating it with several of his works; and Mr. W. E. Simmons, who had the "Current Events" took for his subject "House Cleaning."

A Weak Trio.

Messrs. A, B and C, three well known Quincy young men went to the Brockton fair on Thursday, and as they wanted to go in style they chartered a barouche so that they could cut ice with the best of them.

While at Brockton they were having a little fun with a blind man when an unassuming stranger spoke to them and quietly advised them to let the blind man alone. This was too much for our Quincy friends and one of the trio, who probably imagined that because he could lift a barrel of flour he could punch anyone who came along, resented the interference and proceeded to do the stranger up. This is not the first time the young man has made the same mistake. In a twinkling he was knocked down. Then it was that our other two friends came to his assistance, thinking no doubt that three could whip one, but they also made a mistake for the fellow was not long in knocking them down in the one, two, three order, as fast as they came within reach. When they had received all the punishment they desired they, like the Arabs of old, folded their tents and quietly stole away.

Keith's Theatre.

The wonderful motion phonograph device, the biograph, continues to be one of the leading features of the weekly show at Keith's, and its interest for every patron is as great at present as when it was first exhibited. The week of Oct. 11 two pictures are to be thrown on the screen that will be sure to attract widespread attention. One is a pamoramic view of the country between Mount Hope and Hazlewood stations on the line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, showing track repairers at work, etc., and the meeting of the noted "boat train" the finest equipped piece of railroad property in the world, flying along at the rate of fifty miles per hour. The biograph operators predict that this will prove the most sensational picture ever exhibited. Another interesting picture is that showing the great ten-seated pacing machine, the Oriton, with Lesna, the French rider, chasing it. It is a wonderful scene. Joe Cawthorne will be the star feature of the vaudeville proper, appearing as a monologue entertainer, with an interlude of song and jest. He made a great hit in Philadelphia and New York.

A WILL AND THE WAY

Existence under the guardianship of some one who is doing his duty by you is not an unmixed pleasure. Miss Bradford's sister, Mrs. Gallatin, was doing her duty by Miss Bradford. The former was not at all pretty. The latter was very, very pretty, which is so much more charming than being very, very beautiful. But Mrs. Gallatin was married and Miss Bradford was not. This came of the fact that Mrs. Gallatin had visited at Fort Preble and had captured an unfledged lieutenant by maneuvering and a miracle, and that Miss Bradford had spent her 21 years in a small Maine town.

Boys in the village had been in love with Bessie Bradford, but she had not been in love with them, and she had, moreover, a decent appreciation of her own value and knew she was far too good for such as they. There had been a college youth, also, once, but he and she had quarreled before the end of his summer visit. And now Bessie was one-and-twenty, and the family worried. It worried itself into a state where even the raising of a mortgage on the home did not seem too great a thing, if it would but insure her marriage. With the money thus obtained she was sent across the continent with instructions to get herself wedded before she came back. Those things are treated as business in New England hamlets. She was told to marry a general if she could. If not, anything, down to a second lieutenant.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Gallatin lived in the building known as the Corral. If the Corral were in the city, it would be called a tenement. But Uncle Sam does not quarter his officers in tenements. The Gallatins were cramped for room—very cramped. They had three children and second lieutenant's pay, so they were poor. Therefore taking Miss Bradford in was not a pleasure. It was a duty, and Mrs. Gallatin would not have been a New Englander if she had not done her duty.

But Bessie felt the unpleasantness of the situation the very day of her arrival.

"Captain Soutter is going to take you to the hop this evening, Bess," Mrs. Gallatin said. Bessie was cutting paper bird cages for her niece. Mrs. Gallatin was mending a pinafore.

"I've promised to go with Mr. Milford," answered Miss Bradford, stopping and looking up from the scissors.

"Mr. who?"

"Mr. Milford. Colonel Milford's son, who lives in St. Louis."

"Where have you met him?" The "him" warned Bessie that she was running on rocks.

"On the train. We got acquainted. He's in business in St. Louis, and he's coming to visit his people because he's in bad health. He is a very nice man."

"Man! He must be about 23. A perfect boy! And his business is being a briefless barrister. Now, let me tell you one thing, Bessie. You must learn from the first that the civilian son of an officer is nobody at all in a garrison. You will hurt your chances badly with the officers by going with him. How did he know there was to be a hop?"

Bessie finished opening the cage, gave it to her niece with a kiss, gathered the scraps of paper in her hand and threw them into the wastebasket, clasped her fingers behind her curly brown head and answered leisurely: "He didn't know there was to be one tonight. He asked me to go to the first one there should be after our arrival."

Mrs. Gallatin thought how very, very pretty Bessie was and wondered if her husband contrasted them.

"He probably will never think of it again. Captain Soutter is going to call to ask you this afternoon, and you'd better accept."

"Can one go with two men out here—antenuptially?"

"Don't be vulgar. You needn't consider the Milford boy."

"Oh, but I must, Genevieve, you know. I promised." Miss Bradford's big gray eyes were guilelessly earnest.

"I've no doubt that pose is taking with the men, but you can't make your devotion to promises succeed with me, dear. I know you too well. I can't remember that they worried you with the boys at home."

"This promise don't worry me; not a little bit."

"Well, I should suggest that you take my advice and be less flippant. Recollect that you were not sent way out here to flirt with penniless civilians and small boys."

"If I forget, remind me, will you? I'll make you a little red silk flag, if you like. I can make flags. I made one for a fair at home once. You might draw it from your bosom and wave it when you see me about to run off the track you have all so kindly and laboriously laid for me to run on. I'll teach you the signals. Mr. Milford and I studied them from the back of our sleeper. I think there's some one at the door, sister dearie."

It was Captain Soutter, come to formalize the hop arrangement. He was obviously very glad that he had come. For Miss Bradford was pretty—extraordinarily pretty.

"I am happy in being a near neighbor of yours, Miss Bradford," he told her. He forgot, as men will, how often he had cursed the ill luck which threw him within hearing distance of the Gallatin trio of infants.

"Yes?" said Bessie. "You are in our vicinity, then?"

"A little above you in the world. I live up stairs. When you want me, you have only to pound on the ceiling."

"The—what is it—quartermaster? The quartermaster mightn't like me to wear out his ceiling."

"You flatter me by the implication, Miss Bradford. But I'll settle with the Q. M. if you will only pound. For instance, will you pound tonight when you are ready for the hop, to which it is my dearest wish to be permitted to escort you?"

He forgot what he had wished when Mrs. Gallatin had asked him to perform this act of courtesy toward the coming sister. But then he had looked at Mrs. Gallatin and had judged from her of the sister.

"I would be only too delighted if it were not that I have already promised to go with some one else."

The betrayed captain manifested his astonishment and resentment at having been subjected to refusal. He had a high opinion of his dignity, had the captain.

"Why, who on earth can have asked you already?" he cried.

Miss Bradford had a cool little northern air, when she liked. She considered the captain's question in bad taste, so she raised her eyebrows and smiled most sweetly. "I shall hope to have a dance with you, Captain Soutter," she said.

And she had not one, but three. The captain forgot his wrath at the sight of her. When she came from the dressing room into the hallway to join young Milford, the captain was by the door. He looked at her.

"Might I hope to be accorded the second and fifth and ninth, Miss Bradford?" he asked.

"Oh, thank you," said Bessie. She was grateful, and he was quite appeased.

Now Miss Bradford was a success. She had what is known as a beautiful time for three whole months. No girl was remembered ever to have received altogether so much attention. She always had lovers, and the two don't always go together. Captain Soutter loved her, so did Lieutenant Paxton, and so did young Milford. Bessie loved young Milford. A girl who prefers "cit." clothes to a uniform is peculiar, to say the least. Bessie didn't say or show whom she loved, except to Milford. She had told him. She had refused Paxton, and she was warding the captain off. But the last she could not do much longer. The captain had a good opinion of himself.

He also had a dignity which was not to be trifled with. Mrs. Gallatin was by no means sure of Miss Bradford, so one day she spoke to her. The process of being spoken to can arouse the worst in a girl. But Bessie was in a broken and contrite frame of mind. She and young Milford had quarreled, and she didn't care what became of her. She might as well marry any old man and sacrifice herself for her family. She made a most affecting picture of herself as an offering on the altar of matrimony and filial duty. She would pine away picturesquely in a year or so, and Will Milford—well, perhaps he would go to the devil. She hoped so. It was under this pressure that she solemnly promised and swore to Mrs. Gallatin to marry Captain Soutter if he asked her. What Miss Bradford promised and swore she never broke.

So as soon as she and young Milford made it up she set about wondering how Captain Soutter was to be kept from asking her. Yet she could not arrive at any plan. The captain was an impetuous southerner, and he was neither over well bred nor nicely discriminating. Bessie was worried. If it had been that she had promised and sworn anything to young Milford and had had to choose which vow to break, she would not have hesitated. But she had teased him and had only answered "maybe," for which she now suffered.

But fate came to her aid, as it always should and always don't in the case of a very pretty girl.

She was going to another hop, and she was going with Captain Soutter. He had invited her at the time that she was practicing for the martyr role. As she couldn't, therefore, go with Milford, she would wear the gown he liked, which was white silk. For it she had to have white gloves, and her white gloves were soiled. Therefore they must be cleaned. Miss Bradford was an adept at cleaning gloves. She prepared a special mixture of a number of chemicals and powders. This mixture had to be whipped up—as if it had been the white of eggs—very light and frothy. It had a most unpleasant odor, but it was pretty to look upon. Because the odor was so unpleasant, Miss Bradford opened the door into the hallway and stood just within it, beating.

There was air in the hallway, and there was none in the Gallatins' quarters, as the baby had a cold. Captain Soutter had a cold, too, a frightful one. If he had not had, he would have noticed the smell of Miss Bradford's mixture. He came through the hall on his way to his own quarters on the floor above. Colonel Milford was with him. The captain didn't like the colonel particularly, on account of his being his son's father.

"Ah! Miss Bessie! What a pretty, housewifely picture we make," said the captain.

Bessie smiled encouragingly.

"What are we doing? Whipping cream? How good it looks. If Hebe would but feed us with ambrosia."

The colonel smelled the ambrosia, but he held his peace.

"I'll give you a taste, captain, if you want it very, very much. Open your mouth wi-i-de. Shut your eyes."

She put a heaping forkful in his mouth. The horrible taste made him gasp. The gasp made him swallow the froth. Colonel Milford laughed. But Captain Soutter went to his quarters without a word.

Bessie went to the hop that night with young Milford. Afterward, while she and her sister and Lieutenant Gallatin were having their supper of beer and crackers and cheese, Miss Bradford told them that she was going to marry the penniless civilian.

"But how about Captain Soutter?" wailed Mrs. Gallatin.

"Hush! He might hear you. Oh, I'm awfully afraid he'll never speak to me again." And he never did.—Gwendolen Overton in Argonaut.

A Matter of Names.

This way of naming children doth greatly me displease,
Because 'tis done regardless of all the unities.
Take a fellow that's deceitful, now, and don't you think it rank
That, through his parents' foolishness, we yet must say he's Frank?

I know a man who'd die before he'd tell a falsehood low,
Yet I call him Eliah, for his pa would have it so.
And don't we think it strange about our black cook's little girl
When we're told by her fond mamma that her name is Blanche or Pearl?

A stout girl will be Lena. Now, isn't that a shame?
And think of an ordained old maid with Marie for a name.
And can one expect a man to know much joy upon this earth
When a Paul clings to him from almost the moment of his birth?

I know two men, and slicker men you don't meet every day,
Yet one of them's a Reuben, and the other is a Jay.
And a thousand other misfits I could find, I'd bet a dime,
'Mongst the given names of people if I only had the time.

Moral Cosmetics.

Ye who would have your features florid,
Lithe limbs, bright eyes, unwrinkled fore head,
From age's devastation horrid,
Adopt this plan.
'Twill make in climate cold or torrid
A hale old man:

Avoid in youth luxurious diet.
Restrain the passions' lawless riot.
Devoted to domestic quiet,
Be wisely gay.
So shall ye, spite of age's fiat,
Resist decay.

Seek not in Mammon's worship pleasure,
But find your richest, dearest treasure
In God, his word, his work, not leisure.
The mind, not sense,
Is the sole scale by which to measure
Your opulence.

Life's purest, sweetest, best appliance,
That disappoints not man's reliance,
Whate'er his state,
But challenges with calm defiance
Time, fortune, fate.

But o'er its harshest utterance one bland sigh,
Breathed passionwise, doth mount victorious still,
For Love, earth's lord, must have his lordly will.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 10. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Enduring hardship for Christ's sake.—Heb. xii, 1-13. (A missionary topic.)

"Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." This was the command of Christ to His disciples. But He knew that obedience to this command would mean toil and hardship and suffering, for He added for their encouragement, "And, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." The disciples of Christ have found that Christ's prediction was true. Preaching the gospel to every creature does necessitate suffering and hardship. This is true not only in the jungles of Africa, but also in the heart of America. No one ever preached Christ without having to endure hardship for Christ's sake.

The writer of Hebrews gives us in the passage before us three encouragements for enduring hardship for Christ's sake.

1. The example of others encourages us. The first verse says that since we are surrounded by a great cloud of witnesses we should run our race, do our duty, with patience. The apostle does not mean that in heaven a vast cloud of witnesses is looking upon us, interested in our life struggles. In the preceding chapter he has named a long list of worthies who through faith in spite of hardships and sufferings almost unendurable obtained a good report, were faithful to God and did His work. These are the witnesses referred to. They witnessed for God in spite of hardship. Their example should inspire us to do the same. And when we turn from sacred history to secular biography and history and learn what noble men and women have endured and are enduring for Christ's sake on mission fields, what an inspiration it should be to us to endure hardship for Christ's sake.

2. The example of Christ should encourage us to endure hardship for His sake. "Looking unto Jesus * * * who endured the cross, despising the shame." "Consider Him that endured such contradiction of sinners against Himself lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds. Ye have not resisted unto blood striving against sin." In comparison to the hardships Christ endured ours are nothing. He had to resist sin unto death. We are not dying as martyrs today. Fidelity no longer means death. For our sakes Christ died. For Christ's sake we should be willing to meet bravely and cheerfully what hardships come to us.

3. The purpose and the result of hardship should encourage us to endure. In the hardships of life it is God as a father chastening us for our good. Why then should we rebel against God? Why should we become discouraged? "Let us not be weary in well doing." There is no crown without a cross.

In the Hour of Temptation.

To realize that He, who is our Creator, our daily guide and ruler, our tenderest friend, knows all things and means to use that knowledge for our good is full of comfort. It is a help in the hour of temptation. We are checked, when likely to yield, by the recollection that the divine eye is upon us and that all the consequences of our sin are foreseen by Him. It is a help in the day of trouble. It is consoling in some degree to be sure that God knows why we have been afflicted and how good can be made to result from our bitterest trials. Whatever knits us closer to our Heavenly Father is of present, permanent and the utmost benefit, and our consciousness that He is all knowing as truly as all loving helps to bind us fast to Him.—Congregationalist.

The Fatherhood of God.

The Fatherhood of God is only rightly understood by those who have been transformed by the Spirit. The mysteries of God's providence are read in clearer light. The greatness of His love grows more and more impressive. The thought of holiness becomes an aspiration. Sin shrinks from holiness, but love longs for it. The narrow way is not lonely nor gloomy nor thorny nor distressful. It is not devoid of beauty. It has sights and sounds which are rapturous to the eye and ear of him who has been transformed.—Independent.

The Reason Why.

The reason why we so little understand God and are so little able to appreciate His love is that we plan out our lives by our ignorance and doubt God if He does not help us carry out the plan. The best thing for us may not be what we want.—Catholic Universe.

Making It Sure.

He is making his own damnation sure if he is robbing his creditors and yet professing to be a Christian.—Episcopal Recorder.

Endeavor Truths.

Headstrong members make hand weak societies.

If you want others to work, don't wait for others to work.

The best follower of the Spirit is the best leader of a meeting.

Spell your society without the i and with a tie. Union versus egotism.

Your society has 12 associate members? Then it has 12 opportunities.

No movement, not even the Christian Endeavor movement, moves of itself.

Once in awhile a Christian Endeavor society dies of chills, but we never heard of any dying of fever.

RELIEVED OF HIS COMMAND.

Weyler Would Not Resign, So New Cabinet Superseded Him.

STATES REASON FOR HANGING ON.

Madrid, Oct. 9.—The cabinet has decided upon the immediate recall of General Weyler from Cuba. A decree will be issued appointing Captain General Blanco Y. Arenas, Marquis of Pena-Plata, governor general of the island. The queen regent signed the decree today.

Captain General Arenas, who will succeed Weyler, has had his chief administrative experience in the Philippines. He succeeded Captain General Despujol as governor general of the Philippines in 1894, and for his services in that capacity was raised to the rank of marshal in May, 1895. He has been described as the "softest hearted soldier in Spain," and his whole career indicates his disposition to employ mild rather than violent measures. Ever since the fall of the Azarraga cabinet his name has been the most prominent among the possible successors of General Weyler, and the impression in some well informed quarters has been that if appointed governor general of Cuba he would be empowered to approach the insurgents with a view of arriving at a mutual agreement for the cessation of hostilities.

Why He Wouldn't Resign.

Madrid, Oct. 9.—In the course of the cable message sent by Captain General Weyler to Premier Sagasta, placing his post in Cuba at the disposal of the government, he said: "If the functions with which the government had entrusted me had been merely those of governor general of Cuba I should have hastened to resign, but the two-fold character of my mission and my duty as commander-in-chief in the face of the enemy prevent my tendering a resignation. Nevertheless, although I can rely upon the absolute, unconditional support of the autonomist and constitutional parties, as well as upon public opinion, this would be insufficient without the confidence of the government, now more than ever necessary to me after the censure of which I have been made the object by the members and journals of the Liberal party, and by public opinion in the United States, which latter is largely influenced by the former. This confidence would be necessary to enable me to put an end to the war, which has already been virtually concluded from our lines at Jucaro to Cape San Antonio."

Mr. Sagasta replied: "I thank you for your explanation and value your frankness. I wish to assure you that the government recognizes your services and values them as they deserve; but it thinks a change of policy, in order to succeed, requires that the authorities should be as one with the ministry. This has nothing to do with the confidence felt in you by the government, for the Liberals have always said that the responsibility for a given policy does not fall upon those who carry it out, but upon the government inspiring it. I shall communicate your decision to the government shortly."

Always Obeyed Orders.

Havana, Oct. 9.—Yesterday General Weyler gave an emphatic and absolute denial of the reports that he would resist removal from his command in Cuba, and in certain contingencies might espouse the Carlist cause. He said, according to official account: "My principles and my military record are firm guarantees that I will never oppose the constituted government whatever it may be. I never have put obstacles in the way of government, and I never shall. I have always obeyed orders, and I always shall. So far as popular demonstrations go, I accept them only as expressions of approval of my military policy and as tokens of personal sympathy."

The merchants of the island, according to the official accounts, continue to send cable messages to Premier Sagasta, expressing their approval of General Weyler's campaign and their entire confidence in him.

The President Disappointed.

Washington, Oct. 9.—The president had hoped to secure a reply to his representations to Spain during the present month, but it was stated at the cabinet meeting yesterday that the Spanish cabinet crisis probably would cause delay in this matter. There was more or less speculation on the part of members as to what would be the temper and character of the reply when it should be received, and the opinion was general that the new ministry would manifest a desire to cultivate friendly relations with this country. The desire of the administration appeared to be to meet these advances if they are accompanied by a policy on the part of Spain towards Cuba that will hasten the close of the war in accordance with American ideas.

Investigating an Escape.

Havana, Oct. 9.—Mme. Ana Milan de Bendou, who was in charge of the place where Evangeline Cossio was confined, and in whose house in San Rafael street the police several months ago found trunks containing dynamite and cartridges, is one of the four employes who, with the jailor, have been arrested and confined pending the result of the inquiry being made into the circumstances of the escape.

Silver Question In England.

Manchester, Eng., Oct. 9.—The members of the royal exchange are memoralizing the government to carry out its pledges to do all possible to secure a stable par of exchange between gold and silver, and suggesting a compromise between the extreme views of both parties. Considerably over a thousand signatures have already been obtained to this memorial, including the names of several monometalists.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

Tariff Bill Not In Effect Until It Received President's Signature.

New York, Oct. 9.—Unless the courts reverse the decision of the board of general appraisers, importers whose goods were entered at the custom house on Saturday, July 24, before the signing of the tariff act, will be able to collect from the government the extra duties, amounting to perhaps $300,000, they were compelled to pay as a result of the government's claim that the tariff was retroactive and that it took effect on the earliest possible moment of the day on which it was signed. The board sustained the protest of the importers against the position taken by the government, and instructed collectors of customs to reliquidate the entries accordingly.

The opinion of the board was written by General Appraiser Somerville, formerly associate justice of the supreme court of Alabama. The specific case on which the decision was based was an importation of wool by Stoddard, Hazrick, Richards & Co. of Boston. The wool was entered for consumption during the forenoon of July 24, and permits of delivery from the collector and naval officer were at once placed in the hands of the importer stamped "Free" under the provisions of paragraph 685 of the tariff act of 1894, which placed on the free list all imported wool. The entries were afterward liquidated by the collector, so as to classify and assess the wool for duty under paragraph 357, schedule K, of the tariff act of July 24, 1897, which levied a duty of 11 cents per pound on importated wool of class one. Judge Somerville, after weighing the arguments of the importers and of the government, reached the following conclusion: First—That the tariff act of July 24, 1897, did not become operative as a law until six minutes after four o'clock p. m. of said day, when it was approved by the president.

Second—That it was not operative by relation on any previous hour of the day, but that the tariff act of Aug. 28, 1894, remained unrepealed and in full force until the precise moment when said act of July 24, 1897, was approved.

Third—That goods imported and entered for consumption in the forenoon of said July 24, 1897, at any hour prior to the time of approval of said act, would be governed as to classification and rates of duty by the act of 1894 and not of said act of 1897.

Reflection on Emperor William.

Munich, Oct. 9.—In the chamber of representatives a member interpellated the government regarding the recent army maneuvers, claiming that Emperor William of Germany wrongly assumed command of the Bavarian army and needlessly sacrificed lives in the cavalry attacks. The premier, Baron Von Crailsheim, and the minister for war, Baron Von Asch, denied most of the assertions made, but admitted there were a number of suicides during the maneuvers on account of the exhaustion of the troops.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, SATURDAY, OCT. 9.
Sun rises—5:51; sun sets, 5:12.
Length of day—11 h. 21 m.
High water—10:20 a. m.; 10:45 p. m.

Cigarette Selling.

It is alleged that a number of Quincy storekeepers are violating the law by selling cigarettes to boys under 16 years of age. Chief of Police Hayden is determined to put a stop to this business, if possible, and has declared open warfare against all parties who are violating the law. With that in view he summoned Edward Haverhan, who keeps a store on Willard street, into court upon three complaints for violating the law. Other cases will follow.

A Savage Blow.

William Bennett, the 20 year old son of Simon Bennett, had a narrow escape from a serious accident at Sonth Quincy just before noon today, which gave rise to the rumor that he had been killed.

He was at work with a gang of men moving the building of F. H. Crane & Son across Liberty street. Benne 's part was to tend the rope at the capstan. Work had stopped for a few moments, although there was a strain upon the rope, and a crowd of boys were jumping on the capstan stick and must have cracked it for a few moments later it broke. The end flying around struck Bennett a savage blow on the side of the head knocking him senseless, and it was feared that his skull had been fractured. He was taken to the residence of Chief Engineer Williams and a physician summoned.

Bennett soon regained consciousness and it was found that he was all right save for a slight cut on the side of his head.

Still Alarm.

The roof of the old stone shed in the rear of Sheppard & Son's yard on Granite street took fire this afternoon at 2 o'clock from sparks from Messrs. Sheppard's engine. A telephone call was sent to the Central fire station and the combination engine responded, but the fire had been extinguished before they arrived.

MR. FAXON'S CASE.

Was Summoned For Contempt of Court.

A Verbatim Report of the Proceedings at Salem.

His Action Highly Improper, Say the Judge on Case.

Mr. Henry H. Faxon realizes that he came very near getting into a bad scrape in sending the literature he did at the time he did to jurors impanelled on liquor cases.

The most objectionable documents were numerous lengthy printed slips purporting to give the ruling of Judge Carter, presiding justice of the Haverhill Police Court, upon "spotter evidence" under the caption of "Detective Testimony Defended by Judge Carter of the Haverhill Police Court." Special portions were emphasized by inclosure between the lines of the blue pencil. Some of these slips bore date of 1881-'86-'87.

It is mentioned as a rather singular coincidence that the jury, at the present sitting of the Superior Criminal court for Essex, had just taken up a series of liquor cases, sent up by Judge Carter himself, from the Haverhill Police Court, in which the main reliance is on "spotter evidence." It is not charged that Mr. Faxon knew of this, but it was thought rather remarkable that just at this time one of the jurors on the panel should receive in his mail this bundle of papers, with Mr. Henry H. Faxon's name legibly stamped on the outer wrapper.

The Journal reports the proceedings as follows:

"I well realize that a prosecuting officer is likely to be misunderstood in summoning or causing to be summoned anybody who is striving to stop the sale of intoxicating liquor. Yet temperate people are sometimes the most intemperate of people in the ways in which they set about to accomplish their ends; but were it to be known that a combination of liquor dealers had caused to be sent to the jurors engaged in the trial of cases against them, printed matter as this defendant has sent printed matter, urging the liability of spotters to err, and defending the illegal sale of intoxicating liquor, there would be no persons louder in their indignation than the same temperate people.

Mr. Faxon said:

"Your Honor, this is a matter which has been spread broadcast throughout the Commonwealth. These papers have been sent to Selectmen of towns, Mayors and Aldermen of cities in Massachusetts. Members of the Legislature in the State, Town Clerks in all towns, Judges and Clerks of all courts of this Commonwealth, to the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Sons of Temperance, lodges of Good Templars and to a large number of names upon the jury lists of Norfolk County and those on the lists compiled from the other counties all over the State, as well as those upon miscellaneous lists in and out of the State, and this is the first time that we have ever had any trouble.

"Your Honor, when these papers were mailed I did not know what there was in them. My secretary sent them, and she signed the business for me. I am satisfied that it was very conscientiously done, and she sent the matter which these papers contained. These papers I did not know were to be sent to the jury. She told me that she had sent them to this county. I acquiesced, as, in a great many matters I considered her judgment better than my own.

"As to influencing the jury, I had no intention of influencing any jury. In fact, some papers that I might have sent to some jurymen bearing my name upon them would have been treated by those jurors like a red rag by a mad bull. I do not know what was sent.

"I have always confided in my secretary. She is the most conscientious person I have ever employed. She has worked with me for 18 or 19 years, and this is the first time that there has been any trouble on account of it.

"I have issued these papers ever since I stood up in the Repubican State Convention and denounced the jury system. I don't suppose there is one bill that I have sent a check for that I did not enclose one of these papers in the envelope.

"If there is anything, if there is anybody to blame, Your Honor, I want to be that person myself," and Mr. Faxon smiled again but rather pensively.

"In conclusion I would say that I did not know that the Haverhill cases were coming up. I haven't been in my Boston office for the last two months, I think, not more than four hours all together.'

Judge Bond said:

"You say that you have been distributing papers to jurymen for the past 15 years and wish to leave it at that, do you?"

"Yes I have, Your Honor."

"Well, sir, if you have been doing this for 15 years I think it is time it was stopped. If the Judges of this court had found out what you were doing they would have stopped it then and there. You have no right to be tampering with a jury in this manner."

Mr. Faxon said that he had never intended to tamper with any jury. "I am very sorry it happened," said he, penitently. "I can assure the Court that it won't happen again."

Miss Brown, the Secretary, here made a statement, disclaiming any intention of infringing the spirit of the law.

Mr. White had nothing to say, but suggested that the lady might be discharged.

Judge Bond's conclusion was:

"If I believe what she says, I must believe that Mr. Faxon had no personal knowledge of the sending of these particular papers in this particular case," said Judge Bond. "I did infer from the statement of Mr. Neal (the officer) that this was a matter known to Mr. Faxon. I understand now that it was not. I am bound to find upon this question in the light of this testimony that Mr. Faxon did not actually personally send these papers to this parcular jury. I feel very sure that if any Justice of this Court had known of any papers of this character being sent, to jurors on the trial of criminal cases he would certainly have taken the matter in hand.

"I do not complain of Mr. Faxon's work, but I do complain of his approaching a jury in such a manner as this, and he has committed an offence of a most serious character, but as I understand you to say that you did not know of what was sent in this case, I doubt if the Court could convict of contempt on the evidence submitted. I want to say here that your action has been highly improper. No man who knows another to be a juryman ought to approach him in any way or to send papers to him regarding the trial of cases on which he may be engaged. As it does not appear that Mr. Faxon knew of this matter I am not inclined to impose a penalty upon him, and as no intent is shown on the part of Miss Brown, the parties are discharged under the complaint."

Mr. Faxon and Miss Brown left the court room very quickly.

Henry H. Faxon when seen this morning in regard to his arraignment, for contempt of court, at Salem, Friday, said that he was perfectly satisfied with the outcome. Everybody was pleasant and that the basting he got would not hurt anyone.

He had got some good points out of the affair which he should store up for future use, but he should not send any more published letters to jurors again.

The outcome was about as he expected, and he did not care for himself, but his secretary felt a little nervous. The circulars should have reached the jurors before they were impanelled and in this particular case he did not know they had been sent. It was his intention later when his eyesight was better to write a letter on some of the points brought out by the district attorney.

RATHER TOO SPORTY.

John Kelliher, aged 20 years, residing in Holbrook, was the victim of a brutal assault Friday morning. He was riding on the platform of an electric car in Braintree on his way to Quincy when the car met a barge load of Boston toughs on their way to Brockton. As the barge passed the car one of the gang threw a bottle at the car. It struck Kelliher on the head cutting a deep gash and rendering him insensible. He was taken to a physician's office where his wound was dressed, but the young man remained in a dazed condition all day. In the afternoon a telephone was sent to Quincy asking that the barge be stopped on its way back, and later the young man came to Quincy and saw the police.

While he was talking with the police the barge passed through town on its way to Boston. Agent McAloon of the street railway company, however, notified Station 11 at Field's corner and they held up the barge.

The offenders will probably be brought into court later.

☞The attendance at the Brockton fair yesterday was most as large as on Thursday, about 30,000 being present. Today is the closing day. Four better days for the grand fair could not have been selected.

HIGH VS. ADAMS.

Initial Match of Both Elevens Results in a Tie.

A close and exciting game of football was played at Merry Mount Park yesterday, between the High School and Adams Academy. Both teams played well and showed promise for the games to come.

Adams scored first on a touchdown by Kent who ran around the end for 10 yards. Manning missed the goal.

Then the High School kicked off and held Adams for four downs, thus securing possession of the ball. By good rushing it was advanced to the 20 yard line, when Briggs got around the end for a long run, and a touchdown. No goal. Score: High 4: Adams 4.

Adams kicked off and High fumbled, losing the ball. Adams rushed the ball hard, and had it on the High School's 10-yard line when half-time was called.

In the second half both teams went in to win, and played finely. High kicked off to Adams, who rushed the ball nearly to the middle of the field. Here the High School made a strong stand, and held them for four downs thus getting the ball. The friends of the High School were very enthusiastic. By good rushes the ball was advanced 25 yards when Briggs again got around the end and ran to the 10 yard line when he was tackled by Kent. This tackle saved a touchdown and the game. A fumble gave the ball to Adams and time was called with the ball in possession of Adams on her own 20 yard line.

The line up:

HIGH SCHOOL.	ADAMS
Barry, r.e.	l.e, Whitman
Pendis, r.t.	l.t., Manning

DR. EVERETT'S VOTE.

The Ledger Offers a Prize for the Nearest Estimate.

Quincy is honored by the selection of one of her citizens as a gubernatorial candidate, and there is interest as to the strength he will develop in his own city. No one predicts that Dr. Everett will be elected, but as the chances of Governor Wolcott will not be endangered it is probable that the doctor will receive a large complimentary vote.

All the Ledger readers cannot vote at the polls on election day, but the Ledger knows no sex, age or condition, and asks everybody to vote by the use of the blank which will be found on this page. What will be the vote of William Everett in Quincy on November 2? A prize of $5 is hereby offered by the Ledger for the nearest estimate of the Quincy vote.

In case of a tie on the Quincy vote, the estimate on the State vote of those thus tied will be considered in reaching the decision. It is therefore important that a close estimate of both the city and state vote for Dr. Everett be made.

Last year Frederick O. Prince of Boston, who run as the National Democratic candidate, received but 111 votes in Quincy and 14,164 in the state.

Short letters of from 100 to 200 words with reasons for or against a vote for Dr. Everett will be welcomed and will be published when space permits.

The polls will close at 4 P.M. on Saturday, Oct. 30. Direct all estimates to

The comedies selected for the production at the Castle Square Theatre in recent weeks have proved so popular with the patrons, that the selections made by Director Tony Cummings for the near future cannot fail to find keen appreciation from the vast public that gives the Castle Square amusement enterprise such a staunch support. A constant effort is made by the Castle Square management to present the strongest and best attractions of the modern stage and neither care or expense is spared to make the productions at this theatre worthy the reputation gained by the splendid stock company associated with it. For the coming week it is announced the attraction will be the clever comedy romance, by A. W. Pinero, "The Amazons," which created such a sensation throughout the country two seasons ago. Some elaborate scenic effects are being planned for this production by Messrs. Ansel Cook and B. W. Craig. "The Amazos" is announced for only a ingle week.

SLADE AND PARKER.

The Slate for Democratic Candidates for Legislature Smashed.

The fifth Norfolk Democratic Representative convention was held Friday evening at the ward room at City Hall, the result being somewhat of a surprise all around, as two new men were nominated in place of the old ticket.

William B. Orcutt called the convention to order and was elected chairman with George D. Cahill as secretary.

Messrs. Sampson, Cain and McKenna, the committee on credentials, reported all delegates present.

The temporary organization was made permanent.

Fred F. Green doubted whether it was wise to nominate more than one candidate. With two in the field it was impossible to elect either, but with one it was possible to elect that one.

P. J. O'Neil and others objected.

Mr. Roche of Wollaston then dropped a bombshell by moving the nomination of W. N. Eaton and James H. Slade.

This motion was so sudden that it almost took away the delegates' breath.

Mr. Green objected. He did not want to nominate anyone unless it was known they would stand.

Mr. Sampson also objected. He had one experience with Mr. Eaton at the Senatorial convention last year. It was useless to nominate unless it was known they would stand. He moved that an informal ballet be taken.

Mr. Roche said that Mr. Eaton had told him that he would stand if his name was brought before the convention.

Mr. Twitchell thought it useless to take an informal ballot as Mr. Eaton had told a delegate he would stand. The motion to take an informal ballot was lost by a vote of 7 to 6.

Mr. Sampson asked if anyone could speak for Mr. Slade.

Mr. Green asked if the convention was not obliged to ballot.

Chairman Orcutt replied no.

Mr. Kelley thought it a good idea to telephone Mr. Eaton.

A motion was made by W. T. Shea to lay the Roche motion on the table that Mr. Eaton might be interviewed by telephone.

Mr. Roche again repeated that Mr. Eaton had informed him that he would stand for Representative or Mayor as the delegates wanted.

The motion to lay on the table was carried and Messrs. Shea and Roche were appointed a committee to telephone to Mr. Eaton.

This committee reported that Mr. Eaton desired to withdraw his name although he had said he wonld stand.

The motion of Mr. Roche was then taken from the table and withdrawn.

It was voted to take an informal ballot, Messrs. Green and Welsh being appointed to receive and count them.

The result of the informal ballot was as follows:

James H. Slade had	12
S. B. Little	6
W. B. Orcutt	4
Fred F. Green	3
M. B. Geary	2
Scattering	5

It was then voted to take a formal ballot.

Chairman Orcutt and Mr. Green announced that they should decline.

The result of the formal ballot was as follows:

Whole number of votes,	66
Necessary for choice,	9
James H. Slade had	15
S. B. Little	8
Fred F. Green	5
E. J. Parker	2
Scattering	2

James H. Slade was then declared a nominee.

Whole number of votes,	66
Necessary for choice,	9
E. J. Parker had	10
S. B. Little	5
F. F. Green	1

E. J. Parker was declared nominated.

Mr. Kelley was appointed a committee to wait upon Mr. Parker to see if he would stand.

He retired, and upon his return reported Mr. Parker could not be found.

The officers of the convention were impowered to fill vacancies and the convention at 9.30 adjourned.

This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

NEW YORK SENSATION

Compact Between Supporters of Mr. George and Mr. Low.

Nominations For Various Offices Basis of the Deal.

New York, Oct. 9.—The most sensational event of the campaign was the meeting of the Henry George campaign committee in conference with a number of the representatives of the organizations which are supporting Mr. George. The campaign committee exploded a bomb when it made the following announcement: The Citizens' union county ticket in New York county, the McLaughlin county ticket in Kings county, the Mullen Democratic ticket in Richmond and the Madden ticket in Queens will all be endorsed.

The Henry George men started in to name a city ticket of their own, and by 11 o'clock Charles Frederick Adams for president of the council was the only man chosen. It is understood that he will withdraw as a candidate for court of appeals against Judge Alton B. Parker, the regular Democratic candidate. What the effect will be is hard to forecast, but last night it looked as if it would demoralize the organization supporting Mr. George. The united Democracy, which first nominated George, through its leaders, declared it was done with the George movement. Secretary Stever of the Democratic alliance said his organization will knife George if the ticket selected is forced on it. The Populists seem to take the same view.

Later it was said that Charles Frederick Adams had not been chosen for president of the council, although he probably will be. It developed and was admitted by Citizens' union leaders and the Georgeites that there was a deal on between the two. The Citizens' union was circulating petitions with the rooster, or George emblem, at the top to get the George ticket on the ballot. In return for this the George managers endorsed the citizens' ticket in this county.

The members of the campaign committee, in explanation of their action in making the endorsements mentioned, say that they do not fear the threatened defection of the united Democracy headed by James O'Brien and the alliance. The united Democracy, they say, has been dealing with Tammany for several days and they are glad to get rid of it. They say the alliance will eventually fall into line; but whether it does or not they profess not to care, saying the George movement is now so deeply rooted that no organization can hurt it. Had this alliance and united Democracy been able to agree on a ticket the action of the campaign committee might have been very different. It says the fighting leaders left no other course open.

"They are angry just now," said Mr. Adams, "but every man who was sincere in his support of Mr. George will come back and support him loyally. We have done what is best for the election of Mr. George. It would have been a good thing if we could elect a full ticket, but the election of Mr. George means much for the ideas we represent. It is unquestionable wisdom to sacrifice the other offices to elect George."

May Support Mr. Low.

New York, Oct. 9.—In an interview last night, Editor Ottenderfor of the Staats Zeitung announced that he would probably support Seth Low for mayor. At the conclusion of the interview he said: "As to the Henry George movement, I think it will have a tendency to clear up the confusion existing in the Democratic ranks. The 'gold' and 'silver' people can never pull together. Henry George's candidacy will mark the line of separation between these elements."

Confidence In Tammany.

New York, Oct. 9.—Edward B. Talcott offered to bet $5000 even that Tammany's candidate for mayor, Judge Van Wyck, will be elected providing Low, Tracey and George remain in the field. His offer was not accepted.

Mr. Sewall on Prosperity.

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—Arthur M. Sewall of Maine, who was associated with W. J. Bryan on the presidential ticket last fall, arrived in this city Friday, accompanied by his wife. When spoken to on the claim that there is a condition of increased prosperity, Mr. Sewall said: "There is certainly more business being done this year than last, but I do not attribute it to politics. I imagine the condition of the crops in Europe would have been the same if Bryan had been elected. The increased business is certainly due to the condition of affairs abroad, and I am glad to see it. It is part of my business here to see if we cannot increase the number and tonnage of our vessels."

While disinclined to talk on the mayoralty contest in New York, Mr. Sewall said: "It is no fight of mine, and I have no doubt it will come out all right. If Van Wyck is elected it will make the national situation more complicated, but if George is the successful candidate it means Bryan's nomination for the presidency."

Grand Larceny Alleged.

Boston, Oct. 9.—Upon a telegraphic request from Chief of Detectives McCloskey of New York, Boston officers last night arrested James Rice, who is said to be a prominent citizen of Denver, Colo., on a charge of grand larceny, it being claimed that he is a fugitive from justice. Mr. Rice refuses to talk about the case, except to say that it is a case of malicious prosecution, and he proposes to make a legal fight against extradition.

Clothing Caught In a Pulley.

Middletown, Conn., Oct. 9.—Joseph Kelley, aged 16, was terribly injured at the factory of the Keating Wheel company Friday afternoon. While adjusting a belt his clothing was caught in a pulley. He was wound about a shafting and hurled 10 feet against a wall. He was picked up unconscious and it was found that one leg was broken in two places and he sustained frightful injuries about the head and body.

STATE OF TRADE.

Bradstreet's Reports Bank Clearings Among the Heaviest on Record.

New York, Oct. 9.—Bradstreet's report on the state of trade says: Distribution of general merchandise in the central west and northwest is further checked owing to the prolonged drought in Kentucky, Illinois, Kansas, portions of Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota and the Dakotas. Telegraphic advices report serious damage in Kansas and parts of Nebraska and Iowa, where early planted wheat is up, but dying out. Six weeks without rain have dried up pastures and compelled farmers to feed stock. Manufacturing industries throughout the central west, particularly iron and steel, continue active. There is a moderate improvement in business in the south.

Higher prices this week are reported for cotton which had been declining for some time; coal and clothing in sympathy with wool for naval stores, under heavy purchases by large traders, wheat, wheat flour and eggs. Butter and potatoes have declined again, as have print cloths, lard, beef and sugar. Hides are weaker, lead is lower and bessemer pig iron has sold off 50 cents a ton under heavy speculative offerings, notwithstanding that the iron and steel markets as a whole remain active and firm.

There were 237 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 189 last week, 291 a year ago, 274 two years ago, 238 three years ago and 406 in 1893.

Gross railway earnings for September are very satisfactory. The total receipts of 64 of the leading systems aggregate $39,261,000, a gain over September a year ago of nearly 14 per cent. Three-fourths of the roads reporting show gains. Net earnings for August are also very good, total gross earnings of 51 companies aggregating $51,336,000 and net $18,416,000, an increase of nearly 13 per cent in gross and of over 22 per cent in net.

Bank clearings throughout the United States this week are among the heaviest on record, aggregating $1,399,000,000, a gain of 14.8 per cent over last week, of 32 per cent over last year, 22 per cent over 1895, 50 per cent over 1894 and of 55 per cent over 1893, which marked approximately low water in bank clearings. Compared with the week in 1892, a year of very large business, there is a gain shown of over 7 per cent.

A HOLLAND FIEND

Confesses to the Killing of Parents, Wives and Children.

Rotterdam, Oct. 9.—A man named Gustave Muller has surrendered to the city police, confessing the murder of his wife and child. As proof of the truth of his confession he produced from his pocket four human ears. The police, on approaching his house, found the two bodies.

Muller subsequently confessed that he had killed his parents, mutilating their remains in the same fashion, and then made the astonishing statement that he had similarly disposed of 14 wives, whom he had married in various parts of the world.

Three of the Crew Died.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Oct. 9.—From particulars obtained by an Associated Press representative, the illness on the British steamer Honiton, Captain Hudson, in whose arrival at quarantine in Boston harbor great interest is felt because it has been suspected that she has yellow fever on board, has been more serious than was known, three of her crew having died, the last one being the messroom steward, whose body was buried at sea just before the vessel reached Vineyard Sound. The three victims were: Hank Gullison, seaman; William Laidler, chief engineer; Charles Read, steward.

It appears that Gullison, seaman, was ailing the day the steamer left Progresso, but the port physician there pronounced it malaria. He became worse, failed rapidly and died Sept. 30. Chief Engineer Laidler, who belonged in Sunderland, Eng., was next taken ill and five days later he died. Charles Reed of Liverpool, Eng., who was sick while the steamer was at Hampton roads, died of the same disease and his body was lowered into the sea when the ship was only a short distance from Vineyard Sound. It was learned from the steamer that the captain and steward were not feeling well, but that they were not seriously ill.

Former Senator Dead.

New York, Oct. 9.—Former United States Senator John R. McPherson of New Jersey died at Taylor's hotel in Jersey City last night. He had been ill for several days with a complication of diseases, originating with bowel complaint. Senator McPherson has been living at the hotel since Sept. 1. His wife and family are in Washington.

Ex-Senator McPherson was born at York, Livingston county, New York, May 9, 1833. He was for a time engaged in farming and stock raising. He became a resident of Jersey City in 1858. In 1871 he was elected to the New Jersey senate by an unusually large majority and served for three years. In 1876 he was a presidential elector. In 1877 he was elected United States senator to succeed Hon. F. P. Frelinghuysen. He was elected to a second term in 1885 and to a third term in 1889.

Total Abstinence Union.

Turner's Falls, Mass., Oct. 9.—The 21st annual convention of the Springfield Diocesan Total Abstinence union was held here yesterday. It was preceded by high mass, and the annual sermon was delivered by Rev. T. J. Fitzgerald of Uxbridge. It took three ballots to decide the place for holding the next field day, and Pittsfield was finally decided on.

The following officers were elected: Spiritual director, Bishop Beaven of Springfield; president, Rev. Daniel F. McGillicuddy of Worcester; first vice president, Charles F. Borden, North Adams; second vice president, Miss Minnie E. A. Tarrell, Worcester; corresponding and financial secretary, John J. Leonard, Springfield; recording secretary, W. J. Larkin, Worcester; treasurer, John P. McKoan, Worcester.

Again on Strike.

Hazleton, Pa., Oct. 9.—The Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company's breaker employes are again on strike. When they found they had been granted less than what they claimed they were promised at the time of the settlement of the strike, they refused to work and said that if the officials offer no satisfactory explanation or give no advance, the 2500 men of this company who were out during the late difficulty will again be idle.

Klobedanz Responsible For Defeat In Springfield.

Knockout In an English Fight In Fifty-One Seconds.

Team Record For Pacers Lowered In New York.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 9.—Three thousand people saw the champions and ex-champions of the National league play an exhibition game at Hampden park yesterday afternoon, which resulted in an easily won victory for Baltimore. Klobedanz's poor work in the third inning was largely responsible for Boston's defeat. He was wild and was batted hard when he managed to get them over. For an exhibition game it was well played and full of snap and ginger, although none of the players exerted himself at any time.

Boston took the lead in the first inning, when hits by Hamilton and Duffy, an error by Reitz and remarkable base running by Hamilton and Lowe gave them two runs. Baltimore sandwiched a couple of hits with as many bases on balls in the second inning and tied the score. In the third Kelley started off with a double. Stenzel, Doyle and Reitz followed with singles, scoring Kelley and Stenzel. Doyle was thrown out at the plate on Clarke's bunt hit. Amole scratched a hit which filled the bases. Klobedanz hit McGraw and gave O'Brien his base, forcing in two more runs, and another scored on Jennings' short hit before the side could be retired. That gave the orioles five runs and the game. Stivetts went in for three innings, and was then succeeded by Sullivan, both of them doing well.

Amole shut the Bostons out with two hits and no runs for six consecutive innings, but in the eighth they found him for four hits and as many runs. When Doyle first came to the bat he was presented with a handsome watch with chain and charm by his fellow townsmen from Holyoke, ex-Senator Buckley making the presentation. Score:

Glen Falls, N. Y., Oct. 9.—At the mile track of the Northern Horse Breeders' association Friday, John R. Gentry and Robert J broke the pacing team record, going the mile in faultless style in 2:08. This was done after the pair had been sent a mile in 2:11, and before the close of the day's sport Gentry with a running mate paced a mile in 2:03 3-4.

Robert J was given a warming up heat in 2:12 and Gentry was sent a mile in 2:09 1-2, after the first heat of the 2:18 trotting and pacing class had been run off. After the second heat of this event the two great pacers were in readiness for their effort against the world's record of 2:09 for a team. After a short spin they faced the wire and received the word. They turned the first quarter in 32 seconds, and at the half 1:04 3-4 was hung out; the three-quarters was turned off in 1:37 1-4, and the mile in 2:11. This, of course, was a disappointment.

On the second trial they got away on the third score, Robert J having broken on the first turn in the two first attempts, and they settled down to work in a manner that made everybody feel that the record would go. The first quarter was a repetition of the first trial in 32 seconds, but the half was a quarter of a second slower. Strangely enough they reached the three-quarter pole in 1:37 1-4 again. As they straightened out for home Driver Bowne shook them up a bit, and they came down the stretch in a tremendous burst of speed, passing under the wire in the marvelous time of 30 3-4 for the last quarter and making the mile in 2:08. The crowd went wild with enthusiasm.

Shortly afterwards Gentry came out for his trial with a running mate to break the track record of 2:01 1-2 made by himself in 1896. He went the distance in 2:03 3-4, finishing fresh, which, considering the work he had done previous to this, was a great performance.

Robert J was then sent along. He turned the first quarter in 30 seconds, the half in 1:00, the three-quarters in 1:33 and the mile in 2:04 3-4. The wind interfered greatly in the trials, and but for this the record would have undoubtedly gone much lower.

Prize Winners at Golf.

New York, Oct. 9.—The semi-finals and finals for the St. Andrews cup and the Holbrook consolation trophy were played yesterday over the links of the St. Andrews Golf club. After six rounds, in which the playing of the men varied from amateurish weakness to brilliancy worthy of professionals, Kinlay F. Douglass, the young Scotchman who represents the Fairfield County Golf club, won the St. Andrews cup and W. T. Gray of St. Andrews won the Holbrook trophy.

Whist Enthusiasts Meet.

Boston, Oct. 9.—One hundred and twelve whist players attended the first session of the New England Whist association's fall meeting yesterday afternoon and evening at the American House. The contests were highly interesting. The chief event was the playing for the American whist trophy by teams of eight men each. Seven teams entered. They represented the Pyramid, Boston Duplicate, Mount Bowdoin and Howell Whist clubs of this city; the Newton club, the Oxford club of Lynn and the Providence Athletic association. The Pyramid eight made the best showing in the fight. They played four matches and won them all. Today they have two more matches. The schedule of play for the teams was one invented by Walter H. Barney of Providence.

In the evening, simultaneous with the teams of eight matches, the first preliminary round in the pairs contest occurred. There were 32 pairs, and play was by the Howell method. Messrs. Clark and Manning of the Boston Duplicate Whist club and Bouve and Fenelosa of the American Whist club qualified to enter the finals for pairs, which will be played tonight.

Canadian Law on Boxing.

Buffalo, Oct. 9.—It is not probable that the McCoy-Creedon fight or any other finish fight will be brought off at Fort Erie, or in any other section of Canada. For some time New Yorkers have been endeavoring to secure in Montreal letters patent for the formation of the Canadian Athletic association, its object being to give exhibitions of an athletic character, including boxing. Such letters were issued last week by the lieutenant governor, but before signing the papers the clause relative to boxing exhibitions was stricken out, and any attempt to bring off a fight under this charter will be severely punished. There is a clause in the Canadian laws permitting glove contests, but officers of the law are always present at such affairs and stop the exhibition when the slightest brutality is shown.

Union of Peabody Won.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 9.—The closing feature and principal event in connection with the firemen's demonstration yesterday was the muster and playout of handtubs for prizes of $300, $150, $100 and $50, respectively. The prize winners, together with the records made by the various contestants, are: Union of Peabody, 206 feet 9 3-8 inches; Eagles of Lynn, 198 feet 11⅞ inches; City of Lynn of Lynn, 198 feet 11⅝ inches; Okomakammesit of Marblehead, 198 feet 3¼ inches; Tiger of Newburyport, 197 feet 8¼ inches; Torrent of Peabody, 194 feet 5 inches; White Angel of Salem, 191 feet ¾ inches; M. A. Pickett of Marblehead, 180 feet 8¾ inches; Atlantic of Swampscott, 176 feet 1¾ inches; Gerry of Marblehead, 168 feet 9⅞ inches.

In Half a Round.

Bowlers Form a League.

Meriden, Conn., Oct. 9.—A meeting for the purpose of forming a state bowling league was held here last night with representatives from Hartford, New Haven, Wallingford and this city in attendance. A four club league was formed.

Domestic Was a Thief.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 9.—Mary Hochmeister, a domestic, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of larceny, and two trunks, about to be shipped to New York, were held and examined. They were found to contain silverware, diamond pins, studs, cuff buttons and expensive ladies' apparel, the property of Mrs. E. M. Grant at "Boothden," the villa of the late Edwin Booth, where the prisoner had worked. Other laces, silks, valuable silverware and gold and silver trinkets were found. Upon investigation these were discovered to be the property of Mrs. Clement C. Moore of New York, who had occupied the Cook cottage, at which Mary Hochmeister had been employed before being engaged by Mrs. Grant.

When the prisoner was confronted with the stolen material she broke down and admitted that her peculations had covered the entire period of her employment with Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Grant. She also admitted that there were four trunks in storage in New York that contained stolen property.

An Apparent Deficit.

Steuben, Me., Oct. 9.—A report made by the new tax collector of this town concerning what appears to be crookedness in the accounts of his predecessor, the late Henry C. Baker, has caused a great sensation here.

According to appearances, Mr. Baker was a defaulter to the amount of $800, and investigation may show that it is a great deal more than that amount. The shortage covers a period of several years.

The selectmen are trying to straighten out matters to the satisfaction of the people, and have brought suit against the estate of Mr. Baker. It is said that Mr. Baker's property is not of sufficient value to cover the shortage, but no action has been taken to recover from his bondsman, S. R. Dutton.

Rock Bottom Price.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 9.—The print cloth market the past week has been stronger in the quantity of goods disposed of, though the price has been a rockbottom one. The production has been normal, 230,000 pieces, and the stock on hand has been decreased 147,000 pieces, the sales being 377,000 pieces. About two-thirds of this quantity have been regulars and the balance odds, the deliveries extending some time into the future. The market has been generally quiet and steady at 2 1-2 cents.

Progress of the Fever.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Surgeon General Wyman's advices last night include the following: At New Orleans, 46 cases and four deaths; at Mobile, six cases and no deaths; at Edwards, Miss., 13 new cases, four deaths; at Nittayuma, one new case; at Biloxi, Miss., 11 new cases and one death.

WHIRL OF THE WHEEL.

Bicycle Guarantees to Be Reduced to Sixty Days.

HOW CORDANG TOOK ADVICE.

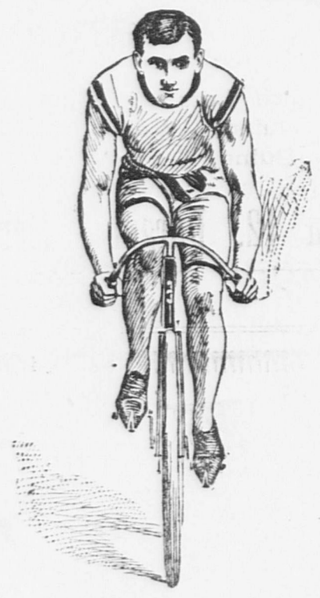
Bicycle guarantees next year will be for 60 days only. This is the decision of the national cycle board of trade. Formerly the guarantee on bicycles was for a year, but this season the time was reduced to six months, although some of the makers continued to give the old guarantee. The abuse of the guarantee resulted in the latest action, as the makers had learned that more than half of the accidents to wheels were due to carelessness on the part of the riders themselves. The manufacturers of wheels hold that in few lines are guarantees given and insist that it is unfair to expect such a thing when buying bicycles.

Tiremakers have started a systematic movement to secure a standard for rim construction. Tiremakers are repeatedly called upon to replace tires that have been almost or entirely ruined by chafing upon a rim that has been made upon too small a circle. The rider whose tire collapses from this cause is almost certain to seek redress from the tiremaker and gets as an answer usually the statement that the tire was not properly cemented to the rim. A free repair of the injury is the most that the tire men will concede to the rider generally, and the repair that is made frequently proves but temporary. Nine times out of ten the tire is blamed for the trouble when the fault lies really in the construction of the rim. There is considerable difference between the rims turned out by the different factories, and it is easy to see that when the tires are made of standard sizes they will not fit all rims equally well. If the rim be too small in section, the tire will eventually wear out from contact with its sharp edges, no matter how much cement may be used, and if the rim be too large in section, a far less common defect, the tire is apt to roll out from the rim.

When Maurice Cordang recently raced with Constant Huret and Jules Rivierre in Paris and destroyed his chances by a fall early in the race, he challenged Huret to a match race. Huret told the "fast flying Dutchman" to "go and get a reputation." Cordang apparently liked the advice. He forsook sunny France and its effervescent riders. He went to England, where he was welcomed as a sportsman. He became acclimated readily and in exactly one month from the day Huret gave him the patronizing piece of advice he rode 616 miles and 340 yards in 24 hours. Cordang is a native of Holland. He is 23 years old and nearly 6 feet tall. He possesses a magnificent physique and is said to have indomitable pluck. He must have to ride for 24 hours at nearly a 2:24 clip for each mile.



MAURICE CORDANG.

Military cycling is held in force by the United States army officials. The official report states that the bicycle has a number of advantages over the horse—it does not require as much care, it needs no forage, it moves much faster over fair roads, it is not as conspicuous and can be hidden from view more easily, it is noiseless and raises but little dust, and it is impossible to determine direction from its track. Furthermore, the fighting strength of a bicycle corps is not diminished by "horse holders." Under favorable conditions the bicycle is invaluable for courier work, scouting duty, road patrolling, rapid reconnoissance, etc. A bicycle corps as an adjunct to infantry or cavalry could render excellent service where speed rather than number is required, such as taking possession of passes, bridges and strong places ahead of the command and holding them until re-enforcements could be got from the main road. On the other hand, in rainy weather, over bad roads, etc., the horse is superior.

A penny-in-the-slot machine to inflate flabby tires is among the latest bicycle inventions. The machine consists of a large reservoir of compressed air which may be stationed in a bicycle store or on a street corner. A pipe leads from this through a series of valves for reducing the pressure and through a mechanism that requires a penny dropped in the slot to operate. Drop a copper cent in the slot, and the check is thrown off. Then connect the dangling hose to the valve of your tire, press a button, and the air will gurgle into the tire. When it is hard enough, take your finger off the button, disconnect your hose pipe, mount and ride away on hard tires, and all for a cent. The valves regulate the pressure, so there is no danger of bursting your tires, whatever the air pressure in the cylinder.

New York is to have a cycle show. It will be held under the auspices of the Sportsmen's association and will be known as the annual sportsmen's exposition and cycle show, Jan. 13 to 22, at Madison Square Garden. This action of the Sportsmen's association is in deference to the expressed wish of fully two-thirds of the cycle trade, representing makers and dealers. It is not proposed to antagonize any person or organization, simply to meet what is said to be a general demand.

VETERAN GOLFERS BEST.

Champion Whigham Has Swung the Clubs Since Infancy.

It takes long time and patient and persistent practice to learn good golf. There is little chance for the eleventh hour enthusiasts. H. J. Whigham, the amateur golf champion of America, has played the game ever since he was 6 years old. In the recent contest at Chicago he showed the effects of his long training, and honors generally went to the veterans. The few instances in which new players made good records were looked upon as accidents.

H. J. WHIGHAM.

Football Evolution.

A few years ago football was simply a succession of individual plays and the team which had the best individual players was the better. The game was one succession of open running plays in which one man secured the ball and ran without any assistance whatever from his fellows, with the simple aim to outrun his opponents. It became at last, as the opposing team grew more and more expert in stopping such plays, impossible, or nearly so, to make ground in that way, and the attacking teams began to think of devising means of assisting the runner as he ran and avoid if possible their habitual standing around doing nothing, or worse than nothing, while the play was being made. Of course, the idea suggested itself that by running with the man carrying the ball some opposing player could be blocked off and the run continued much longer without interruption. The plan was tried and worked to a charm, and the backs, who did not receive the ball, were coached to precede the runner and prevent any of the opposing team as long as they could do so from reaching him. An interference, as it came to be known, of three or four men running before the ball thus enabled the teams which could perfect this system to make long advances, and the teams practicing it were remarkably successful.

Croquet Golf.

English society has developed a new game called croquet golf. It is played on an ordinary lawn tennis court. Six hoops of peculiar shape are set three on either side, with three flag posts down the center. In play light mallets are used, and balls about midway between golf and croquet balls in size. The object of the game is to pass each hoop, cross the inner white line, and strike each flag post, with the fewest possible strokes. Each time the ball goes over the outer line it costs a stroke or more to bring it back. On a really good ground with skilled players it may be done in 18 to 20 strokes, but with less adept performers errors of judgment in play may raise the score to twice or thrice that figure. It may be played in sides, by partners or "all against all," and provision is made for handicapping a weak player. Croquet has become scientific and serious even so tediousness and lawn tennis is far too violent exercise for all but the most enthusiastic. It is claimed for the new game that it is brisker and more energetic than the former and does not involve the flannels and the exertion of the latter, while it shows off pretty gowns to advantage, promotes friendliness and even flirtation, and keeps people moving, all of which things the wise hostess regards as important.

Lower Entry Fees.

New England horsemen are making a systematic effort to secure lower entry fees for races. When it is remembered that a horse racing on a 10 per cent entrance is paying 20 per cent in fact for what he is likely to win, the inequitable nature of the big entrance fee appears as a merely business proposition. The most that can be won is half the purse, and there is no such assurance of getting it that a careful investor would be warranted as a business venture in risking a 20 per cent margin on the chances of the trade. It may be urged that trotting is a sport; it is so perhaps, but mainly for the spectators, somewhat so for the horsemen, but the latter have too much of an expense on their hands under present racing conditions not to feel it necessary to consider the question of entrance money, at least as a factor in their plans. It has become necessary nowadays to come to a 5 per cent basis to secure the very best horses, and it is they only who can draw a crowd, if racing only is offered.

Dangers of the Channel.

Recently an attempt was made by a crew of Etonians to cross the English channel from Dover in a four oared coast regatta built galley. The boat was accompanied by a tug. After the crew had been pulling for an hour the weather began to look threatening and the sea to roll. One of the oarsmen became prostrated and several changes were necessary. Another start was made, but the sea grew rougher, and in the end the galley was swamped and the crew with difficulty rescued.

Starting Machines.

The starting machine was supposedly adopted to do away with running starts, and if possible each horse should have his head against the webbing and be standing like a foot runner on the mark ready for the word. But at Harlem in many instances boys are allowed to come up running, and often the flag falls with a horse entirely on his stride while the others are standing still. Such irregularities are severely criticised.

LIMITED RACING.

A Protest Against the Gambling Spirit Shown on the Turf.

"Racing should be limited." This expression of Milton Young, the noted Kentucky turfman, has stirred up no end of discussion. Those who agree with the opinion of Mr. Young maintain that public sentiment in this country can never be educated up to the point of conceding that continuous racing is a good thing for public morals, is a good thing for individuals or is a good thing for the horse; hence it follows that in those states where continuous racing exists those who oppose it will advocate radical measures. As those who oppose continuous racing are in the majority, they will in every case win their point by virtually killing all racing by the adoption of remedial measures. This course has already been pursued in a number of states and will be followed by others where there is continuous racing just as fast as the people can express their sovereign will at the polls. It is proposed to limit the number of days of racing on each track in each state to 15, and extremists advocate as small a limit as seven. If such a limit should prove objectionable, then each community where a track exists should be allowed to vote as to whether or not a license should be granted to said track, under certain conditions, of course. Some such method would reduce present evils to a minimum and keep the sport in a healthy condition. To keep racing in a healthy condition should be the aim of all horsemen. Racing should not be made a business, but a sport, the ulterior object being the improving of the breed of the horse. Because we have allowed ourselves to drift away from that object is one reason why racing has become unpopular among certain classes of citizens. Convince the moral sense of the community that the sole object of racing is not to indulge in a passion for gambling, and in time we shall be able to revive the sport with certain pool privileges in such states as now by statute forbid betting.

POPULAR SAILBOATS.

The Knockabout Cock Robin Retains Her Old Laurels.

It is popularly supposed that it takes a fortune to keep up any sort of water craft. The knockabout, however, is neither expensive to build nor ruinous to maintain, and this style of boat is growing in favor among practical amateur seamen. Cock Robin, the champion of last year, was again a winner in a recent contest off Marblehead, Mass.

Dories have also become quite popular. The Riverside Yacht club, in New York, will have several special races among this style of craft next season. These boats are to be 13 feet on the keel and 17 feet over all. They will be 4 feet wide, fitted for a centerboard and rigged with a leg of mutton mainsail and a small jib. The dories, complete, will not cost more than $50 each. Every boat is to be painted white and named after some salt water fish, the names to be drawn for by members of the club.

It is said that certain Wall street men are furnishing backing for Peter Jackson in any fights he may have here. Peter is very anxious to meet Jim Corbett again, but says Bob Fitzsimmons would be very welcome.

DESTRUCTIVE FLAMES.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 8.—Drought and forest fires are doing great damage in Arkansas, and the situation grows worse daily. Thousands of dollars worth of valuable timber and other property has been burned, and stock in nearly all sections of the state is suffering from the scarcity of water; in some places there is not even drinking water for the people. No general rain has fallen for over 60 days, and in some localities the drought is of even longer duration.

The forests being as dry as tinder and the ground covered with dry leaves, from all sections reports of disastrous fires are being received. Miles of fence have been destroyed, saw mills burned and cabins gutted. In some instances the flames have been communicated to large fields of open cotton, which was destroyed. In hundreds of localities wells and springs have entirely dried up, and residents are hauling water in barrels from the nearest streams, which in some sections are 20 miles distant. Nearly all late vegetables have been parched in the fields. The people, in many localities, are holding meetings and praying for rain.

In Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 8.—Ten or 12 persons are reported to have been burned to death. Settlers have been fighting the flames night and day for over a week, trying to keep them from getting into the more thickly populated districts, hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of timber has been destroyed, and considerable grain as well as some farm buildings. Up to this time the fire has been confined to the Canadian side of the boundary, but the swath line between the United States and Manitoba has been obliterated and great fears are entertained that the fires will get beyond the control of the settlers.

The flames are driving hundreds of wolves and coyotes into the open country, and large flocks of geese and ducks have been flying over the burning forests. East of Whitemouth the situation is very critical. The section foreman at Darwin and his wife and men were picked up by a freight train and brought into Whitemouth. Roadmaster Horner, on a handcar, attempted to run from Darwin with his men, but nearly all succumbed through suffocation, and were compelled to take refuge in a passing freight. All the telegraph poles for several miles east of the town are down and trains are tied up.

Case of a Bogus Check.

New York, Oct. 8.—The police have in custody a prisoner named Emmet B. Gibson; he is of middle age and bears the alias of George A. Sherin. He claims that he is a lawyer by profession, a railroad promoter by choice, was at one time a judge in the state of Ohio, and he is a director of the Akron, O., Street Railroad company, of which he was at one time president.

Up to a few days ago he occupied a room in the Mills building, but a padlock is on his door, and Ogden Mills declares that even if he should pay his rent he would not be permitted to enter the building.

The complainant against him is H. P. Stinson, auditor for the Hotel Netherland and Imperial hotel of this city, and Hotel Walton of Philadelphia. The specific complaint against him is the laying down of a bogus check for $640 on Aug. 26, 1896, and defrauding the Hotel Imperial, this city, of that amount, in addition to failing to pay a hotel bill of $265.

Gibson is well known in railroad and hotel circles, and was identified with Luke Clark, the Chicago promoter. His business with Clark was the promotion of street railway companies and the consolidation of competing lines.

Jan. 1, 1897, he was arrested on the complaint of the proprietor of the Parker House in Boston for tendering a bogus check for $500 with which to pay a board bill of $400 and receiving $100 in change.

To Change Warfare In Cuba.

London, Oct. 8.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times, referring to the cabinet council Thursday, says: "The cabinet was unanimous in the opinion that the system of warfare in Cuba must be completely changed. Special attention was drawn to the deplorable condition of the sick and wounded soldiers now arriving. This aspect of the case was considered at the direct initiation of the queen regent. Regarding the finances, although the optimist views of the recent minister of finance do not appear to have been justified, it is believed that with prudence sufficent resources may be counted upon, at least until the cortes meets in the spring to authorize supplies."

The Daily Mail's Madrid correspondent says that the premier announced to the cabinet that the anarchists now in prison at Fortress Mentjuich, for the bomb-throwing outrage at Barcelona during the procession of Corpus Christi, will be immediately sent into exile or released.

Boston Man In Trouble.

Halifax, Oct. 8.—After the alleged perpetration of a dozen or more bold robberies in the western part of Nova Scotia, principally the burglary of stores and dwellings, besides attempting to shoot a constable who was after him in Luneburg county, Alonzo Hawkesworth of Boston was captured at Wolfville. One of the crimes yith which he is charged is the theft of $1500 from the church of England parsonage at Bridgetown. The prisoner will be taken to Luneburg, where it is alleged he robbed four places in two nights.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. ☞ Oil Heaters to take the chill from your room, from $3.50 up. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

The trouble with us nowadays is, that we do not lead natural lives. The feminine portion of our society is especially culpable in this way. It is really a wonder that women are as healthy as they are. Very few women get any outdoor exercise. Very many get no exercise at all. Modes of dressing interfere with the proper muscular action and with the circulation of the blood. All the hygienic laws are broken. It is little wonder that nine women in ten are troubled with some derangement or irregularity in the action of the organs distinctly feminine. Neglect and wrong living will show themselves first in the most delicate organs of the whole body. With such weakness and sickness so prevalent, it is to be expected that the bearing of children would be fraught with dread and danger. It should not be so, of course. Nature never meant it to be so. The performance of the highest function of which a woman is capable should not be accompanied by pain. If perfectly natural living were the rule, it would not be so. As lives are lived, something else must be done. A remedy must be found. For over thirty years, Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. During that time he has treated thousands of women. He has found in his "Favorite Prescription" a never-failing specific for female complaints. It strengthens the whole body and when taken during gestation, shortens the period of labor and makes childbirth well-nigh painless. It also promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment for the child.

WORLD TRAVELLER.

Henry Thompson Puts Up at Quincy Over Night.

Many have heard of the man who started a few years ago from San Francisco to tour the world, walking when on land, and travelling as stowaway on steamships when opportunity offered. Henry Thompson was the man and last night he was the guest of the Be Game Pleasure club of this city, and was much pleased with the courtesies extended.

Thompson says he left San Francisco Nov. 30, 1893, to walk across the United States five times and Canada once, and go once around the world in four and one-half years, under a wager of $10,000.

All that now remains of the journey is the walk from here to San Francisco, and he has so much time to spare that he is in no hurry.

He tells some big stories, and some of them have the appearance of "whoppers." One was that he was arrested in Houstan, Texas, for being a fraud, but was released. He brought suit for false arrest and was awarded $3500 damages. Another that he has been shot at ten times, four balls taking effect.

Although he says he has walked five times across this continent and nearly around the world, he reports that he has walked but 20,675 miles. He says he has 166 pairs of stockings, 22 pairs of shoes, 72 hats and caps, 150 whips and sticks, and has been shaved by 129 barbers. He has sold 5000 photographs and given nearly 2000 away. He weighed 176 pounds when he started and now weighs 132 pounds. He has been laid up with sickness at several points, but today appeared chipper, and will doubtless make Taunton tonight. He came from Boston yesterday.

The president's report gave a brief sketch of the origin and growth of the society.

The treasurer's report showed no debts and nothing in the treasury but the society has about $45.00 worth of servicable material on hand which will be needed during the coming season.

The next meeting will take place Wednesday evening Oct. 13 and all who are interested in the welfare of the society are invited to be present.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

LEAVING IT ALL TO US.

We find that our judgment is relied upon more and more by Horse and Carriage owners. People come to us with general ideas as to what they want. They wish to avoid mistakes, and they are often glad to have us shoulder the entire burden. Many times we save dollars for such people. We certainly do our best, and such operations as a rule, reflect favorably upon both parties.

THE PARNELL ANNIVERSARY.

Emblems of Mourning Laid Aside and Lively Airs Played.

Dublin, Oct. 11.—All Ireland united Sunday in one way in observing the sixth anniversary of the death of the man who did so much by agitation to ameliorate the condition of the peasantry. Six years ago the leader was carried to his rest at Glasnevin cemetery, and yesterday his grave was decorated with flowers contributed by nationalists in every county. This, together with the change in the form of observance, made the observance unique. In previous commemorations funeral solemnity was preserved and the trappings of woe were displayed. It was not the case this year, for in place of dirges the bands discoursed lively airs, and emblems of mourning were laid aside.

The country people were brought in by crowded excursion trains. On their hats they wore ivy and shamrocks instead of crepe. It was emphatically the people's day, for the aristocracy held coldly aloof. No flags were raised on the public buildings along the line of route, and only a few houses of the poor displayed decorations. The poverty of Ireland was exhibited not only by the children, who walked in their bare feet, but in the attempts at a uniform for the processionists, who seldom achieved more than a faded green sash or a spray of ivy on the coat.

The day was wet, windy and cheerless, and the demonstration was imposing in no respect except in its spirit. The procession started from St. Stephen's green at 1 o'clock, led by a mounted guard of honor of Irish National Foresters and a memorial car. The car was the most conspicuous feature. It was drawn by four coal black horses, and upon it were piled wreaths and crosses, a veritable mass of white and green stacked as high as a load of hay. A bronze bust of Parnell surmounted the car, and above the head streamed a flag emblazoned with a setting sun in gold. After the car came the members of the Irish parliamentary party headed by John Redmond of Waterford, the moving spirit of the celebration. They were followed by the honorary officers of the demonstration committee; the staffs of The Daily Independent, The Evening Herald and Weekly Independent; delegates from the Irish National league of Great Britain, and then by the carriages containing John Parnell, Mrs. Dickinson, sister of the dead patriot; other members of the Parnell family, though the venerable Mrs. Parnell was unable to be present, and James Stephens. The lord mayor and corporation of Dublin, the mayors, sheriffs and municipal dignitaries of Cork and Limerick, robed in their official regalia, the maces being wound with ivy, rode next in gilded coaches. After them came the various deputations, carrying gaudy banners: the Farriers' society, the Bakers' association, the Dublin corporation laborers, the Mineral Water Operatives' society, the Rope Makers' society, the Ancient Order of Foresters, Dublin district, the Regular Operative Coopers' society, the Friendly Brothers of Ireland, the Dublin Whiteners' union, the York Street Workmen's club, the St. James gate employes, the postoffice officials, the Blue Bell Workmen's club, the O'Donnell Gaelic Football club, the Kilmainham township commissioners, representatives of various wards, the brewing, building and printing trades, the coach makers and the poulterers.

There were more than 30 bands in the procession, and every county and large town, as well as scores of smaller towns, had representation in county or town officials, clubs, societies or other organizations. The procession was 45 minutes in passing a given point. No union jacks were carried, but nearly every county delegation raised the stars and stripes next to the green flag. One of the most suggestive features of the demonstration was the predominance of children and aged people, showing that the tide of emigration is carrying Ireland's able bodied sons and daughters to more prosperous lands. Though the crowds were so great that the police had considerable difficulty in clearing the way for the procession, there were no shouts or disturbances. Old men remarked that Irishmen seemed each to have lost something more than their proverbial exuberance.

On the arrival of the procession at the cemetery the committee and the members of the Parnell family walked around the grave and deposited wreaths and floral tokens, conspicuous among the latter being a cross of ferns and white roses bearing the inscription, "In ever loving memory of my husband—K. Parnell." There was no speech making and nothing in the way of formal ceremony. A smart shower finally sent the spectators scurrying for shelter. There were no partisan collisions.

The tone of the anti-Parnell press, in commenting upon the anniversary and the celebration, is exceptionally moderate. The Irish World says: "It is deplorable that a great man's memory should be dragged into the arena of party politics. Parnell has been dead long enough for his name to be placed beside those of the greatest patriots."

GEYSER IN NEW YORK.

New York, Oct. 11.—A mammoth water main burst early yesterday morning at the corner of Madison avenue and Forty-eighth street and wrought such havoc with property that not even a partial calculation can be made of the financial damage at present. For blocks around scarcely a dwelling or public building could be found which did not suffer in a greater or less degree by reason of the volumes of water which poured into the streets, cellars and basements. The loss will reach far into the thousands.

The main was probably cracked by a blast which was fired in an excavation Saturday afternoon. Then in the nighttime, when the strain on the pipe was greatest, it gave way and the flood followed. The breaking of the four-foot wall pipe was announced by a rumbling noise which awakened the people in the immediate vicinity. Looking out of their windows they saw a great geyser in the middle of the avenue shooting a vast volume of water so high that it reached almost to the top of the electric light pole on the corner. Those who had no view of the fountain heard a mighty rush of water.

The most serious damge was done to the railroad branch of the Y. M. C. A. building and to the Knickerbocker A. C. house. In the basement of the latter place were located the dynamo machinery, bowling alleys and the bathrooms. These have probably been ruined. The club officials place the loss at $15,000.

At first it was impossible to locate exactly the main which had broken until there was a shutdown at the Central park reservoir. In this way much time was lost, while the deluge continued. After five hours the flow was stopped. Almost without exception the houses in the vicinity of the break were damaged, the individual losses ranging from $500 to $2000.

The main which broke was laid in 1874. It has a capacity of 2,000,000 gallons an hour, with a pressure of 27 pounds to the square inch.

LOOKS LIKE A MURDER.

Woman Burned to Death In the Yard of Her Home at Canton.

Husband Suspected of Pouring Oil Upon Her Clothes.

Canton, O., Oct. 11.—Residents of the tenderloin district at daylight Sunday heard screams and saw a column of flames in the yard of the home of William De Peyster. On investigation Mrs. De Peyster was found with her clothing on fire, and before aid could be rendered she was dead.

The kitchen of the house was covered with oil spots, and fragments of a broken lamp were found in the house and yard. De Peyster, when found, would give no explanation of what had happened and was placed under arrest on suspicion of murder.

Neighbors say that he and his wife had been quarrelling all night. Maggie Greathonse, who was on the second floor of the building, was taken in custody by the officers as a witness. She could throw no light on the case beyond the starting of the quarrel shortly after midnight. She told of a former attempt De Peyster made to kill his wife several months ago. She says that after a protracted quarrel between De Peyster and his wife, she went to their room in answer to a call for help, and found Mrs. De Peyster's nightrobe on fire, and saturated with oil which De Peyster had poured over her after breaking the lamp. He had ignited the garment. The two women fought him off and extinguished the flames. De Peyster comes from a well to do family.

Opinion differs as to how Mrs. De Peyster's clothing was ignited. It was at first supposed that a lighted lamp had been thrown at her, but as the burner to the lamp cannot be found and nothing in the room where the oil was spilled was burned, leaving no evidences of an explosion, some of the officers believe that the plan discovered by the Greathouse woman on a former occasion was the way the woman's death was caused.

Ball's Estate Imaginary.

New York, Oct 11.—The treasury department has had many inquiries from time to time about the alleged estate of one Joseph Ball of Philadelphia, which is supposed to be held in trust in the treasury department. The letters speak of the trust of an alleged 84 year lease given by Mr. Ball to certain valuable property in Philadelphia. Some time ago it was stated that ex-President Harrison was interested as an attorney in the estate. Many hundreds of people all over the country have been drawn into the struggle for the money which they think awaits distribution. To all of these inquiries replies are sent informing the "heirs" that there is no such fund in the treasury, and that the only record in the treasury department of Joseph Ball of Philadelphia relates to a claim of about $3000 which he filed as an underwriter against the government in 1801 for cargo and vessel seized by the French. The claim is one of the ordinary spoliation claims.

Russian Fugitive Caught.

Washington, Oct. 11.—A sequel to an elopement story which came from Atlantic City last summer has just been worked out in the state department, which has issued a warrant for the surrender to the Russian authorities of Judko Kaplan. This man was arrested in Atlantic City last summer for abusing a young woman supposed to be his wife. The girl, to avenge herself for ill treatment, confessed that she had eloped with Kaplan who, she said, was a fugitive from justice in Russia. Before the Russian authorities could be communicated with the man escaped and was recaptured only after a long pursuit.

Judko Kaplan was a tailor living in the town of Kiev. Nearby lived a well-to-do merchant named J. Kaplan. Judko availed himself of the similarity of names to cash a draft for 20,000 roubles drawn to the order of the merchant, and escaped to America, leaving in Europe a wife and children. In Boston he met his cousin and eloped with her.

Excursionists Turned Firemen.

Bangor, Me., Oct. 11.—The Bangor and Aroostook railroad station at Ludlow, seven miles from Houlton, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. Very much greater distruction would have taken place had it not been for the fortunate arrival of the excursion train of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which arrived while the station buildings were under good headway. By hard work the male passengers saved the potato houses and last block sheds, where valuable property was stored, although the roofs of those extensive buildings repeatedly caught fire. No trains are ordinarily run on the line on Sunday, this being a special train to Houlton. There is no telling where the destruction would have ended but for the arrival, an extensive forest fire being probable for one thing, as everything is dry as tinder.

THE STATE commission on taxation laws did not put any stock in the single tax on land, but suggests some radical changes, which they summarize briefly as follows:

1. An inheritance tax is levied without respect to realty as well as to personalty at the rate of five per cent.; with an exemption for estates not exceeding $10,000, and an abatement of $5000 on estates between $10,000 and $25,000; the revenue from this tax to be distributed from the State treasury among the several cities and towns, one-half in proportion to population, one-half in proportion to assessed valuation.

2. A tax in proportion to house rentals; only the excess over $400 of rental being taxable.

3. Abolition of the present taxes on intangible personalty such as stocks, bonds and securities, loans on mortgages, income; the taxes recommended under 1 and 2 being relied on to yield at least as large a revenue as is now secured by the taxes to be abolished.

4. Assumption by the State treasury of county expenses.

5. Appropriation by the State of the revenue from taxes on the corporate excess, now distributed among the several cities and towns.

The commissioners say that they are fully aware of the objections that can be urged against the changes they propose, but say that they found it necessary to confine their task to certain fundamental problems underlying the main difficulties of the present methods of taxation.

The commission gives its reason at length. The inheritance tax is probably the best change proposed. If the State assumed the county expenses, the interest of the taxpayers would be still further removed from county affairs, and the county officials would be more extravagant. Then each county would endeavor to get what it could out of the State, as ward councilmen work for their wards in a city. The house rental system might add to the revenue of a city, but who is to say what the rental value of some of the large estates really are, where no rent is paid. Take for instance the home of the Mayor's family at Mount Wollaston, or the old Adams homestead on Adams street, or any of the Adams street residences. The taxes on stock, bonds, etc., should not be abolished, but all corporations should be required to return the amount of stock held by its shareholders, that it may be taxed. The exemption of the rich from taxation only makes taxes more oppressive to the industrious mechanic.

A BRAINTREE MAN

Nominated for the Senate—Mr. Scollard Dropped.

The First Norfolk Democratic Senatorial convention was held Saturday afternoon at the Ward room, City Hall, Quincy.

James D. Grant of Hyde Park called the meeting to order and read the call.

William B. Orcutt of Quincy was then elected as chairman, and Patrick H. Crowley secretary.

Frank. A. Hobart of Braintree, John Lawry of Canton and W. H. Sampson, Jr., of Quincy were appointed a committee on credentials. They reported thirteen out of the 38 delegates present.

The temporary organization was then made permanent.

M. T. Sullivan proposed the name of James D. Grant of Hyde Park as candidate for Senator.

Mr. Grant declined and in doing so said that last year he allowed his name used at the eleventh hour, as there was no candidate, both Mr. Eaton and Mr. Scollard having declined to run. He made no campaign as he had no time but he did the best he could. It was impossible for him to stand this year.

He then moved that a committee of five, to include the chairman and secretary be appointed to select a candidate and see that his papers were filed. This motion was voted.

The chair appointed F. A. Hobart of Braintree, W. T. Shea of Quincy and Matthew W. Lynch of Weymouth.

Upon motion of Mr. Hobart an informal ballot was taken for member of the State Central Committee which resulted as follows:

James D. Grant had	7
John V. Scollard had	4

The informal ballot was made formal.

Mr. Grant in accepting said he had no idea of going to the State Central committee until Tuesday when he heard that the present member, Mr. Scollard, was not in sympathy with the State Central Committee, and it was desired that the member should stand for the principles of the party. The committee did not think Mr. Scollard's support was as strong as it should be.

William T. Shea replied that when it was stated Mr. Scollard was not in sympathy with the party it was wrong. He did not think there was a stronger Bryan man in Massachusetts than Mr. Scollard. He does not agree with George Fred Williams in some things but he would do as much for him as any man in the State. He thinks the leader goes to extremes in some things.

A recess of fifteen minutes was then taken during which the committee to select a candidate met and when the conventions again came to order they reported that they had selected Tristran R. Newell of Braintree as their candidate.

William B. Orcutt of Quincy was elected chairman of the Senatorial Committee and the convention adjourned.

Norfolk County Teachers.

The Norfolk County Teachers' Association will hold its annual meeting Friday, Oct. 22, in Lorimer hall, Tremont Temple, Boston. A very interesting program has been prepared and the meeting promises to be one of the best. There will be a few short papers by teachers in the county, and one or two other papers for which the arrangements are not completed.

Symmetrical Life.

Rev. E. J. Chaffee, late of Middletown, Conn., where Rev. H. A. Philbrook formerly of this city, is now located, preached an interesting sermon at the Universalist church Sunday morning, taking as his theme, "The Symmetrical Life," founded in Rev. 21-16. "The length and the breadth and the height of it are equal."

He spoke earnestly of the need of the four-square life and of the elements which compose it. Mr. Chaffee was a classmate of the pastor, who was present and who enjoyed the ministration of his old student friend. Owing to a throat difficulty, Mr. Chaffee did not speak as announced at the Young People's meeting, but their was a large attendance and good interest was manifested.

6 P. M. Dinner in Music hall.

7 P. M. Speaking in Music hall.

In anticipation of the usual large attendance this year, the exchange of dinner tickets for reserved seats at the tables will take place at 5 o'clock in Horticultural hall, 101 Tremont street, near the entrance to Music hall. After 5.45 P. M. the remaining reserved seat tickets will be exchanged at Music hall. The method of exchanging the dinner tickets is for the purpose of allowing those who desire to do so to sit together at the tables, which would be practically impossible were the reserved seat tickets issued from time to time as ordered.

Dinner tickets will be $2 each, and with each dinner ticket will be given, free, two tickets to the balconies for friends of the members. The main floor and the platform will be for the exclusive use of those joining in the dinner.

It is very important that those who propose to attend the dinner should make immediate application for tickets. Members are privileged to purchase tickets for friends, and it is earnestly hoped that special efforts will be made by members of the club to be present.

Big Snakes in Blue Hills.

With all the improvements and constant watchfulness, the Blue Hill reservation police and workmen occasionally unearth a den of snakes, and they are quickly dispatched. It has been generally supposed that the rattlesnake, so much dreaded, has had a monopoly of this territory, but the copperhead seems also to have an abiding place there, although the latter keeps close to the low lands bordering on the Reservation. Recently Charles Page, a mounted policeman, suddenly came in contact with several of this dangerous species, and he quickly killed the whole lot. After they were subjected to the taxidermist's art they were sent to the Natural History rooms in Boston as specimens of what the Blue Hills could produce. There are several fine specimens of the copperhead in a living state, in the "museum" collection at the Reservation office on Hillside street.

Prize Dance.

The prize dance at Hancock hall Saturday evening, for the benefit of the Quincy & Boston base ball team was very largely attended, and a good time was enjoyed. The prize dance was a feature of the evening and was held at 10 o'clock, the $5 in gold being awarded to Millard Whiting and Miss Mamie Fitzgerald. Joseph O'Brien was floor marshal, with F. E. Lowe as floor director, James Hayes as assistant, and Henry O'Brien, Eddie Donovan and John McClusky aids.

PERJURY CHARGED.

Well Known Quincy Man Not As Rich As He Swore.

A. M. I. McLeod was arrested by Inspector McKay this noon for Inspector Wise of Boston, by whom he is wanted for perjury. It seems that some time since McLeod went bonds for some party in Boston, and at that time swore he was worth a certain amount of property. It is claimed that he did not possess the property he swore to and a warrant was issued for him.

The Boston police were notified and they came to Quincy this afternoon and took McLeod to Boston.

McLeod is well known in Quincy where he has been a granite polisher.

Too Much Combining.

The Leader of Barre has not quoted the Daily Ledger correctly, but its comments on the granite combine will be of interest. It says:

"Our Quincy, Mass, contemporary appears to think that the great object of the Barre quarry combine is to cut into Quincy's granite trade just as deeply as possible; and they are urging that defensive and offensive measures be promptly taken to meet the onslaught. It seems to us that their scare is entirely unnecessary. So far as we can learn the Barre Quarry Company exists entirely for the furthering of the granite interests of Barre, and not to destroy those of any other place. Its success will give Quincy a pointer, an example and an inspiration; and it will be the common sense thing for her to do likewise. The next wise step will be for the two combines too combine, and put the granite business of the Western continent on a basis as solid and enduring as its own products."

The Sunday Alarm.

The alarm from box 56 at 10.23 on Sunday forenoon was for a blaze on the roof of Chandler W. Smith's residence on Arlington street, Wollaston. Hose 2 was at the scene of the fire before the alarm had finished ringing but its services were not needed as Mr. Smith with the assistance of his son Nelson, a silcock hose and a long ladder, had the fire extinguished before it arrived. The fire caught on the roof near the chimney, probably from a spark. The damage was trifling.

The Blow Was Fatal.

William Bennett who was injured at South Quincy Saturday noon by the end of the capstan striking him on the head, died that afternoon from hemorrhage of the brain.

The blow which struck him was a savage one and although it did not fracture his skull it made an indentation. The boy was apparently doing well until after three o'clock when hemorrhage of the brain set in and he died shortly after.

Milton-Canton Candidate.

The fourth Norfolk Republican Representative convention was held at Milton Town Hall on Saturday. John Graham presided and Edmund J. Fairbanks was secretary. Fred Drake of Canton was nominated by acclamation.

Next Sunday evening the vesper services will be resumed at the Wollaston Baptist church. An elaborate programme is being arranged, an account of which will be printed during the week.

FOR EMBEZZLING.

Andrew J. Miller of Norfolk Downs Under Arrest.

Norfolk Downs people were surprised to learn of the arrest on Saturday of Andrew J. Miller, one of their prominent residents on the charge of embezzling the sum of $3,060 Mr. Miller moved to Norfolk Downs from Everett a year or more ago and as a Boston paper says, he has been considered a quite substantial citizen, with none of the tendencies which characterize many of so-called "high flyers" in society.

He was known as a real estate speculator, who, while his interests to some extent were located in Wollaston, had spent most of his business hours in Boston.

During the year he has resided at Norfolk Downs he has been the reputed manager of the Boston realty and trust company, whose office has been at 13 School street, Boston. He has also at the same time officiated as manager of the Wollaston Park real estate company. He has also acted, it is said, as an agent for Wood, Harmon & Co., in matters pertaining to real estate in Quincy.

Mr. Miller, so far as his reputation has been concerned, has stood high, nothing of a derogatory character having been whispered against his integrity.

The charge agaist Miller it seems, is of long standing, having been committed on Dec. 23, 1895. The complaint is brought by the Boston realty and Trust company, and was formally made by Cornelius A. Russell the present acting treasurer. Mr. Miller was arrested Saturday afternoon and up to midnight had not secured bail. He takes his arrest in good grace and declines to discuss the charge.

Mr. Russell the complainant says, "A large amount of money belonging to the company is gone and the amount set forth in the complaint does not by any means represent the amount that is missing. We do not at present know just what the amount of the shortage will be but from what we know it will be somewhere in the neighborhood of $5000 or between $4000 and $5000.

"The amount named in the complaint was the amount of money I was able to trace to Mr. Miller and could trace no further. You see in our company every member has a pass-book and until these books have been examined we cannot tell just what the amount of the deficit will be.

"The $3060 named in the complaint was money that he took from the treasurer, Meritt Morse, to pay Wood, Harmon & Co., and which they never received. Wood, Harmon & Co. owned Norfolk Downs and Miller, who was a selling agent in their employ and working in their interest to sell that land, organized the Boston Realty and Trust Co. The president of the company is Edward Quincy, and the trustees have been George Gray, Miller and myself.

"A good deal of the stock of the company is owned in Maine, two Maine men, Messrs. Chandler and Fogg, being among the heavy stockholders. Miller has a wife, and a son who must be 21 years of age. He was formerly a conductor on the West End railroad, and then became a selling agent for Wood, Harmon & Co. He is a good talker, and I always supposed that he was thoroughly honest.

"My suspicions were at first aroused by a note received from Wood, Harmon & Co. three weeks ago, in which they said that there was a shortage in the accounts.

"Miller lives plainly, but in the past two years has had $16,000, or something like that amount of money. In the deal with Wood, Harmon & Co., they paid 10 per cent. on $102,000, or $10,200 as commission to Miller, and the Boston Realty and Trust Co., paid him about $3,000, so that he has had a pretty substantial income during that time."

Miller has not been able to secure bail, and passed Sunday at station 9, where his wife and friends had several interviews with him. Mr. Russell has the receipts for the $3,060 now in his possession, and they will be put in as evidence when the case is heard in the Roxbury court.

Makes Claim to an Alibi.

New York, Oct. 11.—Central Office Detective William Moore, who is under arrest suspected of having stabbed his wife to death last Wednesday, has been committed by the coroner. The most damaging evidence was given by Mrs. Morrison, who said she heard Moore in the house on the afternoon of the tragedy. Two boys also say that between 1 and 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon they saw the detective leaving his home.

Moore denies that he killed his wife and says that he was in the Wall street district all day Wednesday until 3 o'clock, when he received word from police headquarters that there was something wrong at his home. He went up town and found his wife dead. The effort to suppress the fact that his wife had died from a stab wound of the abdomen and the burning of the murdered woman's clothing at the time of her death are said to be responsible in a measure for the arrest of Moore.

To Meet In Finish Fight.

San Francisco, Oct. 11.—As a result of his dissatisfaction over Referee Green's decision in giving the recent fight to Solly Smith, George Dixon, through his manager, has agreed to meet Smith in a finish fight for the championship some time next February.

Irish Independent League.

Boston, Oct. 11.—There was an enthusiastic meeting last evening of the central branch of the Irish Independent league of Boston, and stirring speeches were made eulogistic of Charles Stewart Parnell, the sixth anniversary of whose death was observed yesterday in Ireland.

Today in Dublin the convention of the independent party in Ireland was held, and at the meeting last evening the members contributed generously so that the league in Boston was able to send by cable $100 and a message of good cheer to the convention on the other side, with promises of support in the future.

Poor Season For Whaling.

San Francisco, Oct. 11.—The whalers that wintered in the Arctic last year are having hard luck this season. Only one of them succeeded in killing a whale this summer, and the fleet that will return this fall will bring only a small revenue to their owners. The ships were later in getting out of their winter quarters on account of the ice packing to the eastward.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. LANKY BOB'S BLOW.

Startling Scene Not Down on the Show Bills.

Bostons Not Likely to Win the Temple Cup.

Severe Pounding of Stivetts' Cannon Ball Delivery.

Cincinnati, Oct. 11.—Champion Bob Fitzsimmons opened his theatrical season here yesterday with a large attendance and a startling scene in the sparring bout not down on the bills. His sparring partner, Mike Dempsey, of New York, who is claimed to have been the conqueror in several ring contests, received a blow on the breast in the first round that sent him to the floor, his head striking with a resounding smash.

All was confusion, the audience and Fitzsimmons apparently being the prey to startling visons of another death from Fitz's sledge hammer fists. Lanky Bob's ruddy color almost forsook him as he rushed about rendering assistance to Dempsey. The latter appeared somewhat dazed and uncertain on his feet when assisted to arise, but in a few minutes seemed to fully recover from the effects of the blow and fall.

It developed later that, it being his first appearance as a contestant with Fitzsimmons, Dempsey had taken a number of drings as nerve steadiers and had overdone the bracing, thus really bringing about his own sudden downfall.

BOSTONS LOST AGAIN.

Eleven Runs In Twe Innings on Jack Stivetts Pitching.

Baltimore, Oct. 11.—If the newly fledged champions do not take one of the next three games from the "three time winners," the Temple cup will remain in Baltimore for another season, and the "have beens" will get the big end of the gate money. Saturday for the fifth time in succession the Baltimores defeated the Bostons, 12 to 11, and as three of the games count in the contest for the trophy, it looks blue for the Boston contingent.

The game was dull and uninteresting until the ninth, when it looked for a time as though the visitors might win. Heavy batting and ragged fielding, quite evenly distributed between both teams, characterized the contest, and both sides were compelled to change pitchers because of the bombardment they received. "Happy Jack" Stivetts started to do the twirling for the visitors, but he gave way to Lewis after 11 runs had been made off him in two innings. Nops, who opened the contest for the home team, lasted a little longer, but he, too, had to quit, and in the seventh Corbett took the center of the diamond.

The champion Bostons were scheduled to play against the all-Americans, but President Soden objected to the Bostons playing on Sunday. However, Captain Duffy and a number of the Bostons were members of the picked team.

Fenn's Good Work.

New York, Oct. 11.—A. H. Fenn of the Palmetto Golf club, Aiken, S. C., carried off the honors of the closing day of the St. Andrews club by winning the 18 hole medal play handicap from a field of 51 players out of an entry of 138. On Tuesday last in practice Mr. Fenn made the circuit of the links in 75, and Saturday playing from scratch he did the 18 holes in 76, thereby showing a good deal of consistency in his playing and establishing a record for the course which will not be easily beaten. By winning with 76, Mr. Fenn, in addition to the cup presented for the handicap by W. H. Sands, won a gold medal for having the best gross score to his credit. S. D. Bowers, a well known local player, covered the distance in 83 and with an allowance of two finished in second place with a net score of 81.

No Respecter of Records.

Philadelphia, Oct. 11.—Jimmie Michael, in his trial to beat the world's records from one-third of a mile to 33 miles, paced, with a flying start, failed to break any records until the 11th mile, which distance he covered in 19:59 1-5, breaking Stocks' record of 20:10 4-5.

He broke the 12-mile world's record in 21:51. The best previous time was that of Stocks, 22:01 1-5.

The 13-mile record was also broken. The time was 23:43 2-5, the previous world's record being 23:54 3-5, made by Stocks. He also broke the 14-mile in 25:33 4-5. The previous record was that of Stocks, 25:49. The records of 15, 16, 17 and 18 miles were also beaten.

Michael in one hour rode 32 miles and 852 yards, breaking the one hour world's record, which was 32 miles 448 yards.

Whist Players Tied.

Boston, Oct. 11.—At the fall meeting of the New England Whist association, the contest for the American Whist club trophy for teams of eight resulted in a tie between the Pyramid Whist club of Boston and the Providence A. A. club of Providence, each winning five matches. The tie will be played off at some future time.

In the final for pairs, nine pairs contested, W. H. Barney and J. A. George of the Providence club winning with a score of seven tricks plus.

The Morse trophy for fours was won by the American Whist club, which won five matches with a score of 11 tricks plus.

Beat His Own Record.

San Francisco, Oct. 11.—At the annual tournament of the San Francisco Fly Casting club, W. D. Mansfield, the champion long distance caster, who broke all existing records a few months ago by a cast of 111 1-2 feet, again broke the world's record, increasing his distance six inches.

To-Ball Contests Saturday.

The football game between the University of Maine and Bates college at Orono, Me., was a very close and well-played contest. Bates won, 8 to 6. Each team made a goal, but the university team was compelled to make a safety, giving Bates two more runs.

The University of Pennsylvania football team rolled up the enormous score of 58 to 0 against the Lehigh eleven, 15 points more than Princeton scored against the same team 10 days ago. Nine touchdowns, four goals and a safety were the sum total for the first half of 20 minutes, and two touchdowns and two goals were made in the second half of 15 minutes.

Williams failed to make any impression against the Yale football line, the New Haven team scoring six touchdowns, and four goals being kicked from them. The final score was Yale, 32; Williams, 0. The Yale eleven made its most brilliant showing of the year for concerted play, the backs trotting down the field persistently in a bunch which the Williams players failed to separate.

Phillips-Exeter added another triumph to her list of football victories by defeating the Massachusetts Institute of Technology eleven by a score of 12 to 6. The victory was a surprise, as the last four games with the M. I. T. team had resulted in ties.

A small crowd of spectators saw Holy Cross tie Amherst at Amherst, Mass., in an uninteresting game, chiefly remarkable for the fumbling displayed on both sides. Amherst's light line, which was badly shaken up in the Yale game, proved hardly a match for the Holy Cross heavy men, who soon found out where the weak point lay and used push plays almost entirely.

The Harvard football team had the first hard work of the season Saturday when it defeated the strong Dartmouth eleven, 13 to 0. It was a closer game than the score would indicate. In team play the visitors were a match for the Harvard team, their rushing and tackling being good, but failure to take advantage of the wind and poor punting were Dartmouth's weak points. The first half ended without a score for either side.

Brown walked away with Boston university in a football game, winning 44 to 0. The score ought to have been larger, but Brown fumbled a good deal, twice losing the ball at the line when safeties were secured instead of touchdowns. Gammons made a brilliant run of 75 yards around Boston university's end for a touchdown.

Special Session of Parliament Wanted.

London, Oct. 11.—In reply to a petition signed by 64 members of the Irish party in the house of commons asking the government to call a special session of parliament to deal with the exceptional distress in Ireland, Arthur J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury, has written to John Dillon as follows: "The government has observed the partial failure of the potato crop with great concern, and is watching anxiously the condition of the people in the threatened districts. There is no need, however, to summon parliament earlier than is customary, because, should the apprehensions of the memorialists be unhappily realized, the executive is empowered to adopt the necessary measures without waiting for the sanction of parliament."

Asked to Unmask a Fraud.

New York, Oct. 11.—During his speech Saturday night, General B. F. Tracy, the Republican candidate for mayor, said he knew of an instance where the suggestion had been made to one of the Republican leaders that one of their candidates on the county ticket could be endorsed by the Henry George party, but the offer was refused. Chairman Abbott of the Jeffersonian Democracy has sent General Tracy an open letter in which he says that the cause of political honesty would be materially advanced if General Tracy would unmask the person who had made the suggestion mentioned because he was a fraud and had no authority to make such a deal.

Had Paid For Protection.

New York, Oct. 11.—Policeman Virgie H. Winchell was stripped of his badge and locked up on the charge of having blackmailed a saloon keeper named Theobold Kohler. When Kohler was caught violating the excise law his excuse was that he had paid Winchell for protection and permission to do business. Winchell was ordered locked up by Captain Schmittberger, who, before the Lexow committee, swore that he had received many bribes. The captain was allowed to remain on the police force for testifying against higher police officials.

Long Time In Squaring.

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 11.—When Secretary of State Chilton retired from office on the 4th of March last he owed the state somewhere between $15,000 and $20,000 which he had collected on charters, tax, etc. He informed the incoming state administration of the fact at the time, and asked for a reasonable time in which to settle. Seven months have elapsed and he has not paid the amount due. An effort is now being made to force him to settle. He says the matter will be arranged within a few days.

Quarrelled Over Crops.

Richmond, Ky., Oct. 11.—Rutherford Todd, youngest son of Frank Todd, a wealthy farmer, stabbed Daniel Little, a farmer, who lived on his father's place, inflicting wounds that will probably prove fatal. The men had had trouble over a division of crops. Little attacked Todd with a stone, but Todd, drawing a pocket knife, began stabbing Little, who fell. Todd continued to carve his helpless victim, leaving him for dead. Todd surrendered and was released on bond to await the result of Little's injuries.

Smallest on Record.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 11.—The past year's mackerel fishery has been a bad failure, the New England catch of salt mackerel being about the smallest on record, and the few remaining vessels at Block island and North bay send nothing but discouraging news. The following table shows the New England catch of salt mackerel to this date for the past six years: 1897, 8839 pounds; 1896, 50,226 pounds; 1895, 18,831 pounds; 1894, 38,494 pounds; 1893, 41,120 pounds; 1892, 47,130 pounds.

George Luck's Ill Luck.

Danbury, Conn., Oct. 11.—George Luck of this city, who conducted a restaurant at the fair, was the victim of footpads, who secured about $50. He was passing a dark spot outside the grounds when he was struck over the head with a club or sandbag and rendered unconscious. The thieves then rifled his pockets and escaped without attracting attention. Mr. Luck was found yesterday morning by a passerby. His condition is serious.

Convention Made No Choice.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 11.—Thirty-two ballots were taken in the 21st representative Republican convention, and the delegates were obliged to disperse without making a nomination. There were several candidates and none could command a sufficient number of votes. A candidate will be put in the field on nomination papers.

HOLD-UP IN OREGON.

Masked Men Overawe a Motorman and Rob a Car's Passengers.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 11.—A car on the Oregon City electric line was held up by two masked men at Meldrum station, four miles from Orange City, about 7 o'clock last night. There were 35 passengers on board, and the highwaymen went through the pockets of all of them, getting about $90. The motorman slowed down when he came to the switch at Meldrum station. One of the robbers jumped on the front of the car and, with a revolver in his hand, ordered the motorman to stop the car while the second robber climbed on the rear end.

Conductor John Anderson stepped inside and quickly turned out the lights, but he was held a prisoner by the man on the rear platform who stood guard with a revolver. The robber who boarded the car in front made the motorman go inside, and then he quietly searched each passenger, joking as he went through the car. Many of the passengers put their money and valuables in their shoes or dropped them on the floor.

Susan Day's Jewelry.

New York, Oct. 11.—A dispatch from Havre says that on the arrival of the steamship LaChampagne yesterday morning the police, acting under instructions from New York, took into custody Henry Paillusseau on a charge of complicity in the robbery of diamond jewelry, the property of Miss Susan DeForrest Day, owner of the steam yacht Scythian.

Miss Day's jewelry, valued at $6000, was stolen from her yacht while lying off Whitestone, L. I., about a month ago. Etienne Castillon, who was accused of the theft, made a full confession, and asserted that he had disposed of the diamonds to Leon Roussel, a Frenchman, residing in New York city. The latter, who has been indicted for complicity in the robbery, is understood to have said that he gave the jewels to Paullusseau as security for a loan of $100, but this statement is doubted by the police.

Castillon, on being assured by an interpreter that he would escape imprisonment if the jewelry was recovered through information furnished by him, made a clean breast of the theft and of the disposal of the booty. When Roussel was confronted with Castillon and learned of the latter's confession he became greatly excited and endeavored to assault him.

Trade Union Movement.

Boston, Oct. 11.—The executive council of the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor met in this city for the purpose of adopting plans for the furtherance of the trade union movement in this state. Plans of a secret nature for the organization of two of the important trades were discussed and adopted.

It was decided to organize the building laborers and to make an effort to have the International Building Laborers' union join the American Federation of Labor. A committee was appointed to assist in organizing the bottlers under the jurisdiction of the Brewery Workers' International union.

Considerable discussion was indulged in concerning the day and contract systems on public work. It was reported that through the endeavors of the state branch the municipal authorities of Worcester had begun the experiment of building a schoolhouse under the day work system, with the promise that, if satisfactory, day work will be extended.

Resolutions were adopted condemning the Knights of Labor for declaring a boycott upon boots and shoes having the stamp of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union.

President Tuttle's Denial.

Boston, Oct. 11.—Concerning published rumors of changes to be made in the control of the Boston and Maine railroad, President Tuttle authorizes the following statement: "The story that a contest is being made for a control of the stock of the Boston and Maine railroad to be voted in opposition to the present management at the company's annual meeting at Lawrence on Wednesday, the 13th inst., is without the slightest foundation in fact. On the contrary, the executive committee of the board, which is, according to custom, authorized to request the proxies of such stockholders as do not intend being present at the annual meeting, and to vote the same for the re-election of the present board of directors, has received and now holds proxies that, together with their own holdings, constitute a majority of the company's entire capital stock. I know of no solicitation of proxies, or purchase of shares for any other purpose, nor of any dissatisfaction on the part of any stockholder or director with the company's present management or policy."

Debs Not Opposing Trusts.

New York, Oct. 11.—Eugene V. Debs repeated his lecture on "Social Democracy" before a large audience at the Windsor theater. Among other things he said: "The evils of the existing social system are penetrating to the middle class. The small merchants are being crowded out. In a few years there will be no small shops; the mercantile business will be in the hands of a few trusts. Now, I am not opposing the trusts. They are founded upon correct principles; but instead of a few individuals or a single individual being the beneficiaries of the trusts, I insist that all men be admitted into the trusts as stockholders and be allowed to enjoy the benefits."

"I'll Just Kill Myself."

New York, Oct. 11.—Because her stepmother reprimanded her for staying out late at night with a lover, Mary Miller, 17 years of age, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid at her home in this city.

Several days ago her stepmother first spoke to her, and said she was injuring her health. Mary replied: "Oh, I am always teased. I just won't stand it. Some day you will wish you had not teased me. I'll just kill myself." She kept her threat.

Fifty Years In Existence.

Boston, Oct. 11.—The golden anniversary of St. Mary's Episcopal church of Dorchester was celebrated yesterday. At both the morning and evening services the edifice was filled with parishioners, while many persons of other denominations were also present. To make the occasion still more noteworthy, every minister of the parish during the last 50 years was present, with two exceptions.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

CUP GOES TO BALTIMORE.

Bostons Win But One in Five in the Temple Series.

Baltimore, Oct. 12.—What was foreshadowed Saturday came to pass yesterday in the fifth game of the Temple cup series. The Bostons were beaten for the fourth time in succession. Apparently they felt that the handicap of Baltimore victories was too heavy to overcome, and to the critical observer their work yesterday had much of the perfunctory about it. Anyway they were beaten, a result that was predetermined almost from the call of play. As a consequence the local club has the credit of winning the prize twice in succession and the pleasure of obtaining the major portion of the net proceeds of the series—60 per cent. It is believed, however, that an agreement exists among the players that, win or lose, they are to share and share alike.

Yesterday's game, like all the others of the series, save the first one, was an easy proposition for the Baltimoreans, who won much as they pleased, while the visitors never appeared to think they had any chance whatever. The crowd, so small that the management refused to give the exact number and so utterly devoid of enthusiasm that scarcely a ripple of applause occurred, saw it done and appeared to be glad that the game, which, by the way, was one of the shortest on record, was over and that the season was ended. There may have been a thousand people on the grounds, but a better estimate would place the attendance at 750. This fact, in view of the pleasant weather which prevailed, indicates that Baltimore baseball enthusiasts have had a surfeit of the sport for the time being, and that they do not look on the Temple cup games as being anything out of the ordinary. At its conclusion both teams disbanded and many of the players left for their homes, two of them, Jennings and Kelley, to prepare for the early assumption of marital responsibilities.

All three of the twirlers were hit freely, and the fielding was at times brilliant, especially on the part of Jennings and Reitz, the latter narrowly escaping accomplishing a triple in the third inning, when, Duffy's liner landing in his mitten, he touched second and caught Lowe off the base, then lined it down to Bowerman to nip Stahl before the latter could get back to the initial bag. The throw was low, however, and the chance was missed.

The champions began the run getting in the second, four hits in succession bringing in two tallies. The other fellows evened up things in their half on a bunt and steal by Stenzel, who took third on Reitz's out and came home when Tenney, in trying to catch him at third, threw so badly that Collins missed it. Clarke then surprised everyone by beating out a bunt, and Stivetts' yellow muff of Hoffer's fly brought another run in and tied the score.

In the next inning a single by Keeler, a passed ball, a wild pitch, a base on balls to Jennings, a single by O'Brien and a long fly brought in three more runs for Baltimore, and the game was practically won. Two more were added to the winners' string in the seventh and eighth, and the visitors got one in the ninth, Yeager hitting to deep left for three bases and Hickman sending him home with a corking double. Hickman died a moment later trying to go to third on Stivetts' force hit. Tenny went out on a fly in Keeler's territory, and Stivetts made the final out when Lowe batted to Reitz, who got it to Jennings before Stivetts reached second. Then the contest for the Temple cup was ended, and so was the season of 1897. Score:

Boxers at Buffalo.

Buffalo, Oct. 12.—Samuel Kelly of New York, the 115-pound champion of America, won from Luke Burke of Salem, Mass., in 20 rounds of fast and clever fighting at the Olympic club room last night. Burke had much the best of the contest up to the 15th round. Kelly forced the battle from that point, and Referee John Sheehan of Boston declared him the victor. More than the usual amount of dissatisfaction was found with the decision.

In the preliminary, George Richio of St. Louis won from Fred Hamp of Chicago in the first minute of the fifth round, and Peter Lacey of Pittsburg won from Billy Kennedy of San Francisco in 10 rounds, after one of the best preliminary bouts ever seen in this city. Kennedy fought the last nine rounds with a broken wrist.

The Billiard Championship.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—A sweepstakes tournament for the billiard championship of the world at 18-inch balk line is being arranged. The Brunswick-Balk-Collender company offers a purse of $1250 for a tournament for this championship, open to all, to be held at New York city. The net gate receipts, in addition to the purse and sweepstakes, will be divided among the winners in the ratio of 50, 30 and 20 per cent. The company will present the championship trophy.

Even Contest Throughout.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—John Bonner and "Mysterious" Billy Smith fought six rounds at the Quaker City Athletic club room last night. Although Bonner had an advantage of 14 pounds in weight, it was a pretty even contest throughout. Bonner did the best work in long reach punching, while Smith showed up well in the clinches with one hand free. No decision was rendered.

Defender In Foreign Waters.

New York, Oct. 12.—J. V. S. Oddie, secretary of the New York Yacht club, when shown the dispatch from France to the effect that the Defender would take part in the Cannes regatta, said: "That is the first time I have heard of any intention to race the Defender in foreign waters. I only wish I could verify the dispatch."

Given a Terrible Beating.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 12.—Tom Shortell of Brooklyn gave Jimmy O'Donovan a terrible whipping last night. In the seventh round the police interfered because of alleged fouls by Shortell, and Referee Kreps decided the bout a draw.

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 12.—In a 16-mile bicycle race on the point road yesterday afternoon between Wilkie Stanbridge and Joseph Enos, Stanbridge won by three seconds. The race was for a purse of $50 and a diamond stud.

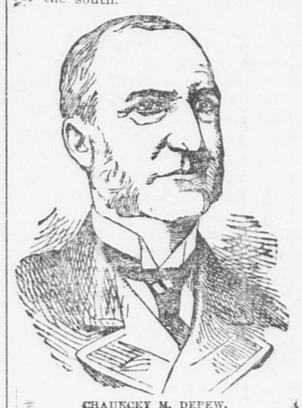
VANDERBILT'S MONUMENT.

Chauncey Depew the Orator at the Unveiling Exercises at Nashville.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 12.—An immense and enthusiastic audience packed the auditorium at the exposition yesterday afternoon to listen to the speeches attending the presentation of a life size statue of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt to Vanderbilt university. This statue, which has been one of the notable figures on the exposition grounds, is the gift of the citizens of Nashville to the university.

John W. Thomas, president of the centennial exposition, presided and in a felicitous address presented the statue to the university, thanking the citizens for their gift and recognition of an institution which is doing a great work for the south.



CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

The principal speaker was Chancey M. Depew, who said among other things: "The American commonwealth is built upon the individual. It recognizes neither classes nor masses. 'That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among us these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness,' are the words of the immortal declaration of independence. These truths are not only the language of American liberty. They are interwoven into the character of American citizens, who are taught from childhood and receive by inheritance the lesson 'that to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.' We have thus become a nation of self made men. We live under just and equal laws, and all avenues for a career are open. It has become a proverb that there are but 'three generations from shirt sleve to shirt sleve,' from the necessity to work to work from necessity.

"If the result of our system is the survival of the fittest, experience has demonstrated that it is possible to so temper the doctrine that the efforts of the born leaders of industry shall uplift whole communities to greater happiness and to better standards of living by originating enterprises and developments which give to thousands new occupations and larger returns for their labor."

REDMONDITES GATHER.

Irish Independent League Met In Dublin.

The Healyites Described as the Assassins of Parnell.

Dublin, Oct. 12.—The physical force faction of the Irish nationalists held a convention in this city yesterday afternoon. Ostensibly it was a meeting of the Irish Independent league, the organization started by John Redmond to preserve his identity as an Irish leader. His followers were out in force, 800 of them putting in an appearance as delegates. Cheers followed every declaration of antagonism to British rule, and the name of Gladstone was hissed when it was charged that the Liberals had betrayed the cause of home rule.

JOHN E. REDMOND.

Redmond, in a long speech, denounced the Liberals for abandoning home rule, and declared that the only hope of Ireland was in independent action, without any alliance with the English parties.

Resolutions were adopted urging the Irish everywhere to commemorate the centenary of 1798, denouncing the government for repudiating the report of the royal commission on the financial relations between Great Britain and Ireland, expressing regret at the necessity of raising a Parnell family fund, and calling upon Irishmen generally to respond to the appeal.

The climax of the convention was reached during the speech delivered by William Redmond. Incidentally he said when the Dillonites rejected Parnell they "alienated the United States, thus killing the goose which laid the golden egg." Continuing, Mr. Redmond said he would never walk into any room to be controlled by Dillon and Healy, though he was for unity, adding: "With all the royal processions through our streets, it is time for Irishmen to say something. The great mass of the Irish people are today, and will be until liberty is given them, the enemies of England. England is a bully, a pirate and a savage. Whether in India or in Africa, the bloody flag of the British empire has been advanced by plundering and destroying poor people. Our sympathy goes out to these poor people. God bless them and give success to their efforts. Three cheers for the men in India who are fighting England."

The meeting up to that time had been of a somewhat mild description, but much denunciation of England and talk of 1798 followed. Mr. Kelly of Manchester, for instance, said that Ireland would have her jubilee in 1898 "over the attempt of honest men to do honest work for Ireland." There was also much denunciation of Great Britain's proposal to give Ireland a Catholic university, the participation of priests in politics being denounced. The Healyites were characterized as the "assassins of Parnell."

There was no discord whatever, the resolutions were all adopted with enthusiasm and the reading of a telegram from the Irish Independent league of New York was heartily cheered. The proceedings were finished last night and the prediction of a revolt against the leadership of John Redmond proved entirely unfounded. The delegates cheered him enthusiastically, and on the adjournment they warmly praised his speech, pronouncing it to be a most able outline of the policy of the Irish Independent league.

The Marine Park.

The Committee on Streets held a meeting Monday evening when they gave a hearing on the petition that the city take certain land at Houghs Neck for a Marine Park.

George W. Morton appeared for the petitioners and told of the natural advantages of the spot. It was one of the most beautiful spots in the city and with but a small outlay could be made very attractive, and would furnish a breathing spot along the shore for the citizens both rich and poor. The land at present could be acquired for a comparatively small sum but if delayed until it had been cut up and built upon, it would be next to impossible for the city to obtain it, and if they did so it would be at so large an outlay it was doubtful if the Marine Park was ever built. He urged the Committee to consider the petition favorably.

Col. Forbes Dead.

Col. William H. Forbes, a member of the well known Forbes family of Milton, died on Monday at his summer home on Naushon island, Buzzard's bay. For several months he had been in consumption and his death was not unexpected. Col. Forbes owned a large and valuable estate on Adams street, Miton hill. He was a veteran of the war and since his return was for many years president of the Bell Telephone company. He was 55 years of age and leaves a widow and several children. The body will be brought to Milton for interment.

To the Reformatory.

Harry A. Litchfield was arraigned in the Suffolk superior court on Monday and plead guilty to embezzlement. He will be sentenced later, and will probably go to the reformatory.

CONTRACT AWARDED.

Work Begun on Another Section of the Sewer.

Another Contract Will be Let This Week.

Proposals Asked for Pumping Station and Chimney.

The Sewer Commissioners held a special meeting Monday night and awarded the contract for building Section two of the brick sewer to J. H. McKnight of Hyde Park whose bid was $7,897.75. Mr. McKnight is evidently a hustler for he commenced work this morning.

Section two has already been stated in the Ledger is from the end of section one on Newcomb street, thence via Canal and Bigelow streets to Elm street. From Newcomb street to its intersection of Washington street the size will by 24 by 36 inch, and from Washington street to Bigelow street 22 by 33 inch and from Bigelow street to Elm street a 24 inch pipe.

The depth of the cut that is to be made is as follows: At the commencement of the section on Newcomb street, 12 feet; at the corner of Newcomb and Canal streets, 12 feet at the corner of Canal and Washington street, 15 feet; at Faxon hall, 20 feet; at the corner of Bigelow street and Cherry avenue, 12 feet and at the end of the section on Elm street, 16 feet.

Section three of the brick sewer has not been awarded as yet, but probably will be at the regular meeting of the board on Thursday evening.

The board also voted to advertise for bids for building a pumping station and chimney, and the same appears in this issue. Proposals will be received until Thursday Oct. 21, 1897 at 7.30 P. M.

Funeral of Victim.

The funeral of William H. Bennett, the victim of the accident of last Saturday, was held on Monday from St. John's church, where high mass was observed. Contractor Williams and twenty of his employes attended and there was a profusion of flowers. The interment was at West Quincy.

No blame is attached to Mr. Williams for the accident, as will be seen by a card of thanks from the boy's father in today's paper. Mr. Bennett has made an examination of the broken part and he should have considered it strong enough to hold 20 tons. Although Mr. Williams was not responsible he and his wife did everything possible for him on the day of the accident, and he has not only paid the funeral expenses but has given the father a substantial check beside. Few contractors would have done what Mr. Williams has in the case, but it is these things that make Chief Williams popular.

Miller Not Ready.

Andrew Miller of Norfolk Downs was arraigned Monday in the Roxbury court before Judge Bolster charged with embezzlement of $3060 from the Boston Realty and Trust Company. The defendant asked a continuance on the ground that he was not ready for trial, not having had his liberty since arrest. The court continued the case until Thursday, Oct. 28, and held Miller in $5000 bail.

Suicide at Holbrook.

Francis Pratt, aged 50 years, of Holbrook committed suicide by hanging on Sunday. Not appearing at work on Monday his shopmates went in search of him. He lived alone and his body was found hanging to a beam in his bedroom. He had been dead several hours. No cause is known.

—A resident of Lewiston, Me., refuses to pay a tax on his bicycle, saying it is worn out and useless. He demands to know of the assessors whether they could tax a man for a dead horse. If not, he wishes to know why he should pay for a dead bicycle with a punctured wheel.

☞ The Waltham evening schools opened Monday evening with 200 in the common branches, and about as many in the commercial and drawing class.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. CO. K WAS EIGHTH

Records Broken at the Regimental Competition of Fifth.

Co. K of Braintree did not make a phenomenal score Monday at the annual regimental shoot of the Fifth regiment, but its total was above the average, and the average was higher than last year. The regiments total was 4331 against 4017 points in 1896. Every man in the G Company scored 40 or more and the total of 431 was the best ever made in a regimental competition. The team scores were:

Co. G, of Woburn,	431
Co. L, of Malden,	416
Co. F, of Waltham,	400
Co. B, of Cambridge,	386
Co. I, of Marlboro,	369
Co. C, of Newton	374
Co. M, of Hudson,	365
Co. K, of Braintree,	363
Co. A, of Charlestown,	356
Co. H, of Charlestown,	335
Co. E, of Medford,	301
Co. D, of Plymouth,	251

None of the Boston papers had the core of Co. K correct, it being mixed with that of Co. C of Newton. It will be seen that Co. K was closely bunched with six other teams, and its total of 363 is two above the team averages of the day.

The individual scores of the Co. K team are appended. Three of the officers are tied for first place with a total of 40 each. But for a mistake Co. K would have had 12 more points, as Corp. Hermanson and Private Thumstrom got confused and shot at No. 10 target instead of No. 9.

Stole from His Brother.

Thomas Sullivan, aged 21 years, was arrested Monday night by Officer Morrissey, for the larceny of $23 from his brother James Sullivan. Up to last Saturday night the latter had been employed by Gallagher's express. Saturday he collected $23 which he left at home on Monday, intending to take it to the office Monday night. During the day Thomas took the money and later took a train for Boston. As soon as James missed the money he reported it to the police and Thomas was arrested by Officer Morrissey upon his return form the Hub. All but about $2 of the money was recovered.

—The Armenians are great people for fasts. During one they eat nothing for a week. On the Saturday there is no real refreshment, but the younger unmarried members of the family are allowed to partake of cake and salt, so to have dreams about water, and it is a sacred rule that every young man must marry the girl who gave him fresh water to drink in his dream that night.

THE PERSONAL TAX.

Those Who Wou'd Be Benefitted by Its Abolition.

Dr. William Everett Aesessed on Largest Sum.

Hon. William B. Rice Is a Close Second.

As noted in the Ledger Monday the Tax Commission propoose to abolish the present taxes on intangible personal, such as stocks bonds and securities, loans on mortgages, income.

It will be of interest to see how this would operate in Quincy. The Assessors books for 1897 show valuations on this class of property as per the list below. The common way of assessment is for "Money, stocks, bonds and income;" but in several cases it is for "personal mortgage; in some cases for stock in particular corporations; in others for capital, and in a few instances "capital and stock" which would have to be divided.

The names of Dr. William Everett and Hon. William B. Rice stand out very prominently in the list, but there are many others assessed for large amounts, viz: the Adams Real Estate Trust, Mrs. Fannie C. Adams, Nancy Brackett, Theophilus King, estate of Edwin B. Pratt, Mrs. George T. Bigelow, and others.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. Gilbert S. Bennett desires to return thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Williams for their efforts in behalf of his son, William H. Bennett, on Saturday last. He feels the loss of his son deeply, but attributes his death to accident rather than carelessness and would not hold Mr. Williams in anyway responsible. The promptness with which the doctors and Reverend Fathers were summoned, and the kind ministrations of Mrs. Williams in particular; the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Williams; and the solicitude of fellow employes, are all appreciated. Also, the respect shown the dear boy on the day of the funeral by attendance at the services and contribution of flowers.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, makes the young feel old, and the old feel that life is not worth the living. It's a danger signal of Kidney Disease—the unerring evidence of weak, inactive and sore Kidneys. Any person cured of Kidney weakness will tell you that when the back ceased to ache, all troubles ended. Neither liniments, nor plasters, nor electricity can cure it. The seat of the trouble is not in the skin, flesh or muscles. It's in the Kidneys.

BACKACHE

CURED

I have been a sufferer with kidney troubles for a number of years. I had terrible pains across the small of my back. As my work requires considerable bending and stooping over, I could at times scarcely straighten up so intense was the pain across my back. I heard of Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills and resolved to give them a trial. Before the first box was used I experienced great relief, and I consider them the best remedy for kidney troubles I ever used. JOHN BIRD, Blacksmith, Field street, Amesbury, Mass.

An Admission of Guilt.

New York, Oct. 12.—The World says: Through her counsel, Lawyer Emanuel M. Friend, Mrs. Augusta Nack has sent word to District Attorney Youngs of Queens county that she is ready to tell all she knows about the murder of William Guldensuppe. Mrs. Nack asks in return that the authorities allow her to plead to manslaughter in the first degree.

The maximum sentence for this offense, if accepted, will be imprisonment in state prison at hard labor for 20 years. District Attorney Youngs has thus far refused to consider the proposition.. He is willing, however, to accept a plea of murder in the second degree, which would carry with it a sentence by the court of life imprisonment.

Came to An Agreement.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 12.—Representatives of the various unions of the cutters, machine workers, treers and edge finishers held a long meeting last night with the manufacturers, but at the conclusion it was announced that no agreement had been reached regarding the settlement of the strike. The union decided to ask the manufacturers to take back the old men and pay two cents a pair for shoes. This the manufacturers refused to do, as it would turn out men already employed.

Sailor Went Mad at Sea.

New York, Oct. 12.—Before the full-rigged ship James Nesbith moored at her dock in Brooklyn, it was known she had on board a man in irons, who had tried to commit murder. It was not known that for some little time, while the Nesbith was on the high seas, this would-be murderer practically owned the ship and drove all hands below deck, where they remained in a state of terror, until, by a concerted attack, they regained possession of the ship.

When the big boat lay alongside her dock Joseph Mareau, an able bodied seaman, was taken from the irons in which he had been since Sept. 14 and marched before United States Commissioner Oakey. He was held until Saturdy for examination. He appeared perfectly sane and quiet.

On Sept. 14 when the vessel was sailing under a fair wind Mareau went out of his mind. He started to slash around with a big knife. Chief Mate Creenen, a nervy old man, ordered Mareau to go below, and received a stab wound for his trouble. The sailing master went to the chief mate's assistance, and also got a severe cut. Mareau then went for the 14 sailors on deck. They all disappeared down the companionways, and in a short time Mareau had the deck to himself. He ran up and down, howling at the top of his voice.

The officers and crew secured arms and returned to the deck, where they approached Mareau on all sides, and made a concerted attack on him. Several members of the crew today bear traces of the struggle that ensued, and several of them said it was a wonder that Mareau did not kill somebody instead of seriously wounding two men.

EMBEZZLER CAUGHT.

Pilfered From a Connecticut Bank For Ten Years.

Doctored His Accounts So as to Escape Detection.

Had Also Helped Himself to a Borough's Money.

Wallingford, Conn., Oct. 12.—Word was received here last night of the arrest at Halifax of Willis A. Trask, treasurer of the borough of Wallingford and teller of the First National bank of that place. As stated in dispatches of the Associated Press two weeks ago, Trask left town a defaulter to the borough of Wallingford to the extent of $2900. A few days later it was learned that he had defrauded a prominent business man in town. Last night it was officially announced that the man was a defaulter to the bank in the sum of $6,404.87. The amount taken from the borough treasury was immediately made good by his bondsmen, and it is also now announced that Trask's bondsmen have made good the amount stolen from the bank.

President Walter J. Leavenworth and Cashier William H. Newton gave the following official statement last night: "An exhaustive investigation into all departments of the bank has been made, from which it appears that Trask has been a defaulter to the bank in the sum of $6,404.87. Every dollar of this has been made good by his bondsmen. Even if the whole amount were a loss instead of having been made entirely good, as stated, it would not in the least have affected the financial soundness of the bank, as will appear from the official report of the condition of the institution made Oct. 5, which shows the capital stock to be $150,000, the surplus and undivided profits $45,674.14. In other words the surplus of the bank amounts to more than 30 per cent of the capital."

The methods employed by Trask were possible from his position as teller. In the line of his duties he received the bank's deposits, appropriated a portion of them to his own use, and instead of properly entering them, he failed to place numerous items on the books of the bank. His entries on the depositors' pass books were in all cases correct. In receiving deposits he destroyed the deposit slips and appropriated the money.

Trask was located at the instance of the officials of the bank. The man left town about three weeks ago. A few days previously he had been granted a vacation by Cashier Newton. Two weeks before this his wife had given birth to a child and was for many days critically ill. At a time when her condition was most serious, Trask suddenly left town. This caused comment, and the wildest of stories were circulated. A notice to the borough officials to the effect that the borough's account at the bank had been overdrawn led to an investigation, which resulted in the discovery that he had absconded with nearly $3000 of the borough's money. The bank's prudence called for an examination into its affairs, which resulted as stated above. As soon as the defalcation was discovered steps were taken to locate the missing man.

A Halifax dispatch says: In an interview Trask stated that he had been falsifying the books for 10 years or more. The accounts were regularly audited by experts, but he had always succeeded in deceiving them until those in authority over him began to realize that he was living beyond his income, or received an intimation from some source that he must be robbing the bank. He declares that he knew Detective Leith was in Halifax before the latter knew where the man he wanted was to be found, and that escape from Halifax and from the officers would have been an easy matter; but he was tired of idleness and wandering, and did not care to make an effort to get away. He believes the disclosure of his whereabouts came through the fact that his presence in Halifax was known to two friends, who accompanied him from Connecticut to St. John, N. B., and then to Halifax. These friends, who were on a vacation, have returned home. When arrested Trask had about $40 in his possession.

New Bedford Celebrating.

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 12.—Under the most favorable auspices possible the week of jubilee in observance of the 50th anniversary of the city opened yesterday at 9:35, when President McKinley pressed the button in Washington and, with a message of congratulation and good wishes, set the machinery of the industrial exhibit in motion. The president's congratulations were suitably responded to by the committee. An address of welcome by Mayor Ashley was followed by an oration by ex-Congressman Crapo.

The day's festivities closed with a mammoth lantern bicycle parade by the local cycle clubs. Some 1200 wheels, all gayly decorated and illuminated, were in line, and the demonstration was the biggest thing of the kind ever known here. The costuming and the various devices were unique in many instances. Several prizes were awarded for the best displays. Today was governor's day, the program providing for a military parade, a playout of hand engines in the afternoon and a banquet at the Parker House.

Plain Names Were Called.

Nashua, N. H., Oct. 12.—The second meeting of the depositors of the Security Trust company, who are endeavoring to get an account of their standing from Assignee L. F. Thurber, was held last night, and proved to be the hottest meeting over financial affairs in this city for years, some very plain names being called. Secretary F. M. Shaw of the committee reported that Assignee Thurber refused to allow the committee to examine the books, stating as his reason that one of the creditors, through an attorney, had notified him that unless all the creditors could be represented there could be no examination of the books except at the assignee's own risk.

A controversy ensued between Messrs. DeWolfe and Russell, each making some startling statements in regard to the condition of the company's affairs. Mr. DeWolfe stated that one of the officers of the bank had lost $200,000 through its failure, and that another officer of the bank was so badly in debt that it was stated by an official that if he lived to be 675,000 years old he could not pay his bills.

Weavers Want More Pay.

Clinton, Mass., Oct. 12.—About 20 weavers in the Clinton Worsted company's mill have refused to go to work until their demands for an increase in the prices paid for weaving are complied with. About 60 hands have been forced out. The company claims it is paying the market price already, and it is stated that if a settlement is not soon reached both mills of the company will be stopped. About 100 hands will be thrown out.

William Rodgers, the head of the company, has offered an advance of 15 per cent, which he claims is as much as he can afford at present, but the weavers are not disposed to accept it. A few of them held a meeting last night and decided not to resum work until a further advance was offered. Mr. Rodgers says that in 1894 a cut of one cent per yard was made, but that the price was restored in 1895. The weavers claim, on the other hand, that on account of the bad warps the old price has not been restored.

Great Day For Boston.

Boston, Oct. 12.—Brigadier General Carter, chief marshal of the frigate Constitution centennial parade, has received news that the North Atlantic squadron will arrive here, possibly tomorrow, and will be composed of the following vessels: Massachusetts, New York, Brooklyn, Iowa, Indiana, Maine, and in all probability the Puritan. The Dolphin will also be present. It is expected that there will be 1400 sailors and marines, 40 of the naval brigade and 150 members of the Kearsarge naval veterans in line.

The ceremonies at the old South church will commence at 1 p. m. and will finish about 2:30. In the meantime the parade will form on Atlantic avenue, with the right resting on State street. In the evening the vessels in the harbor will be illuminated. Chief Marshal Carter is endeavoring to have all the vessels in the upper harbor lighted so that the illumination will be striking and unique.

Mayor Pressed Button.

Holyoke, Mass., Oct. 12.—Ten thousand people saw Mayor George H. Smith press the button that lighted the electric flag which signalled the opening of Holyoke's festival week at 7:30 o'clock last night. The buildings in the city are completely covered with elaborate decorations, and electrical arches have been erected in different sections. Simultaneously with the lighting of the flag every arch in the city was set ablaze, each having from 100 to 500 incandescent lamps.

The exercises were brief, and consisted of a short address by Mayor Smith, after which the guests were received by a committee consisting of the directors of the Business Men's association.

Death of a Politician.

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 12.—Jeremiah T. O'Sullivan, the well known Lawrence editor and politician, died at Asheville, N. C., Monday morning. Consumption was the cause of death. The announcement was not unexpected, as O'Sullivan had been in a critical condition for some time, although a letter received Sunday from his brother stated that "Jerry" had improved and was doing well.

O'Sullivan was born in Lawrence in 1871. He was educated in the public schools and afterwards attended the law school of Boston university. He became engaged in newspaper work soon afterwards, and at different times was employed in Lowell, Holyoke, Lawrence and other places.

Capture of Alleged Embezzler.

Boston, Oct. 12.—John H. Colville, who is under arrest in San Francisco on a charge of embezzlement, was formerly bookkeeper for the Frank Locke company, liquor dealers. He disappeared last month. The books of the firm were examined and it was found that there was a shortage of about $1500. The police have been at work on the case ever since, and when it was found that Colville had friends in Los Angeles and San Francisco, the police of those cities were notified. The fugitive was located in San Francisco Sunday. Mrs. Colville was with her husband when he was arrested. About $400 were found on him.

"Down Brakes, and Reverse!"

When a train is discovered rushing on to a frightful collision, it is a thrilling instant as the engineer whistles "Down brakes!" and reverses his lever. Brakes alone are not enough; the whole propelling power of the engine must be reversed and made to work in the opposite direction. That is how it is sometimes with disease.

There are times when the system is flying along the track of disease at such a frightful pace that no ordinary methods will prevent disaster. There are plenty of medicines which act merely as brakes to "slow up" the disease and put off disaster for a little while; but that isn't enough. What is needed is a medicine that will instantly reverse the entire wasting, degenerating process.

When people are losing flesh and strength and vitality, with the life oozing out of them day after day, they need Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which acts directly upon the vital forces, completely transforms the entire nutritive organism and totally reverses the wasting, debilitating process which is at the root of all diseases.

It enables the digestive and blood-making organs to supply the circulation with an abundance of pure, healthy, red blood. It stops the wasting of tissue, builds up solid muscular flesh and healthy nerve-force.

Miss Mary Whitman, of East Dickinson, Franklin Co., N. Y., writes: "For nearly ten months I have had a bad cough, and instead of getting better, it grew worse, until I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I hesitated at first, for it seemed to me nothing would give relief only death. My parents were anxious about me, and I was said to have consumption. I tried your medicines, and before I had taken many doses there was a great change. When the second bottle was empty I had no cough and was a great deal stronger."

TO TALK TWO DAYS.

Luetgert Jury Listens to an Argument For the State.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—The final arguments have commenced in the Luetgert trial, and the case will be given to the jury by the end of the present week. Assistant State Attorney McEwan began the opening address for the state, and he will speak for two days at least. He will be followed by Attorney Phelan for the defense, and Attorney Vincent will close in behalf of Luetgert. Then will come the closing of the state, which will be made by State Attorney Deneen.

Attorney McEwan addressed the jury for three hours yesterday afternoon and had barely outlined his argument at the hour of adjournment. He resumed the argument this morning and will talk all day. "The state was conservative in its assertions as to what it would prove on the witness stand some weeks ago," said the speaker in his opening remarks. "We made no boasts. We told you in the simpliest language just what the evidence would disclose. Our promises have been fulfilled. The claim has been made that we have failed to establish properly the corpus delicti, and I suspect you will hear much about this from the attorneys on the other side. The body of the crime has been sufficiently shown by the circumstances which establish that Mrs. Luetgert met her death through a criminal agency. There is no more necessity of proving the corpus delicti further than there would be to produce a house in court to prove that a person on trial for burglary broke into it, or to produce the horse before the jury which a thief is alleged to have stolen."

The speaker referred to the fact that nearly six months had elapsed since Mrs. Luetgert had disappeared from her home. Then the case was taken up chronologically and all the incidents were traced briefly down to the date of the opening of the trial.

TRAGEDY IN LEOMINSTER.

Famile Troubles Thought to Be the Cause of a Terrible Act.

Leominster, Mass., Oct. 12.—This town was thrown into a high state of excitement yesterday by a murder and suicide at the home of the Boynton family, 148 Main street. The victim of the murder was Mrs. John F. Boynton, a highly respectable woman, 51 years of age. She was shot and killed by her husband, 58 years old, who then took his own life by another bullet from the same 32-caliber revolver.

The couple had not lived happily together for several years. Early in the morning they had a dispute which ended in the tragedy. A dressmaker living in another part of the house heard Mrs. Boynton scream for help and rushed into the latter's apartment. There she found Boynton pounding his wife on the floor. The dressmaker started to the neighbors for help, and just as she left the house she heard two shots, and then two more in quick succession.

When she returned to the house, in company with several neighbors, Mrs. Boynton was found lying on the floor of the room, her head and face a mass of bruises and two bullet wounds in her forehead. She lay in a pool of blood, fully dressed. Her hisband was lying on the bed, his forehead likewise pierced by two bullets, and the revolver was resting upon his breast. Near the bed was an ax, which he had evidently used upon his wife before shooting.

Although Mr. Boynton was not a drinking man, he was not held in high repute by the townspeople. His wife, however, was highly respected and was spoken of as an estimable woman. The couple have four sons, grown up, three of whom lived at home. The family has lived in Leominster for several years. About six years ago Mr. Boynton was committed to an asylum for treatment for a mild form of insanity. He was discharged in about four months, apparently cured, but during the past five weeks he had again attracted attention by his peculiar hallucinations and strange talk.

INDIGNANT ITALIANS.

Increased Taxation the Cause of a Riotous Demonstration.

Rome, Oct. 12.—A large procession of tradesmen, headed by the pro-syndic of Rome and the president of the chamber of commerce, marched to the office of the minister of the interior yesterday to protest against and confer with the government regarding the increased taxation. Premier Rudini, who is also minister of the interior, received a committee representing the tradesmen and promised that all possible would be done to promote friendly relations and greater equity between the tax collectors and taxpayers.

In the meanwhile a large crowd of people had collected around the ministry. Angry shouts were heard and some of those present tore up paving stones and otherwise assumed a very threatening attitude. This caused the police to make an attempt to disperse the violent portion of the crowd, and in the conflict which followed six policemen were injured and one rioter was killed.

The mob raised revolutionary cries, while the fighting was in progress, revolvers were freely used, many persons in the crowd were injured and 20 of the leaders of the disturbance were arrested. The condition of three of the wounded policemen is serious.

It is estimated that there were at least 20,000 people in the procession that escorted the deputation to the offices of the minister of the interior. The authorities, it was quite evident, had failed to make adequate provision for maintaining order in such a vast and crowded assembly. The people were irritated at being excluded from the building by the carabineers, and presently a second detachment issued with fixed bayonets and tried to clear the piazza. The crowd then resisted, the stone throwing began and the conflict speedily became general until an infantry detachment appeared on the scene.

Change In Cuban Conditions.

Havana, Oct. 12.—As evidence of more liberal treatment of affairs upon the part of the Spanish authorities, a local paper has been permitted to reproduce interviews, printed in the New York Herald, with a number of Cubans of New York city, in which the latter say they are fighting for the independence of Cuba and not to obtain home rule for the island.

General Weyler has issued an amnesty decree, which includes nearly all the deported Cubans, who will thus be able to return to their homes. Weyler leaves for Spain on the 20th.

TEMPTATION TOO MUCH

Premium Clerk of Insurance Society an Absconder.

Wrote to His Superior an Acknowledgment of Guilt.

Worsted Operatives Make a Request For an Advance.

Boston, Oct. 13.—The Herald says that William J. Haines, premium clerk of the Equitable Life Assurance society in this city, is missing, and that he is a confessed defaulter. Resident Secretary Warren had reason to make inquiries for him over a premium after Haines disappeared. Yesterday a letter came to Mr. Warren in which Haines said that he was unable to resist temptation with large sums of money passing through his hands daily.

Mr. Warren, with several assistants, is at work on the books. It is not known how much money has been taken, but the amount is estimated by those who should know at about $3700. Haines was not under bonds, and his books were all right apparently up to a short time ago.

Worsted Operatives Want More Pay.

Providence, Oct. 13.—The grievance committee of the Textile Workers' union called upon Charles Fletcher of the National worsted mills yesterday relative to an advance in wages. Mr. Fletcher regarded it as quite natural that the operatives should expect an increase of wages, as the share of the improvement in industrial conditions, but he expected his employes to make the request themselves. He said that the desired increase is likely to be given towards the close of the present season, when the change from lightweight to heavyweights is about to be made. He made no promises and was non-commital so far as definite terms were concerned, indicating that at the proper time he would be ready to arrange affairs with his employes. Better prices must prevail on the goods to be put on the market between now and January.

From a reliable source it is intimated that when a change is made it will very likely be a restoration of the schedule of wages that prevailed prior to the cut-down in 1893, and that it will be applied to all other departments as well as the weaving. A restoration of that schedule will amount to an average of 20 per cent or more.

The operatives will meet again tomorrow to receive the report of the committee. From present indications it is thought there will be an adjustment of the matter without trouble.

Unanimously Declined.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 13.—The striking shoe makers held a mass meeting last night, about 400 being present, representing Stoughton, Whitman, Rockland and Brockton. The sole fasteners, finishers, edgemakers and machine operators' unions were well represented. It was voted unanimously to reject the proposition of the manufacturers, who offered two cents per pair to sole fasteners and to take back men only as they needed them.

Most of the manufacturers are now determined to fight all winter, as the season is now so spoiled that they can do nothing on their present run of work. Several manufacturers threaten to quit the business and retire rather than to have more trouble with their help. The sole fasteners are waiting for admission to the Boot and Shoe Makers' union when they expect that the other unions will help them out of their trouble by striking. There is much doubt, however, that the lasters will again go out on strike at least until April.

Criticised the Governor.

Boston, Oct. 13.—The Massachusetts Democratic club held a meeting at the American House last night. Pierre Humbert, Jr., chairman, gave an account of the work done by the club in the state, and said that for the first time in the politics of the state a club had engaged in a fight to the finish with the agents of corruption, and then he proceeded to tell about the destruction of "the rottenest ring that ever existed in the state convention at Worcester."

Oliver Downing criticised Governor Wolcott for charging that one-fourth of the voters of the state, in their affiliation with the Chicago platform, were a menace to the nation.

May Be Wife Murder.

Newton, Mass., Oct. 13.—Kate Seery, 55 years old, lies at the Newton hospital at the point of death, suffering from injuries inflicted, she alleges, by her husband, James Seery, who is locked up charged with assault with intent to kill.

The assault was of the most brutal character, and has caused a profound sensation in the Nonantum district, where the man and his wife are both well known. There were no witnesses to the affair, and the man steadfastly maintains his innocence, while the woman's condition is such that no coherent statement can be obtained from her.

In Less Than Half an Hour

Concord, N. H., Oct. 13.—What is believed to be the shortest jury trial on record in this state took place in the supreme court for Merrimack county yesterday. The case was that of the state vs. Edward Cox of Pembroke, accused of selling malt liquor, a second offense. County Solicitor Fletcher presented the state's case, and two witnesses testified. The defense offered no evidence and the case was given to the jury. A verdict of guilty was brought in and a fine of $50 and costs imposed, all in less than 30 minutes.

Received Mortal Wound.

Boston, Oct. 13.—Patrolman P. J. Leahy of station five had a fight with five young men soon after 11:30 last night over a prisoner he had arrested, charged with drunkenness. As a result of the battle William F. Fanfil, 20 years old, is dying at the city hospital, having been shot in the left lung by the patrolman. The bullet entered his back and passed through the breast over the heart Patrolman Leahy is at his home, with eight deep gashes in his head, a black eye and other injuries.

Motorman Killed Instantly.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 13.—Edward F. Gorman, a motorman on the Brockton street railway, was struck by the 4:30 train for Boston on the New York, New Haven and Hartford road yesterday afternoon and instantly killed. He had stepped on the track in front of the train, which he did not see in time to avoid owing to a number of freight cars on a side track obstructing the view. Gorman's head was crushed and the trunk was badly cut up. He was 29 years old and unmarried.

Landmark Destroyed.

Leominster, Mass., Oct. 13.—The Wilder homestead, house and barn, owned by Emmons Crocker of Fitchburg and situated on the shore of Whalom lake, was burned flat by an accidental fire yesterday afternoon. The house was built in 1695, was a historical landmark and one of the oldest buildings in Worcester county. The combined loss is $3000; insurance, $1200. Edward Griffin, a farmhand, was very badly burned while attempting to extinguish the fire and may die.

Entered Cash as Credit Account.

Marlboro, Mass., Oct. 13.—George Bursley, an order clerk employed by C. G. Creelman & Co., provision dealers, was before the municipal court yesterday charged by the firm with embezzlement. Mr. Creelman testified that according to inquiry into customers' accounts $244.77 were the sum missed. Bursley was held for the grand jury on probable cause. The allegation is that he received cash from customers, but entered the items as credit accounts.

Arrested For Arson.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 13.—The police have discovered evidences of incendiarism in connection with a tenement house fire. The fire broke out in the loft of a tenement occupied by Edward S. Carroll, but was easily subdued by the department. Carroll's son-in-law, Hiland U. Cass, with whom he had quarrelled, and who was seen to leave the loft just before the fire broke out, has been arrested. He asserts his innocence.

Candidate For Auditor.

Boston, Oct. 13.—The Democratic executive committee held a meeting at headquarters yesterday and chose ex-Mayor Joseph H. Sheldon of Haverhill to fill the vacancy on the state ticket caused by the declination of J. L. Chalifoux of Lowell to stand as the candidate for auditor. Resolutions were unanimously adopted on the death of Jeremiah T. O'Sullivan of Lawrence, a member of that body, at his decease.

Washington Man Lost.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Pat Raedy, the local middleweight champion, and Nick Burley, the Californian, met for a sparring bout of 20 rounds in the arena of the Spa Athletic club last night. The men weighed in at less than 158 pounds. In the eighth round Raedy was knocked out. During the first six rounds the fighting was of an ordinary character, but in the last two there was some very lively sparring. Raedy was knocked down five times.

Check Said to Be Worthless.

Rochester, Oct. 13.—Edwin W. Frake, a traveling man who lives in Bridgeport, Conn., was arrested yesterday on the charge of passing a worthless check for $150 at the Hotel Eggleston. A woman was with Frake when he was captured. The check was drawn on a Connecticut bank, and was signed with Frake's name. The bank telegraphed that Frake had no funds on deposit.

Deadly Quarrel of Sailors.

New York, Oct. 13.—Johanas Boyson and Gottfried Tiets, two young sailors, quarrelled last night in a boarding house, and Boyson shot Tietz in the breast and then shot himself in the abdomen. Both men were taken to a hospital, where Boyson soon afterwards died. Tietz cannot recover. He had signed articles to leave this port today as mate on a schooner.

Wild Gale In Maine.

Portland, Me., Oct. 13.—One of the wildest gales that have swept along the coast for months prevailed in this vicinity yesterday afternoon. Reports from incoming vessels were to the effect that a terrible sea was running outside, and that if any vessels were obliged to remain out all night in the storm their chances for reaching port in safety were not very bright. No disasters have been reported.

Texas Robbers Go Through a Train Near Austin.

Conductor Ran When Confronted by Revolvers.

Passengers Forced to Give Up Every Cent In Their Possession.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 13.—Within a 20 minutes' run to this city, one of the boldest acts of lawlessness perpetrated in this state of sensational episodes was committed Tuesday afternoon. A southbound train, locally designated as the "cannon ball," on the International and Great Northern railroad, consisting of mail, baggage and express cars and three coaches loaded with passengers, was held up by four men and robbed. Conductor Healy carries evidence in his arm of the determination of the villains, and the shirt collar of a passenger was carried away by a bullet that would have finished him had it reached the neck. Another man was wounded in the hand.

When the train reached McNeil, a small station 14 miles above this city, two men, heavily armed, took their stand on the rear platform. After the conductor had checked up the train he reached the platform, only to find a pistol at each side of his head. The men demanded that he stop the train. He declined to do so and began to run through the train with the robbers in close pursuit. He had not gone half the length of the first car when the foremost robber shot at him, bringing him to the floor with a pistol wound in the right arm. At this juncture the other robber pulled the bellcord, and the train was brought to a standstill.

It was evidently at the appointed place, for the train had hardly stopped before two other men, whose faces were covered with masks, stepped out from among the trees and began shooting into the cars. Instantly all was confusion. The two men on the train were immediately joined by those from the woods and began their work. As the colored train porter sprang from the rear coach and ran for shelter, a robber began to shoot at him, and the negro emptied a revolver in turn without effect. The express messenger looked out of his car and, taking in the situation, left the car and was soon lost to sight. The robbers, leaving two men to guard the three coaches, proceeded to the express car and demanded that the baggageman open the express safe, but upon being assured that he could not do so they turned their attention to the passengers. They took only money from them, not overlooking a single cent and walking two by two through the cars so as to always keep their eyes on the passengers.

Having secured about $200 in this manner, they uncoupled the engine from the train and started it off down the track. After going several miles they set the lever at a moderate gait and left the engine. The engine came into the flag station at Duval and was there captured, the station agent returning with it to the scene of the robbery. The train was then brought to this city. Officers have gone to the scene with bloodhounds to search for the robbers.

A Physician's Friends Alarmed.

New York, Oct. 13.—F. W. Kinsman, a druggist, asked the police to send out a special alarm for Dr. George Brackett of Augusta, Me. Mr. Kinsman is a townsman of Dr. Brackett and acted at the request of his relatives in Augusta, who telegraphed him that Dr. Brackett had disappeared. The dispatch stated that Dr. Brackett's mind was probably affected.

Mr. Kinsman said that Dr. Brackett called at his store on Saturday, but, as he was extremely busy at the time, he did not talk to him and did not learn where he was staying. He seemed mentally sound. He also heard from Dr. Brackett by telephone on Sunday. He thinks that the doctor is all right and is staying at some hospital. Dr. Brackett is married and has been in practice in Augusta for six years. He is about 35 years old.

A Newspaper's Protest.

London, Oct. 13.—The Daily Chronicle today, mentioning the rumor that the government "intends to do something for silver, not involving the opening of the Indian mints, but involving a conference which the English delegates would attend with a free hand," asks editorially: "Are we to be plunged into an acute and dangerous controversy over the currency problem? Is this a time for the foremost financial center of christendom to revert to the stage from which other states are seeking to rise? We protest against any such action merely to oblige the United States, who do nothing to oblige us."

Shortage Due to Insanity.

Cleveland, Oct. 13.—An application has been made for an inquest of lunacy in the case of Archibald McLaren, a prominent Scotchman. Mr. McLaren has been for several years the treasurer of the Society of Scottish clans. Recently it was discovered that he was short $15,000 in his accounts. It is not believed the money was embezzled. McLaren's family and friends say his mind is unbalanced, and they believe the missing money is on deposit somewhere, but he cannot tell where.

MAY BE MURDER.

Q. & B. Motorman Has Skull Fractured.

Brutally Assaulted Last Night in Boston.

A Quincy Man Arrested Today for the Deed.

A probable murder occurred in front of the Boston & Albany railroad station on Kneeland street at just 11 last night says the Globe.

A man who has since been indentified as James Haley of East Milton, is now at the city hospital, suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries which will probably prove fatal.

The details of the affair are surrounded in mystery. Who his assailants were, other than that they were a trio of young men, is absolutely unknown, as is also any reason or provocation for the crime.

Just after 11 the officials in charge of the Lagrange street station were notified through police headquarters of a call for an ambulance from the Albany depot. A man had been discovered lying unconscious on the street there showing marks of injury about the face. The ambulance was sent, and Haley, then unknown, taken to the city hospital.

Inquiry as to how he could have received the injuries, then thought to be slight, developed the fact that he had been seen to be assaulted by one of three men with whom he was talking and who later escaped by running through the depot.

One of the men, described as a man fully 6 feet tall and powerfully built, had struck Haley a blow with his fist, it appeared, that knocked him to the sidewalk. Then all three made off before any one could stop them.

The man may have received his injury from striking the sidewalk in his fall as he was knocked down by the blow, but the city hospital doctors do not believe such was the case. Their idea is that Haley's skull was fractured by a powerful blow from some blunt instrument, possibly a blackjack.

Robbery did not seem to have been the motive for the assault, as on Haley's person was found his watch and a considerable amount of money. A revolver and a pint of whisky was also found on him.

Mr. Haley was never station agent at East Milton but was at one time gate tender at the Adams street crossing.

Of late he has been motorman on the Quincy & Boston street railway of this city. He was 28 years old last June and resides with his parents on the corner of Adams and Pierce streets at East Milton.

AN ARREST.

J. H. Whitney, who it is alleged was with Haley in Boston Tuesday night, was arrested by Insepctor McKay at his boarding house his morning for Capt. Warren of Station 4, Boston, who claims to have evidence that Whitney struck the blow.

When seen at the police station by a repesentative of the Ledger, after his arrest, Whitney said he was with Haley for about five minutes Tuesday night. He said that he met him on Washington street, Boston, near Broadway about 9.10, that Haley asked him to come into Mullane's bar room and have a drink. That they went in and had two drinks.

While in Mullane's Haley introduced him to two friends; one whose name was Freeman and the other he does not remember, although he says that he should recognize him if he saw him again.

Leaving the three in the bar room he went out and bought a veil for his wife and then went back and told Haley he was going to Quincy on the 9.30 train. Haley replied that he was not going out until 11.30.

Whitney says that he and the two friends started out leaving Haley in Mullane's. He walked as far as Harrison avenue with the two, when he left them and went into Doherty's and purchased a pint of whiskey, which he brought home with him on the 9.30 train.

Officer Morrissey who is on duty nights in City Square says that Whitney came out on the train due here at 9.51, and that he walked as far as the Greenleaf block, where he left him, and that Whitney started up Granite street.

Whitney says that he went home and did not return to Boston and therefore could not have been with Haley when he was struck.

Officers of Station 4 came to Quincy on the noon train and took Whitney to Boston.

Whitney is but little known in Quincy, outside of the emloyes of the street railway. He came to Quincy last spring in the interest of a Casulty Insurance Company, and shortly after accepted a position as an extra conductor on the street railway.

Haley also went to work for the street railway about the same time, as an extra motorman..

WITH A REVOLVER.

Suicide of Edward C. Winneberger Last Evening.

Edward C. Winneberger committed suicide Tuesday night by shooting himself through the right temple with a 38 caliber revolver.

It was about 6.40 o'clock when people at the City Hospital heard a shot but took no notice of it. Some ten minutes later two girls employed in the laundry at the Hospital left for home and as they passed in the rear of the Hospital they saw a man laying near the street. Thinking that it was one of the men employed at the Hospital who was trying to frighten them they began to poke him with their umbrellas. Being unable to arouse him they became frightened and ran back to the Hospital and gave the alarm. Miss Thayer the matron went out and discovered that the man was dead. The medical examiner and police were notified and quicky responded, and as it was evidently a case of suicide the body was removed to Hall's undertaking rooms. Here a more thorough examination was made, and it was discovered that he had evidently placed the revolver close to the head before firing the fatal shot, as their was quite a hole where the ball entered. As there was nothing to show that the ball came out it was evidently imbedded in the skull.

The body was promptly identified as that of Edward C. Winneberger who has resided in Quincy for many years. He was a carriage painter by trade and had been employed in various shops but of late had been in business for himself at Quincy Point.

He roomed on Washington street and took his meals with his brother on Goffe street. He was about 42 years of age and unmarried. His brother can give no cause for the rash act and his family noticed nothing unusual in his actions.

DODGE—CUMMINGS.

A Quincy Young Lady Married in New Hampshire.

Many in Quincy were interested in a wedding which took place on Tuesday among the hills of the pretty town of Pittsfield, N. H., for the bride has lived in Quincy, was graduated from our High school, and is the sister of Mrs. A. E. Sproul of Hancock street.

The bride was Miss Finette Maude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cummings of Pittsfield, and the groom, Mr. Chester Parker Dodge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dodge of Gloucester, Mass.

The ceremony was performed at "Lakemount" the home of the bride's parents, the picturesque house having been beautifully decorated for the occasion with autumn foliage, etc. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. John E. Dame of Dover, N. H.

Only the immediate relatives of the bridal couple were present, and these included Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Sproul, Mrs. Jennie S. Morrison, Master Homer C. Morrison and Master Avard C. Sproul of Quincy.

A dainty wedding breakfast followed the ceremony and then the happy couple left on a bridal tour.

Several of the gifts were from Quincy friends and included china, silver, cut glass, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Dodge will make their home in Beverly, Mass., and will be at home after Dec. 1. They have the best wishes of many Quincy friends.

HOSPITAL FESTIVAL.

Festivities to Occupy Part of Three Weeks.

The general committee having in charge the annual festival for the benefit of the City Hospital, met Tuesday evening at the Council chamber, City Hall.

There was not a large attendance owing to the weather, and but few reports were received from the chairman of the committees.

It was decided to open festival with a grand entertainment Saturday evening, Nov. 6, and to hold the fair upon the last four days of the next week.

Also to hold a grand ball some night the week following the festival. Messrs. Fred B. Rice, Delcevare King and George H. Field were appointed a committee on the ball, with power to add to their number if they desired.

Mr. Walter E. Loud was made chairman of the Music Committee and it was voted that he should see what arrangements could be made for music for each evening and to report at the next meeting.

Mr. H. W. Lull was made a member of the ticket committee in place of S. M. Moxon who is out of town.

The entertainment committee was authorized to provide some entertainment for the children on Saturday, at such hour as was thought best.

Some inquiries were made as to what was needed for refreshments and this matter was left in the hands of the Refreshment Committee to use their own judgment.

Mr. Theophilus King was made a committee of one to confer with the street railway officials and see what they could do this year.

It was voted that the Executive Committee and the chairman of the subcommittees meet at the new hall next Saturday morning at 8 o'clock in order to lay out the hall.

Messrs. D. E. Wadsworth, John F. Merrill and A. F. Bussell were appointed a committee to have charge of the decorations of the hall.

THE PERSONAL TAX.

Those Who Would Be Benefitted by Its Abolition.

As noted in the Ledger Monday the Tax Commission propose to abolish the present taxes on intangible personal, such as stocks bonds and securities, loans on mortgages, income.

It will be of interest to see how this would operate in Quincy. The Assessors' books for 1897 show valuations on this class of property as per the list below. The common way of assessment is for "Money, stocks, bonds and income;" but in several cases it is for "personal mortgage; in some cases for stock in particular corporations; in others for capital, and in a few instances "capital and stock" which would have to be divided.

VIEWED THE FENCE.

Commissioners and Railroad Men at Wollaston.

Just before 2 o'clock this afternoon the Railroad Commissioners, General Superintendent Allen, Superintendent French and others arrived at Wollaston to view "that fence" which still stands opposite the depot, but which is still as obnoxious to Wollaston citizens as ever. It was the quiet part of the day and there was very few people astir.

The best time to view the scene is at train time between 7 and 9 A. M. and 4.30 and 6.30 P. M. when most of the passengers take in the postoffice on their way to or from the trains.

The removal of the fence is what the Wollaston people ask. The visitors also viewed the Beale street bridge which is altogether too narrow the proposed extension of Beale street under the tracks ,and also gave some thought to the subway suggested.

Wollaston people are getting impatient, and want prompt action.

We live in a country of which the principal scourage is stomach-trouble.

It is more wide-spread than any other disease, and, very nearly, more dangerous is that it is so little understood.

If it were better understood, it would be more feared, more easily cured, less universal than it is now.

So, those who wish to be cured take Shaker Digestive Cordial, becaus it goes to the root of the trouble as no other medicine does. The pure, harmless, curative herbs and plants, of which it is composed, are what render it so certain and, at the same time, so gentle a cure.

Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1 per bottle.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. Suspicious Circumstance Connected With Broken Pane.

Camden, N. J., Oct. 13.—Early Tuesday morning a young man named Eli Shaw was heard shouting for the police at the third story of his house. When officers arrived to inquire as to his wants, Shaw, who has been laid up with typhoid fever, said that he was awakened shortly after 4 o'clock by a pistol shot. He made his way down stairs, and at the bottom of the third story stairs found his mother bleeding and unconscious. He ran to the window and gave the alarm.

Mrs. Vane, aged 65 years, was found dead in a chair in the sitting room with a bullet wound in her head. Her daughter, Sarah M. Shaw, aged 40, was unconscious near-by. Mrs. Shaw was at once removed to Cooper hospital, where she died in a few minutes.

The post mortem examination disclosed that both women had been killed by pistol shot wounds, and two 32-calibre bullets were extracted from their heads. Eli Shaw was examined by two Philadelphia detectives, but at the end of the inquiry he was not detained. The police say that the glass of one of the kitchen windows, supposed to have been smashed by burglars while gaining entrance to the house, was, as a matter of fact, broken from the inside. Further than this they have no clew.

Old Charter Rights Upheld.

New York, Oct. 13.—The court of appeals, in the case of Henry W. Sage against the mayor, has handed down a decision that affects all the land around the island of Manhattan which was formerly in the tideway, and which is valued at over $45,000,000. The suit was brought by Mr. Sage, who was the owner of land on the Harlem river.

The city, in carrying out its plan of improvement, filled in a strip in front of Mr. Sage's land in what is known as the "tideway," that is, the land lying between the high and low water marks. He claimed that the owners of land fronting on the river either owned the land in the tideway when it was filled in by the city, or, if they did not own it, they were entitled to the right of access from the water to their own upland, even if the land should be held to extend only to high water mark.

The rights of the city in relation to the land between high and low water marks are derived from the Dongan charter of 1686 and the Montgomerie charter of 1730. Both Judge Barrett, who tried the case, and the appellate division, on an appeal from Judge Barrett's decision, held that the city of New York under these charters had an absolute ownership of all the land between low and high water mark, and that the construction of an exterior street and bulkhead by the city gave no right of action for damages to an owner of upland who, by this construction, was cut off from the water. This decision has just been affirmed.

Just as Bad as Russia.

Leipsic, Oct. 13.—The supreme court has dismissed the appeal of William Leibnicht, the socialist leader and editor, against the sentence of four months' imprisonment passed against him Nov. 14, 1895, for lese majeste, committed in his speech at the opening of the socialist congress at Breslau on Oct. 7 of that year. Liebnicht, therefore, will shortly undergo the sentence.

The trial aroused public attention in Germany to the unsound condition of the judicial process. The judgment of the trial court actually admitted that he was specially careful to select words with a view of avoiding a charge of lese majeste, but condemned him because "he ought to have considered the possibility that some persons among his audience would find in them a meaning constituting lese majeste."

The Vorwaertz, the socialist organ, commenting upon this dictum of the judge at the time, said: If an offense no longer depends upon the nature of the words used or upon the intention of the speaker, but upon how third parties may choose to interpret them, the most harmless expression may render the speaker liable to imprisonment.

Winner of Three Cups.

New York, Oct. 13.—W. J. Travis of the Oakland Golf club defeated C. M. Hamilton in the semi-finals for the challenge cup at the Oakland links at Bayside, L. I., by six up and four to go. After defeating Hamilton he defeated M. R. Wright, the Philadelphian, in the finals. By so doing Travis won his third cup for the season, one at Norwood, one at Westwood and the third at Oakland.

Wright defeated Foxhall Keene in the semi-finals by six up and four to play, and it was about the worst defeat Keene ever experienced. A feature of the game was Wright's last shot on the ninth hole. He was 150 feet away, and hit the ball. The wind held it back and it dropped squarely into the hole.

Republicans Lost a City.

Chattanooga, Oct. 13.—The municipal election yesterday resulted in the overwhelming defeat of the Republican ticket. Colonel Watkins, a Democrat, was elected mayor by 995 majority. The Democrats elected six out of the eight aldermen.

This city is nominally Republican by from 400 to 500, and the overwhelming reversal condition is due to apathy of the Republican voters and the disaffection of the negroes. There was a very light vote, only 3500 being cast.

Pugilist Rendered Unconscious.

New Orleans, Oct. 13.—The Tulane Athletic club opened its big new arena last night with a finish fight between Walter Griffin and Jack Cummings, featherweights. Cummings was put out in the 15th round. After he was counted out he failed to regain consciousness and was taken to the charity hospital. He was still unconscious at a late hour, and it is feared that he will die. Griffin will be arrested.

SHERMAN'S REPLY.

Surprised That British Refused to Confer With Japan and Russia.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Secretary Sherman has written a reply to the note of Lord Salisbury expressing Great Britain's declination to take part in a Behring sea conference in which Russia and Japan are to participate. The essential features of Mr. Sherman's reply have been sent by cable to the British government, and the reply in full is now on its way to the British authorities. Lord Salisbury's note of declination, it can now be stated, bore date of Oct. 6, last Wednesday, so that the response is made with promptness.

The answer states that the United States government views with astonishment the determination of Great Britain not to participate in a conference including Japan and Russia, and the statement is made that up to the 23rd of last month the United States authorities had fully expected that the conference would proceed with Russia and Japan as well as Great Britain present. It is pointed out that, aside from the written correspondence, to which Lord Salisbury had called attention, there were verbal negotiations between Ambassador Hay and his lordship in which specific reference was made to the participation of Russia and Ja[illegible] At one of these verbal exch[illegible]s, it is stated, Lord Salisbury said he would advise with the officials of the foreign office concerning the subjects discussed, which included the participation of Russia and Japan. Subsequently, on July 29, Ambassador Hay wrote to Lord Salisbury saying that the president hoped to have Russia and Japan participate in the conference. In view of these circumstances the United States had confidently expected that Great Britain would take part in the conference and that Russia and Japan would be represented with the approval of Great Britain.

Besides the foregoing reply, and in view of the differences which have arisen, the state department suggests a conference in accordance with the terms of Lord Salisbury's agreement as he construes it, namely, between experts of Great Britain, the United States and Canada. This last feature is now under consideration by the British government, its substance having been transmitted by cable; but it is not expected that an answer will be made until Mr. Sherman's answer in detail reaches London.

In the meantime preparations for the conference between the United States Russia and Japan are proceeding. While an exact date has not yet been fixed for the conference, the expectation is that all the delegates will be here in time to bring them together Oct. 20.

Houston's Fever Cases.

Houston, Oct. 13.—The city woke up yesterday to find itself in quarantine with the declaration of State Health Officer Swearingen, based on the statement of Dr. Guiteras, that four cases of yellow fever existed here. The public schools were not opened, and this fact created some alarm. Few trains left town, and all were filled. The cases have been promptly isolated.

City health officers carefully investigated several cases called to their attention, but pronounced all of them dengue. All four cases are isolated, but no new ones were found. No trains are running now except one between here and Galveston.

HOTEL AFIRE.

Firemen Had to Help Servants From the Seventh Story.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—At 1:20 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the Sherman House, one of the largest hotels in the city, and, although all of the guests and the servants escaped, there was for a time the liveliest kind of a panic among them. The fire originated in the kitchen from a gas stove and spread with great rapidity.

The hotel is now in the course of being remodelled, the entire first story being supported by jack-screws. This open space gave the fire quite a chance, and the strong breeze that was blowing from the west fanned the fire fiercely. In a few minutes the entire building was filled with a dense cloud of smoke, and the attaches of the hotel office were hurrying through the halls calling on the guests to prepare to leave. Many of the guests needed no warning and were in the halls half dressed and more than ready to make their escape to the open air as soon as they saw a chance to do so. There was a wild rush for the street, and in a few minutes all of them, in all conditions of undress, were in the street, or safely on their way to it.

The servants were located in the seventh story of the hotel, and for a time it looked as though some of them would not be able to reach the street in safety owing to the dense clouds of smoke that filled the building. The firemen were compelled to carry several of the girls down two flights of stairs until they could secure a passage way to the street that was comparatively free from smoke, and from this point all of them manged to make their escape from the building without accident.

The flames were confined to the rear portion of the hotel, and although for a time the fire looked to be dangerous the firemen soon had it under control. The damage to the building will not be over $5000.

SERVIAN POLITICS.

Members of the Liberal Party Robbed and Killed by Radicals.

London, Oct. 13.—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Vienna says: The trial of 200 brigands and receivers of stolen property is proceeding at Tschaischak, in Servia. The evidence has revealed systematic plundering and murdering of members of the Liberal party at the instigation of radicals. Deputy Tajsitch, a well-known radical member of the assembly, was arraigned as an accomplice of the brigands, but the radical minister of justice procured his release, and it is expected that the same influence will secure the acquittal of the others. The trial has developed horrifying evidence of the torturing of victims with red hot irons before robbery.

On a Long Race.

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—The two American clipper ships, Tacoma, Captain Gaffrey, and the Indiana, Captain Colley, sailed out of the Delaware breakwater yesterday afternoon on a 10,000-mile race. Both are from Philadelphia, the former bound for Tacoma and Seattle, and the latter for San Francisco. Arthur Sewall, late candidate for vice president, is sole owner of the Indiana, which has traded around Cape Horn for more than 21 years. It is calculated that she should reach 'Frisco in 120 days. Between the masters of these ships there has been much discussion as to their respective sailing qualities, and each agreed to deposit a sum of money to go to the winning ship after time and distance allowances shall have been made to the one going to the more northern port.

The Tacoma was built in Bath, Me., in 1881, is 1672 tons register and owned by Charles Davenport of Bath, while the Indiana is 1488 tons register and was built in 1876. Mr. Sewall looks upon her as one of his best craft despite her age.

Blockading of Travel.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 13.—The most serious situation now confronting the people of Texas is the almost complete blockading of travel, owing to the yellow fever scare. Many of the trains on all the principal lines have been abandoned and local lines have stopped running entirely. Both divisions of the Houston and Texas Central and the Southern Pacific are tied up most effectually, not a single wheel moving save in the extreme northern portion of the state.

Every small town in the state is rapidly organizing shotgun quarantines, so trains cannot stop except at the big cities. The situation in the entire state is highly panicky, and the feeling is one of growing alarm and apprehension. By tonight, unless the situation is relieved, the entire southern and central portions of the state will be practically without railroad facilities, as all trains will be stopped.

An Unexplained Reversal.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 13.—The sudden reversal in form of last year's champions is inexplicable, unless the new feature of Princeton's play, an open game, is taken into account. Three days ago they were stronger than any of the "big four"; today Harvard and possibly Pennsylvania might defeat them. However, it is evident that Coaches Moffatt, Poe, Ward and George have an object in view in putting the "tigers" through the new form of practice, and in all probability the strongest eleven in the country in open play will be evolved from the line bucking aggregation.

Who Wants a Ball Franchise?

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 13.—The Scranton Baseball association of the Eastern league has given an option on its franchise until Dec. 1 to Scranton stock company promoters. The price is $2500. Brooks and Simpson, the chief owners, will be in the new association, if it is formed, and that seems likely. It is proposed that the club next season shall play Sunday games away from home. Patrick Powers, president of the league, with the owners' consent, tried to place the franchise out of Scranton at $3500, but failed to do so.

Mother and Daughter Drown.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Mrs. Archibald O'Neill and her daughter were drowned last night at Fallsburg. Mr. O'Neill, his wife and two daughters were driving. Their horse ran away, and all four were thrown into the lake. O'Neill saved one of his daughters.

Track Walker Injured.

Dedham, Mass., Oct. 13.—Fred Boenhuger of Jamaica Plain was struck by a train from Boston while walking on the tracks of the N. Y., N. H. and H. road. He was seriously hurt and was sent to a Boston hospital for surgical attention.

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

JOINED SWEETHEART.

Two Suicides Follow Objections to a Marriage.

Poor Marksmanship In Shooting Scrape at Marlboro.

Possibility of a Sympathetic Strike by the Brockton Lasters.

Torrington, Conn., Oct. 14.—What is supposed to be the unfortunate sequel of a love affair was made public yesterday afternoon, when the lifeless body of Herman Fincher was found in the woods about two miles from the center of the town. He had committed suicide by shooting. The discovery was made by a hunter named Bellamy. Examiner Hanchett had no difficulty in identifying the remains.

On the body were found a photograph of Martha Trepcow, who committed suicide a few months ago by taking carbolic acid, and a clipping from a local paper detailing the funeral. It was recalled that the young lady committed suicide on account of objections to her marriage with Fincher.

Fincher was about 21 years of age. He had been employed at the brass mills, and was looked upon by his acquaintances as quite exemplary. He had been paying attentions, it is alleged, to Miss Trepcow for some time, and the details of the marriage had been consummated, but owing to objections, which resulted in the young lady's suicide, Fincher likewise became despondent. He had been missing from his home about 24 hours.

Sympathetic Strike Possible.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 14.—The executive committee of the Lasters' union met last night and decided to call a mass meeting for Friday evening, at which they will decide whether or not to strike in sympathy with the sole fasteners. Many of the sole fasteners look upon this action as their only hope for success. It is generally believed that the lasters will vote to come out, although President McDonald and other members of that organization say that the more conservative of the lasters are decidedly averse to mixing further in the trouble between the manufacturers and sole fasteners. Several members of the union state that the lasters now have a fair understanding with the manufacturers and would not obey an order to strike.

About 100 McKay lasters were present at the meeting last night and unionism and prices were discussed. It is thought that the latter subject was brought up for the reason that in case the lasters should vote to strike in sympathy with the sole fasteners, they might ask for an advance for themselves before they go back.

Got Drunk and Quarreled.

Marlboro, Mass., Oct. 14.—Napoleon Saffeville, Joseph Le Blanc and Leon Labour, who had been drinking together during the day, got into a dispute last night, during which Saffeville struck Labour in the face. Le Blanc said that he would allow no man to do that to him, and thereupon gave Saffeville a blow in the face, knocking him to the ground. Saffeville rose to his feet and, drawing a revolver, fired at Le Blanc, but missed him, although the powder burned Le Blanc's clothing. Then Saffeville fired a shot at Lebour, which also failed of its mission.

A crowd gathered and Saffeville was prevented from firing any more shots, but in the confusion he escaped for the time, being captured later in a saloon by Officer McCarthy. When the officer entered the room Saffeville attempted to draw his weapon, but McCarthy was too quick for him and after a brief struggle succeeded in placing the man under arrest.

Grand Lodge, K. and L. H.

Boston, Oct. 14.—Grand Protector L. C. Tibbitts of South Boston presided at the opening of the 20th annual session of the grand lodge of Massachusetts Knights and Ladies of Honor, and there was a full attendance of officers and members. One new lodge was instituted during the term. The present membership in Massachusetts is 2629; 2206 relief, and 423 social.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: Past grand protector, L. C. Tibbitts of South Boston; grand protector, C. V. Blanchard of Somerville; grand vice protector, Mrs. M. Currier of Everett; grand treasurer, E. F. Roberts of Medford; grand chaplain, Mrs. M. E. Hoyt of South Boston; grand guide, S. W. Harding of Somerville; grand guardian, N. C. Morse of Worcester; grand sentinel, Miss F. C. Hardy of Boston; trustee for three years, R. A. Harding of East Cambridge.

Remorseful or Insane.

Newton, Mass., Oct. 14.—James Seery was arraigned in the Newton police court yesterday charged with assaulting his wife at their home in Nonatum. He was held in $3000 bonds until Oct. 23. Mrs. Seery is in a very serious condition.

Seery is more than 70 years old, and his wife is 65. It is alleged that he had been drinking heavily when the assault was committed. The police report that he threw Mrs. Seery to the floor and then jumped on her. One of her ribs was broken. As she lay on the floor, it is alleged that Seery poured kerosene over her, as if to set fire to her clothing; but two policemen arrived, sent her to a hospital and locked him up. He was found later hanging by his suspenders in his cell, and was cut down just in time to save his life.

Library Building Burned.

Norwich, Vt., Oct. 14.—The dormitory of the old Norwich university was entirely burned last night. Of late it had been utilized for the graded public schools and the public library. The building was valued at $4000, and insured for $1000. The library of 3000 volumes was only partially damaged. It is believed the building was set afire.

Lawbreaker Ily Advised.

Boston, Oct. 14.—Antone Ducangelo, for assaulting Francis De Pietro with intent to murder, was sentenced to state prison for a term of not more than nine years and not less than seven by Judge Sheldon in the superior criminal court yesterday afternoon. The assault happened about a year ago and followed De Pietro's remarks about Ducangelo's wife, who is in Italy. Ducangelo fled the city that night. Recently some of his friends informed him that the charges were outlawed and that he could return to the city with perfect safety. He believed them and returned.

Loss of Over Eight Hundred.

Randolph, Vt., Oct. 14.—The afternoon session of the Good Templars' convention was taken up with officers' reports, that of Grand Chief Templar Heyden showing the general condition of the order to be good. Grand Secretary Edgerton's report showed the membership to be 3231, a loss of over 809 since last year. The loss was attributed mainly to the weeding out of weak lodges and members in arrears for dues. Grand Treasurer Hatch reported receipts of $1,250, with nearly as large an expenditure, and $800 on hand.

Constable Not Guilty.

East Greenwich, R. I., Oct. 14.—Constable Charles Ballou was found not guilty of manslaughter in the superior court. Walter Ballou, his son, who was tried on the same charge, was found guilty, with a recommendation for mercy.

Both men were charged with causing the death of Constable Johnson of Warwick. Johnson died from injuries received during a row with Constable Ballou and his son last summer. The quarrel was the result of a long-standing difficulty.

Ten Thousand Dollars For Scholarship.

Dover, N. H., Oct. 14.—At a meeting of the trustees of the New Hampshire college of agriculture, President Murkland announced that Hamilton Smith had given the state $10,000 for the founding of a scholarship at the college, to be known as the Valentine Smith scholarship. The income of the money will be given to the student from any New Hampshire high school passing the entrance examination with the highest honors and maintaining a certain standard of scholarship.

Amherst Freshmen Happy.

Amherst, Mass., Oct. 14.—The freshmen are the happiest class in Amherst college, and they have reason to be. Yesterday they won the annual cider meet on Pratt field, something that no freshman class has been able to do before. The points stand: Freshmen, 64; juniors, 42; sophomores, 33; seniors, 5. The only Amherst record broken was in the relay race, the time being 3:43 3-4.

ARMY WIPED OUT.

Slaughter of Italian Troops In an Engagement In Abyssinia.

London, Oct. 14.—J. Bennett Stanford, who has just returned from taking part in an expedition to Somaliland, brings news of the annihilation, at the end of June, of an Abyssinian army of 3000 men under the famous General Ras Mackonnen, of which number only 69 men escaped. Mr. Stanford said: "While in the interior we came across a powerful Somali chief, who had just returned from the fight. He told me that the Abyssinian force had been raiding down the Webbe-Shebeyli river, nearly as far as the 40th parallel. The Somilas then overwhelmed them with a large number, allowing 60 men to go back with the news of the defeat. Ras Mackonnen was killed during the battle.

"The affair occurred about 100 miles from where we were. The whole neighborhood is still greatly excited, and the possession of so many Italian rifles by the Somalis is evidence that the story told of the Abyssinian defeat is true."

Was Disguised as a Man.

New York, Oct. 14.—Since her sensational flight from captivity until Saturday evening, Evangelina Cossio was kept concealed somewhere in Havana. A transportation ticket and passport, made out in the name of Juan Sola, were obtained for the girl, so that, before the Seneca weighed anchor, everything was ready for the venture.

Disguised as a man, with her long black hair concealed under a sombrero, she boldly boarded the vessel alone. Two detectives, stationed at the head of the gangway ladder to watch for fugitives, stopped the girl, and, as she waited in suppressed excitement, examined the ticket and passport.

A short time before the vessel sailed the chief of police, accompanied by his deputy and secretary, boarded the Seneca, but made no attempt to search for the fugitive. They examined all the passports, but apparently suspected nothing when they saw the one made out to Mr. Sola. So, after adventures which come to few women, the pretty refugee found herself moving toward the hospitable shores of America. The Stars and Stripes floated from the stern of the Seneca, and the lights of Havana soon faded away.

PHYSICAL DECADENCE.

Physician Who Says American Race Is Threatened.

True Measure of What Represents Vital Capacity.

Great Class of Bankrupts by Hereditary Needs More Attention.

Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 14.—Dr. J. H. Kellogg of Battle Creek read a paper entitled "Are We a Dying Race?" at the civil philanthropic conference Wednesday. He said in part: "Notwithstanding our marvelous accumulation of wealth and wisdom we are certainly going down physically toward race extinction. This assertion will doubtless appear in the highest degree reckless and perhaps absurd, in face of the well known fact that the average length of human life has been doubled within the last two centuries; but vital statistics are not the true measure of the constitutional vigor of the race. The average length of life does not represent the vital capacity of the race; the true measure is the number of individuals per thousand or million who attain great age.

"Sanitarians pride themselves on having saved millions of lives, and the credit claimed is justly due. Nevertheless, we must now see in this great increase in the average length of human life an indication that by continuation of some method human longevity may be indefinitely or even greatly increased. Public sanitation, quarantine laws and general hygienic regulations serve a most useful purpose in the prevention of epidemic and endemic diseases, but these influences at the same time serve to keep alive a great number of physically weak people and worthless human beings who would otherwise be carried off by acute disease, nature's method of securing the survival of the fittest.

"It is high time that society gave more serious attention to the great class of bankrupts by hereditary from which springs the greater share of crime and criminals, cranks, lunatics, fanatics and imbeciles. The remedy is to be found in the cultivation of private hygiene. More attention must be given to the training of the individual; men and women must be made to see that the prevalent conditions of our modern civilization are anti-natural and tend to deterioration of the vital powers and the development of disease.

"So long as a man regards his body as a harp of pleasure to be played upon while its strings can be made to respond, so long will he continue to travel down the hill of physical decadence and degeneration in spite of quarantine laws and the most minute sanitary regulations."

Estimates on Cotton Crop.

New York, Oct. 14.—The Daily Drygoods Recorder says today: "Working on those lines by which close estimates to the actual cotton crop of the last two years were obtained, the figures obtained indicate a crop for 1897-98 which varies from 8,953,788 bales to 9,371,532 bales of 500 pounds each. For the last crop, 1896-97, our estimate was 8,722,901 bales, against 8,714,011 bales as the actual returns, while the estimate for the previous year, 1895-96, was 7,142,000 bales compared with 7,162,473 bales. The closeness of these estimates to the actual relations has stamped them with the imprint of correctness, and for the current crop year our estimate is submitted with a degree of confidence that, barring unexpected happenings, the yield for 1897-98 will not exceed the maximum figures of 9,371,532 bales."

England and Bimetallism.

New York, Oct. 14.—A London dispatch to The Evening Post says: I understand that the British government's reply to Senator Wolcott and the other United States bimetallic commissioners is to be given Saturday after the cabinet meeting. Meanwhile a memorial to the chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, is being extensively signed by bankers, discount houses and merchants, protesting against any action in the interests of silver, especially as to the reopening of the Indian mints, until the full sense of parliament can be taken on the subject.

Eight More Than Four Thousand.

Indianapolis, Oct. 14.—The official and unofficial returns of the election show the vote for mayor to be: Taggart, Dem., 20,188; Harding, Rep., 16,180; Taggart's plurality over Harding, 4008. The probabilities are that the majority may be increased.

Taggart's majority over all is at this time 2955, there being six mayoralty candidates. The remainder of the Democratic ticket is also elected, though by a somewhat smaller majority than that received by Taggert. The council will also be Democratic by a large majority.

A Memorial of Protest.

London, Oct. 14.—The Times, in its financial article, announces that a letter is being signed by a majority of the leading men of the city expressing their grave objections to any movement by the government in the direction of bimetallism, and adds: "As the government's answer to the American commissioners is expected to be given within a few days there is no time to be lost."

PROUD OF HISTORY.

John Hancock Lodge of Odd Fellows Observes Anniversary.

John Hancock lodge, No. 224, of Wollaston, observed its fourth anniversary on Wednesday evening, the exercises taking the form of a reunion of members besides having for special guests, Grand Instructor York, the members of Mt. Wollaston lodge of Quincy, and Neponset lodge of Neponset.

P. R. Glass, Noble Grand of the lodge, welcomed the visitors in a few well chosen remarks, after which he called on Past Grand Delano, the first Noble Grand, who gave a short history of the lodge and its work in the past four years.

Mr. Herbert Corbett then gave a very pleasing vocal selection and was followed by Grand Instructor York, who congratulated the lodge on its good work in the past and expressed the wish that many years of usefulness might be in store for it.

Readings were given in a very pleasing manner by Mr. John Butters and Mr. Charles Longhead. A vocal selection was rendered by Mr. Edward E. Bullock, the well known tenor, in his usual good style. A very clever exhibition of dancing was given by Mr. James Rose.

A number of very interesing speeches were made by members and visitors, after which all repaired to the banquet hall and did full justice to the good things prepared by the committee.

Experience Meeting.

A most pleasant and profitable "Experience meeting" of the Wollaston Baptist Ladies' Benevolent society was held at the home of the president, Mrs. A. D. Albee on Wednesday afternoon. Each lady related how she had earned her contribution. Plain sewing, mending, knitting and button holes, making cake, jellies, preserves, sale of garden fruits, seeds and bulbs, small change saved by bargains, all contributed toward the financial gains. Not the least profitable proved the thank offerings and sale of ice cream which latter reported itself in rhyme greatly to the interest of all present. The total experience netted $27. After sewing and transaction of business tea and chocolate were poured by Miss Margery Rideout and Miss Olney, assisted by Mrs. Sparrow and Miss Albee.

SENATE CRITICISED.

High School Debate on Abolition of U. S. Senate.

The results of the first election of the year of the Quincy High School Debating society was announced at the meeting on Wednesday as follows:

President—Mr. Lewis, '98.
Vice President,—Miss Bates, '98.
Secretary,—Miss Brown, '98.
Treasurer,—Mr. Foss, '99.

The debate of last week on the respective duties of the pupil and the school was decided in favor of the negative side.

Miss Roberts, '98, critic for the first meeting, presented her report, and commented favorably on the improvement in the styles of debate.

The entertainment included three numbers:

1.—Declamation, Mr. Thayer, '98.

2.—Essay, "Our City," Miss Roberts, '98.

3.—Declamation, "The Comet," Mr. Hewitson, '98.

The debate on the proposed abolition of the United States Senate was then held. Misses Martin, McDonnell, Osborne, Park, Perry and Pickering, upheld the affirmative; while Misses Powers, Roberts, Sweeney, Ward, and Williams, defended the negative.

When the subject was brought before the entire society, Misses Chamberlin, Ward, Powers and Beckwith, and Messrs. McDonnell, Field and Barrow, made off-hand remarks.

Some of the speakers, that had visited Washington, reported that not only Senators, but also members of the House of Representatives, were very remiss in their attendance and also their attention to business. Is this still the case? And if so, what remedy have the people?

Harvest Festival.

The harvest festival and supper at the Universalist church Wednesday evening drew a large audience. There was a good display of vegetables of all kinds upon the tables, which were sold later at reasonable prices, for many who appreciate good winter vegetables were on hand to lay in a supply. There were also tables for the sale of aprons of various kinds and ice cream and cake.

At 6 o'clock a supper was served and as it was up to the usual standard of excellence it was greatly enjoyed.

At 8 o'clock a very pleasing entertainment was given, consisting of readings and piano solos by Mr. Mark Abraham, and a laughable farce entitled "Putkins" the several characters being impersonated as follows:

Pheobe Trust, Miss Foss
Jane Abigail Perkins,
Mrs. Henry P. Furnald
Jerry Dollinvan,
Mr. Henry P. Furnald.
John Putkins the census taker,
Mr. Gomez

Suicide at Braintree.

James Orr of Braintree, while gunning off Long lane on Wednesday afternoon discovered the body of a man hanging to the limb of a tree. The man, who had been dead for some time, proved to be J. M. Peck of North Braintree, an expressman who had been missing since last Friday. It was a clear case of suicide, the man having tied one end of the rope to the limb of a tree and the other about his neck. He must have then leaned forward until the strain came upon his neck, and remained in that position until death resulted from strangulation. The medical examiner was notified and the body cut down and turned over to an undertaker.

Mr. Peck was about 40 years of age and leaves a widow. No cause is assigned for his rash act.

"The Golden Egg."

The cantata of "The Golden Egg" was very successfully presented at the Washington Street Congregational church vestry Wednesday evening. A large audience was present and a very enjoyable evening was spent with the little ones. The stage was very artistically decorated. Much praise is due Mrs. M. H. Turk and Miss Margaret Thomas for their untiring efforts to make the cantata the success it was; and to Miss Lillian Carter for her efforts in distributing the eggs. Thanks are also due the fifty young people who so kindly took part. A goodly sum was realized from the "Golden Eggs," $71.06. The door receipts were $21.25. The people of the Point would enjoy more of this style of entertainment.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

LEARNING.

Doubtless the young folks of your household are daily using their little heads in about the same manner our artist has represented in the illustration.

But you don't expect that they can give the correct answer to all their problems at the outset.

They must be taught, of course, and learn by their errors.

When we started in the grocery business we did not do everything as it should have been done.

We did not know how.

But for years our aim has been to try to find the correct answer to all the perplexing problems of our trade.

Without boasting, we can say with frankness that we have achieved at least a moderate measure of success.

And we give YOU the benefit, if you trade with us.

Will you accept it?

LEAVING IT ALL TO US.

We find that our judgment is relied upon more and more by Horse and Carriage owners. People come to us with general ideas as to what they want. We certainly do our best, and such operations as a rule, reflect favorably upon both parties.

WHITNEY RELEASED.

Haley Doing Well and He May Recover from Injury.

J. H. Whitney, the street railway conductor who was arrested Wednesday on suspicion that he knew something about the assault of Motorman Haley in Boston Tuesday night, was released by the Boston police Wednesday evening and returned to Quincy.

He says that the Boston police verified his story as published in Wednesday's Ledger and found it to be true. They also had the two carriage drivers, who saw the assault, go to the police station but they could not identify him as the man they saw strike the blow. Haley was reported as doing well Wednesday night and will recover.

A Handsome Hearse.

Mr. W. E. Brown, undertaker on Mechanic street, has just had completed a very large and handsome hearse. He did not go to Boston or any other distant city, but had it made right here in this good city of Quincy; thus leaving the cash at home. If more of our people would do likewise the business in Quincy would be better and money would be more plenty.

The hearse was built by Mr. S. Scammell, our excellent wheelwright on Quincy avenue. It is very attractive and those who have seen it speak of it as a beauty.

The Late Bryant N. Adams.

Mrs. Alice Adams Swan, at the earnest solicitation of City Treasurer H. Walter Gray has presented him with a large framed portrait of her father, the late Bryant N. Adams, which was hung in the City Treasurers office at City Hall this morning. The portrait is a true likeness of our ex-city treasurer and contains his autograph and the dates 1889—1894.

Some few months ago City Treasurer Gray undertook the work of decorating his office with portraits of the City Treasurers of the city. That of Horace B. Spear was first obtained, and Mrs. Swan was requested to give one of her father, which she has done. But two more are now required to complete the list up to date; those of Clarence Burgin and H. Walter Gray.

Antiquarian Supper.

The Ladies' Benevolent society of the Memorial church gave an antiquarian supper and entertainment on Wednesday evening, which was more largely attended than any given for a long time. The supper room was crowded with hungry ones constantly waiting to get in and all who were fortunate enough to secure seats early had a bang up good feast.

The entertainment was provided by Mr. Ellis organist and musical director of the St. Matthews church of South Boston and was much enjoyed. Master Leonard Wetmore of that choir, the boy soprano, pleased all very much by his sweet musical voice, which was heard in two selections.

Was a Popular Young Man.

Atlantic loses one of its popular young men in the death of Thomas J. Colligan, which occurred at his home on Hunt street Tuesday morning after a lingering illness of consumption. He was the eldest son of David and Bridget Colligan, and was but 20 years of age. He worked in the Tubular Rivet & Stud Factory until last spring when his health began to fail and he had to leave.

Since then he had been failing until Tuesday morning he passed away. His death, although not unexpected was a shock to his many friends. He was buried from the Sacred Heart church Thursday. The flowers were costly and beautiful. A handsome pillow inscribed "Shopmates," another inscribed "C. K. of A.," of which he was a member, also a large and handsome bouquets. He leaves a father and mother and several brothers to mourn his absence, besides many friends.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

A GREAT VICTORY.

High School Team Down Milton Academy Eleven.

The High school team won a great victory from Milton academy Wednesday at Milton by a score of 6 to 0. Both teams played well, and the contest was very close and exciting. The High school gained the most ground by rushing, but failed to score more on account of slowness in handling punts.

Quincy made her touch down in the first half by five rushes by C. Magnuson and Scharnagel. After the goal Milton kicked off, and Quincy had the ball back to Milton's 10 yard line when time was called.

In the second half Milton tried hard to score, but was unable to do so on account of Quincy's fine work. This was done mainly by C. Magnuson, Scharnagel, Pendis and Barry. When time was called, Milton had the ball on Quincy's 30 yard line.

Scattered Nickels.

Providence, Oct. 14.—Deputy Sheriff Winslow served a writ on John L. Sullivan, whose variety show is playing here this week, for a debt incurred in New York. Sullivan furnished bail and afterwards scattered nickels among the street gamins.

Woman's Skull Fractured.

Boston, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Margaret McLaughlin was fatally injured by falling from a second story window of a house in Charlestown. She lost her balance while washing windows and struck on her head, causing a fracture of the skull.

Killed on a Steamship.

Boston, Oct. 14.—Peter F. Henry, while at work unloading the steamship Armenian of the Leyland line at Charlestown yesterday afternoon, was instantly killed by being caught between the forward boom and winch. He was 35 years old.

Want Contracts Revoked.

New York, Oct. 14.—The threat of the organized house carpenters of this city and vicinity to tie up a number of school buildings in course of construction within the greater New York territory will be enforced unless the manufacturers furnishing the material from western cities, to the exclusion of material made here, comply with the demand made by the members of organized labor in this city. Unless the contracts with out-of-town firms are revoked immediately, in compliance with New York union rules, work will be suspended within the next three or four days.

If the mandate of the executive council of carpenters and building trades woodworkers is not complied with, a general strike involving 20,000 mechanics engaged in the building industry is imminent.

Five Were For Conviction.

Glenville, W. Va., Oct. 14.—The jury in the famous case of Mrs. Atkinson, wife of the governor of West Virginia, on trial for forging her former husband's name, disagreed and were discharged by the court. The jury stood seven for acquittal and five for conviction. It is not believed that the case will be tried again.

Mrs. Atkinson had been on the stand 10 hours. Her testimony was a general denial of all the allegations charged in the indictments. She did not waver on her cross-examination from the statement that all the receipts in controversy were written at the dictation of Judge Camden in his lifetime, and that they represented what they show upon their face.

Smuggled Goods Found.

New York, Oct. 14.—Customs inspectors boarded the Benjamin Sewall and seized a large quantity of silks, embroideries, bric-a-brac and curios. The goods were found in four large cases, which had been hidden among the ship's stores. The estimated value of the property is $3000. The Benjamin Sewall is an American vessel. She arrived from Shanghai Oct. 11 after a voyage of nearly seven months. Her commander is A. M. Sewall, who is part owner of the vessel.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. BOUT HAD FATAL END.

New Orleans Boxers Fought Fifteen Rounds to Life's Finish.

Football Games With Running as a Feature.

Annual Fall Meet of the Williams College Athletic Association.

New Orleans, Oct. 14.—It was announced in these dispatches Tuesday night that in a bout between John Cummings and Walter Griffin, local boxers, Cummings was not only knocked out in the 15th round, but he became unconscious. He did not recover from that condition and died at the hospital about seven hours later.

The fight was of the whirlwind order from the start to the finish, and both men gave and received much punishment. Each was very clever. Fifteen rounds were fought, but before the end of that time both fighters were in an apparent state of exhaustion and physicians and others had made efforts to bring the battle to a close. Just before the close Griffin punched Cummings, who sank to the floor, not from the effects of the blow, but from lack of vitality. When carried to his corner he complained that his head hurt and asked that he be laid on his stomach; then he became unconscious. From that time he never spoke audibly. Dr. Bloom of the charity hospital said that the man's injuries were fatal, and that he was suffering from hemorrhage of the brain and possibly concussion.

Griffin was also badly punished, and he was taken to his home. Policemen were sent to watch by his bedside. When Cummings' death was announced Griffin was placed under arrest, but was not able to be moved.

Cummings was a motorman and Griffin a policeman's son. The former had been married but seven months. The fatal effects of the fight may have an effect on the scheme to revive boxing contests and may prevent the McPartland-Everhard fight on Monday night next.

PIGSKIN RUSHERS.

Brown, Princeton and Other College Teams Engage In Games.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 14.—For 10 minutes of the first half of the game between the "tigers" and the Pennsylvania state college on the varsity gridiron yesterday afternoon every indication pointed to a repetition of last year's game with Lafayette, when Princeton could not score. The men from central Pennsylvania were giants when compared with the 'varsity in height and weight, and played splendidly for 10 minutes, twice nearly making touchdowns on fumbles by the "tigers" and downing the 'varsity backs time and again with no gain. The "tigers'" superior training told, and after the first 10 minutes Princeton was able to score.

Throughout the game the state college gave Princeton the hardest practice of the fall, and the full strength of the New Jersey players was much needed. Their team work was poor and fumbling was frequent. Both teams tried the place kick field goal without success. The game ended with a score of 34 to 0. The feature was a sensational 105-yard run by Bannard for a touchdown.

Andover, Mass., Oct. 14.—Brown university defeated Philips Andover academy, 20 to 4. The latter had played a magnificent game, scoring the first touchdown after a 50-yard run by Schrieber from Brown's fumble. It took 23 minutes for the visitors to place the pigskin behind Andover's goal, the half ending with four points credited to each team. In the second half Brown took a brace and made 16 points by the hardest playing.

It was a punting game throughout. Andover's backs and ends did fine work, as did Quinby at quarter. Brown's backs played a strong game in the second half, and the whole team fought desperately to roll up a score on Andover.

Philadelphia, Oct. 14.—The university of Pennsylvania eleven defeated the university of Virginia football team in two halves of 25 and 20 minutes each by the score of 42 to 0. The red and blue played a dashing game, their only fault being three fumbles by Weeks and Fortescue. The Virginians were constantly getting hurt, and the game was tiresome on this account. The Virginians were unable to endanger the goal of the red and blue.

Exeter, N. H., Oct. 14.—Phillips Exeter academy football team met defeat at the hands of the Bowdoin college eleven yesterday, the game resulting 10 to 0 in favor of Bowdoin. Exeter's team was severely crippled by the loss of the two halfbacks, Russell and Syphax, who are on the sick list. Both sides fumbled badly, but Exeter's fumbles came at critical times, costing her dearly.

Sports at Williamstown.

Williamstown, Mass., Oct. 14.—The annual fall meet of the Williams College Athletic association was held on Weston field yesterday afternoon. Many of the best men did not compete, which accounts for slow time. From the freshmen class, Potter and Park showed considerable ability. Bray in the exhibition half mile lowered the college record to 2:04 2-5. The 100 yards dash was a surprise, Patterson winning by several feet, while Gallahan could not catch Park. The best race was the 440-yard dash, Seaver and Swift having a close contest for first place. Park won from Patterson in the 220 yards dash by only a few feet. Potter, the Worcester hurdler, was an easy winner in his event.

Rymer's Star Play.

Middletown, Conn., Oct. 14.—Wesleyan defeated Tufts by the score of 10 to 0. The first half was of 20 minutes and the second half 15 minutes. Wesleyan played a quick, snappy game, and made most of her gains on short, sharp rushes. The star play was made by Rymer of Wesleyan, who ran through Tufts' eleven for 40 yards. The work of Tufts was marred by fumbles.

It released the authorities from an unpleasant situation without loss to their pride.

He sent an opinion on the question to the city council last night, and from his standpoint the companies are operating under franchises which specifically prohibit the transportation of anything but passengers.

A gaspipe overheated by an electric light current set fire to the flooring of the tea room adjoining the banquet hall in the Hotel Vendome at Boston last night, filling the entire house with smoke and badly scaring the guests. Love has a long way to go to reach the heart of the modern up-to-date young man. When he looks for a wife, he expects a good deal. Probably he expects more than he deserves. He wants good looks, good sense, good nature, good health. They usually go together.

An observing man learns that a woman who is physically weak and nervous and incapable, is likely to be ill-natured too. The sweetest temper is ruined by continual sickness.

A woman whose nerves are constantly racked and dragged by debilitating drains and inflammation, cannot be a genial companion or happy wife; and she is totally unfitted to be a mother.

These troubles prevail almost universally among women largely because of carelessness and neglect. There is no real need of them. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive specific for the weaknesses and diseases of the feminine organism.

It cures them radically and completely. It heals, strengthens and purifies. It is the only scientific remedy devised for this special purpose by an educated, skilled physician. It is the only medicine that makes motherhood easy and absolutely safe.

Miss Lauretta McNees, of Reno (P. O. Box 723), Washoe Co., Nev., writes: "I have discontinued taking the 'Prescription' and will not take any more (at present). Last month I had no pain at all and worked every day without any inconvenience whatever. It was the first time I never had pain during that period. I cannot say too much for your medicines, especially the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I know of a lady who took one bottle of your 'Favorite Prescription' and she says she was not sick like she was with her first baby. This was her second baby. She thinks it a grand medicine. So do I."

Dr. Pierce has had a life-time of experience in this particular field. His 1000-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser" contains several chapters devoted to woman's special physiology. A paper-bound copy will be sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. NAME,.....

ADDRESS,.....

THE MODEST GEORGE

Says That He and Seth Low Are the Only Candidates For Mayor.

New York, Oct. 14.—In an interview regarding what he proposed to do if elected mayor of greater New York, Henry George said: "I will execute the excise law according to my interpretation of the law; but I will tell you frankly what I think about this excise. I think it is an injustice and an absurdity, and I am totally opposed to the existence of any excise law whatever. If I could, I would abolish it, along with many other laws. If elected mayor I would enforce the excise law just so far as the letter of it required, and not a step beyond.

HENRY GEORGE.

"I believe in the largest possible liberty for the individual. I am a Jeffersonian Democrat. We have too many laws. It is one of our greatest troubles—this mass of restrictive legislation. What one does, as long as it injures no one else, is no one else's business. The moral effect of my election and also of the results of my administration would powerfully promote the acceptance of my single tax doctrine.

"That I can defeat both Van Wyck and Tracy I do not feel the slightest doubt. In my opinion the issue is solely between Mr. Low and myself. I think I shall beat him. My stand here for local election is based almost entirely on national issues, and I think much of my strength comes from that very attitude. In fact, my grounds for believing that I'll be elected are to a great extent based on that very fact."

Outrage Under Cover of Law.

Pittsburg, Oct. 14.—The deputy sheriffs at the DeArmit coal mines made a raid on the strikers at Sandy Creek yesterday and arrested 15 men, including the members of a brass band. The strikers were marching on the public road and were halted by the deputies about a quarter of a mile from the tipple. The band refused to stop, and the entire party was placed under arrest without resistance.

The prisoners were brought to this city. The members of the band took their arrest good naturedly, and played their instruments as they were escorted from the railroad station to the sheriff's office. Chief Deputy Evans said the men were riotous and he feared trouble. This is denied by the strikers. Superintendent DeArmit says that the three mines of the company are now running to their fullest capacity.

Right to Use of a Name.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Judge Showalter of the federal court makes a decision in the case of Pillsbury and others against H. R. Eagle which is of great interest to milling people generally. The fact that a certain line of goods is made in a certain place does not give to the makers the right of a trademark to the name of that locality, according to Judge Showalter. He said if flour made elsewhere, though branded "Minneapolis," was made by the same method of grain of as good quality, the manufacturer had a right to brand it or designate as he pleased, providing he did not use the name or word of another in like business protected by direct copyright or trademark. This decision completely upsets the claim of the Minneapolis millers.

Sudden Deaths In Brooklyn.

New York, Oct. 14.—A singular train of fatalities in Brooklyn came to a climax yesterday. Michael McKuster, a saloon keeper, died suddenly Sunday night of heart disease. An old time friend, William Robinson, was so shocked at the news that he purchased paris green at the drug store of Andrew E. Shield and killed himself.

Wednesday Robinson's sister went to Shield's store and upraided Shield for having sold the poison to her brother. Shield was a sufferer from heart disease. He became excited at the charge and dropped dead.

A Russian Chosen.

Washington, Oct. 14.—The announcement that a European umpire had been chosen as a member of the Venezuelan tribunal was made in these dispatches some time since, but the name had been withheld until the sanction of the czar could be secured for Mr. Maertens' service as arbitrator. Great Britain and Venezuela each submitted a list of distinguished jurists who would be acceptable to it as umpire. These embraced some of the most noted men of Europe, but it is a tribute to Mr. Maertens that his was the only one on the list of both countries.

Somebody Made a Haul.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Somewhere between Omaha and Denver a package containing $14,000 has been lost. The money was sent by registered package by a bank in Chicago to a financial institution in the west. Inspector Stuart and his men have been hard at work on the case for several days, but their endeavors can trace the money westward from Chicago only as far as Omaha. At that point all record of the small fortune is lost. The authorities refuse to give either the name of the bank sending the money, or the one to which it was consigned.

May Be Kept Out.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Louise Michel, the French anarchist, will probably be prevented from entering the United States. Persons who have been convicted of crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude, person whose passage money has been paid by another, or persons who are likely to become a public charge can be excluded. It is believed that she can be brought under one of these heads. The authorities are all keeping a close watch for Joseph Ventre, a Spanish anarchist, at present in Mexico.

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee a about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

Parlor Stoves. . .

American genius and American brains are never idle, there is scarcely an article we use that some fertile brain is not quietly conniving upon to improve.

The latest creations in Parlor Stoves, however, are works of wonder. We've searched the market through, and pinched the best. Parlor Stoves, beautiful and ornamental in design, not costly in price, powerful heaters, economical coal consumers that will keep in for months, all that a saving heart could desire.

WILLIAMS' PURPOSE.

Told Audience In Faneuil Hall New Democracy's Aim.

Would Reverse Laws Against Common Welfare.

Currency Not Only Question, but Silverites Will Discuss It.

Boston, Oct. 15.—In Faneuil hall last night was held the ratification rally for George Fred Williams and the other Democratic candidates on the state ticket nominated at Worcester. The audience was at times enthusiastic, especially during Mr. Williams' speech, but it was not large in numbers. It did not fill the hall at any time, and at the close of Mr. Williams' speech barely two-thirds of the floor was occupied. It was remarked by some that the meeting had been poorly advertised.

The faces of most of the well known leaders of the Boston Democracy were conspicuous by their absence. Mayor Quincy was not there. John H. Lee, who called the meeting to order, was about the only conspicuous member of the old guard of Boston Democratic leaders who was seen upon the platform.

John H. Lee called the meeting to order shortly after 8 o'clock and spoke very briefly, introducing as the permanent chairman Thomas Riley of Boston, the brilliant lawyer, whose profound admiration for Boston's Democratic mayor cropped out in a declaration to the effect that Josiah Quincy last fall had insulted Democracy's standard bearer, William Jennings Bryan. This incident made somewhat of a sensation, and many of those present believe it could not have been entirely unexpected, for Mr. Williams had apparently led up to Mr. Riley's reference by speaking of another Mayor Josiah Quincy of Boston.

The candidate for lieutenant governor, Christopher Callahan, made a long speech; Charles Nash, the candidate for secretary of state, spoke interestingly on the issues presented in the Democratic platform, and John A. O'Keefe, candidate for attorney general, discussed the issues presented in the platform at length, after which the meeting adjourned with cheers for George Fred Williams and the state ticket.

Mr. O'Keefe said among other things: "At last we have shaken off the incubus that weighted us down; we are free once more as Democrats were in the glorious days of Jackson—free to enact such measures as we shall consider best for the country's welfare, without dictation from political bosses or envoys, who came to our conventions straight from the sanctum of some great corporation. The reformed Democracy has received no favors from wealth; no words of honey have been lavished on it by capital during the past year; it is under no obligation that can by one iota embarrass or impede its action. We have principles that may well command our approval; and we have leaders in state and nation, whose ability and sincerity of purpose deserve our enthusiastic support—Bryan and Williams—both young, both fearless, both cultivated, both above the power of the enemy to dishearten or corrupt"

George Fred Williams, on rising, was greeted with tremendous applause; cheer after cheer rent the air. When the excitement had temporarily subsided Mr. Williams said: "Mr. Chairman and fellow citizens, when Lovejoy fell, the first martyr to the cause of freedom in the great contest for the emancipation of the slaves, Wendell Phillips (applause), standing upon this platform, said: 'When liberty is in danger, Faneuil hall has the right, and it is her duty, to sound the keynote for the Union' (applause and cries of "good"). If I believed, as I stand before you tonight, that there were any less cause for action than there was in that day when Phillips spoke, I could not bring you so full a heart as I bring you here tonight.

"I believe that we are gathered here not alone for prosperity, not alone for comfort and happiness, but we are here in defense of the liberties that belonged to the freemen of a republic (applause). We stand upon a platform broader than any man has yet conceived. We have no single issue which we wish to force upon the people as a panacea for all woes. That is not the spirit of the inspiration of the new Democracy. We are upon a platform that asks first and foremost that at the end of 100 years there shall be brought back to the people the right to make their laws, the right to insist upon the regulation of their own freedom, and they demand that at the last the rule of an aristocracy and an oligarchy be thrown from the neck of the Democracy of the nation (applause). I believe that the spirit of our platform may be expressed in these words: That the powers and forces of our time are throwing the wealth of this land into narrow channels, and uniting the organizable forces against the scattered until we have an absolutely false tendency in our civilization. It may not seem at the first glance that that is a broad principle involving the liberties of the people, but, my countrymen, liberty does not mean alone that you shall be unshackled, that you shall escape the cell of the prison, that your limb and lives shall be free from attack. Under a free government you, every man of you, has an equal right under the law to gain wealth, to gain comfort and happiness for yourself and those who are depending upon you (applause); and in this proposition I believe is to be found the compass and scope of the efforts of the new Democracy. It is our purpose that the masses of the land shall be placed in order to reverse not one law, but a hundred or a thousand which have thus perverted the course of wealth and reduced us to a condition where the freemen of this republic are complaining that they can hardly live.

"How has this been accomplished? By the failure of the people themselves to control their own government (applause). For four years this country has been in a condition of suffering and misery. Not alone has the laboring man been called upon to sacrifice and to suffer, but all the industries of this country from the mines to the factory have fallen to the common disaster. There must be some reason for this. Panic and bankruptcy have been persistent visitors to our industries. It is due now that their condition should be explained by those who, last fall, were its apologists. We have an answer; we gave it last fall. We insist that want of confidence was no cause. It was our faith that the money system of this country, and indeed of the civilized world, had been so manipulated by those who wished to gather the wealth of the world into their private hands, that prices had fallen year after year until inevitable bankruptcy and ruin had come. That process has continued to the present moment. Do not be deceived into the idea that the currency question is the only one with which we have to deal: but until relief comes upon that score we shall continue to discuss that question until it becomes plain to the people of this country." (Applause).

Mr. Williams predicted a greater change upon the money question by the Republican party before 1900, and spoke highly of President McKinley's appointment of a bimetallic commission. He also eulogized the late General Walker, and spoke of the great influence of the Bank of England upon the financial interests of the world.

Frost, and Albert Mason, David L. Webster, Francis A. Dawson, Benjamin Pettel, Lewis G. Lone, John A. Thompson, Charles M. Reed, Thomas Doliher, Joseph Pettee and Franklin O. Whitney.

Band Concerts and Firecrackers.

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 15.—At Buttonwood park yesterday afternoon one of the heavy gun carriages was overturned while executing a wheel and Corporal John O'Brien, in his fall, was pinned underneath, sustaining a serious fracture of the ankle.

The industrial exposition was packed with thousands of people through the day and evening. It has been one of the leading features of the week, and will be kept open a day longer. The celebration ended last night with band concerts in various sections of the city, and the firing of crackers and fireworks by enthusiasts all over town.

At the outset of the cutter race between crews of the New Bedford and Newport naval reserve crews, there was a snag, the Newports challenging New Bedford on a claim that their boat was a shell and weighed 800 pounds less than the Newport boat. The judges decided in favor of the Newport boat and crew, and barred the New Bedford crew, though the latter were allowed to go around the course separately.

Robbers of Letter Boxes.

Boston, Oct. 15.—The Globe says today: When Boston detectives arrested George Atwood late in August on the charge of embezzling a check which had been stolen from a letter box they suspected that they had a member of a gang that had been making a tour of the United States robbing mail boxes and passing checks which had been stolen, and the endorsements of which had been forged. Yesterday they arrested a man and a woman. This morning a third man is expected to be apprehended in New York, and the arrest of a fourth man is possible before night.

Besides Atwood, who is now serving a term of five years in the state prison, those now in custody are Mrs. Atwood, the convict's wife, and a man who has several names which he answers to. His latest name is Matthews. Both he and Mrs. Atwood are now held on suspicion. The New York man, the police claim, has been the controlling spirit in the alleged criminal work.

ASSAULT WAS FATAL.

Motorman Haley Dies of His Injuries.

His Assailants is Still Unknown and at Large.

Unconscious from Time of Assault Tuesday Night.

A telephone message was received before 11 o'clock this morning announcing the death at the Massachusetts General Hospital of James Haley the Quincy & Boston motorman who was the victim of the brutal assault in Boston last Tuesday night, near the Boston & Albany depot.

When found Tuesday night Haley was unconscious and was removed to the Hospital, and he died without regaining consciousness.

It is unfortunate that he did not become conscious before he died as he might have been able to tell who it was, if he knew, who committed the assault, or at least given a description that might have led to his arrest.

As it is now the police have no clew to work upon and it will probably never be known who struck the blow.

Haley was about 29 years of age and was the son of Thomas Haley of Adams street, East Milton, with whom he lived. He was educated in the public schools of Milton. He also had quite a taste for music, and was an accomplished violin player. He was for some years employed as flagman at the Adams street crossing of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. at East Milton, but for the past few months has been employed as an extra motorman of the Quincy & Boston street railway.

Leg Broken.

George McNaughton, a stone polisher employed at the works of Joss Bros. & Co. received a compound fracture of the right leg this morning and was taken to the City Hospital. He was engaged with others pushing a truck containing two blocks of granite from the shop. As the truck was pushed through the door the top stone, which was considerably larger than the others, and rested rather insecurely, struck against the door with force enough to knock it off, and in falling it struck McNaughton, causing a fracture as reported.

No Candidates.

The time for filing certificates for candidates for the State election expired at 5 o'clock Thursday. Among those who neglected to file certificates were the regular Democrats of the second and tenth Nortolk Representative districts. The second district is the town of Brookline entitled to one representative, and the tenth district comprises the towns of Bellingham, Foxborough, Franklin, Medway, Norfolk and Wrentham, and is entitled to two representatives.

Vesper services will be resumed at the Wollaston Baptist church on Sunday at 7 P. M., when Rev. Preston Gurney, the pastor, will preach a sermonette on "Charitable Judgments," and the following music will be rendered:

Said lot contains 5,880 square feet of land and is in every way desirable for a residence, its nearness to the centre of the City and Depot make it in every way the location for a home. The New Electric Road to Wollaston passes the property and the Boston line is only a step from it. This is a strictly residential street and locations for houses are very few.

Milton.

It is rumored that the Bates estate on Granite place is to pass into the hands of a syndicate which will survey it into house lots and place it on the market.

The old Buntin homestead on Adams street has been sold to Edward Wheeler.

The new house of A. A. Brackett on Buntin place is completed.

The auction sale of the Loud property on Eaton street, to have been held Wednesday, did not take place, owing to some informality of notice to the tenant.

Tenements are a scarce article at East Milton.

Mrs. Huckings of Granite avenue has sold her house to George A. Mayo of West Quincy.

The prospects are that there will be a hot time at the special town meeting Oct. 26. There is a certain element that is opposed to street railway and they will endeavor to kill the present scheme and have a committee appointed to investigate the subject of street railways and report at a future meeting.

The article to see if the town will employ a highway surveyer will also call for a hot fight and it is doubtful if it passes, as many of the citizens are opposed to placing the $40,000 appropriated for streets in the hands of one man.

Perhaps the article that will call for the greatest flow of oratory is that asking for an appropriation of $6000 to complete the sewer at Mattapan. When the Sewer Commissioners came before the town last March they asked for an appropriation of $10,000 for the purpose of building a certain piece of sewer, and the amount asked for was appropriated. It is claimed, if the Sewer Commissioners had used the appropriation for the purpose specified in the vote, $10,000 would have been sufficient, but instead of doing so they built only a part of it, and expended the balance upon a side street. Some questions will be asked as to what right they had to expend money for another purpose from that which it was appropriated.

The will of the late Edward L. Pierce was filed at Dedham for probate on Thursday. It contains no public bequests. His widow and children by both marriages receive large sums, either directly or in trust.

The funeral of Col. William H. Forbes of Milton hill on Thursday was marked by its simplicity. It was largely attended by prominent gentlemen including public officials, officers of the Bell Telephone Co. and others. Rev. Roderick K. Stebbins was assisted by Rev. Mr. Humphrey. The burial was at Milton cemetery.

The West Quincy bowling team rolled a candle pin match on Thursday evening at the St. James alleys, Boston, with the St. James. The visitors lost the first string by 9 pins, but at the end of the second led by 21. The St. James won the third by 29 pins which gave them the victory by 8 pins. The totals were 1244 to 1236. For the West Quinceys Dunn scored 241, Peverly 277, Smith 217, Ross 243 and Bouton 258.

From Klondike.

News of the Alaska gold regions and the reports of everything that goes on at Klondike or the Yukon is quickly and eagerly devoured these days, and the great newspaper public is always thirsting for more information about that locality and the rich finds there. More interesting than all this, though, is a glimpse of real life from Klondike brought to our very doors. That is what the Boston Zoological Society is doing at the Zoo these days in presenting to the public those cute little Eskimo twin sisters from the Klondike. They are but six years old, and all the more interesting visitors from a wonderful country for that reason. Still another new feature at the Zoo is a revival exhibition of the Original Bohemian Glass Blowers, who are seen at all times in the reception hall at their fascinating work of fashioning ornaments of glass. They also exhibit the famous glass dress, a raiment woven entirely of glass. The popular Zoo features, such as the aviary, the riding of the camels and baby elephant, the vivarium, the snake charmer, the chess automaton, the Zoo annex, the sea lions, ostrich farm, the monkey's paradise, the happy family, etc., are all permanent and constantly growing in interest.

John J. Crowley was arraigned for bastardy at Quincy with Mary A. Kelliher. Case continued until next Tuesday.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

WAGES OF SIN.

Grocer Killed His Paramour and Took His Own Life.

Baltimore, Oct. 15.—Matthew Rogers, a grocer, at 136 West Randall street, and Mrs. Ira W. Wright, his mistress, were found dead in Rogers' house yesterday morning. Both had been shot. The police look upon it as no mystery, the circumstances establishing the theory of self-destruction after murder.

Rogers, who was 36 years old, has a wife who is said to be living with a man named Crane. The murdered woman, after she left her husband, lived for a time with a railroad engineer in Baltimore, but for the past year had occupied the Rogers house and was looked upon as the grocer's wife.

The couple were last seen shortly before midnight, at which time Rogers seemed to be in good spirits. Their failure to appear at the usual hour yesterday aroused the suspicions of the dead man's brothers, who live near by, and they broke open the door. On the floor of the bedroom occupied by the couple they found the body of the man, while on the bed was that of the woman, with Lillian, her 8-year-old daughter, by her side, sound asleep. Both had been shot in the head. A pistol with two chambers empty was found under the bed, and the police say that all means of ingress to the house was tightly closed. These circumstances convinced the police that the man had killed the woman and had shot himself dead, but the dead man's relatives assert that two suspicious looking men were seen about the house early in the evening, which fact, taken in connection with the woman's past, incline them to believe that both were murdered.

PUNISHED BY DEATH.

Stage Robber Dies After Desperately Resisting Arrest.

Delta, Cal., Oct. 15.—William Harold of this place and Under Sheriff Radford of Siskyou county were shot and killed and Deputy Sheriff Stewart seriously wounded while the officers were attempting to arrest Harold for complicity in the robbery of the Yreka and Fort Jones stage on Sept. 26 last. The stolen money was traced by Detectives Thacker and Jennings of the Wells-Fargo company to this place, and the Siskyou county officers came down from Yreka for the purpose of arresting Harold and taking him to that place.

Thursday Radford and Stewart presented themselves at Harold's house and asked for Harold. When he came to the door, Stewart said: "I want to see you, Harold." The latter replied: "I'm ready," and opened fire upon the officers with a big revolver. The first shot took effect in Stewart's leg, while the second struck Radford in the left breast, killing him almost instantly. Stewart, who had fallen in front of the door when shot, emptied his gun at Harold, who fell with several bullet holes in his chest and abdomen. He died shortly afterwards.

French President Banqueted.

Paris, Oct. 15.—President Faure was banquetted last evening in commemoration of his recent visit to Russia, by the merchants and manufacturers of France, of whom there were about 750 present. Among other things the president said: "Let me tell you how deep was my emotion when Paris declared the patriotic satisfaction which the entire nation felt at the consequence of the words exchanged between the emperor and its president. I repeat, in order to place the country face to face with its responsibilities, it is owing to its great wisdom and political spirit that the democracy is able to rejoice at the results obtained. It has known how to prove that the republican institutions to which it is unalterably attached guarantee peace at home and ensure abroad that continuity of views and intentions, failing which nothing can be solidly and durably established. It seems as if it ought to definitely fix the destinies of the nations of old Europe and determine their respective positions in the world."

Struggled Against Poverty.

New York, Oct. 15.—James Frey, after a painful struggle against poverty, killed himself. He returned to his home in Brooklyn, told his wife of another failure to obtain work, kissed her goodby and took the poison. She struggled with him for five minutes in an attempt to keep him from the rash act. Then, when he was dead, she made three unsuccessful attempts to kill herself by jumping from the window.

Frey had been out of work three months. He was five months in arrears for rent, had been refused credit at the stores, and when he left home his five little children were crying from hunger.

Beaten by a Few Inches.

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 15.—A tug-of-war team representing the Hunter Machine company of North Adams, Mass., was defeated in two straight pulls at the Manchester driving park yesterday by the Lafayette guards. The visitors were overmatched in weight, being apparently hundreds of pounds lighter as a body. They made a plucky contest, however, the advantage of the guardsmen being of but three and five inches. The occasion was the military company's field day.

Yellow Fever In Alabama.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 15.—Five new cases of yellow fever and one death, that of Michael Gene, were announced yesterday. The board of health has received notice that there are eight cases of fever at Flomaton Junction, Ala., 70 miles north of Mobile on the L. and N. railroad. There are 10 cases at Wagar, Ala., and one death is reported

Democrats Carry Nashville.

Nashville, Oct. 15.—The biennial election was held in this city yesterday. Perfect order prevailed. R. H. Dudley, Democratic nominee for mayor, was elected by 1200 majority over Mayor McCarthy, "good government" nominee. The Democratic councilmen were all elected. The vote was not large.

Result of an Old Feud.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

THE CISNEROS RESCUE.

Reporter Who Effected It Arrives From the Field of Operations.

Journalistic Exploit of Daring, Shrewdness and Bluff.

Narrow Escape From Arrest For Attempting to Bribe Jailor.

New York, Oct. 15.—Among the passengers on the Havana line steamer Panama, which reached this city yesterday from Cuba, was Carl Decker, a reporter of the New York Journal, who executed the bold plan for the liberation of Evangeline Cisneros. The story he tells has many of the elements of romance. Where the use of money failed in effecting the success of the entire scheme nerve and bluff made up the deficiency.

In an interview Decker said: "I started from New York Aug. 28, determined to free the woman, though I did not see my way clear as to the plan to be adopted. After reaching Havana many plans suggested themselves to me, but each one proved impracticable. I tried to bribe the jailor, or alcalde as he is called, and he wanted $15,000 for the job and possitive assurance that he and his family could get to the United States. This was rather too rich a proposition for me.

"The Recojidas prison is located in the lower or slum quarters of Havana. Longshoremen and laborers of the lowest class dwell there. I have told the story of how the rescue was made, but there are a few details of my own escape untold. The next day after the escape of Miss Cisneros the whole town was astir. A house to house search was begun and would have been kept up had not a telegram from Minister Dupuy de Lome at Washington informed Weyler that the girl was on the high seas and was expected any day in New York. Then Weyler was mad. He threw the jailor, Joseph Quintane, into jail. Then he told about my attempt to bribe him. This, in connection with the surmise of De Lome, placed suspicion on me. As Miss Cisneros left Saturday, I gave it out that I was going to take a steamer for Mexico. There was only one steamer leaving Sunday, and that was a Spanish steamer. I waited for instructions from New York, and had almost made up my mind to start on Sunday, instructions or no instructions. My instructions came happily.

"My passport was made out in the name of Earl Decker. In order to take the Panama Sunday night and run the gauntlet, I must get my passport vised and stamped with the seal of the secretary of the captain general. I knew that my passport would never be signed, and I learned that an order for my arrest was determined on and that I was to be arrested at 5 o'clock Monday morning. I was in a bad pickle. I got a glimpse of the writing of Mr. Carjoval, the secretary of Weyler, and copied it so that I had it down fine. Then I forged the vise signature. But the seal, there was the rub. I determined to go it without the seal. At the last moment I went to the wharf and took the launch for the steamship. The inspector looked at my passport and asked where the seal was. I assumed a nonchalant air as best I could, and told him that Carjoval was at the Ingleterre hotel and, having no seal, he signed his name to a statement saying it was all right. The inspector hesitated and showed the signature to another inspector, and he said all right, and I was safe. I assumed an injured innocent air, and that bluff worked so that the attention of the chief of police was not called to it.

"The Spanish authorities never thought for a moment that I would take a Spanish steamship. Nearly all the Americans take the American line. They did not think to guard the Panama and watch for me. They make all arrests at 5 o'clock in the morning for some reason or other. They were sure I would be in town on Monday, and they were fooled.

"I wish to say that I had some apprehension about Miss Cisneros carrying out her part of the bluff when she boarded the steamer, but all the way through she acted with a firmness and courage that was remarkable. Clad in the vestments of a ranchero, she walked down Obispo street, the principal thoroughfare of Havana, at a time when the street was crowded, at the same time taking it easy and smoking a cigar. This was another part of the game of bluff. If she had skulked about the back streets she would have immediately been suspected. It was over a mile from the house to the pier. She had a passport made out under an assumed name. All the steamships anchor out in the stream. Miss Cisneros walked down from the house, and we followed behind. She sauntered along leisurely, and once in a while turned to see if we were following. We motioned her to go on. She grew more confident as she went along, but we could see that she was under a great strain. She got on the launch and we waited, and when the launch returned from the vessel and she was not on it, we knew that the scheme had worked like a charm; that the game of bluff had succeeded."

Pardoning Cuban Exiles.

Madrid, Oct. 15.—At the cabinet council yesterday it was decided to pardon all Cuban exiles not included in previous amnesties, and to suspend the decree of Sept. 12 relative to legislative reforms in the Philippine islands. The decree ordered a vigorous suppression of political associations and the secret pact of blood society.

Factory Employes Injured.

Paris, Oct. 15.—A dispatch from Lille, in the department of Nord, announces a terrible disaster at Cambrai, 32 miles from Lille. A larbe piece of the boiling vats of the Central sugar factory fell, burning or crushing 14 persons. Two of the injured are dead and others are expected to die.

Little Lives Lost.

Halifax, Oct. 15.—The house of Peter Downey at Preston was destroyed by fire, and two boys named Willis, aged 8 and 5, respectively, were burned to a crisp.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. NAME,.....

ADDRESS,.....

DO YOU BELIEVE IT?

That we should deem that luck's the thing
That will to us our blessing bring
And give us honey without sting?
I don't believe it!
But that endeavor well applied,
A will that will not be be denied,
Do much life's problem to decide—
I do believe it!

That our great world, as some folks say,
Has still grown worse from day to day,
While men and morals but decay?
I don't believe it!
But that, as history will show,
The "good old times" of long ago
Have better grown, will better grow—
I do believe it!

That we are here to sorrow born,
Are given life to live forlorn,
Have more of nighttime than of morn?
I don't believe it!
But that a healthy, cheerful mind
And thankful heart e'en here may find
That God means only to be kind—
I do believe it!

—George Birdseye in Boston Journal.

AUNT JOHN.

When old Aunt John started in to sell newspapers at the bridge, she had a sorry time of it for awhile. The boys looked upon her as a dangerous business rival, because her withered arm and her pinched face touched the pocket nerve of the passersby so often that she created an appreciable diminution in the daily receipts of even Nosey Geoghegan, who had long enjoyed the prestige of being the autocrat of the row, a position he maintained by vociferation or by force of arms, as occasion demanded. But Aunt John didn't care a torn paper for Nosey, and for that matter she defied him from the very day she began calling out in cracked treble the printed lies and the printed truths she had for sale.

Nobody knew where Aunt John came from, and nobody cared. The name by which she was known was bestowed upon her by the boys themselves and was due to her habit of addressing everybody as "John"—rivals and patrons alike. She had a small, wizened face, parchment as to color and triangle as to shape, with a tufted chin as the apex, and a pair of large dark eyes, that were probably handsome eyes years ago, when her cheeks were rounded and rosy and her wrinkled throat full and white. Her figure was bent, and when she walked it was with a sort of wabble and hop, the punishment that followed the paralysis and shriveled the tissues of the poor, useless arm.

And what a curious thing that arm, or, rather, the hand that belonged to it, was! High and curved at the wrist, long, tapering fingers and white as alabaster—the hand of a patrician on the body of a plebeian. It swung to and fro like the hand of a jointed doll, and on the third finger there shone with a dimmed luster a worn circlet of gold. And every day after Aunt John had wound a string around her old fashioned portmonnaie with her teeth and her living hand she would take the cold fingers of its dead fellow into her lap and caress it as a mother would a child, crooning a mumble of words under her breath.

The old woman was impervious to ridicule or abuse. She pushed forward to sell her papers with the rest of them, and gave no heed to the pulling at her skirts or the angry expostulations of her younger competitors. So, when they found that neither tricks, threats nor cajolery could move her, Aunt John was left to herself, and her old purse at night was the fullest of all, not even excepting Annie, who stood at Frankfort street and did what was generally believed to be the biggest business on Newspaper row.

One day, perhaps it was a little more than a year after Aunt John made her appearance, a small, fragile looking boy, with round, blue eyes and big blue veins in his forehead, essayed a timid attempt to enter the ranks of the juvenile news venders, who had come to look upon the bridge entrance as their especial and exclusive territory. He was immediately pounced upon, the four papers he had started with as stock in trade were torn from him and he was cuffed and knocked about until he nearly fainted from fright and pain. Aunt John had seen scores and scores of fights between the boys—some of them savage and vicious, but she paid no more attention to them than she did to the clattering teams that came over the span from Brooklyn.

With one as with the other, she kept out of the way, but when the attack was made on the frail child with the china blue eyes she uttered a strange cry and sprang forward like a tigress, buffeting the attacking party with a strength that seemed almost marvelous in such a bent and twisted frame. So taken by surprise were the assailants that they scattered like chaff before the wind as their victim sank down exhausted on the stone steps that led up to the promenade.

Aunt John had never been seen to take any interest in a human being before, and it was something so strange to see her stoop down and wipe the blood from the child's face that Nibsey Clark, the side partner of Nosey Geoghegan, gave vent to his wonder by exclaiming, "Hully smoke, de old woman is back on eart!" and summoning a couple of companions who had not been in the fleeing mob to witness the spectacle. Whatever Aunt John may have said to the weak looking boy or what the weak looking boy said in return nobody knew. She stood by him until it got dark and time for her to tie up her purse, and then they went off together up Park row to Roosevelt street and down Roosevelt nearly to the river. Up a narrow, rickety flight of stairs she climbed and the boy followed her.

Next day he came with her to the bridge and stood at her side while she sold her papers, and the boys observed that her eyes were never removed from his face except when she had to engage the attention of a customer. Day by day this continued and through the winter up to January. The boy came with her every day, and he wore better clothing than when he was first seen at the bridge, but he seemed to be fading away.

The veins in his forehead became bluer and his white skin became whiter. He coughed and coughed, and sometimes the blood would gush from his mouth, and he would totter over to the curb and let the life current splash into the gutter. On these occasions the grief and terror of old Aunt John were pitiable. She would throw her papers beside the boy, kneel on them and put her good arm about his head, moaning all the while like an animal in distress. After the kid, as the others called him, had recovered from one of these hemorrhages he would be desperately weak for at least an hour, and Aunt John would watch over him until he was able to walk.

One day the old creature came to the bridge alone. She was in a strange and unusual state of excitement and made no attempt to sell any papers. She sought out Nosey Geoghegan and in her half paralyzed way of speaking made him understand that she wanted him to go with her, and Nosey, not being a bad fellow at heart, only a little loud mouthed at times, took Aunt John by the arm and walked with her to the tenement.

On a cot under the window lay the kid. His wan hands were crossed over his breast and between his finger tips was a faded daguerreotype, which the old woman tenderly removed and handed to Nosey. The newsboy saw the picture of a fair haired boy, with wide open eyes, and he looked at the child on the bed. The likeness between the two was startling enough to impress even the unimpressionable Nosey, but, of course, the daguerreotype was that of another boy, for on the back was pasted a slip of paper on which was written: "My darling boy, John, died July 3, 1863, aged 7 years and 4 months, the day his father was killed at Gettysburg."

When Nosey looked again he realized that the kid whom he thought to be asleep, so peaceful was the smile on his parted lips, was dead. Aunt John was on her knees alongside of the cot, with her withered hand resting inert on the floor and her living arm thrown over the corpse, while the faded picture was pressed to her lips. She got up after awhile and made Nosey understand that she wanted an undertaker. So he went out to get one and incidentally to relate his experiences to his fellows, who immediately made up a purse of $1.45, which four of them took to Aunt John, telling her in their rough way that it was to buy a "wreat' of flowers fur the kid." She took the money and, greatly to the surprise of the donors, patted each one of them on the head.

On the Sunday following—this was on Friday—there was a funeral from the top floor of the tenement, and when the undertaker's assistant carried out the slender coffin he saw a daguerreotype tied on the lid with a bit of twine, and the old woman told him she wanted it buried with the body. Her old heart was broken, and the remainder of other and happier days must be laid away with the memory. And the undertaker did as she wished, and heaped the clods on the coffin and the picture.

Aunt John was never seen at the bridge again. She disappeared as suddenly and as mysteriously as she came, and the boys to this day are of the odd and homely opinion that she "dried up and blowed away," because grief turned her blood to dust.—Vincent G. Cook in New York Mail.

Ball Twenty Years Ago.

He hadn't been in a ball game for 20 years. He was one of the veterans who talk about the old Knoxville Reds and about the merits of John Houk or Martin Condon as pitchers and of Will Hunt as a catcher.

"They didn't need any of them birdcages and chest protectors in the old days, I tell you. The ketcher stood right up to the bat with nothin on but an undershirt, and if he got hit in the face he went right on with the game, and w..at's them hams they carry round on their hands?" said the old fellow.

"Oh, all the catchers and fielders now wear mitts! It's easier to catch flies, you know."

"Well, that beats my time!" said the old veteran. "Mitts? I reckon that's to keep their hands from gittin hurt. Why, doggone my cats, the fielders in the sixties didn't wear nothin! They'd have been ashamed. They didn't think nothin of havin two or three broken fingers and goin right along with the game. Say, the wimmen could play this game, I reckon. It's putty nigh as soft as long tennis or krokay.

"Say, why didn't that chump ketch that foul on the bound? Have to ketch 'em on the fly, does he? Why, by Jinks, in my day a feller had to know just how it was goin to bounce, and you bet it took good judgment to tell which way the thing was a-goin.

"And they lowed them jist as many balls as they wanted and plenty of strikes too. This newfangled concern ain't no good. Mighty good thing that they erected a monument to the mem'ry of Harry Wright, but I'll bet you he remembered what a good game they useter have in the old days when they only had one pitcher and one ketcher."

And the old man rambled on and thought this thing of making two or three runs to a game was a bad piece of playing.—Knoxville Tribune.

Varied Methods.

"I suppose," said the young woman with the inquiring mind, "that most people who go in search of gold get it by working the creeks and chasms."

"Mostly, miss," replied Derringer Pete; "though once in awhile some fellow gits a lot of it by working a bluff."—Washington Star.

Home Grown Aristocracy.

"Why did your daughter break her engagement with that English earl?"

"Because I told her that, with the present prices for wheat, she would better try to catch an American farmer."—Chicago Record.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 17. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—"Whatever He would like to have me do."—Ex. xix, 1-8. (A meeting to consider all branches of society work suggested, to be led by the president.)

In the topical reference we have an account of God's first covenant with Israel. As Moses was about to ascend Mount Sinai to receive special revelations from God, God called out to him and demanded first a positive engagement on the part of the people. He called to mind His past blessings and made promises of future favors if they on their part would obey Him. In answer to this request the people responded, "All that the Lord hath spoken we will do." How like that part of the Christian Endeavor pledge which reads, "I will strive to do whatever He would like to have me do." Israel often failed in keeping her covenant promises. Have we always been true to ours?

1. God's part of the covenant. God promised three things to His people—1. They should be a peculiar treasure unto Him. "If ye will obey My voice and keep My covenant, ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto Me above all people." God would be specially fond of them. They would be jewels in His crown. 2. They should be kings. By the power of God that would be manifested in their lives they would control and influence the lives of others, and thus rule over them. 3. They should be priests. The priest ever had easy and free access to God. Thus they, if they were obedient, would always possess a direct way of approach to Him at all times.

2. God's proof that He would keep His part of the covenant. He appealed to the past. "Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians and how I bare you on eagles' wings and brought you unto myself." As the Israelites reviewed the past they could not doubt God. No more can the Christan Endeavorer who looks over the past 16 years. God's presence in the Endeavor movement and His blessing upon it are apparent to all students of the past. How marvelously He has borne this movement upon eagles' wings and carried it forward. This has been due to the fulfillment of the condition to obey His voice and keep His covenant. Success has come because Endeavorers have trusted in God and have fulfilled this vow to the Master to strive to do whatever He would like to have them do.

3. Israel's part of the covenant. "All that the Lord hath spoken we will do." This was their sweeping promise. The Endeavorer has made the same covenant. We have covenanted with Christ that we will do what He wants us to do. Let us do it better in days to come than in days gone by. If we have been neglectful or careless, let us renew our covenant vows and make it the one aim of life to do, "whatever He would like to have us do."

Bible Readings.—Ex. xx, 1-17; II Chron. xxxiv, 8-13; Ps. xc, 17; Math. xxiii, 1-5; xxviii, 18-20; John ii, 5; vi, 28, 29; I Cor. x, 31; Gal. vi, 9, 10; Phil. ii, 12, 13; Col. iii, 17; II Thess. ii, 16, 17; Jas. i, 22, 23; ii, 19-26; Rev. xiv, 13.

"Faithful Unto Death."

Every trial, if it does its perfect work, leads us to death, to the death of some natural selfishness and to the reception of a more perfect forgiveness and more unselfish kindness. We should remember the cross as the emblem of temptation when it does its perfect work. Naturally, when trial comes we wish it to go away and leave us as we were before. But it would not then accomplish its purpose, which is to effect a change in us, to lead to the laying down of some selfishness. We must see what selfishness needs to be overcome, we must be willing that it shall die. Then the temptation does its perfect work. It reaches to Calvary and the cross. We are faithful unto death, and a more heavenly spirit rests upon us as a crown of life.—Rev. William L. Worcester, "The Helper."

The Upward Way.

The upward way cannot be easy—it must be climbing to the end, but as you climb there come more love of man, more love of God, a blessing of stronger, abler, kinder, happier life, and ever growing over all a quiet, restful sense of something brighter, happier, still beyond, some crown of better life than aught we know of here, which the Lord hath, in the unfolding of the eternal years, for them that love Him.—Dr. Brooke Herford.

The Greater Folly.

Were a house to be in flames tomorrow and were a mother to seize her gold, and her jewels, and her rings and rush from the flames with them and forget her infant slumbering in its cradle, she would be neither so inhuman nor so inconsistent as that man who cares for the toys of a day and thinks nothing and cares nothing about a soul that stands in eternal jeopardy every hour if not justified and pardoned.—Presbyterian Banner.

Necessary For the Souls.

Giving is not intended to make God richer, but to make man greater. It is not the gift God wants; it is the giver. "God loveth a cheerful giver." If we keep this continually in mind and lay it to heart, it will keep us advancing along the way of true development into the fellowship of deepest life with God. Giving is as necessary for the soul's development as exercise is for the body's.—Bishop Penick.

Not on Chance Alone.

God's purpose is good, else there is no God. God's purpose is not dependent upon chance, it shall be accomplished else there is no God. Christ's mission is not to offer chances but certainties.—Christian Leader.

A Statement Worth Remembering.

The way to get a better position is to more than fill your present one.—Ram's Horn.

The Fountain of Youth.

We all remember the story of Ponce de Leon seeking the fountain of eternal youth; and we all sympathize with him in his search. Youth means so much. It means more than life—for sometimes life becomes a weariness. But youth—with its abounding health and vigor, elastic step, glowing cheeks, and sparkling eyes—we all covet genuine youth.

The weakness or disease which ages people before their time, is not the result of accumulated years; it is the effect of wrong living and unhealthy blood. When the blood is pure and fresh the body will be full of youth.

Thousands of people who seemed to have lost their youth by disease and suffering have found it again through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the most perfectly natural and scientific rejuvenator of the physical forces ever known to medical science.

It gives the blood-making organs power to make new blood, full of the life-giving red corpuscles which drive out disease, build up fresh tissue, solid muscular flesh and healthy nerve force. It gives constitutional power, deep and full and strong; rounds out hollow cheeks and emaciated forms; gives plumpness, color and animation.

It does not make flabby fat like cod liver oil. On this account, it is a perfect tonic for corpulent people.

It aids digestion and the natural action of the liver, and by feeding the nerves with highly vitalized blood banishes nervousness, neuralgia and insomnia.

Where a constipated condition exists, the "Discovery" should be used in conjunction with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which are the most perfect, mild and natural laxative in the world. There is nothing else "just as good." There is nothing that will do the work so thoroughly, surely and comfortably.

MAD RUSH FOR STAIRS

Three Persons Killed and Many More or Less Hurt.

One of the Trusses Had Rotted From Its Fastening.

Cincinnati, Oct. 16.—About 8:50 o'clock last night, as the performance at Robinson's Opera House was in progress, the plastering began to fall from the centre of the ceiling, 40 feet above the heads of the people in the parquet. This continued three minutes, causing a rush from the house. The theatre and galleries were partially emptied when the dome in the centre of the roof, with its supporting timbers and trusses, came thundering down. The dome extended across the house and was about 30 feet wide.

When it fell the ends struck both sides of the gallery, crushing it, scattering timbers in every direction and finally landing in the centre of the parquet. Scarcely anybody was hurt in the balcony or dress circle. There were very few in the gallery at the time. The injured are those who had not escaped from the parquet

The list at the hospital showed three dead, five dangerously, if not fatally, wounded, and 26 more or less seriously injured. In addition to those a large number, probably 25 or 30, were slightly injured, but able to walk home. The scene in front of the hospital doors was a sad one. Hundreds of people gathered there, clamoring for the names of the injured.

The damage to the structure was nothing at all to the stage, comparatively little to the gallery, which suffered most, almost nothing to the dress circle, and much less than one would think from the debris scattered around through the parquet where the main truss landed.

Among the first to enter the building after the dome had fallen was President George W. Rapp of the Cincinnati chapter of the American institute of architecture. "It was not the dome," said he, pointing to the huge heap in the centre of the floor, "that caused the trouble. The fault lay with the roof trusses. The house has been built more than 25 years, and the wood shrank until the bolts and nails afforded the smallest possible security. One of these trusses had rotted away from its fastenings; it parted and threw the two sections down, and these in their descent pulled the dome with them. The wood trusses are of pine and shrink very perceptibly in the course of years. They should be examined every five or six years. Modern structures are put up with steel trusses. The roof of this theatre is liable to come down at any minute."

Commemorative Boulder.

Taunton, Mass., Oct. 16.—Yesterday, in the presence of a gathering of nearly 3000 people, an immense granite boulder appropriately inscribed was dedicated by Governor Wolcott and members of the old colony commission. It marked the spot where in October, 1774, nearly two years before the declaration of independence, was raised the first liberty flag and pole in the colony. The flag bore the words, "Liberty and Union," and since has been known as the red flag of Taunton. On the same spot, Oct. 24, 1786, General David Cobb, in command of 400 militiamen and volunteers, subdued a body of insurgents in a rebellion which had gathered to prevent the session of the supreme judicial court in Taunton and to seize its papers. This event put an end to the rebellion.

William T. Davis of Plymouth, president of the commission, who was to have presented the tablet to the commonwealth, was absent by reason of illness, and his place was taken by Vernon Briggs of Boston, secretary of the commission, who read a letter from Mr. Davis. Governor Wolcott then rose to reply, and was greeted with applause and cheers.

Complete Deadlock.

London, Oct. 16.—The engineering dispute is in the stage of complete deadlock. All attempts at reconciliation seem hopeless. The archbishop of Canterbury and Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, have both declined invitations to mediate. The latter says that Mr. Ritchie, president of the board of trade, may be trusted to take the necessary steps.

On the other hand, there is a startling rumor that Mr. Ritchie, disgusted by the rejection of his previous offers, refuses to accept further responsibility for bringing the disputants together, and throws the whole affair on the cabinet. The matter will come before the cabinet council today.

Postmaster Under Arrest.

New York, Oct. 16.—Postmaster Irving Kelsey of Queens, L. I., was arrested yesterday on the charge of being short in his accounts. It is alleged that an investigation has revealed a small deficiency. Three postoffice inspectors went to Queens and went over the books of the postmaster. Afterwards a United States deputy mrashal put in an appearance and took Kelsey into custody. He has been postmaster for a number of years.

Serum For Yellow Fever.

Montevideo, Oct. 16.—During the course of a lecture yesterday, Dr. Sarnelli, who has been experimenting for some time past with yellow fever germs, affirmed that the serum he has obtained from the animals with which he has been experimenting is as effective against yellow fever as horse serum, and he added that it will very probably cure spontaneous yellow fever in human beings.

Redhead Caught Redhanded.

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 16.—Frank I. Redhead, for some time an employe of the postoffice, was arrested last night by the police upon complaint of Postmaster Pearson for purloining letters from the mail. Several letters have been missed of late, and decoy letters were used to catch the offender. Redhead had two registered letters ane one not registered when arrested.

BRADSTREET'S REPORT.

Slackening In Rate of Distribution Affect Movement of Prices.

New York, Oct. 16.—The activity in staple lines of merchandise, says Bradstreet's report this week, is less pronounced than a month ago, due to interior merchants having supplied their demands for the time, a gradual increase of the territory included by the yellow fever quarantine, the low price of cotton, a tendency in the Missouri river valley and spring wheat states to hold wheat for higher prices and to farmers being busy with fall planting.

The drought is not broken in Kansas, northern Missouri and Iowa, where rains have been light, but the outlook is not alarming. Good rains have broken the drought in Nebraska, where the ground is ready for fall planting. Unseasonable weather has had an unfavorable influence on the distribution of merchandise throughout the central West, and at Chicago and St. Louis sales have fallen off.

Cotton is weak and one and one-half cents lower than a year ago on late estimates of a 10,000,000 yield, against 8,700,000 bales in 1896-97. A well informed correspondent gives reason for anticipating a much smaller yield than trade estimates indicate. The position of the cotton goods industry is no more favorable, but woolen goods manufacturers report demand brisk, prices steady and an unwillingness by makers to accept new orders at present quotations.

With the slacking off in the rate of distribution of merchandise, the upward movement of prices is correspondingly checked, and in this the third week in succession the number of staples for which quotations are lower is greater than those which are higher or unchanged. There are nominal advances for lard and men's shoes, but prices for pork, sugar, other forms of iron and steel than Bessemer, for copper, lumber, coal, hides and wool are unchanged. Quotations are lower for butter, potatoes, wheat, corn, oats, flour, beef coffee, cotton, print cloths and lead.

September gross railway earnings exceed those for August both in amount and in percentage of gain, being unrivalled as to proportion of gain shown Total September earnings of 132 companies, operating nearly 190,000 miles of road, aggregate $50,812,042, an increase over September a year ago of $6,300,000 or 14.1 per cent. This followed a gain in August of 12.5 per cent and of 4.3 per cent in July over last year.

There are 196 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 237 last week 279 a year ago, 289 two years ago, 253 three years ago and 340 four years ago

BAY STATE CAPITAL.

Heavy Verdict In a Damage Case Against a Railroad.

Boston, Oct. 16.—A verdict of $12,500 for the plaintiff was returned by a jury in the superior court in the case of Michael B. McGarrhan vs the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company. The plaintiff sought to recover $25,000 damages for injuries received on May 7, 1896, while a passenger on one of the defendant's trains. It appeared from the testimony that the train on which he was riding was derailed at the Park square station and he was thrown out of a window. He sustained severe injuries.

Boston, Oct. 16—The old United States corvette Yantic, which has been fitted out at the Charlestown navy yard for the Michigan naval brigade, has left for Detroit under easy steam. She will make a straight run from here to the St. Lawrence river, where she will be turned over to the men of the brigade who will take her through the canals to Detroit; where she will be used as a practice ship

Boston, Oct. 16.—The complete return of the registration of the voters of the city of Boston was given out at the office of the board of election commissioners Friday. The returns show the whole number of voters on the lists qualified to vote in the coming state election in the city to be 95,324, 882 names behind that of the city registration for 1896.

Boston, Oct. 16.—Friday was a record breaker for hot weather for this time of year. It was the hottest day for the pediod between the eleventh and twentieth of the month since the signal station was established at Boston in 1870. The maximum temperature reached was 85.5, the mercury standing at that height at 2 o'clock, soon after which it began to grow slightly cooler

Mob of Enraged Citizens.

Little Rock, Oct. 16.—A letter from a prominent citizen of Warren says: One of the largest and most valuable vineyards in Bradley county has just been destroyed by a mob of enraged citizens For several years a beautiful vineyard has been growing about eight miles south of Warren, the product of which has been converted into native wines. It is alleged that the sale of the beverage has caused considerable drunkenness among young men and boys. Neighborhood gatherings had been disturbed and orgies became of common occurrence. A meeting of citizens was held at Farmerville, at which it was resolved that the vineyard was the primary cause of the disorders, and the citizens proceeded in a body to the vineyard and destroyed it

Princeton In Poor Form.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 16.—The coaches are in fear and trembling on the eve of the Indian game, and the whole university believe that it will be the hardest fought game of the year. The work of the "tigers" has not changed for the better, and the seriousness of the situation brought 12 coaches to town. On the 'varsity field Friday afternoon the remarkable spectacle was presented of a coach for every position. The practice was poor—so poor that Coach Moffatt said to the men: "If the Indians don't score three times on you it will be a wonder."

Want to Learn How to Hang.

London, Oct. 16.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Mail, describing the execution there of Dolezal, the murderer of two old women, says: "It was a horrifying spectacle. The murderer displayed the most pitable nervous agony. Instead of being dropped, as is customary in England, he was hoisted by the neck several feet and then drawn by cords attached to his arms and legs The struggles of the miserable wretch lasted three minutes."

THE TALKING STRING.

By MARTHA M'CULLOCH WILLIAMS

[Copyright, 1897, by the Author.]

As Ned ran along to school, about 8 o'clock one frosty March morning, he found a curious thing at the side of the road. First he thought it was a snake, but snakes were not yet out of their winter houses. Then it seemed to him a whiplash. At last he made out that it was a length of leather curiously colored and mottled with darker spots.

"Now I can fool all the fellows. I lay none of them ever saw the like of it. I will drag it gently over their feet and make them, too, think it a snake," Ned said to himself, and he slipped it through his hand, then stretched it taut and gave it a gentle jerk before setting it at the bottom of his pocket. "How they will jump and cry out! particularly the Weston boy. I hate him anyway. I hate all cowards."

"Do you?" said a muffled voice; so muffled and weak indeed that though Ned started a bit at the sound he easily persuaded himself he had imagined, not heard it. But all the way to the school door he had a sort of shivery sensation and ran fast, now and then looking over his shoulder as though expecting to see something queer behind him.

"Whew! I am late!" he said as he came up to it. "Everybody is inside at lessons. I shall tell the master—let me see! oh!—that mother sent me on an errand and I could not get here earlier," he began in thought. Again came the muffled voice:

"Tell him a lie, eh! Thought you hated cowards. Lying is the worst sort of cowardice. You know you loitered, looking for young squirrels in the big oak tree. If you told that he would"—

"Give me five black marks and lose me all chance of the medal," Ned said, too angry to be much awed. "I did go an errand last night," he went on. "If I had not, I would have been abed earlier, got up earlier and been here"—

"Just when you are," retorted the voice. It had not grown stronger, but shriller—so keen and penetrating Ned was afraid those inside might hear it. He hurried in and slipped into his seat as quietly as a mouse. Soon he had his book out and was studying as though life depended on knowing that particular lesson by heart. The master's head had been turned as he came in. Maybe he might be persuaded that Ned had been overlooked, not absent, at roll call.

He felt more than a little ashamed, though, when it turned out that way. After class, where he had recited best of them all, the master said almost affectionately: "Bless my soul, Ned, I must be growing blind and deaf. I was about to mark you absent, when I looked up and saw you in place. I am as glad I did not do it as that I did not need to do it. You lads are racing so gallantly for the medal I should hate to see a single one drop out."

"HOW DO YOU LIKE ME, NEDDY?"

"You are very good, sir," Ned answered, getting very red; "too good by half." The hateful voice rang in his ear. He was relieved to find that the rest did not hear it, yet so upset over it that he made a sad mess of the algebra lesson which came next. Usually the problems were but play to him. Today x and y, and plus signs and minus ones tangled and jumbled themselves together in his brain after a maddening fashion. But to thus fail in it would send him from first place, down a mark below Timmy Angel, the next competitor. Timmy was Ned's deskmate, yet a great chum of the Weston boy whom Ned hated.

Now he came over to them, ostensibly to ask for a pencil he had left on the desk yesterday, really to show them in the shelter of his open book all those knotty and tantalizing problems worked out beautifully upon fair white paper. "Sat up half the night to do 'em," he said in a proud whisper. "But, oh, ain't I glad now that I did!"

"Let me look good. Leave 'em a minute, can't you?" Timmy returned, with a sigh half of envy. Just then the master called: "Weston, I think it is your turn to fetch water. Let us have a fresh bucketful, please. Meantime you are excused from algebra."

"Please, sir, mayn't Timmy go along? He can take the other bucket. We shall need 'em both by dinner time," Weston answered. The master smiled and nodded. Before yes was out of his mouth the two lads were scuttering away, leaving Ned alone with his blurred mind and those temptingly wrought out problems.

He shut his eyes and dug his knuckles hard in them. In his heart he was saying: "It can't be any harm. Weston is excused. That means a good mark for him—the very highest maybe. And I can't, I simply can't, do these exercises. Not now, I mean. I will—honest, I will—tonight, when I can think."

"You will not," said the voice in a funny little scream that made Ned almost jump out of his seat. He knew whence it came now—out the pocket with the string in it. "I ought never to have put it there. I might have known it for a piece of witchwork," Ned said to himself, trembling all over, but he stuck to his ill determination. He would use Weston's exercises. He must indeed. It was out of the question to think of studying anything until he was rid of that fearful string. He must keep it until playtime. If he slid it out and dropped it under another desk, there was no telling what might not come of it.

The spring was half a mile off. Weston alone might have come back from it quickly. With Timmy to bear him company they were good for at least the algebra half hour. The master was even now calling up the class. Ned's feet were leaden as he went, but again fortune favored him. After a smiling glance over the exercise paper, which Ned had handed him, the master called some one else to the blackboard, saying in a kindly aside: "I must give the slower wits a chance, Neddy. I see plainly you need no help which I can give."

"No. He needs manliness and honesty. Only himself can give that," the terrible voice said clearly in Ned's ear. He set his teeth hard and got so white the master said kindly: "You may go outside for a bit, Neddy. If you do not feel better soon, I will excuse you from all the other classes and send you home."

"Thank you, sir. I—I don't feel just right," Ned stammered, making for the door. In his haste he was forgetting the telltale paper.

"Oh, you are not even a clever rogue," whispered the voice. "You bungle in your cheating. Remember the Weston boy will come back pretty soon."

"If—if you are done with those, sir, I would like them. I—I want to show them to my father," Ned said, holding out his hand. As the master laid the exercise paper within it he turned it over. Something upon the underside made his face grow grave, but he said nothing, only waved Ned away and went on with the class. If he had spoken, Ned would scarcely have heard. The voice was dinning and hissing into his ears:

"You hate a liar and a coward—at least you say so—yet you have stolen meanly and lied to cover your theft. Perhaps you never thought before how easily one wrong thing slides into another. Get away from here! Quick! Go and stay with yourself awhile and judge how fit you are for better company."

He got out of the house as the water bringers came to the door. A cool draft revived him somewhat. He ran on to the woods and sat down at the side of a great tree, too shaken and miserable to pay much heed to anything. Presently he reached cautiously within his pocket and drew out the hateful string. Still it looked no more than a harmless piece of queer leather. He noted, though, that the darkish mottles were darker and the bright colors somewhat faded.

"Tell me what that means. Tell me what you are, you terror!" he said at last, flinging the string angrily away from him. It fell upon a bed of moss near at hand, and Ned was astounded to see it dissolve to colored vapor out of which there soon appeared the daintiest merry fairy in the world.

"How do you like me, Neddy? You never saw me before, but I have watched you ever since you were born," she said, tripping up to him and hopping upon his hand. "You were born in my minute. Each fairy of us has a minute, you know, and all the children born then are our care."

"Why didn't you come sooner? Then I would not have done such nasty, mean things," Ned groaned.

"Why did you make it necessary for me to come at all?" the fairy demanded, stamping her foot, which felt like a dewdrop pattering on Ned's hand. "Yes, you brought me to you," she went on. "Such a censorious, critical fellow you have grown! Because poor Jimmy Weston cannot help his fear of cows and toads you have sneered at him and made the school look down on him, yet used his brains without scruple."

"No, no. I—I hated to do it. I meant to make it up to him," Ned broke in eagerly. The fairy looked at him with keen eyes. "Intentions do not count. Only actions," she said. "You have had too easy a time. You could learn without effort and are too strong to be afraid, so let yourself be contemptuous of less fortunate ones. You have not learned the consideration due from strength to weakness. I came to teach you that more than anything else. When the master gave back the paper, he saw Weston's name on it. His first thought involuntarily was the truth—that you had tricked him. His second was that because of illness you had made a mistake."

"And he did not tell the rest? Oh, I can never thank him enough!" Ned said contritely. "Neither can I thank you, dear fairy, as you deserve."

"Yes, you can," said the fairy. "Always believe the best and do the best."

"I will try," said Ned. And try he did always thereafter.

Hottest October Day.

For the past few days the temperature has been steadily growing warmer and at noon today the mercury mounted to 83 degrees. This is eight degrees warmer than on Friday and 23 degrees warmer than a year ago today at the same hour. The highest point the mercury reached in October last year was 78 degrees which occurred on the first. The average temperature for the first sixteen days in October last year was 55 degrees while this year the average at noon has been 60. The last time the mercury reached 83 was on Sept. 11; when it went five better.

Committee at Work.

Several members of the executive committee who have general supervision of the annual festival in aid of the City Hospital, as well as the chairman of some of the sub-committees, met at Music hall this morning to look it over and in a measure to lay it out. All expressed themselves as more than pleased with the hall which is certainly an ornament to Quincy. No definite plans were decided upon, but it was thought best to arrange the booths along the sides of the hall and what decorating is done will be about these booths. The ceiling and walls are handsomely painted and the managers rightly forbid the driving of nails into the wood work.

Sewer Contract.

At the meeting of the Sewer Commissioners held last night the contract for building section three of the sewer, which is from the pumping station to Woodbine street, Wollaston, was awarded to John Sheahan & Co., of Lynn whose bid was $19,122.50.

The management of the Quincy Music hall has shown good judgment in securing such a first class company as the Boston Operetta Comany to open the hall and no doubt every ticket will be sold before opening the doors.

COURSING THE JACK.

PLAINS PEOPLE PREPARING FOR THEIR ANNUAL RABBIT HUNTS.

Great Sport For Men and Dogs—Old Coursing Grounds Abandoned For New Ones Farther West—Many Meets In Prospect. Rabbit Supply May Run Short.

Lovers of sport out on the plains are now getting ready for their annual fun with the second fleetest creature of the prairies—the long eared, homely, simple minded jack rabbit. The swiftest is, of course, the coyote, but the jack is not far behind on the home stretch. The coyote has more endurance and cunning, but when the smaller brother really exerts himself on a clear track he is able to annihilate time and space in a most marvelous manner. He does not run then—he flies. He makes with those long legs a propeller that transforms him into an animated airship, and the dog that thinks he has a pleasure excursion before him is mistaken. There is probably more enjoyment in the jack rabbit than in any victim of the western sportsman's prowess, and it is in autumn when there is the most favorable time for pursuing the game.

The only formal sporting events of the farther plains are the coursing meets that are held in the crisp fall weather. In South Dakota is the principal one, but there are others in Nebraska and in Kansas. At these come together the best dogs that the nation affords, and it is not unusual to have hounds from abroad at the kennels. For many years the greatest meets were held on the Cheyenne bottoms in western Kansas. Here was the starting point of the prairie coursing. The spot was ideal. It was the bottom of an old lake, and around the basin rose the bluffs that seemed like shores of a sea of grass. It was about 13 miles long and 3 or 4 wide, and the luxuriant sod, unmarked by plow or trail, made a hiding place for thousands of rabbits. A handsome clubhouse was erected and the sportsmen came from the principal cities of the nation to see the sport.

From the cattle ranches of the far northwest came the Englishmen who had chosen their homes out on the plains for a time in order to make a fortune. They were in some instances members of the nobility, and how the Kansans did stare as they rode through the town to the clubhouse. There were valets and many trunks and all sorts of things that the settlers had never known existed except in novels, but greater than all were the slim, sleek hounds that had royal dog blood in their veins and were each worth more than the farms of half the county's population. It was a gala occasion, and one that brought the lovers of sport together regardless of rank. The farm boys spoke to the English lord on terms of equality, and the cow puncher and the aristocrat of the metropolis had the same likes and dislikes. But this meeting place was after awhile abandoned, and now the bottoms are to be filled up with water for an inland lake if the supply of water is sufficient.

The racing still goes on, and many coursing meets will be held this season. The gatherings are always large, for there is that in the eager race for the prize that appeals to the men of the west. The visitors are ranged up alongside the judges and in a line behind the dogs. Then the hounds are brought out two by two, and the umpire and judge take their places. The slipper lets the dogs go at the same moment, and then the rabbit, which has been located in advance, is in for it. He usually thinks he has plenty of time, and with the average dog this is true. But the hounds are no slouches themselves at a run. They lower their handsome bodies and stretch their slender legs farther and farther until they seem to be almost a straight line from toe to toe.

The rabbit has no thought of hurrying at first. He gives a startled hop that sends him up in the air and forward a few feet, then another and another, and the distance between himself and the dogs is increased. He halts, as he is accustomed to do when the farm dogs are after him, sees that he is too hotly pursued and then goes on faster than before, but the dogs gain on him and soon his pace reaches the maximum. It is something wonderful how he does it. There is not any running in the usual sense of the word, but a kind of a long hop that is more like the pace of the kangaroo than of any other animal, but at last he wavers. The pace is too much for him. He turns this way and that, he dodges faster and faster; then when he turns he comes straight into the gaping mouth of one of the hounds, and the race is over for him. Had he not been such a coward he would have lasted longer.

It is not coursing that is decimating the jack rabbit. The progress of civilization is his foe. He wants a great deal of prairie in which to enjoy himself. He does not mind the common dogs. Not one of them can come within a mile of catching him, but there are those big hunts that the farmers organize! They do not come until a little later, but when they are ready it means a mighty slaughter. Surrounding a large territory, the hunters close in on the frightened jacks hour by hour until the ground is covered with the scared bunnies and the slaughter becomes heartless. It is not sport then, but a brutal exhibition of the hunting spirit. The rabbits are shipped to the cities for the poor, the hunts taking place either just before Thanksgiving or in the week preceding Christmas. Few of the settlers wish to eat the meat of the jack rabbit, but they think the people of the city will do so, and they are right, for carloads were used in Denver and Kansas City last winter. Thirty thousand rabbits were killed at one hunt in Colorado a year ago.—Chicago Times-Herald.

No Strike of Sympathy.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 16.—The lasters attempted to hold a mass meeting last night, but the hall was not large enough, and the meeting adjourned to the Hibernian hall, where 400 assembled to discuss the question of striking in sympathy with the sole fasteners. After listening to speeches by Secretary Eaton of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union the meeting, by a vote of 204 to 37, refused to strike.

After the meeting the union met and ratified the action of the mass meeting. This action was taken principally because the sole fasteners are not yet members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, it being the general opinion of the speakers that the unions outside the larger organizations were no better than non-unions.

Maguire Lost His Laurels.

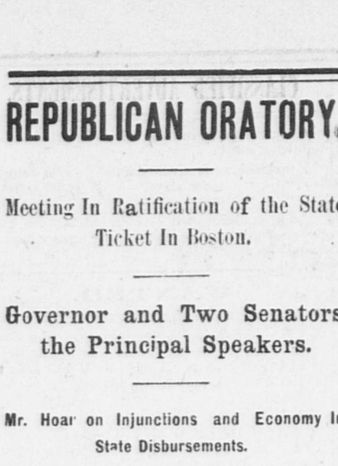
REPUBLICAN ORATORY.

Meeting In Ratification of the State Ticket In Boston.

Governor and Two Senators the Principal Speakers.

Mr. Hoar on Injunctions and Economy In State Disbursements.

Boston, Oct. 16.—A ratification meeting in the interest of the Republican ticket was held Friday night in Music hall. There was a large turnout, and the enthusiasm was limitless. All of the speechmaking was by Massachusetts citizens. Colonel Goeting of Springfield, chairman of the state committee, presented Representative Bates, speaker of the house of representatives, as the presiding officer. Mr. Bates spoke strongly and eloquently for half an hour.



SENATOR GEORGE F. HOAR.

At the conclusion of his speech Governor Wolcott was introduced. He said: "Republicans of Massachusetts, I need not say how touched I am by this cordial greeting. The issues that are to be presented for the decision of the voters on the second day of November have been eloquently outlined to you by the distinguished speaker of the house of representatives. There are certain phrases in the nomenclature of politics that I would gladly see pass into early and final disuse. One of these is 'an off year.' Under our system of government, my friends, there is no such thing as an off year in the politics of the American republic. (Cheers) This year the election will be as important as every election is in the old commonwealth of Massachusetts. Moreover, as has been already hinted, we this year face a united party of opposition. For this statement, gentlemen, there is the highest possible authority. In the meeting in Faneuil hall last night, Mr. Williams said: 'I know of no dissensions in the ranks of the Democracy.' He stated, however, that certain gentlemen had been deposed from the leadership and other gentlemen had been put in the position of leadership; but he summed it all up by saying that this meant no dissension, but merely meant the perfection of the organization of the machinery of the party. Therefore, the Republicans of this commonwealth this year should gird up their loins to meet a united opposition in which, happily, there are no dissensions, and which, fortunately is blessed by the perfection of the machinery of party organization. The orderly, just, progressive control of the affairs of this commonwealth for which we are indebted to the Republican party is before the eyes of all its citizens. Pass fair judgment upon it, gentlemen. Compare the laws of this commonwealth with the laws of the most famous of our sister states, and then on Nov. 2 answer the question whether or not the people of this commonwealth wish to entrust its complicated affairs to new and untried hands, or whether on the whole they are satisfied with the orderly conduct of the affairs of the commonwealth of Massachusetts by the Republican party."

Senator George Frisbie Hoar of Worcester followed the governor, and his speech was keen at all times. He paid a high tribute to Governor Wolcott's first administration of state affairs, and in commending his political affiliations said. "He did not have to change his coat to show its silver lining (Laughter); he didn't have to denounce the courts of his country, which are the protection and guardians of everything that we hold dear in property or in the home, and summon to tear them down an audience which had to be kept from tearing each other to pieces. (Applause and laughter). You elected him by a majority of 168,000—I think it was—and gave a majority of about 20,000 more for McKinley, and if we could have national elections every year, I think you would like to increase your majority for McKinley today. (Applause).

"They tell you that although prosperity may have come it did not come quite so quick as we predicted last year. Well, I admit that a Democratic national administration is a disease that it takes longer to recover from than I thought it would. (Laughter and applause). They tell you that there is a judge in Virginia and another in Illinois who has issued some injunctions which they think ought not to have been issued. Well, now whatever may be the wisdom or the want of wisdom in that complaint I cannot understand what practical bearing it has on the state election in Massachusetts this year (Laughter). I think for one that you have no complaints. I think we can trust the supreme court of Massachusetts. The constitution of Massachusetts as it will be interpreted by her is enough to secure alike the liberty and the property of the people of Massachusetts as it has for a hundred years and the constitution of the United States, interpreted by that august and venerable tribunal of which Massachusetts herself furnishes one of the most shining lights, will be enough to protect the interests and the liberties and the rights of the people on a national scale.

"But the governor himself has struck the keynote of this campaign. He has pointed out to the people the necessity of a more strict and careful scrutiny and economy in the matter of public expenditure. We have no right to leave to our children the burden of a public debt for expenditures which we make. They will have their own necessities, their own demands. Debt is weakness, and credit and freedom from debt are strength. The one thing which I have to complain of more than any other in the administration of President Cleveland is the recklessness with which it piled on an additional burden of $400,000,000 upon the debt of this country. The result was the terrible period which we have gone through, which cost the people not only infinite misery by the loss of employment, but cost them in money a larger sum in my judgment than it took to put down the rebellion itself. Now, as the governor has well intimated to us, it is not for Republican Massachusetts to commit the mistake and repeat the mistake which was made by the national Democratic administration."

Senator Lodge was given a very hearty and enthusiastic greeting, three mighty cheers welcoming his rising. When the applause had temporarily ceased he said: "With the grateful courtesy that always obtains between honorable opponents, our speeches have been moderate, not on the length of the Republican majority in November, but on the shortness of the Democratic vote at that period. I am going to refer to something that occurred last year. The last candidate of the Democratic party for the presidency said that if McKinley was elected wheat would go down to 25 cents a bushel. Wheat, instead of running down to 25 cents a bushel, has been running upwards steadily to the dollar mark. (Applause). I do not propose to claim that the advances is owing simply to Republican legislation, yet I should have good authority for making just such a claim. I am not offering an explanation; I am simply pointing out a coincidence.

"The Republican party in the short time it has enjoyed has passed a tariff bill. It is a very difficult thing to make a tariff. There are interests of an enormous country to be reconciled and treated on an equality. It seemed rather strange to me to see it stated that New England had been sacrificed in the making of the tariff. Not once but almost every day some senator from the south or the west would get up and denounce New England. If their judgment is correct, it shows that New England, in the past at least, has not been ill represented. The fact is legislation is not what has made New England. That which has made New England are New England brain and thrift."

Williams In Lowell.

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 16.—The Democrats of Lowell held their first rally for the state campaign in Huntington hall last night. The principal speakers were George Fred Williams, Pierre Humbert, Jr., and Oliver Downing. The audience filled Huntington hall, and was very enthusiastic.

Mr. Downing stated that he had been a life-long Republican and a veteran of the late war. He had been compelled to leave it because of the domination of trusts.

Mr. Williams devoted some time to the early history of the political parties and traced the Democratic party down from the time of Jefferson to this day, when it is the party of the common people. He referred also to the branching out of the gold Democracy. The new Democracy attempts to fill the great gulf between the rich and the poor.

Mr. Williams had something to say on the money question, and said that it may be settled finally next year. He scored the rich men whose fortunes were not earned honestly, and also the monopolies. The public press, he said, is dominated by those who would make you believe there is something good for you which does not exist. Mr. Williams, as a denial of returning prosperity, said: "The mills of Fall River for the past year earned less than one-half of 1 per cent, the smallest record in the history of the mills. When they can turn to the official figures of the prosperity of the mills to show there is prosperity I shall be the first to acknowledge it."

Murder Theory Advanced.

Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 16.—The circumstances attending the death of James Morton Peck, whose dead body was found suspended from a tree in Weymouth woods, are still of a mysterious character, and further investigation leads to the belief that, instead of taking his own life, others' hands were responsible for his death. Peck left his home in Braintree Oct. 3 to go to Norwell. Nothing was heard of him until Wednesday afternoon, when his body was discovered in the woods, about half way to his destination. Strewn about the ground near the body was the contents of his pocketbook, consisting of private papers, but with an entire absence of money. Around the neck was a small noose of three-sixteenths inch wrapping twine, and the end was fastened to a small but apparently rotten limb of a pine tree. The limb seemed so incapable of supporting more than a few pounds that as the feet were resting on the ground, the body being kept in an upright position by the cord, the suicide theory at once appeared untenable.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. Parlor Stoves. . .

American genius and American brains are never idle, there is scarcely an article we use that some fertile brain is not quietly conniving upon to improve.

Our grandfathers toasted their shins in front of open fireplaces and quite enjoyed it, because they knew of nothing better.

The latest creations in Parlor Stoves, however, are works of wonder. We've searched the market through, and pinched the best. Parlor Stoves, beautiful and ornamental in design, not costly in price, powerful heaters, economical coal consumers that will keep in for months, all that a saving heart could desire.

You'll never know what genuine Parlor Stove comfort is until you try one of the newest style heaters, 30 patterns to choose from, $2.90 to $25.00.

MISTAKES OF TRAINING.

Improper Methods of Athletic Development Roundly Censured.

The building up of a fine physique is very similar to the building of a good house. You do not put a massive roof upon thin walls; you are careful that every brick is well and truly laid; you make quite sure of your foundations before you proceed any further. And thus should it be in the development of the human body. It can be done no other way. But is it so in the case of the trained athlete? Muscle, yes—a lump here and a lump there. But how often do you find one with every muscle in his body perfectly and symmetrically developed? Not in one case out of 10,000. In the other 9,999 cases the development is exceedingly irregular. The man with good biceps has a poor chest; he with the fine calf has very inferior development in the upper part of his body. Not only this, but the smaller muscles are, in the majority of trained men, almost nonexistent, and they are really the most important, constituting, as they do, the connecting links of the whole fabric.

The muscles which appear on the surface are valuable, but they are not all important. Those which are deeper seated have their part to play in supporting and sustaining the others while they are at work. Further, many of the chief internal organs are largely muscular. If the machine is to work smoothly and safely, they must be sufficiently strong to bear the strain imposed by the violent exertion of the external muscles. The strength of a chain is, we know, that of its weakest link. Any unusual strain upon the body will find out the weakest spot. Is not the moral plain? Muscular development must be distributed equally all over, inside and out, if it is to be a source of real strength. A man with a huge arm may be actually weaker than another individual with only half his development if the former's heart and lungs are not proportionately powerful. These, then, are the great mistakes of training. Instead of trying to build up the body gradually in nature's own way it aims at developing by violent methods certain muscles which are required for the performance of specific feats. — St. James Gazette.

ALL SORTS OF SPORTS.

The Staten Island Cricket club has decided to put a football team on the field this season.

Five of last season's players will again line up with the United States Naval academy team.

Haughton's great improvement as full back was the most interesting feature of recent Harvard football practice.

The recent turner festival at Schaffhausen, Switzerland, assembled over 5,000 turners, including some from Germany and America.

S. Niyama, director of the imperial Japanese stock farm, accompanied by his two secretaries, is on a tour of the Kentucky blue grass region.

The Tulane Athletic club of New Orleans has offered a purse of $5,000 or 60 per cent of the gate receipts for the fight between "Kid" McCoy and Dan Creedon.

Jimmie Barry, the well known bantam pugilist, sailed for England yesterday, where he will try to arrange a bout with Dave Sullivan or any other man in his class.

Joe Goddard, the Australian heavyweight, sailed from England for this country yesterday. His coming will tend to stir up matters among the big men, as he is anxious to get on a match with Maher. Sharkey or Choynski.

Chevalier Greco, the Italian champion swordsman, has cabled from Italy that he is willing to contest with Regis or Louis Senac of New York to settle the question of superiority of the Italian or French school of swordsmanship.

When Hamburg arrives at Lexington, Ky., he will be turned out for the winter at the Kentucky association's track. Marklein, owner of Malvolio, the western 2-year-old crack, has abandoned hope of getting on a match race with Hamburg.

Fitz In Bas-relief.

Honors continue to fall thickly upon Robert Fitzsimmons. The latest addition to the list is a handsomely framed bas-relief model of the champion, the work of F. K. Stone, a sculptor, of Bridgeport, Conn. The figure shows Fitz in fighting attitude, and the silver model on a background of black makes a striking picture.

The sculptor forwarded the model to the champion. Mr. Stone in his communication stated that he was much impressed with the fair and manly way in which Fitz had won his title, and he sent the model as a slight expression of his esteem.

The model was duly handed to the champion, who expressed great pleasure.

Sandow's Ideas on Training.

There is wide interest among oarsmen at Sandow's offer to train the Cambridge crew for the boat race of 1898 with Oxford and to back it to win. Sandow insists that the old methods of dieting, living up to hard and fast rules, and not smoking, is wrong, and he proposes in the event of Cambridge not accepting his offer to undertake the training of one of the Henley crews. The presidents of the Oxford and Cambridge boat clubs are both considering the subject and have been in communication with Sandow. President Phillips of Oxford is keeping a sharp lookout to see that Cambridge does not monopolize the advantages promised by Sandow.

GEMS IN VERSE.

The Water Drinker.

Oh, water for me, bright water for me!
Give wine to the tremulous debauchee!
It cooleth the brow; it cooleth the brain;
It maketh the faint one strong again;
It comes o'er the sense like a breeze from the sea,
All freshness, like infant purity.
Oh, water, bright water, for me, for me!
Give wine, give wine, to the debauchee!

Fill to the brim! Fill, fill to the brim!
Let the flowing crystal kiss the rim!
My hand is steady, my eye is true,
For I, like the flowers, drink naught but dew
Oh, water, bright water's a mine of wealth,
And the ores it yieldeth are vigor and health!
So water, pure water, for me, for me,
And wine for the tremulous debauchee!

Fill again to the brim, again to the brim,
For water strengtheneth life and limb!
To the days of the aged it addeth length.
To the might of the strong it addeth strength.
It freshens the heart; it brightens the sight;
'Tis like quaffing a goblet of morning light.
So, water, I will drink naught but thee,
Thou parent of health and energy!
—Edward Johnson.

Evolution.

When Esmeralda got her wheel
And first began to ride,
She wore a long and graceful skirt
That was her joy and pride,
But soon her equanimity
Received a dreadful check.
Rude forces took that graceful skirt
And wrapped it round her neck.

She gathered all her mental force
To solve this monstrous ridale.
She lengthwise cut her riding skirt
Exactly in the middle.
She shortened it and then did sew
A seam on either side,
And in her new divided skirt
She proudly forth did ride.

But when she'd worn it just a week
She heard a dreadful rumor.
Divided skirts had lately been Succeeded by the bloomer.
She put a wide elastic band
In the hem below the knee,
Which made as neat a bloomer
As one would wish to see.

But to her most æsthetic eye
It really seemed distasteful.
The way those bloomers flopped about
Was shocking and disgraceful.
So she took them to a tailor,
Who fitted, sewed and pressed,
And now she rides in knickerbockers
As beauteous as the rest.
—New York Sun.

The Coming of Love.

I dreamed that love came as the oak trees grow,
By the chance dropping of a tiny seed,
And then from moon to moon, with steady speed,
Though torn by winds and chilled with heedless snow,
The sap of pulsing life would upward flow
Till in its might the heavens themselves could read
Portents of power that they must learn to heed.
This was my dream. The waking proved not so.
For love came like a flower and grew apace.
I saw it blossom tenderly and frail
Till the dear spring had run its eager race.
Then the rough wind tossed high the petals red.
The seed fell far in soil beyond my pale.
I know not now if love be lost or dead.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

THE SIXTY DAY GUARANTEE.

How It Protects Both the Consumer and the Manufacturer.

The new 60 day guarantee adopted by the cycle industry is a great improvement on the old instrument and affords the consumer more than reasonable protection, while very largely protecting the manufacturer from the chicanery and fraud of unscrupulous riders. We think, however, that a guarantee warranting the machine free from imperfection at the time of leaving the factory would have in the end proved quite as satisfactory to the retail trade as well as relieved the maker from such dishonest claims as are liable to be made within two months' time, but these are not likely to cut much of a figure, and on the whole the new guarantee will probably work very well.

On general principles a short guarantee does not inspire any great amount of confidence in the buyer. No doubt a few uninstructed wheelmen will regard the 60 day limit as indicating a lack of the maker's confidence in his own work. But all familiar with trade conditions will readily understand the motives behind the time limit, and as it will be used by makers generally no adverse effect upon the trade is to be expected.

This whole guarantee business will apparently be entirely done away with in the course of time. If the machine is warranted free from flaws when delivered from the factory, there is in reality no possible way of strengthening the warrant. As a matter of policy, however, the industry is undoubtedly wise in not entirely cutting off a time guarantee at the first move. In the course of time, we think, the common sense of the consumer will do away with the necessity of time consideration.—American Cyclist.

THE BICYCLE ABROAD.

Irish wheelmen call the tandem a "twicer."

Around Copenhagen all cyclists are obliged, under penalty of a fine, to walk their machines down hill, no matter how slight the incline.

Mlle. Faure, daughter of the president of France, is an expert cyclist and the details of her wheel costumes are expatiated upon in all of the fashion papers.

The king of Anam has recently joined the ranks of royal cyclists. His favorite and daily pastime is cycling, and he is to be seen not only in his private gardens, but even in the city.

It is said that when the bicycle was first introduced in India the natives fell down and worshiped it. It occasionally causes a native to fall down now, but he evinces no desire to worship.

As France taxes bicycles and tricycles, the number of machines used in the country is known exactly. On Jan. 1, 1897, there were 329,814 taxed, an increase of 53,000 over the preceding year. The revenue obtained in 1896 was 3,272,339 francs.

The newsboy on wheels is an English innovation. This species of biker just now is worrying London. They dash hither and thither with papers on their shoulders, endangering other wheelmen and their own lives as they cross streets in front of horses and vehicles.

Punctured by a Bullet.

Dr. Charles Perry and Miss Emma White, who reside ten miles from Shelbyville, Ind., have been lovers many months against the wishes of the young lady's parents. The doctor and the young lady decided to marry, and recently, through a friend, he arranged for Emma to meet him a mile from her home. When the girl arrived, the doctor appeared with two bicycles. Securing his prize, he started toward this city.

Soon after they had departed they were surprised to hear a report of a revolver behind them. Looking back, they saw Emma's father on a bicycle in hot pursuit. They hastened their speed, as did the old man. He fired another shot from his revolver and punctured the tire of the girl's wheel. The doctor placed her on the handle bars of his wheel, and the race was on again. They soon distanced the irate parent and were made one long before he arrived in town, completely winded.—New York Sun.

When Tightening a Nut.

It is but a simple precaution when tightening the nuts on a bicycle to adjust the jaws of the wrench carefully, so that they are screwed up tightly against the sides of the nut before attempting to turn it. Although seemingly a trifling matter, it is really of great importance, for if the wrench fits at all loosely it will slip over the angles of the nut and round them so much as to make subsequent adjustment difficult and at the same time seriously mar the appearance of the machine.—New York Sun.

The Placing of the Seat.

Nine riders out of ten now have their saddles placed forward of the seat post. It used to be the other way. The direct seat post is greatly admired for its neatness and strength, but the majority of cyclists prefer the forward position. Possibly some manufacturer may try the experiment of altering the line of the seat post tube so that the lug may be carried forward to the point where most prefer it and still be directly attached.—American Cyclist.

Decision About Sidewalk Riding.

A decision has been made by Judge Hoagland in the Cumberland county (N. J.) court that is of interest to cyclists. The wheelman in the case was arrested for riding on an apology for a sidewalk and was fined $5 by a village justice of the peace. Judge Hoagland reversed the decision of the local justice, holding that the wheelman was justified in using the sidewalk, as the street was in unridable condition.—New York Sun.

Castle Square Theatre.

The Castle Square Theatre Stock Company has come to be looked upon as one of the dramatic institutions of the city and every performance given by its members is attended by steadily larger audiences. During the recent months many requests have been received for a revival of Belasco and DeMille's society drama, "The Wife," which will be recalled as the first production made by this organization when it was brought together for the summer season. The play made such an intense success that it immediately established the popularity of the players and its revival will undoubtedly prove equally successful.

"The Wife" is announced for a single week and will be followed by a produciton of A. W. Pinero's charming play, "Sweet Lavender."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

GORMAN'S LEADERSHIP

Open Letter From Maryland Senator to Editorial Critic.

Offers to Sacrifice Himself In the Interest of Harmony.

He Pleads Guilty to the Charge of Disloyalty to Principle.

Baltimore, Oct. 16.—Somewhat of a sensation was caused in political circles yesterday by the appearance of an open letter from Senator Gorman. It is addressed to E. F. Abell, publisher of The Sun, and deals with the political situation in this state. What is known as "Gormanism" is responsible primarily for the division in the Democratic ranks, the split antedating the great widening of the breach following the nomination of W. J. Bryan. The Sun has opposed the senator strongly and has insisted that harmony was out of the question so long as he enacted the role of "boss."

Until the letter appeared, outwardly Senator Gorman gave little or no heed to the assaults upon himself. Evidently he has come to a realizing sense that forbearance or indifference cannot be persisted in without serious consequences to the Democracy, for he signifies an entire willingness to abandon the field to the journalistic writer on the sole condition that Mr. Abell shall assume the leadership.

The letter, which is a very long one, reviews the course of The Sun in its opposition to Mr. Gorman because of his views on civil service, tariff and ballot reform measures. To all the charges made against him upon this score, Mr. Gorman pleads guilty, but quotes The Sun as having admitted that such questions were largely matters of opinion, and asserts that every man is free to think as he pleases regarding them. He defends his course in regard to all these questions and concludes with the following proposition:

SENATOR GORMAN.

"And now, Mr. Abell, let us pass to a question touching which there can be no misunderstanding. These statements and counter-statements, arguments and retorts—all this petty clash of protestation and impeachment—amount to very little at the best. You have declared your undying devotion to the Democratic party, and have said that my leadership, my personal ambitions, my selfish purposes and these only prevent you from restoring your newspaper to the service of the loyal people who originally made it rich and powerful by their patronage, their confidence, their support. You have given Maryland to understand that, but for me and the 'bossism' you are pleased to attribute to me, you would bring back the Baltimore Sun to its old moorings and devote it to the exposition of Democratic principles and the confusion and overthrow of Republican rule in this state. You have stated in effect, certainly with the intent of being so understood, that you still love the Democratic party and still wish to see it predominant in Maryland, and you thereby involve yourself in a pledge to cast off your Republican affiliations, repudiate your Republican alliances, and labor heart and soul for the success of the Democratic party as it will remain after being purged of me.

"If you be sincere in this, the solution of the difficulty is simple enough. If my aspirations, my leadership, my influence constitute the only obstacle to your return to the people who made your newspaper and founded your fortune, and gave reality to your position and your power, I stand ready to remove them. Office is less to me than you suppose. Political leadership is not as necessary to my happiness as you, in your ignorance of my character and motives, are pleased to say. Strange as it may seem to you, I am willing to surrender every prospect of personal promotion if by so doing I can reunite the Democratic party, restore to its ranks all their pristine strength and harmony, allay the dissensions and animosities that now exist, and efface the humiliating spectacle presented by yourself and men of your way of thinking—the spectacle of the Democratic party betrayed into the hands of the enemy by those whom Democrats have in the past exalted and enriched. I do not undertake to say how much you or any other man may love the Democratic party, but I know how much I love it, and I know that I have no personal ambitions I will not sacrifice for its honor and welfare. I know, too, that I have no affiliations, no engagements, no plans of any kind that could by any possibility embarrass me in making the proposed arrangements.

"You may understand this as an overture of surrender on my part, as an admission that Democratic organization cannot hope for further life without your aid and countenance. I am prepared for that. I have been misunderstood by you so long and so unreasonably that a little more or less will count for nothing. As a matter of fact, I am satisfied that the people of Maryland have become disgusted with the two years of Republican mal-administration which you did so much to make possible, and that they are in the humor to make an end of the experiment.

"It is not only what has been done; it is also the extravagance and the corruption which are awaiting the event of a perpetuation of Republican rule. They feel that every substantial interest in the state is jeopardized and they are determined, with or without your aid, to restore to power the Democratic party, which has never hitherto betrayed them and in whose hands they will feel their honor and their interests to be secure. As to this I have not the shadow of a doubt.

"But they want, also, a restoration of the former harmony of the party. They want to see the old lines restored and the old associations rehabilitated; and I owe them so much as to feel not only willing, but anxious, to consummate any wish of theirs, no matter at what cost to me. Are you ready and willing and free to meet me on this ground in good faith, in all loyalty, without provisos or reservations, on the honor of a gentleman? Are you at liberty to take charge personally and through your agents of the Democratic campaign for the mayoralty of Baltimore, for the legislature and for the succession to that place in the senate concerning which I have but one desire—that of seeing it filled by a Democrat whose loyalty to the party is unquestioned and proved, and who will advocate and uphold the principles to which you profess unselfish and sincere devotion? If you are, I am ready to meet you more than half way. Let me hear from you and let our fellow citizens judge between us by the measure of our personal good faith and party loyalty therein."

Mr. Abell declined last night to say what course he would pursue in the matter or to express any opinion concerning the letter, which appears in The Sun as an advertisement.

MUD THROWING.

That's What Was Done to Luetgert, Said Ex-Judge Vincent.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—During all the hot afternoon session of court ex-Judge Vincent pleaded with the jury to spare the life of his client. He argued that there was nothing in the alleged love of Luetgert for Mary Siemmering, the servant girl, that would inspire the sausage maker to commit such a diabolic crime as was laid at his door. The attitude of Luetgert toward the girl was declared to have been that of a father toward his daughter rather than of an employer toward a servant.

Ex-Judge Vincent seemed to realize that his was the one last plea, and is fact inspired the orator with eloquence of fire. During one of his outbursts he shouted, turning suddenly toward Luetgert: "They have for months been throwing mud at him and mud at him and mud at him."

At each repetition of the phrase the speaker reached down and dashed an imaginary handful of mud in Luetgert's face. Then he stopped suddenly. Facing the jury he stood silently for a moment, and then added: "And we have been scraping it off."

Witnesses who had testified for the defense were praised while those who had appeared for the state were declared to have been for the most part the perjured dupes of the police. Ex-Judge Vincent declared it as his firm conviction that Mrs. Luetgert had wandered away while demented, and if she was dead her death was not due to any act of her husband.

"I will not say that circumstantial evidence does not sometimes point to guilt," he observed, "but I will say, and affirm with emphatic warning to you, that condemning to death a human being on purely circumstantial evidence is a dangerous proceeding. Can any of you in the jury box say that Mrs. Luetgert will not return before I have ceased this argument? Can you say she will not come back next week, next month, next year or in the dim future? Unless you can, a reasonable doubt exists in your mind and you must give this prisoner the benefit of it."

Against Supreme Commander.

Boston, Oct. 16.—At the fourth day's session of the supreme commandery of the Knights of Malta the controversy between the supreme commander and the grand commander of Massachusetts was settled, the supreme commandery refusing to sustain the action of the supreme commander in the matter. Supreme Prelate Hicks was reinstated in all his rights and privileges. The charges made against Massachusetts parties were referred to the grand officers of Massachusetts for investigation.

Most of the recommendations of the supreme commander were not adopted. The order of Daughters of Malta, or Zenodocia, was declared clandestine. Subordinate commanderies must adopt by-laws within six months.

NESTOR OF JOURNALISM DEAD.

Long Illness of Charles A. Dana Had a Fatal Termination Sunday Afternoon.

New York, Oct. 18.—The end of the illness which, several months ago, prostrated the nestor of American journalism, C. A. Dana of The Sun, came very quietly Sunday afternoon at the Dana home in Glen Cove, L. I. There was a faint hope last week that he might pull through, but the sickness took a serious turn Saturday morning, and as evening approached the indications of a fatal termination became clear.

The extreme heat of Saturday and Friday had considerable to do with hastening the end. On Friday Mr. Dana showed signs of distress, and everything possible was done to relieve him. He had been weakened by his long illness, and during the summer was several times thought to be on the verge of a fatal collapse, but each time he rallied. He did not improve much with the cooler weather, and the sinking spells became more frequent. On Friday Mr. Dana was able to take only the slightest nourishment, and this condition continued.

CHARLES A. DANA.

The cause of Mr. Dana's death was cirrhosis of the liver. On June 9 he was at his office apparently strong and healthy. The next day he was taken ill, and has not since visited New York.

Although Mr. James Gordon Bennett will probably maintain so long as journalism lasts the fame he won as the founder of a modern American journalism, and although Horace Greeley will stand pre-eminent as the political journalist, and Henry J. Raymond as the politician journalist, it is probable that the traditions of journalism as they shall be told in the future will point to Mr. Dana as the greatest of American journalists.

C. A. Dana was born at Hinsdale, N. H. on Aug. 8, 1819, and when he was 16 years of age he entered Harvard college, immediately giving evidence that he possessed unusual mental gifts. But he was obliged to give up his college course. Whether it was overuse of his eyes by candle light or neglect, a functional disturbance which threatened to become organic compelled him to abandon his books just as he was entering the junior year.

Soon after Mr. Dana thought of a mercantile career, and he went to Buffalo. Books, observation, association with men who knew much about many things had far more fascination for this lad than did the drudgery of barter or the chink of silver over the counter. He became dreary and was fascinated with the problems of socialism as they were discussed in his early youth, and he gladly joined that famous but wholly impossible socialistic community called Brook Farm, which was established in what was then the town of Roxbury, Mass.

Here Mr. Dana, with Nathaniel Hawthorne and Margaret Fuller and George Ripley and George William Curtis and others who were of literary fame or promise, did his share of menial work with cheerfulness and held his own in the literary and philosophical discussions which were carried on by these thinkers. Dana was one of the first to realize that the experiment was, if not absurd, at least bound to be a failure. He lived long enough to see all of his associates in that experiment die and every one of them convinced that the scheme was utopian.

As he was very anxious to put himself in touch with the world and to go to the other extreme from that represented by the provincialism of Brook Farm, Mr. Dana went to Europe. He had already learned to read French and to speak it fairly well. The facility with which he acquired languages was marvelous and remained with him long after he had passed threescore and ten.

Soon after reaching Paris he spoke French with fluency, and as he was there at the time of the revolution of 1848 his newspaper instincts were fully developed, and his acquaintance with French enabled him to fully understand the meaning of the exciting scenes of that day. He wrote of them in a series of letters published in the New York Tribune, and his correspondence is ever regarded to this day as a model of that department of journalism.

Undoubtedly this work brought Mr Dana into close relations with The Tribune, for soon after he accepted an offer from Horace Greeley to become managing editor of that paper.

Mr. Dana's connection with The Tribune gave him an intimate acquaintance with most of the great men of the Republican party, and when, in 1861, owing to a disagreement with Horace Greeley respecting the attitude of The Tribune upon the conduct of the war, he retired, he was esteemed as one of the influential young men of the party. Edwin M. Stanton, the secretary of war, who knew Mr Dana well, offered him the post of assistant secretary of war, and he undertook these labors with extraordinary energy. Much of the time he was with General Grant in the west. He was several times under fire, showing great coolness and courage. His executive capacity was never more superbly revealed than when, as the representative of the war department, he was engaged in forwarding Grant's gigantic military schemes.

After the war Mr. Dana might have accepted several offers to re-enter business life, but the fascinations of journalism caused him to decline every proposition of that sort made to him. A company was organized to create and publish a great Republican newspaper in Chicago, and Mr. Dana was offered the editorship, and a small interest in it was given to him. At that time, however, Chicago was not the great metropolitan city that it is today, and Mr. Dana found difficulties of various sorts in establishing the paper. He sold out his interest, receiving therefor some $7000, and that was the first time in his life that he found himself possessed of any considerable sum of money. A friend advised him to invest it in a house in New York, which he did, and others of his old-time Republican friends, notably Colonel Fred A. Conkling, brother of Roscoe Conkling, subscribed a sum sufficient to buy for Mr. Dana the New York Sun, which was to be published as a low priced Republican newspaper.

Mr. Dana took charge on the 1st of January, 1868, the paper then having about 40,000 circulation, and his conspicuous career began with that issue of the paper. He called about him a competent staff, and in less than two years had in many respects revolutionized journalistic methods. He sought for news where other editors had ignored it, and he developed what Samuel Bowles, himself a great editor, said was the "imaging style of reporting," now in vogue in every first-class newspaper.

Of Mr. Dana it has been said that he probably got more rational enjoyment out of life, more honorable and exquisite delight in learning and in nature and art, than any other man of his time. He was not fond of mediocre, either in inanimate objects or among men. For a mediocre reporter he had small toleration, but was enthusiastic over a brilliant reporter or writer, although rather careful not to let the young man know it.

Mr. Dana was nearly 50 years of age before he began, of his own experience, to know the luxury of wealth. He would not have made a great money maker, since he cared but little for money excepting as it enabled him to gratify his cultivated desires. Sometimes he was thought to be foolish in his expenditures, for if a thing suited him he took it, even though the price was exorbitant. On the other hand, if he was not satisfied he would not buy, no matter how great the reduction in price. He could not dicker. When he went to The Tribune as managing editor his salary was $12 a week, and he was 45 years of age before he had received more than $50 a week. The royalties on his book of household poetry and upon Appleton's cyclopedia brought him a larger income than that, although this money came to him mostly after he became editor of The Sun. In his later years Mr. Dana received a salary of $50.00 a year from The Sun and handsome dividends upon the stock, a majority of which he controlled.

Those who knew Mr. Dana well have always felt that the single limitation of his character was that he could not always control his prejudices. He was as stanch and true as steel to his friends, even though others accused some of them of abusing the friendship, and he was also persistent, vehement and, his enemies used to say, malicious in his antagonism.

A Feat In Engineering.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—The feat of replacing an iron bridge span 242 feet long, 25 feet wide and 30 feet in depth, with one of the same dimensions of steel, was accomplished in this city in two minutes and 32 seconds. In this space of time nearly 1700 tons of iron and steel were moved a distance of 25 feet, and there was not a slip or hitch in the entire performance. This remarkable feat of engineering was accomplished at what is known as the connecting railroad bridge over the Schuylkill, just above Girad avenue. It is the bridge that bears the tracks of the New York division of the Pennsylvania railroad, the busiest division on the system.

Brakeman Was Neglectful.

Hyde Park, Mass., Oct. 18.—A freight wreck occurred at Readville on the New England road Sunday morning. The Providence freight, Boston bound, was shifting part of its load to a side track at the "stock yards" at this point, and left the caboose and tow rear cars standing on the main track. A brakeman who went back to flag approaching trains did not go far enough, as a sharp bend in the road near Readville prevented his signal from being seen. As a consequence a Hartford freight struck the cars. The engineer and fireman escaped by jumping. One car took fire.

Bettina Girard Paralyzed.

New York, Oct. 18.—The Herald today publishes the following: "Bettina Girard, the actress and former society belle, is now a patient at Bellevue hospital. Miss Girard, who is entered on the hospital books as 'Betty Schuyler,' 25 years old, was taken to Bellevue on Sept. 22 last, broken down in health so that she was scarcely more than a wreck of her former self. The physician who has charge of Miss Girard's case refused to talk about her Saturday, but it was learned that the young woman is partially paralyzed and may never recover entirely the use of her limbs."

Albany, Ga., Oct. 18.—Near Faircloth, Mitchell county, Saturday afternoon Miss Hurst, the 16-year-old daughter of Planter J. H. Hurst, was shot and killed by her sweetheart.

The bullet passed through the young lady's heart.

The couple were out driving and, according to Lewis' statement, stopped to practice pistol shooting at a target. In taking the cocked revolver from Lewis' hands it exploded. Both families are prominent.

FEW BUILDINGS STAND

Conflagration Wipes Out a Nova Scotia Hamlet.

Gale Carried Embers From a Burning Barn.

Hundreds of Adults and Children Homeless and Destitute.

Windsor, N. S., Oct. 18.—Historic Windsor, one of the most beautiful towns in the provinces, was devastated by fire Sunday morning. For six hours, beginning shortly before 3, the fire, fanned by a violent gale, raged so fiercely that the local department was absolutely helpless to cope with it, and within half an hour after its discovery the mayor began to call for outside assistance.

Long before noon the town had been almost completely eaten up, the area covered by the flames being almost a mile square, and of the 400 or more buildings occupying this section barely half a dozen scorched structures remain. All is a waste of ruins. The buildings that escaped include the Windsor cotton factory, King's college, the Anglican church, Edgehill school for girls and Dufferin hotel. The latter is the only hotel left standing.

No Nova Scotia town has ever been visited by a conflagration of such dimensions. Of the 3500 people inhabiting the place, there are very few who have homes of their own today. Over 3000 have been taken in by the residents of the outskirts and the surrounding country and neighboring towns, while the remainder of the sufferers have gone to Halifax or are sheltered in army tents erected in the vacant plots by a detachment of British troops from the garrison city. The disaster is appalling in its extent and dread consequences, to recover from which will be a matter of many years.

The fire started in a barn in the heart of the business district. The gale carried the flames to other buildings before the firemen had time to get at work, and in a short time the showers of sparks carried in all directions had ignited a score of buildings. The occupants of dwellings had time enough to hurry on some clothing and to drag some goods into the streets, but there was no place of safety to which anything could be removed quick enough to save it from being destroyed or damaged.

The flames cut a clean gap from the water's edge on the business front to the forests in the rear, bound by Ferry hill on the south side and by Fort Edwards on the north. During the past few years many brick structures have been erected, but these were, generally speaking, contiguous to old wooden buildings, and all went down together before the furious flames, to stay which was beyond the power of man.

The origin of the fire is somewhat mysterious. A lightning storm passed over the town before the flames burst forth, and some think the barn in which they started may have been struck by a flash from the clouds; but many strongly suspect that the conflagration originated through the carelessness or worse act of one or more drunken toughs.

When morning broke the sight of Windsor was a scene of desolation, with hundreds of frantic, thinly clad and destitute men and women and children rushing back and forth through the smoking streets. Fortunately no lives were lost, although the streets were perilous with flying bricks and slate which the fierce hurricane drove like thunderbolts from the roofs. In the hurry and excitement horses and cattle in the stables were forgotten, and many perished in the flames or suffocated from smoke. Others were turned adrift, and last night they roamed the streets almost mad with cold and fright. Relief measures were started in Halifax at an early hour, and in the afternoon a trainload of provisions, tents, blankets, etc., arrived from the provincial capital. Aboard the train were General Montgomery Moore, Governor Daly, Mayor Stephen and 100 men of the royal Berkshire regiment and royal engineers, who were brought to attend to the erection of the tents and aid in the relief work.

The total loss is estimated roughly at $3,000,000. While a number of the heaviest losers are partially insured, and some of them pretty well covered, the total insurance is calculated to be not more than $500,000.

Two Lodgers Perished.

Iowa Hill, Cal., Oct. 18.—Iowa Hill, a mining town situated in the mountains of Placer county, was visited by a most damaging fire Sunday. The fire started in the Central hotel, and within a few minutes the walls had fallen in. Two of the lodgers in the hotel, William Golden and William Owens, perished in the flames. The origin of the fire is unknown.

This Morning's Fire.

The alarm from Box 37 at 11.33 this noon called the department to a fire on the roof of a house on Franklin place, owned by Charles H. Spear, and occupied by Neil McFadden and James F. McGrath.

The fire caught on the roof facing the railroad track and was evidently caused by sparks from a passing locomotive.

The fire had burned through into the attic which was filled with smoke and made the fire look more serious than it was.

Ladders were placed on the roof and a line of hose run through the house and the fire was quickly extinguished. The loss will be small.

Tonight's Council Meeting.

Present indications are that there will be but little business at tonight's meeting of the City Council. The Committee on streets will report orders relocating telephone poles and for a public hearing on the extension of Hall place to the public playground, and the Committee on Public Buildings will report an order appropriating $250 for the building of a new garbage plant. There will also be a public hearing on the widening of Squantum street from Atlantic street to Farm meadows.

Resignation.

At the close of Sunday evening's service at the Wollaston Congregational church the Rev. Edward A. Robinson, for eight years pastor of the society, read his resignation, to take effect on Jan. 1, 1898.

The resignation came as a surprise to a large part of the Congregation, but not to a few who were in a position to watch the trends of event the past fortnight.

The Ministry of Want.

A large audience greeted Miss Carrie Small of the Woodward Institute, at the Universalist vestry last evening, where she had been invited to address the Young People of the church.

The subject for the evening was "The Ministry of Want," taken from Luke XV. The address was greatly enjoyed by all, as was testified by the way in which Miss Small held her audience.

HALEY'S ASSAILANTS

Two More Men Arrested, but are Later Released.

Police at Loss for a Clew, but Still Hard at Work.

Funeral of the Victim Sunday, at East Milton, Largely Attended

Two more arrests have been made in the Haley case, one of whom has been released, and whether anything will be found to warrant holding the second man is not known. Both men deny all knowledge of the affair and say they were at home on the night of the assault.

The first arrest was made Saturday by Inspector McKay. The arrested man being Robert Thompson, aged 35 years, a coachman in the employ of J. H. Emery of Hancock street.

Thompson was questioned at the Quincy Police station by Boston officers and denied being with Haley Tuesday night, and claimed that he was in his room. He was, however, taken to Boston where he underwent a severe examination, and was looked over by the hackman who saw the assault.

The latter however could not identify Thompson as one of the parties, and he was later released and returned to Quincy in a much happier frame of mind.

The second arrest was made about 2 o'clock, Sunday morning by Inspector McKay, who went to East Milton and arrested George Lafayette, a stone mason.

Lafayette is about 42 years of age and boards on Pierce street, opposite Haley's home. He has been in court for assault, and does not have a good reputation in police circles.

He answers the description of the parties but denies emphatically all knowledge of the assault, and claims that he was at home on the fatal Tuesday night. He was very emphatic as to his whereabouts that night but not so sure on other nights of the week.

The Boston police were notified and a sergeant came out at 4 o'clock Sunday morning and took Lafayette to Boston. He was released a short time after, however, having convinced the officers of the truth of his story.

The funeral of James Haley the victim was held Sunday afternoon from his home at East Milton and was largely attended the employes of the street railway being present in a body.

There were many floral tributes among which was a crescent with the word "Comrade" across the centre, and a cross and crown, both of which were sent by the street railway employes.

The remains were escorted to St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy, where services were conducted by Rev. J. P. Cuff.

Another Arrest This Morning.

Another arrest was made this morning in the Haley assault case in the person of Frank Clapp. Clapp is about 26 years of age, married and resides in Braintree, near the Quincy line, and is employed upon Hunt's farm at Braintree. His description answers that of the man seen to strike Haley.

Saturday, Inspector McKay went up to look at Clapp and ask him some questions, but when Clapp saw him coming he ran into the woods and got away. This morning about 4 o'clock Inspector McKay and Officers Barry and George A. McKay went to Braintree and surrounded the house. They found Clapp in bed and promptly arrested him under suspicion.

People with whom Clapp is employed say that he has acted queerly for the past few days, and even this morning he tried to get away from the officers.

When questioned about the affair he denied all knowledge of it and while he was out every night last week except Tuesday he is positive that upon that evening he was at home. He was brought to Quincy this morning and later turned over to Boston officers.

THE NEW LOOP LINE.

Formal Opening will be Celebrated in Grand Style Tuesday.

The new loop line of the Quincy & Boston street railway through Wollaston is completed and will be formally opened to the public at 3 o'clock Tuesday when the people of Wollaston will unite to give the road a grand send off, worthy of the enterprise.

Flags and horns will be distributed free to the boys and all the wind that they have had bottled up since the glorious Fourth of July will be used in making a grand hurrah over the event.

Circulars have been printed and will be left at everyhouse in Wollaston today inviting all Wollastonians to unite and give the road a royal welcome, and make them feel sorry that they did not build the loop five years ago.

The citizens are also urged to remember that there is but one Wollaston in the whole world and to give that fence which is characterized as a disgrace to three thousand civilized human beings, a black eye.

Tremont Theatre.

Boston theatre goers are to have Dewolf Hopper and "El Capitan," again. Sousa's and Klein's famous opera will again be presented in Boston, commencing this Monday evening, and every evening throughout the week at the Tremoflt theatre. As a successful repeater, "El Capitan" has proven beyond all preadventure, its very attractive qualities, for upon the return engagements of the opera in New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Detroit and other large cities, it was given a warmer welcome and the results of each return engagement, in a monetary sense was even greater than its initial presentation. The comedian's first season in "El Capitan" was a remarkably prosperous one, and there is more than one reason to account for his extraordinary success. In the first place Hopper as a comedian, and Sousa as a popular composer, are great favorites everywhere, yet their popularity would not be potent enough to attract large audiences, were it not that "El Capitan" was an unusually melodious and attractive comic opera, and the company presenting it, one of unusual excellence.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

Hon. George Fred Williams Speaks at Hancock Hall.

The first Democratic rally of this year's campaign in Quincy was held Saturday night at Hancock hall. George Fred Williams, the candidate for governor of the party, being the only speaker.

The attendance at the rally was not as large as usual upon such occasions but what it lacked in numbers was made up in enthusiasm for Mr. Williams was frequently applauded.

Mr. Williams spoke nearly two hours and devoted the most of his time in answering the speeches delivered by Governor Wolcott and Senators Hoar and Lodge at the Republican ratifications meeting in Boston, Friday night.

Hon. William A. Hodges presided, and on the paltform with him was William B. Orcutt, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, and James H. Slade, the Democratic candidate for Representative.

M. Williams in part spoke as follows:

The senior Senator, Mr. Hoar, delivered a long address, in which unfortunately I find no measure of public policy debated. One question introduced into this campaign is merely touched upon, and simply in the spirit of evasion, not of explanation. "It is complained," he said, "that the courts of equity in the United States have in some instances extended their jurisdiction beyond the powers which have been understood to be conferred by law upon those courts, that the power of injunction has been exercised beyond the limits of discretion and propriety." But, he says, what has that to do with the campaign in the State of Massachusetts? Assuming as I do, and as every careful lawyer and thinker does, that the use of the mighty power of a court of equity to imprison, without trial by jury, citizens, is an evil which must be remedied, where, if not in one State, where, if not in every State, shall protest be made?

It belongs to Massachusetts to make protest against this invasion of the liberties of the people first and foremost. Her voice has never been stilled by such appeals as that of Senator Hoar when the question of the liberties of her people has been at stake. Such a question is always at home in our Commowealth, and it is not fitting that Senator Hoar with his responsibility as a national legislator should refuse to express himself upon so mighty a question. Even the press of Massachusetts has been crying out against this invasion. Newspapers upon whom Senator Hoar depends have been questioning the wisdom of this new feature of equity jurisdiction.

It is perhaps a national question, but Senator Hoar is a national servant. He it is who is to voice the public opinion of Massachusetts in the United States Senate, and it is his duty to tell the people whether he proposes to apply a remedy or approve that invasion. (Applause.) He cannot escape. Why is he upon the public platform if he is not to discuss so mighty a question of policy?

Then comes Senator Lodge. I regret there is so little to answer in his words. I should like to meet him somewhat in discussion upon living issues, but he has only two points at all suggested. He devoted one-half of his address to explanation of the necessity he was under, as a Republican senator, to sacrifice the boot and shoe industry of New England for the sake of his party.

In the second place, Mr. Lodge repeats a conversation he had with a broker upon State street, and that broker is asked why there has been such sudden weakess in the stock market. He goes to others and asks the same question, and receives the same reply—the people are nervous about the election. What election is making the brokers of State street nervous? He asks that question, and I ask it. What does he mean?

I think I know what he means. He means to keep up before a people once deluded the same old humbug upon which the election of '96 was carried. That is what Mr. Lodge means.

There is a rise in the stock mark et, and Mr. Lodge rubs his hands and smiles upon prosperity. There is a slump, and he learns that there is trepidation or fear of the result of Democratic success. (Applause.)

But let me admit that there is some truth at bottom in his suggestion. It is true, I venture to say, that with Democratic success in the United States some stocks will fall. (Applause.) The Standard Oil trust and sugar trust. (Applause.) The stocks of the West End street railway, the elevated railway, and the Pipe Line Company. (Applause.) I doubt not the stocks of every trust and bleeding combination will show evidences of the fear of wrong doers that at last a party of the people has risen up that proposes to put down their wrong doing. But it is not involved in this election. It will come hereafter.

That is the sum total of the opening rally of the Republican party. I challenge you to show me another point that it discussed that is fit for mention. That is not much of a campaign.

While we are searching the columns of the press, it may not be amiss to refer to a small item in The Boston Herald this morning. It is not my custom to dispute with newspapers. At the Faneuil hall rally Thursday night I referred to a Boston newspaper which had stamped my following as the ragged regiment.

The Herald for the first time names and admits that it was the paper which used those terms (hisses), and it says "Mr. Williams professes to be indignant because The Herald has referred to his following as a ragged regiment, interpreting that phrase as a reflection on the poor and the downtrodden. He is trying a little bit of demagogy in his assumed resentment at what he knows The Hearld did not mean to say." (Laughter.)

Well, it is entirely familiar to me to be called a demagogue. That is a very mild term, and I am well satisfied to escape with so gentle an epithet. The Herald has been showering those terms upon me for a year past, when for years past it had been lauding me to the skies as a sample of statemanship and manhood. (Applause.) It has turned upon me and tried to degrade me in the eyes of the people, and I have never uttered a word of protest complaint, and no doubt that sheet which is cowardly enough to attack a man as they attacked me thought they could deal with like impunity with the thousands of honest men whom I am called upon to lead. (Applause.)

But it reckoned without its host, for whatever I am willing to bear for myself, I will not see my constituency insulted by any newspaper (applause) without word of protest. What it didn't mean it? But it said it. And it said it in the same spirit with which it has been throwing out its vile insinuation against the ranks of the Democracy for a year past. It does not deny its words, but creeps, respecting its meaning. I am satisfied, if it is in a frame of mind to apologize. And let it beware hereafter that the expressions of its heart do not escape its lips again.

A ragged regiment? If it is ragged, who made it so? Where do these rags come from in a republic? Who are ragged? Tramps? Paupers? Men unwillng to work? No! Ragged men in Massachusetts include thousands upon thousands as eager to work as any men who ever stood upon God's footstool. (Applause.)

It is true that every great leech in our industrial system has grown fat and big in the last few months; that trusts and monopolies have been gaining; that the sugar trust controlled the national Congress and gained for itself an annual contribution of from $15,000,000 to $30,000,00 to be paid by the people; that Mr. Yerkes of Chicago has obtained a 50-year franchise in the Chicago streets and bound the people. It is true thatthe West End Street Railway Company has received a practical gift of a great public work costing the people of Boston $70,00,000, and, therefore, intrenched itself in monopolistic control of the streets of Boston for 25 years. It is true that the stocks of that company have risen enormously in value, and you and your children—aye, and your children's children—have been mortgaged to pay their profits. (Applause.)

Mr. Williams then paid a high tribute to the Democratic candidate for representative for the Legislature from Quincy, Mr. Jas. H. Slade, who sat upon the platform, and the compliment was indorsed by the audience with hearty applause.

VALUABLE HOUSES.

Several are Assessed for Over $10,000.

A List of Those Valued at $3,500 and Over.

Estate of the Mayor's Mother the Most Valuable.

The Ledger has recently given a list of those persons in Quincy who will be exempt from a tax on money, stocks, bonds and income if the proposed assessment bill becomes a law. We now give the assessed valuation of houses valued at $3,500 and over, most of which would be subject to another clause of the bill which proposes to levy an additional tax upon house rentals in excess of $400 per annum. The list below includes just the assessed value of the houses. The rental value of an estate depends largely upon the amount of land connected therewith. Most of the houses in the list are upon lots valued at over $1000, so that all are worth over $4500, and if they rent for ten per cent. of the value they would all let for over $450 per year.

Ward One has the longest list of valuable houses and also the most valuable house in Quincy. The latter distinction belongs to the retired mansion at Mount Wollaston built by the late John Quincy Adams and now owned by his widow, which is valued at $28,000.

Next comes the beautiful residence belonging to the estate of the late Charles Henry Hardwick on Chestnut and Washington streets. It is valued by the Assessors of 1897 at $18,000, while that of his son near by on the corner of Canal and Washington streets is valued at $17,000.

One other house in the city is taxed for $17,000 and that owned by Mrs. Caroline F Faxon. Other valuable ones in Ward One are owned by Mrs. Helen M. King, Hon. William B. Rice, Mr. Herbert Lawton and Mrs. Alice D. Sanborn.

The brick tenement block of Mrs. Annie E. Faxon on Chestnut street is valued at $12,500.

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 18—A big lion escaped from a travelling zoo, which was here during semi-centennial week, at Smith Mills Sunday morning, while the caravan was en-route from this city to Fall River. A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. IN THE FIELD OF SPORT

Cadets Made Creditable Showing Against Collegians.

Indian Kickers Played Fiercely Against the Princetons.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 18.—With the thermometer at 75 and no breeze Harvard's football team met the cadets on the gridiron Saturday afternoon and won by a score of 10 to 0. The result was remarkable, as at times Harvard was clearly outplayed by the West Pointers, and only succeeded in gaining distance through good work by Dibblee and remarkable running and defensive work. Harvard's play was loose at all times, and fumbles were numerous.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 18.—Saturday the Indian and the Anglo-Saxon met in battle on the gridiron, and the noble red men were trampled in the sod which was once their own by the giants who wear the moleskins and jerseys of old Nassau. The contest was one of the most furiously fought in the history of the great gridiron sport. The score of 18 to 0 would indicate a comparatively easy victory for the "tigers," but never was a victory for the orange and black attended with more effort and injured men. Unlike his treacherous ancestry, the Indian fought man to man with a fierceness which perhaps he has never before shown on the gridiron. Cheering thousands filled the stands and witnessed the great struggle.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Trinity college and Hamilton college met Saturday. The game resulted in favor of the former by a score of 16 to 0. The halves were of 20 minutes duration. Trinity's eleven averaged about six pounds heavier per man than Hamilton's.

Providence, Oct. 18.—Brown defeated Wesleyan by a score of 24 to 12. The game was close and exciting. Twice the score was tied. In the second half Wesleyan weakened, while Brown showed improvement, and the result was a clean victory for the home team.

Easton, Pa., Oct. 18.—The Lafayette-Cornell game resulted a tie, each eleven scoring four points. The result was no surprise to the friends of the home college team. Her three backs, Worthington, Walbridge and Bray, were on the sick list and in no condition to go on to the field, and before the end of the game the trio were compelled to retire. Worthington was disqualified for slugging, but the two others became exhausted in the second half and were carried off the field. The game was a succession of fumbles.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 18.—The Harvard freshmen defeated the Exeter academy eleven, 10 to 4. The game was full of loose playing, especially by the Exeter boys, but was close and exciting at times. On the whole the freshmen proved themselves clearly superior. The feature of the game was the good rushing and tackling of Ellis, an old Andover player.

Albany, Oct. 18.—A most closely contested game was that between Lehigh and Williams. But for an accidental goal from field neither side would have scored. Williams was much heavier than Lehigh, but the latter played a quicker and snappier game. Holdmann kicked a goal from field four minutes after the ball was put in play, and five points were all that were made.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—The Pennsylvania football eleven defeated Dartmouth, 34 to 0. They made 16 in the first half and 18 in the second, 20 points more than Harvard scored against the same team the previous Saturday. The Pennsylvanians were weakened by the absence of Captain Minds at fullback and Carnett at left tackle; but even with this handicap the Dartmouth boys were no match for the sturdy Pennsylvanians.

Remained on His Knees.

Cleveland, Oct. 18.—A big crowd witnessed the boxing exhibition of the Nothingham Athletic club Saturday night. Dick Payne of this city met Henry Yompers of Collinwood. It was over in one round. Payne hit Yompers three times in the neck and sent him to his knees, where he remained 30 seconds. Payne received the decision.

The most exciting match was that between Homer Selby, brother of "Kid" McCoy, and Frank Fortolka of this city. The fighting was fast and furious. The contest was of 15 rounds, and the decision was given to Selby on points. Friends of Fortolka objected to the decision.

All-Americas' Game.

Cincinnati, Oct. 18.—About 1500 people witnessed the game between the Baltimores and the All-Americans here Sunday. The champions gave a very poor exhibition of ball playing, while the All Americans put up a very pretty game and won with ease. Score:

Baltimore .....0 0 0 0 0 0 2 1 0—3
All-Americans .....0 1 1 0 0 3 2 2 0—9

Batteries—Pond and Clark; Rhines and Donohue.

In the game Saturday O'Brien's error in the eighth allowed the Americans to win, 9 to 8.

National League Batsmen.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The batting record of National league players who have taken part in 15 or more championship games has just been prepared. Keeler of the Baltimores leads with a percentage of 432, made in 121 games; Clarke of the Louisvilles is second, with a record of 406 for 129 games. Stivetts, Stahl, Collins, Duffy, Tucker and Long lead the Bostons.

Runner Beaten by a Bicyclist.

Washington, Oct. 18.—In a run of 150 yards, William Cody on foot and Frederick Schade on a wheel, the former was allowed a handicap of 10 yards and the inside of the track. Cody led at the start, but was beaten by five yards, Schade winning in 14:1-5.

BOX ROBBING GANG.

Boston Police Believe That They Have Caught the Leader.

Boston, Oct. 18.—Chief Inspector Watts and Postoffice Inspector White went to the state prison Saturday at the request of George Atwood, the postoffice robber, and there, it is said, Atwood made a full confession of his connection with the so-called letter box gang. The police officials, however, absolutely refuse to disclose anything regarding Atwood's statements, although they admit that the convict's object in making the confession was to clear his wife, who is now under arrest for attempting to pass a forged check.

Atwood told the police officials that Matthews, who was arrested Friday, and who is alleged to be one of the gang, had imposed on Mrs. Atwood in getting her to try to pass the checks. Matthews told her that the money would go toward her husband's defense, but at that very time Atwood was on his way to prison. Atwood also claimed that Matthews would not let his wife visit him, fearing that she might be followed and the whole gang arrested. This apparent ingratitude on Matthews' part embittered Atwood toward him, and he sent for the officers and made the confession.

The police now believe that Matthews is the leader of the gang, and they also believe that the organization is one of the cleverest that has ever operated in the country. The two men arrested in New York, Robert Russell and John F. Ogle, will be brought here, together with Charles Mattocks, now under arrest in Portland, Me., and the authorities in this city will endeavor to have all the members of the gang jointly indicted.

BURGLARS IN CUSTODY.

Two of Them Caught While Robbing a Bicycle Store.

Onset Bay, Mass., Oct. 18.—State officers made an important capture here Sunday by the arrest of W. A. Sutherland and a confederate, whose name is not known, while they were in the act of robbing Worth's bicycle store. The prisoners, sometime during the night, had entered the residences of Charles Whittemore and Mrs. H. B. Ross by means of skeleton keys, and had packed up about $200 worth of bric-a-brac, intending to return later. The robbers entered the bicycle store by the rear window and had made a breakfast on bologna sausage and tonic just before they were captured.

The reason why the catch is a big one is that the men are thought to be the Sutherland brothers, who have worked New York city and are supposed to be the men who stole Anna Gould's diamonds some time ago. The men came from Boston to Wareham, and walked from there to Onset. They were followed from Boston, however, by State Officers Rhodes and Proctor, and their actions during the night were fully covered by these and the other officers.

Sutherland was employed in the bicycle shop the past season as a repair man and riding instructor. He left a month ago. When he came here he claimed to belong at or near Coney island, and was 26 years of age. His companion is believed to be one Hitchcock, and if so he has a long prison record. The cottages they broke into were unoccupied.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, MONDAY, OCT. 18.

Length of day—10 h. 55 m.
High water—4:10 a. m.; 4:27 p. m.
Moon rises—10:38 p. m.

Except that it continues somewhat unsettled over the gulf of Mexico there is little indication of any stormy weather. Ross Griffin, a fireman, was fatally hurt and several passengers were cut and bruised in a collision at Pittsburg.

The dwelling house and outbuildings of N. C. Symonds at Berwick, Me., were entirely burned. The loss is $2100; insurance, $900. The fire caught from a defective chimney.

The body of Albert Hammers of Elgin Ills., an official of the Modern Woodmen who disappeared three weeks ago and for whom all Woodmen camps had been searching, was found in an abandoned mill. He had taken his life.

The shipment of apples from Boston to European markets the past week were 7738 barrels, against 33,343 for the same week of last year. So far this season only 17,520 barrels have been shipped, which is fully 260,485 barrels less than last season.

The New York police are searching for John Ryan of Lynn, Mass., who disappeared after arriving in that city last Thursday. His sister is much worried because he wore a valuable diamond, a gold watch and chain, and carried a considerable sum of money.

The famous filibustering steamer Dauntless, steamed away from Georgia in a southerly direction Saturday and has not returned. It is supposed that she is on another expedition and will meet a vessel at sea which will transfer to her a cargo of munitions of war for the Cuban insurgants.

The Eben Dale mansion at Freshwater Cove, near Magnolia, Mass., was burned yesterday, with a loss of $15,000. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin, and when first discovered the flames were bursting from the upper windows. The fire department from Gloucester had a long run to the scene but succeeded in saving the stable and other outbuildings.

The London Times believes that the British cabinet has decided to decline to reopen the Indian mints or to enter an international monetary conference. It says: "In order, however, to meet the views of sympathizers with bimetallism in the cabinet, an intimation may very likely be given that the government is prepared to consider any further or alternative proposals."

HUNDRED AND FIFTY LOST.

Terrible Consequences of a Disaster at Cuba.

Havana, Oct. 18.—The gunboat Maria Cristina, which left this port Saturday for the scene of the wreck of the coasting steamer Triton, which was lost while bound from Havana to Bahia Honda, Pinar del Rio, has returned, accompanied by the tug Susie, which went with her. The gunboat had on board 19 and the tug 23 members of the ship's company, of whom 13 are civilians and soldiers. The whereabouts of the others of the company are unknown.

The Triton struck a rock during a heavy rain storm. Her cargo shifted, and 15 minutes later she sank in 120 fathoms of water. A scene of terrible confusion and panic ensued. As soon as the passengers realized the meaning of the crash, they rushed for the boats. The first boat that was lowered capsized immediately and all its occupants were drowned in the whirling waters. The next was struck by an enormous wave and turned over, drowning 20, but the frail craft righted again and eight who had been thrown out regained it.

Some who were good swimmers kept themselves afloat for hours; others floated about for 24 hours on planks. Four soldiers on planks, whom the current carried east of Havana, opposite Morre castle, were saved by a pilot boat.

Those who were rescued tell heart-rending stories of the scenes during the terrible quarter of an hour before the Triton sank. An army captain, his wife and daughter went down together locked in a last embrace. A mother with twins 15 months old drifted helplessly away on the crest of a great wave. All the other ladies and children were drowned. Just as the Triton was sinking Captain Ricardo, her commander, committed suicide by shooting himself with a revolver. It is impossible to give the exact number of those who were lost, but it is estimated that there were no fewer than 150. No passenger list has been found.

On board the Triton were $31,660 in silver to be used for the payment of the Spanish military and naval forces. The Triton, it is stated, was overloaded. She carried a large quantity of ammunition and had on board 93 rifles for the government troops.

Proclamation by Gomez.

Havana, Oct. 18.—In a proclamation widely circulated throughout the country General Gomez says: "We offer to Cuba the splendid spectacle of our unconquerable determination to free her or die. The Spaniards are preparing themselves for the winter campaign, and so are we. We desire to prove that a political change of cabinet in Spain is nothing to us, because we are not fighting for Spanish political parties, but for Cuba against Spain.

"Reforms, autonomy, and all other shameful arrangements concocted by a dozen Cuban poltroons in Havana and the new Spanish cabinet will not influence us in the least. The Spaniards may reward the treachery of a few Cubans with offices and represent that the autonomists represent the Cuban people, but they know that they are lying. This revolution was not made by the autonomists of Havana, but against their will. Therefore, what these allies of Spain may do not does not change the situation in Cuba.

"Cubans, hope and courage! Spain represents injustice and crime. If the whole world conspires to help Spain, the whole world will not win Cuba. The cause of Cuba is the cause of justice and honor, and God is with us!"

New Hampshire Spinners Meet.

Somersworth, N. H., Oct. 18.—The mule spinners of the Dover district, which comprises Dover, Somersworth, Salmon Falls, Newmarket and Exeter, held their semiannual meeting yesterday afternoon. Reports of the secretary and treasurer showed an increase in both the membership and funds of the union; while no labor troubles have occurred, and all the men have been working full time. The following officers were elected for the next six months: President, James Lawlor, Somersworth; vice president, John Boyce, Dover; secretary, P. J. Reardon, Somersworth; treasurer, John Sidebottom, Dover; auditors, Felix Waylor, Somersworth; John W. Bailey, Dover.

Men With Fractured Skull's.

Boston, Oct. 18.—In two of the city hospitals are two men dying from the effects of fractured skulls. These patients reached the hospitals without the knowledge of the police. A man whose name is said to be Frank Costello was brought to the city hospital yesterday morning by friends who claimed that he was injured by falling from a wagon.

William Lawless was brought to the Massachusetts hospital with injuries said to have been received from a blow by an indian club in the hands of his father. His condition is also critical. The elder Lawless disclaims any knowledge of such a blow, and says that the young man probably fell downstairs.

Silver Heels Showed Her Heels.

New York, Oct. 18.—The revenue cutter Chandler spent nearly four hours yesterday cruising about New York harbor in search of the Silver Heels of Bangor, Me. It had been reported that the schooner was boarded Saturday evening by about 20 men, who were apparently equipped for an extended voyage. A number of packages had been loaded on the schooner, which was then towed from the foot of Market street, East river, into mid-stream. Whether the schooner went up or down stream the persons who furnished the information to the authorities could not say.

May Resign Premiership.

London, Oct. 18.—The Daily Chronicle announces this morning that in view of Lord Salisbury's desire to resign the premiership an early reconstruction of the cabinet is probable. No serious difference of opinion exists among the ministers on matters of policy; but Lord Salisbury finds his health unequal to the strain and burden of his two offices of premier and foreign minister.

Woman Fatally Burned.

New Hartford, Conn., Oct. 18.—Margaret Laundry, aged 37 years, died at her home in Pine Meadow Sunday as the result of burns received shortly after midnight by falling down stairs with a lamp in her hand. Her husband, Victor Laundry, a barber, lies at his home so badly burned in trying to save his wife that his life is despaired of.

HAS DEATH BEEN PROVED?

If So, Did Adolph Luetgert Kill His Wife—The Jury Out.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—The trial of Adolph Luetgert for the alleged killing of his wife in his sausage factory came to an end at the close of Monday so far as it related to action by judge and attorneys. Now the prisoner is undergoing the terrible ordeal of existence in a state of suspense capable of snapping nerves of steel, consequent on the jury's deliberation upon his guilt or innocence of the terrible crime. Public opinion declares that the case has been made out with circumstantial evidence of a positive character; Luetgert's counsel and his friends are confident of an acquittal, because of the opening sentence in Judge Tuthill's charge to the jury.

In concluding his closing argument for the state at Monday's session, State's Attorney Deneen said: "I don't think it is usually within the province of a state's attorney to ask a jury to return such a verdict, but this crime is so heinous, so cruel, so wanton, that I feel perfectly justified in asking at your hands the extreme penalty of the law in the case of Adolph Luetgert."

The judge granted a recess and the jury left the room. Luetgert got up and went out also for a drink of water. In 10 minutes the jury returned. Judge Tuthill swung around in his chair until he faced the jury and, deliberately picking up his notes on the charge, he began their reading.

Judge Tuthill instructed the jury as follows: "Before conviction can be had in the case the state must prove beyond a reasonable doubt and to a moral certainty first, that Louisa Luetgert is dead; second, that she came to her death on the 1st of May, 1897, in the county of Cook, state of Illinois; third, that Adolph L. Luetgert, the defendant, willfully, maliciously, feloniously and of malace aforethought killed and murdered the said Louisa Luetgert by some of the various means charged in the indictment, or by means unknown. The burden of proof rests upon the prosecution to make out and prove to the satisfaction of the jury beyond all reasonable doubt every material allegation in the indictment; and unless that has been done the jury should find the defendant not guilty. It is not incumbent upon the defendant to prove that Louisa Luetgert is alive, or her whereabouts, or what became of her. If it is possible for you to reconcile the facts in this case upon any reasonable theory consistent with the innocence of the defendant, it is your duty to do so and find him not guilty.

"You are instructed, as a matter of law, that if you believe from the evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant assaulted and killed Louisa Luetgert as charged under circumstances showing no considerable provocation, but showing an abandoned and malignant heart on the part of the defendant and a total disregard of human life, then the law pronounces such killing to be murder, and a jury should so find. It matters not that such evidence is circumstantial, or made up from facts and circumstances, provided the jury believe that such facts and circumstances pointing to the defendant's guilt have been proved so that from a consideration of all the evidence in the case there is no reasonable doubt in the mind of the jury as to the guilt of the defendant. Direct and positive testimony is not necessary to prove the intent; it may be inferred from facts and circumstances shown by the evidence.

"No man may be convicted of a crime until what is known as the corpus delicti has been established by the prosecution; and unless you are convinced by the evidence in the case, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Louisa Luetgert died at the time charged in the indictment, and also that she came to her death in manner and form as charged in the indictment, in such case it is your duty to acquit the defendant. To prove the corpus delicti the state is required to produce only such legal evidence as establishes in the mind of the jury, beyond a reasonable doubt, a conviction that the murder charged in the indictment has been, in fact, committed in manner and form as charged, and that the defendant is guilty of its commission; and it matters not if the proof of such corpus delicti consists in whole or in part of circumstantial evidence, provided it is sufficient to satisfy the minds of the jurors beyond a reasonable doubt of the commission of the offense charged.

"While the statute of the state provides that a person charged with crime may testify in his own behalf, he is not under any obligations to do so, and the statute expressly declares that his neglect to testify shall not create any presumption against him."

Silence as still as death pervaded the packed room while the judge was reading his instructions. His voice was clear and strong, and even the throng which was wedged into the corridor outside heard every word. When Judge Tuthill ceased reading and reached for the different forms of verdict that had been prepared, there was a movement in the courtroom.

Men and women swayed backward and forward, and in a minute or two every person in the room was standing on a seat. The bailiffs did not attempt to make them take their seats. Luetgert sat looking at the court with his eyebrows wrinkled and his face settled into the scowl which has marked it from the beginning. In a couple of minutes the crowd had become quiet. Then Judge Tuthill read the different forms of verdicts, which included one for murder providing for the death penalty, another fixing the penalty at life imprisonment, the third providing for a term of imprisonment of not less than 14 years, and the fourth was for "not guilty." As Judge Tuthill finished the reading he looked up at the jury and said:

"Gentlemen, you may retire and consider your verdict."

Immediately there was an uproar in the courtroom. People who had been sitting rose to their feet, and the shouts of bailiffs ordering everyone to "sit down" availed nothing. The crowd surged forward and took up every inch of space to where the circular fence barred them from the attorneys. Women almost fainted in the crush. The crowd seemed to want to get near Luetgert. All wanted to see how the big sausage maker stood the final ordeal, now that his case was in the hands of the jury. While the tumult was going on Bailiffs Connor and Wolcott were sworn in by the clerk to take charge of the jury. When the 12 men marched out of the room a moment later Judge Tuthill ordered the room cleared and announced that he would adjourn court until 8 o'clock, but that he would be within easy call in case his presence was desired.

Luetgert, with his little golden-haired son in his arms, received a few friends. His son and William Charles pressed forward and warmly shook the hand of the prisoner. Luetgert smiled and gazed about him. He tried to look calm and unconcerned, but behind the mask of indifference those who have watched his varying moods could trace suppressed nervousness. He soon returned to his cell, where he ate sparingly of supper.

"The instructions of the court were fair to both sides and showed unusually careful preparation," said State Attorney Deneen. Ex-Judge Vincent was not so well pleased, however. Judge Tuthill refused to give a number of instructions for the defense which were virtually, it is said, an attack upon the police department.

Shortly after 11 Luetgert was informed by Jailor Whitman that he must go to his cell. Just as he turned to go towards his cell he was asked if he expected to be acquitted.

"Sure, I do," he said. "Why not?"

"What are you going to do when you get out?"

"Well," said Luetgert, with a grin, "I guess about the first thing I will do will be to go and see Mrs. Feldt, my dear beloved Christine—that dear devil. She owes me $4000, and I am going to get it."

"Then what?"

"Then I am going to try to make some more money. I guess I need it by this time. I feel easy over this verdict, and I don't worry one bit. Now I am going to sleep, and if any man wakes me up it will be bad for him."

At 1:30 this morning information direct from the jury room was to the effect that a disagreement had taken place, both sides being obstinate, and the chances for an agreement before morning being very slight. The majority of the jury is with the state and desirous of conviction. Just how the jury stands could not be learned, but it is generally thought that the final outcome will be a disagreement.

Police Captain Schuettler, who worked up much of the evidence in the case, practically admitted that he had given up hopes of a conviction, but added that the "state would get Luetgert on the next trial."

A Sea of Flame.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 19.—At Romany, a suburb of Baku on the west coast of the Caspian sea, a centre of the great oil producing country in European Russia, a petroleum spring caught fire. The fire spread quickly to other springs in the vicinity until the whole valley was a sea of flame. The losses are enormous and the fires are still burning. Four springs and 23 bore holes have been destroyed, as well as several well magazines and houses.

"'TIS LOVE THAT MAKES THE WORLD GO ROUND."

Some people think money is a greater power than love. Oh! What a mistake! See how the great money kings are controlled by the little boy Cupid! See how the great soldiers and men of power are twisted around his little fingers!

A woman's most precious possession is the capacity for awakening pure and noble love. More potent than wit or intellect is the womanly capacity for happy wifehood and motherhood.

A woman who is weak or diseased in the special organism of her sex is deprived of the power and prestige which naturally belong to her. Such troubles are not a necessity. Perfect health and strength of the feminine organism is insured by proper care and the aids afforded by enlightened medical science. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures all weaknesses and diseases of woman's special organism.

For nearly 30 years Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. No other physician has had a more extensive practice or greater success in the treatment of women's diseases. No other such perfect and scientific remedy for these ailments has ever been devised. It has restored health, strength and womanly power to tens of thousands of women.

Women who would understand their own powers and possibilities should read Doctor Pierce's thousand-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is the most interesting and enlightening book of the kind ever published. A paper-bound copy will be sent absolutely free to any one sending 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. For a handsome cloth-bound copy send 31 stamps.

AFFLICTED WINDSOR.

Relief Trains With Provisions and Clothing From Different Parts of Province.

Windsor, N. S., Oct. 19.—The complete loss by the disaster to the town of Windsor was not fully disclosed until yesterday. Sunday the whole place was black with smoke and flying dust, and people were so dazed with fear and excitement that few fully appreciated the great catastrophe which had fallen upon them. Yesterday the fire had pretty well spent itself, and the clear, bright fall morning opened on a scene which surpassed description.

Standing on Ferry hill, as far as the eye could reach, one could see but a stretch of smouldering ruins, dotted here and there with tottering chimneys and walls which only serve to remind the spectators of the splendid architecture of the town. In all the fire swept district only the courthouse, customs house and Mounce's hotel stand intact. All others have been swept away as if cut down by an enemy's batteries. Although the stone structures of these buildings stand they are gutted and burned beyond repair. The office of the Windsor Foundry company singularly escaped the raging flames which destroyed every other structure and piece of plant belonging to the company.

Trains from Halifax and Kentville brought hundreds of visitors to the town to view the ruins and to assist relatives and friends. Expressions of sympathy continue to come over the wires in private and public messages. People in all parts of the world are making anxious inquiries about the safety of relatives and friends. Another car of provisions and clothing arrived yesterday from Halifax in charge of Recorder McCoy, who is rendering valuable assistance in its distribution. The town of Truro also dispatched a car of provisions and clothing.

It was thought, terrible as had been the destruction to property, that no lives had been lost, but the blackened and charred skeletons of two persons were found near the ruins of a house on St. Annus street. Further investigation proved them to be the remains of Patrick Kelly and his wife, an aged couple. The skeletons were found about six feet apart and from their position it is likely that the poor old man and woman were quietly sleeping when the deadly flames enveloped their dwelling. In the excitement the Kellys were not missed.

It was officially stated yesterday that the direct loss by the fire amounted to $2,500,000, and that the indirect loss will be fully $2,500,000 more. At least 2000 of the people who are homeless will have to be cared for by public subscriptions for six months, and fully $75,000 will be required. All of the Canadian railways are carrying relief goods free of charge.

YELLOW FEVER SITUATION.

Belief In New Orleans That the Disease Is Not Contagious.

New Orleans, Oct. 19.—Just before 7 o'clock last evening the one hundred mark of deaths during the present period of yellow fever prevalence had been reached. When the board of health closed its books Sunday night there had been 96 fatal cases. This number occurred among less than 900 cases that have been reported to the board since early in September, when the first case made its appearance. As usual the record has been swelled by the criminal negligence of the poorer classes.

The report Monday was by no means reassuring. Last night the new cases exceeded 30 and the deaths had reached seven. The cases, as on other days, have appeared in all directions. The quarantine system is still in effect, but it does not seem to restrain the spread of the infection, and the opinion seems to be borne out that yellow fever is not at all contagious, but atmospherically infectious.

Two lives might have ben saved if any attempt had been made to give the patients attention. Yesterday Coroner Lemmonier found the dead body of Peppino Coralfo in a room in a house on Burgundy street. The body was lying on the floor, and those in the place said that the man had gone to bed and rolled out in a stupor. It took the doctor only a minute to decide the man had died of yellow fever. Later in the day he was called to view the body of Anton Barrone. He at once diagnosed the case as also one of yellow fever. Both cases had been concealed from the authorities and the victims had died without a doctor being called in to give relief.

Bryan Not Meddling.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Referring to the belief expressed by the followers of Henry George, that recent utterances of William J. Bryan indicated his support of the George ticket in the greater New York campaign, Mr. Bryan wired the following to the Associated Press last night:

Norfolk, Neb., Oct. 18.

I have not expressed any opinion in regard to the New York mayoralty campaign, and do not care to express any opinion in regard to it.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

CLAPP RELEASED.

No Evidence to Hold Him in the Haley Case.

Frank Clapp who was arrested at Braintree early Monday morning, upon suspicion that he had something to do with the asault on James Haley on the night of Oct. 12, was released by the Boston police Monday night. Clapp has acted rather queer throughout the affair, and asserted that he was at home the night assault was committed. He was submitted to a severe examination by the police Monday but they did not find enough to warrant his being held and he was discharged.

Although the police have thus far been unable to apprehend the parties who made the assault they have not given the matter up but are still hard at work upon the case, following up the meagre clews they have.

Sixty-Nine Years Ago.

The celebration over the Constitution this week recalls an incident of nearly 70 years ago. Pattee's History of Quincy says that "in 1828 the officers and crew of the noted United States Frigate Constitution, engaged the entire control of the Neponset House of its landlord for three days, and held a highly enjoyable, convivial and social, although not a reputable pastime."

The Neponset hotel was located at Neponset just across the river from Quincy, and was erected a few years after the opening of the Neponset turnpike. The hotel was opened in April 1812.

CITY COUNCIL.

Water Commissioners Request Change in Ordinance.

A Short Debate on the Widening of Squantum Street.

An Appropriation for New Garbage Plant.---Many Petitions.

Councilmen Bryant, Geary, Johnson and Parker were absent.

In the absence of President Bryant, Councilman Field was elected president pro tem.

WATER RATES.

The Water Commissioners forwarded a communication recommending that the ordinance be changed so as to make water rates payable once a year, on Jan. 1, as it would be a saving in expense to the city. To Committee on Ordinances.

The Board of Health requested the transfer of $70 from appropriation for abatement of nuisances to garbage. To Committee on Finance.

ELECTION OFFICERS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication appointing Cornelius Crowley as Warder in Ward Four, precinct one, in place of Thomas J. Foley, declined, and appointing John Barry a deputy inspector, in place of Cornelius Crowley. Laid over for confirmation.

PETITIONS.

A petition from W. H. Mitchell and others was received that Pleasant street and the south west portion of School street be relocated and repaired, and placed in a safe condition for travel.

Laid on the table until later in the evening when Councilman McGrath reported an order for a public hearing on the same for Nov. 1. Adopted.

A petition was received that the surface water on Winthrop avenue be taken care of. Committee on Streets.

The Electric Light and Power Co. petitioned for location of poles on Grand View avenue, Russell park and Beale street. To Committee on Streets.

A petition was received that the name of the street known as Lawyers lane be changed to Columbia street. To Committee on Streets.

A petition was received for three electric lights on Russell park. To Committee on Streets.

E. W. Nutting and wife petitioned for State aid. Joseph W. Richardson and Bridget W. Donaher for common victuliar's licenses, and A. G. Durgin for a license for Music hall. Referred.

The reference of the petition of Bridget W. Crowley was withdrawn, and later in the evening Councilman Cain offered an order transferring the license of G. J. Curtin to her. Adopted.

A petition was received for an electric light on Merrymount road at or near the bridge. To Committee on Streets.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing, Nov. 1, on the petition to extend Hall place Adopted.

The same committee reported an order for the relocation of telphone poles on Squantum street and Newbury avenue. To second reading.

The same committee reported leave to withdraw on petition for the regrading and repairing of Pleasant street. Adopted. (This was the petition introduced at a previous meeting.)

The same committee reported leave to withdraw petition of Lewis Bass for award of damages for the taking of land in laying out Whitwell street. Adopted.

SQUANTUM STREET.

The same committee reported leave to withdraw on the petition to widen Squantum street, from Hancock street to the Milton line.

Councilman Sprague hoped report would not be adopted. If the street was widened when the petition was presented it could have been done for almost nothing. Ten years hence the land might cost $150,000, as it would then be built upon. The land should be taken now if the street was not widened for some years. There must be a good street tbeir sometime.

Councilman Little asked how street could be widened without expense to the city from the bridge to Granite avenue.

Councilman Sprague replied that city could not widen the street in Milton. For the Quincy part no money need be appropriated, simply take the land.

Councilman Nickerson said that if widened in all probability it would be on the south side and there was no prospect of that building up. The committee thought it best to put off until another year until the boulevard was settled.

Councilman Sprague. The section will want the street even if there is a boulevard.

Councilman Poland thought that now was the time to widen the street. This section would grow fast when it took a start. If land could be had cheap, now was the time.

Councilman Sprague offered a substitute motion that the report be recommitted and the committee report the estimated cost of widening the street. Adopted.

A public hearing was then given on the petition to widen Squantum street from Atlantic street to the Farm meadows.

No one appeared for or against the petition, and the hearing closed and the order was recommitted.

GARBAGE PLANT.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order appropriating $250 for a new garbage building. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on State Aid reported an order granting Abel A. Cain $6 per month, and S. G. Curtis $4 per month. Adopted.

MOTIONS, ORDERS, ETC.

Upon motion of Councilman Anderson it was voted that when the Council adjourn it be until next Monday evening.

Councilman Phillips offered an order for the State election which was adopted.

Councilman Nickerson invited the City Council and officials to the opening of the Wollaston loop line Oct. 19, and to a spread by the Ward Five Councilmen. He also stated that a special car would leave City Hall at 7 o'clock.

A RIPE OLD AGE.

Well Known Quincy Lady Observes Her 89th Birthday.

Mrs. Merritt wore at this informal reception an apron which was made from her wedding dress in 1826, and at that time cost $1.50 per yard.

For one of her advanced years, Mrs. Merritt is remarkably smart. She retains a good memory and can recall many of the important events in the world's history, particularly in Quincy, where she says many changes have taken place; and to convince her friends of her memory she recites readily the first words she learned to write 80 years ago; and although some callers suggested that she refreshed her memory from her old writing book, she has not seen it for years. Her health has been remarkably good up to a year ago, when she was quite seriously ill.

Many of her relatives, neighbors and friends called to extend congratulations on Monday, nearly all of whom brought remembrances. Among her callers were the following:

M. Lizzie Furnald, Mary A. French, Sarah E. Pierce, Elizabeth F. Furnald, Mary A. Baillie, N. B. Furnald, Esther M. Jones, Mrs. Greenquist, Mrs. Frank Silva, Anna Watts, Thomas E. Furnald, Mrs. Thomas E. Furnald, Caroline A. Newcomb, Martha C. Newcomb, Mrs. Murdock Macdonald, Mrs. John R. Gourd, Mrs. Edward Richardson, Mrs. Emma Horn and son, Mrs. E. B. Brackett, Mrs. George Brooks, Miss Gertrude Hanson, Miss Etta Hanson, Mrs. Eunice Bent, Mrs. Margaret Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Prescott, Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Scammell, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Doliver, Mr. and Mrs. William Michael, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hersey, Mrs. Lucy Marsh and daughter.

Mrs. Merritt was born in Nottingham, N. H., Oct. 18, 1808, and was the daughter of Lemuel and Mary Furnald. Her father was a farmer and when she was but nine years of age she came to Quincy with her parents.

During her early years she taught a private school in Quincy.

In 1826, she married Jonathan Merritt, a ship carpenter of Scituate, and resided in that town until his death some thirty years ago, when she returned to Quincy where she has since resided.

She has living six children four sons and two daughters; William Merritt, who resides in the west; Amos Merritt, who resides in Quincy; Charles Meritt, who resides in Malden; Albert Merritt, who resides in New York; Mrs. Helen F. Thomas, who resides in Malden; and Miss Katie F. Merritt who lives with her mother on School street.

Possibly oatmeal hasn't made Scotland what she is, but of a truth the consumption of that grain has been coincident, at least, with Scottish power of brain and brawn.

Oatmeal and other grains are highly desirable food, particularly on the breakfast table.

We carry in stock everything that the market affords in the cereal food line, and here are just a few prices.

Only a few years ago the ordinary grocery store sold one or two preparations of oats, and the sale was very limited. JOHN ADAMS DAY.

His Birthday Being Observed Today by Daughters of the Revolution.

John Adams.

At noon today at the birthplace of President John Adams on Franklin street, his 162d birthday was observed by the Adams chapter, Daughters of the Revoultion, who now have possession of the old historic house. Only a few invited guests could be entertained by the chapter, who witnessed the "Hanging of the Crane," enjoyed a grand old fashioned dinner, and took cognizance the good work which the Daughters of the Revolution are doing in preserving historic estates.

The lot upon which the house stands has been fenced in with the old fashioned rail and post fence while at the entrance its the old fashioned turnstile.

The exterior of the house has been painted red, being an exact reproduction of the old painting the color being matched from an old clapboard. The painting on the interior of the house is also of the antique color. The doors are a bright green and there is the brass knocker and latch.

The interior of the house shows a large amount of work. Old English paper has been hung upon the walls, while in the hall and in the room where President Adams was born, the walls are in the old yellow whitewash, the color being found by removing some of the old paper.

In the front hall, what was supposed to have been an old closet, was found to be the stone stairway leading to the cellar of the old house. This has been restored to its original condition and the door now leading to this stairway was given by Samuel T. Cushing of Hingham, and was one of those in the old Gen. Benjamin Lincoln house. It is made of fluted boards, similar boards being found in the attic of the Adams house, showing that they were also used in this house.

In the west room a square has been cut out of the wall showing the hand made lathes and the brick walls.

In the door leading from this room to the front hall was a peep hole such as used in the Revolutionary times.

In the west room in the south window is the old sun dial mark.

In this room the boards which covered up the large brick fire-place have been removed and the old mantle restored. Over this the brick found in the corner has been placed and covered with glass, while near it are the sworn affidavits of the workmen who found it.

An old fire-place was also found in the lean-to part of the house, containing a crane and this has also been restored.

Up stairs in a closet is the paper that was put on the walls by Charles Francis Adams in 1840 while the interior of another closet is painted the original green.

For the purpose of showing the construction of the massive old brick chimney, the panel and mantle covering the fire-place in the west room upstairs has been placed upon hinges so that it can be opened.

As has been stated the paint upon the wood work of the interior is a reproduction of the old colors, while the doors are hung with the old L and H hinges which perform their work as readily now as years ago.

An extended report of the exercises of the day, the menu, those present, etc., will appear in tomorrow's Ledger.

☞ The lamp makers are having their innings now. The finest creations the world has ever known are exhibited here, from $1.00 to $70.00. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

Clear skies with pleasant temperature were again the weather of New England yesterday. While the conditions continue unsettled over the gulf of Mexico the indications do not point to the development of a storm before the last of the week, so that a continuation of the pleasant weather seems now certain through Wednesday, and probably Thursday, with a slight rise in temperature and winds generally southwesterly, of light to fresh velocities.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. Trouble to Follow Eviction.

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 19.—Serious trouble is anticipated with the coal miners in the Kanawha valley in the next three or four days. Papers were prepared here in nearly 400 suits for the eviction of miners from company houses, and as soon as these cases can be tried and evictions begun, which will be about the last of the week, trouble is looked for. An attempt was made yesterday to begin work at several of the mines, but the men were afraid to go to work.

Drank Carbolic Acid.

New York, Oct. 19.—While Coroner Haslom and assistant were on their way to the Lutheran cemetery near Newtown, Long Island, after the body of a woman suicide, they were informed of the suicide of a man near the same cemetery. Both suicides had killed themselves by drinking carbolic acid. They were about 50 years of age. The woman had killed herself on the grave of her husband, as her body was lying across the grave.

Sale of Union Pacific.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Attorney General McKenna declined to state whether or not there is any prospect of postponement of the sale of the Union Pacific railroad by the United States circuit court at Omaha, set for Nov. 1. From other and perfectly trustworthy sources, however, it is learned that there is no present intention on the part of the government to interfere with the order of the court in the matter of the sale.

DEBILITY

To those who suffer pain the joy of relief is indescribable. Debility or nervous prostration causes all the inconveniences of pain, though not its sharpness. It is a later stage of disease.

Pains and debility are symptoms of a deranged condition of the kidneys. Both will disappear when the kidneys are made to act right, not before. Diseased or inactive kidneys can be

CURED

In getting my men into condition after training I find there is nothing so powerful to build up the strength and power of the inner man as the use of Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills. They seem to contain all the nutriment, also the power of destroying diseased muscles and weak backs, so common to men of the profession, that I have adopted them chiefly as a safeguard among my boys in training, to guard them from the always common weak back that comes from hard work. You certainly have the most wonderful kindey and general strengthener in your Sparagus Kidney Pills that I have ever known. PROF. JIM KELLY, Tremont Hotel, Nahant, Mass.

TWENTY-ROUND BOUT.

Lightweight Championship of the World at Stake.

David Sullivan of Boston Met "Peddler" Palmer.

Worked Hard For a Knockout, but He Lost the Match.

London, Oct. 19.—David Sullivan will not be able to return to his home in the capital of Massachusetts with the title to the lightweight championship of the world. He made a good struggle for the laurel in a contest with "Peddler" Palmer, the recognized leader of his class in England, but lost in the 20th round. Defeat involved, besides the championship, the loss of $5000—$3500 as a stake and a side bet of $1000.

PEDDLER PALMER.

When the men entered the ring at 9 o'clock, the room was crowded. There was half a pound difference in weight in favor of Sullivan, but the betting was two to one in favor of the Englishman. Both appeared to be perfectly trained.

As early as the third round Sullivan was twice cautioned for holding. In the fifth Palmer just missed an uppercut which might have settled matters. He had the best of the exchanges from the beginning, but Sullivan made a plucky fight throughout. In the ninth and tenth rounds Sullivan forced the fighting and really had the better of his opponent until the last half minute of the tenth, when Palmer steadied him with a couple of fine punches in the face. In the following rounds Sullivan was clever and strong, but unable to make headway against the little Englishman's superior skill.

In the thirteenth Sullivan got in his left, but was again cautioned for holding and hitting too low. In the fourteenth Palmer damaged his opponent's face badly, and in the fifteenth Sullivan was evidently getting weak, but he managed to land his left and right on Palmer's ribs and in the succeeding round showed lots of pluck in spite of his weakness. Palmer seemed contented with his previous work and just maintained his advantage. In the eighteenth Sullivan tried all he knew how to bring off a knockout, but failed. In the nineteenth the American reached the face and head of the Englishman, but received severe punishment in return on the nose and mouth. In the twentieth Sullivan again forced the fighting, but Palmer won with a lot of points.

Sullivan was so much upset by his defeat that he wept; but his game efforts have secured him many friends, and he may be congratulated on having made Palmer extend himself more than any lad the Englishman ever met.

Preceding the main contest, Jerry Driscoll, champion of the English navy, beat Freeman Martin, the Nova Scotian, in six rounds, and John Hughes of London beat George Reynolds of America in eight rounds.

After the contest it was ascertained that Palmer had injured both his hands during the eleventh round, the right being practically useless. As soon as Sullivan heard Palmer declared the victor he begged earnestly for another match.

Pugilists Turn Fakers.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 19.—"Kid" McCoy and Jim Hall of Australia met at the Quaker City Athletic club last night for a six-round bout, but the affair was such a palpable "fake" that the referee called it off in the fifth and declared "No contest."

The meeting of Jack O'Brien and Martin Judge was stopped in the first round for a like reason.

Bald Won First Heat.

Memphis, Oct. 19.—Last night at the Coliseum track in this city Eddie Bald of Buffalo and Fred Loughead, the Canadian champion, rode the first heat of a match race for a purse offered by the Coliseum company, Bald winning in 6:57 3-5. The distance was three miles. The race will be ridden to a conclusion tonight.

"Omaha Kid" a Winner.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Oscar Gardner, the "Omaha kid," knocked out Luke Stevens of Buffalo in the sixth round of their bout before the Rienzi Athletic club last night. A left smash on the jaw at short range did the business. ...en were matched for a 25-round bout.

Grave Opened and Body Mangled.

New York, Oct. 19.—The grave of Allen Bennett, colored, who was interred in the cemetery of Millburn township, N. J., a week ago, was opened Sunday night, the body hacked in two with a spade and the upper portion carried away. The matter is inexplicable. If the body snatcher had been seeking a cadaver for a medical college he would not have waited until the body had been buried a week, nor would he have taken the upper portion of the body only.

Lord Salisbury to Remain.

London, Oct. 19.—The Daily Telegraph this morning gives an unqualified denial on authority to the report put in circulation by The Daily Chronicle, that Lord Salisbury contemplated retirement from the premiership and foreign office. It says: "Lord Salisbury is stronger and feeling better than for years; while Lady Salisbury has almost completely recovered hre health."

Were Married at Midnight.

Clinton, Mass., Oct. 19.—Henry A. Potter, instructor in modern languages at the Clinton high school, was married at midnight Sunday at his residence, the bride being Countess Angele De Genibrouse Kasteel Pers of Mont Bardou Gers, France. The knowledge of the affair was confined to a very few of the neighbors and the most intimate friends of the groom.

The bride arrived in New York on Sunday afternoon, being met at the dock by Professor Potter. A carriage landed them at the Grand Central depot, and at 4 o'clock they left New York for Worcester. The train was an hour late, and did not reach Worcester until 10 o'clock. A carriage was there, and within a few moments after the arrival of the train they were speeding over the country road on their 12-mile ride to Clinton. They reached here at 11:30, and the hackman was immediately dispatched for the officiating clergyman, the Rev. William Wells Jordan, pastor of the Congregational church, who lives only a block from the new house of the couple, and also for the witnesses, ex-Judge Corcoran and wife. Just as the clocks were striking the midnight hour the couple were made man and wife.

Trying to Break a Will.

New Haven, Oct. 19.—A hearing was held yesterday on the contest of the will of Patrick Gallagher, a wealthy builder, in which an estate of over $200,000 is involved. The will is contested by two brothers and a sister, who reside out of the country, and by other relations. The ground is undue influence said to have been exercised by Mrs. Gallagher, the second wife and widow, to whom the will bequeaths the entire estate valued at over $200,000.

The witnesses to the will testified that the testator was of sound mind and memory, and Judge Cleveland, who presided over the court, admitted the will to probate. The attorneys for the contestants immediately took an appeal to the superior court, and the case will be fought out on its merits.

Injunction Against Lowell.

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 19.—Judge Charles S. Lilley of the superior civil court in this city granted an injunction restraining the city of Lowell from paying the Mountain Rock junket bill contracted in entertaining the Lawrence city government and two or three hundred other guests who were present.

The order was asked for by J. G. Buttrick and others. It does not set forth the items in the junket bill because the petitioners were not allowed to see the amounts, but the injunction of the court forbids the payment of the bill or any part of it.

Worsted Workers Happy.

Providence, Oct. 19.—The Weybosset woolen mills operatives at Olneyville were notified yesterday that the schedule of wages in all departments paid prior to the cutdown in 1893 will be restored Dec. 1, following the course taken at Fletcher's National and Providence mills. The same action will be taken at the Riverside, Manton and Lymanville worsted mills, comprising all the woolen mills in Olneyville and vicinity, and the Farwell mills at Central Falls will probably follow suit.

Maine Lawyer In Trouble.

Brattleboro, Me., Oct. 19.—Henry R. Knight, aged 31, a lawyer, was arrested here by Sheriff R. E. Gordon, who acted under instructions from Sheriff John R. Nichols of Arrapahoe, Ok., who said that the charge was arson, and that he had requisition papers. Knight practised here and then in South Dakota, but for the past five years had been in Oklahoma. He was county attorney last year, when the courthouse at Arrapahoe was burned.

Injunction Asked For.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 19.—A new and startling move was made yesterday in the fight between the manufacturers and strikers when George G. Snow, through his attorney, applied for an injunction against the strikers who have been acting as pickets at his shop, also against Secretary McSherry of the Sole Fasteners' union. A hearing has been set for 9:30 Wednesday morning before Judge Richardson in Boston.

Sixteen Gold Hunters.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 19.—A party of 16 gold hunters, under the leadership of Howard Blackburn, set out for the Yukon regions last evening in the schooner Hattie I. Phillips, which is 96.46 tons burden, and was built in Essex in 1885. Provisions for 32 months have been taken on board, as well as a steam launch, which is made in sections, and is stored in the hold.

Alleged Burglars Guilty.

Barnstable, Mass., Oct. 19.—John F. Carter and John F. Farrell, the alleged burglars who were placed on trial in the superior court here last week, charged with shooting Officer Henry Bourne of Falmouth, with intent to kill, were found guilty and sentenced to not less than seven years and not more than eight.

Offered No Resistance.

Woburn, Mass., Oct. 19.—George Clark was held up last night on a lonesome road by two men, who, after robbing him of $17 and a silver watch, shot him in the ankle. Clark claims that the shooting was entirely unprovoked, as he offered no resistance to the highwaymen.

Arnold's Marriage to a Japanese

London, Oct. 19.—The particulars obtainable concerning the marriage on Saturday of Sir Edwin Arnold, the poet and editor, author of "The Light of Asia," to a Japanese woman show that the ceremony took place at St. Mathias' church, this city, in the presence of Sir Edwin's brother. The bride was brought from Japan and was educated in England.

Probably Lynched.

Rome, Ga., Oct. 19.—Reports from Somerville, 30 miles north of this place, state that two negroes named Penn and Hazelton were lynched last night. They were accused of arson and had been arrested by the sheriff and a posse. A masked mob overpowered the officers and disappeared. Nothing has been seen or heard of the two negroes since.

CROUP QUICKLY CURED.

Mountain Glen, Ark.—Our children were suffering with croup when we received a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It afforded almost instant relief.—F. A. Thornton. This celebrated remedy is for sale by A. G. Durgin.

DR. EVERETT'S NOMINATION RATIFIED

National Democrats Met at Music Hall, Boston--Letter from Cleveland.

Boston, Oct. 20.—The national Democrats ratified their state candidates last night by a large meeting in Music hall, at which Dr. William Everett, the candidate for governor, made the principal speech. Dr. Everett's remarks were warmly received. A number of letters were read from the platform, one of them being from ex-President Cleveland, who deplores the present state of the Democratic party and commends the Massachusetts Democrats for their steadfastness to the cause of true Democracy.

At the conclusion of his speech, Mr. Gargan introduced Dr. Everett, who spoke as follows:

"Mr. President and fellow citizens: I trust I feel the responsibility attaching to the position in which I have been placed by the Democratic national organization. We believe that our cause is not one which should take anybody out of the Democratic party, but keep him where that party ought to be.

In 1896, the meeting of the Democratic convention at Chicago was looked forward to with the keenest interest by friends and foes alike. There was one overshadowing question in politics, the maintenance or abolition of the gold standard. Massachusetts chose her delegates as gold men, nothing less; and she gave a high place in her delegation to a resident of Dedham who had made himself a national reputation in the Fifty-third congress by forcing the money issue to the front and discomforting the silver men in both parties by the uncompromising energy with which he pleaded for the gold standard. The nominations were made, the convention dissolved, and the one man who had made the Democratic party in Massachusetts a reality went home to die of a broken heart.

"Repelled by the arrogance of the Republican aristocrats of St. Louis, outraged by the populism of the so-called Democrats of Chicago, there were brave and true men enough to seek a new home for the ancient principles of the constitution; they repaired to Indianapolis and planted the standard of a truer Democracy.

"But whether we regard ourselves as maintaining the true Democracy, or whether we are ourselves the new party, we must equally rest our action on principle; we must equally assert for ourselves a ground of action, to defend which we summon patriotic men of both parties. I do not hesitate to lay down as the first principle we are fighting for that which I have just tried to lay before you, the principle of fighting for principle, and that no patriot is bound to act with a party that has ceased to do patriotic work.

"The second principle for which the national Democracy stands is that there are no classes in America, but common, mutual, undivided interests in every law of congress, every act of the president and every decree of the courts.

"But, Mr. President, because the Republicans cannot evade the stigma of legislation for a class against the nation, are the Chicago Democrats, those who arrogate themselves the title of true Democracy, are they not guilty? Is there not in every one of their utterances the ring of favored classes, of sectional supremacy, of mutual distrust and warfare? But our special charge against both of the antagonist parties is their conduct with reference to the money of the country, the lifeblood whose circulation alone keeps the body politic in health.

"Mr. Chairman, there undoubtedly are in every nation two natural parties, the party of conservatism and the party of reform: the party that holds gratefully to the blessings we possess, and is unwilling to risk their stability, and the party that recognizes, in all patriotic candor, the faults of our existing system and seeks to eradicate them, reforming that we may preserve. But when Tories abide in their musty complacency, and Radicals revel in their senseless vagaries, then the patriot casts off at once the false conservatism and the false reform, to adorn what he defends, to strengthen what he preserves, to repair what he purifies. He goes forth to work unterrified by threats, unshaken by sarcasm, undeterred by adverse votes."

James E. McConnell of Fitchburg followed the candidate. He said: "It is due to Democrats, with whom in the past we have fought shoulder to shoulder, that we should not stand supinely by when their accredited representatives proclaim the doctrine that the rich and comfortable are not capable of caring for the liberties of this country. Are we too harsh, too severe, when we characterize this as demagogery and appeal to all Democrats, to whom there is one iota of pride left in the party of Jefferson, to arise and denounce at the polls that such doctrine is part and parcel of Democracy? Silver is but a cloak, the lining of which is a patchwork of 'isms.' The new Democracy, instead of representing the principles contended for by every candidate from Jefferson to Cleveland, now represents the antithesis of Democracy. The mis-alliance between populism and Democracy has produced a new and unknown offspring. Yesterday the cry was silver; today it is trusts; tomorrow it will be whatever best suits the purpose of appealing to the discontented, arousing those to whom life has been a failure, and spurring on idleness to hope for a share in the profits of thrift and industry.

"Jefferson wrote an immortal document for us all, but let each write for himself a declaration of independence for his personal guidance in this political chaos, to proclaim and fight for the right as he sees it. Let us use no arts of the politician to gain the votes of unbelievers, but ask those who believe as we do to make common cause with us; not to increase the Republican majority by one, but by a vote for Everett to make the protest against the debauchery and pollution of Democracy more effective. A gathering of silver Democrats today resembles a masquerade ball; you see a figure arrayed in all the habiliments of Democracy, and when the hour for unmasking arrives the mask drops and lo, it is the face of a Populist or a disgruntled Republican.

"Several cases bearing upon injunctions with reference to strikes have been decided by the supreme court of Massachusetts. Will Mr. Williams dare say as a lawyer that the existing law was not correctly interpreted? Courts do not make the law, but interpret it, and none can be true to the teachings of his profession, to truth and justice, who fails to realize that in the upholding of the law, in strengthening the arm of the courts and teaching obedience to their interpretations of the law, rest not alone the rights of property, but the rights of personal property. Grant that the existing laws with reference to injunctions are wrong; grant that the individual action of certain judges is extreme, is it not better to seek proper remedies than dilate on bloodshed and murder, and wrongly attribute the same to courts?"

The following letter from Mr. Cleveland was read:

Princeton, Oct. 16.

William T. Jenney, Esq.:

My Dear Sir—I regret that I cannot be present at the ratification meeting of the national Democrats on the 19th inst. I hope that the action of the true Democrats of your state, as well as in other states, may bear abundant fruit, and give hope of the speedy rescue of our party from false guardians.

Very truly yours,

Grover Cleveland.

Gold Has Risen In Value.

Turners Falls, Mass., Oct. 20.—George Fred Williams and Pierre Humbert, Jr., were the speakers at the Democratic rally held in Coll's Opera House last night, the audience numbering 700. Greenfield, Miller's Falls and surrounding sections were well represented. The presiding officer was Mr. Atherton. Mr. Williams said: "Everything has fallen when measured in gold. There is but one explanation of it, and the economists of the world are now agreed that there is no possible explanation except this, and that is that commodities have stayed where they always were, but the gold that assures them has risen year by year in value until it measures out more and more of the products of labor every year. It spells ruin. Is it any wonder that the factory owners of New England are now anxious for their credit, when year by year the value of their factories has been falling until their factories are no longer realassets to give for loans; until the value of their yearly product has so fallen that there is no profit to them in transacting business, and all because of this dreadful everlasting fall in the prices of their products and of their property? How much longer, owners of the factories of this town, do you mean your assets to fall in the future? My friends, it is for presenting such a cause as this that I and mine are branded as 'repudiators and anarchists.' (Applause.). We seek the rescue of the people. We demand the saving of the industries of New England, we call back the wages that existed before this awful process began. That is our cause in a nutshell."

NOTABLE ASSEMBLAGE

Catholic Dignitaries In Council at National Capital.

The Case of Mgr. Schroeder to Be Considered.

Investiture of Dr. Conaty With Title and Dignity.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The meeting of Catholic archbishops to consider questions of policy and administration of the church in America and of the directors of the Catholic university to pass upon the affairs of that institution has brought together a notable assemblage of Catholic dignitaries. All of the prominent figures of the church are represented.

The meeting of the directors of the university began today. The directorate is made up of the cardinals and most of the archbishops, with five bishops and three lay members. Unusual interest has been attached to the meeting owing to reports that charges would be preferred against Mgr. Schroeder, who occupies the chair of dogmatic theology in the university, with a view to his removal. These reports were a prevailing topic of comment among the churchmen yesterday, but there was the greatest reticence in discussing the subject for publication. The officers of the university declined to say anything. It is generally understood, however, that the status of Mgr. Schroeder will be brought before the board. He has been a conspicuous member of the faculty, owing in part to his identification with the German membership of the church and his efforts to establish a chair of Germanic languages, toward which many German societies have contributed. It developed in the course of the discussion of the subject that Mgr. Schroeder had received assurances from Rome which, in the opinion of his friends, will be decisive in putting an end to any movement toward his removal. It was stated by those conversant with the controversy that this assurance was in the form of a letter from the pope, in substance stating that Mgr. Schroeder must not be disturbed in his present field of work. When efforts were made to see the monsignor on the subject he returned the answer that he had nothing to say. There is good reason to believe, however, that a communication of some kind bearing on his case has been received from Rome, and that it is favorable to his interests.

REV. DR. THOMAS J. CONATY.

The initial feature of the gathering of churchmen occurred at the university chapel yesterday afternoon, when Dr. Conaty, rector of the university, was invested with the title and dignity of a monsignor. The assembled prelates wore their robes of office, the many archbishops and bishops in purple and the cardinal in his scarlet robes and beretta. Vice Rector Garrigan read the papal brief, in which the pope takes occasion to pay a high tribute to Dr. Conaty, and making him a Roman prelate of the pontifical household, with title of monsignor. Cardinal Gibbons performed the ceremony of investiture and Archbishop Keane made the address.

The archbishop spoke of his long service with the university, of its Americanism and of the support which Pope Leo had given to it at all times. In this connection Archbishop Keane said that when he went to Rome a year ago the pope said to him that the whisperings then current against the university were lies; that they were inspired by men who were enemies, not only of the archbishop, but of the university; refractories who oppose the policy of the pope. He would show, the pope said, by the manner he treated the archbishop how he honored and trusted the university.

Mgr. Conaty delivered an address acknowledging the honor conferred upon him and outlining the aspirations of the university. Later Archbishop Keane addressed the students, placing before them a high ideal of citizenship and manhood.

Turnstiles at Wollaston.

It is understood at Wollaston that the Railroad Commissioners have reached a decision on the fence case and have decided to put in turn-stiles working only one way—outward. This is in accordance with the plans of Supt. Allen. Citizens of Wollaston are severely criticising the manner in which the commissioners viewed the premises last Wednesday afternoon. They came out on a special train with Genl. Supt. Allen and Supt. French. They did not notify the City Government of their intended visit thus giving the railroad an unfair opportunity to present their side of the case in an exparte manner.

Art Exhibit.

The Art Exhibit given Tuesday evening at 21 Billings street, Atlantic, by Rev. J. H. Whitaker and Mr. W. Jay Sanborn was a charming surprise to all who were so fortunate as to be present. The rooms in themselves were beautiful models of interior decoration and called forth many exclamations of delight. There were numerous requests for a repetition of this unique and artistic entertainment.

OPENING OF WOLLASTON LOOP.

Free Rides in Afternoon — Banquet and Speeches in Evening.

The Quincy & Boston street railway added another link to its ever increasing mileage Tuesday when it opened the Wollaston loop line. This route is built upon a location granted by the selectmen of Quincy in 1888, the route being as follows: Commencing at Adams street with its junction with Hancock street, thence over Adams street to Newport avenue; thence over Newport avenue to Beale street; thence over Beale street to Farrington street to Squantum street thence over Squantum street to the main line on Hancock street.

Although a little longer than the main line to Neponset bridge via Hancock street there will be but little difference in the running time and the through cars to and from Holbrook will run by this line thus giving Wollaston people half hour service in both directions.

The first car over the line left City Square shortly after 1 o'clock, and as it passed through the village windows were opened and handkerchiefs and flags were waved in greeting. Cheers were not lacking and at various points along the line there was frequent cheering.

At 3 o'clock three cars left City Square for Wollaston, two of the large new box cars and an open car. Arriving at Beale sreet they were quickly filled with men and women, and hundreds of children who had been released from school. They were then given a ride over the loop to Hancock street, thence by Hancock street to City Square then back over the loop line to the starting point. This trip was repeated several times until all who desired had been given a ride around the circuit.

Between 4 and 5 o'clock Ex-Councilman Charles R. Sherman, who was chairman of the celebration, distributed several hundred horns and flags to the children, and for a while the noise was almost deafening. It was a grand time for the boys and girls of Wollaston and one they will not soon forget.

IN THE EVENING.

The familiar saying that Wollaston never does anything by halves was never more aptly illustrated than it was at the evening's celebration. The place went fairly wild, as electric cars in all their brilliant glory are not a familiar sight on her busy streets. At last Wollaston has been thrown open to her sister wards and adjacent towns by the magic touch of the electrician.

As the cars sped by heavily loaded with passengers Wollastonians would look at each other and rub their eyes as though they had been just awakened from a twenty years' sleep after drinking one of Hendrick Hudson's potions.

The anticipation had after many years become a reality, thanks to President Graham and the board of directors of the Quincy & Boston street railway, and last but not least to the famous "Wollaston fence."

The evening's programme commenced at 7 o'clock when a special car having on board a party of city and railway officials and a few invited guests made the trip over the new loop line. There was in this party President Graham and Directors John F. Merrill, Roger H. Wilde and John A. Duggan of the Quincy & Boston street railway, Councilmen Anderson, Badger, Field, Hultman, Little, Nickerson, Packard, Pinkham, Phillips, Rideout, and Swithin, Commissioner Knowlton, City Treasurer Gray, Chief of Police Hayden, City Messenger Tirrell, Mr. Henry H. Faxon, Mr. E. G. Hall and Mr. George T. Magee.

The run to Neponset was made without incident excepting when the car passed through Wollaston it was greeted with the booming of cannon, fireworks, band concert by the City Band of Quincy on the hotel piazza, houses illuminated and a large concourse of people numbering over a thousand who watched its passage along the streets.

At Neponset the party alighted and inspected the West End street railway's new car house. After inspection the return trip was made. At the corner of Hancock and Squantum streets two ladies supposing that this was a regular car signaled it to stop. President Graham very courteously had the car pulled up and invited the ladies aboard. It is needless to add that they were very much surprised at the company of distinguished looking gentlemen in which they found themselves.

At Wollaston the part disembarked and at the invitation of the Wollaston Councilmen were invited to a lunch. Councilman Sprague very courteously threw his house open to the visitors and for upwards of an hour they enjoyed a fine specimen of Wollaston hospitality.

At the conclusion of the lunch Councilman Nickerson opened the informal post-prandial exercises with a few felicitous remarks, in which he welcomed on behalf of his ward colleagues and fellow townsmen, the visitors to the opening of the new loop line.

Mr. Charles R. Sherman, the first speaker said: Where can you go where there is such a large proportion of active, brainy men as there are in this city of ours. We are behind other communities in some lines of public improvements but not in electric railways. Quincy excels in her system of street railways. This new line through Wollaston benefits the occupants of 400 houses, and at least 2000 people on the west side of "the fence."

One thing I wish to say, said Councilman Pinkham, who followed Mr. Sherman, I am pleased to meet here tonight the members of the Council and city officials in a social way. We meet often officially, but altogether too seldom at these pleasant social gatherings. As to the street railway, it seem to me that the Council always, when possible, desires to co-operate with the road in its extensions and improvements. Directly as well as indirectly it is for the benefit of the public to so do. There is no disposition on the part of the Council to unnecessarily fight the road as has often times been intimated.

President Graham's address was received with marked attenion as in a limited way he outlined the road's policy. Mr. Graham said in part: My forte has been to train my m n to do thinking rather than to do speaking. It seems to me, and statistics would undoubtedly bear me out in this assertion, that electric roads have improved and will continue to improve the property in towns through which they run. The appreciation of realty contiguous to electric car lines is remarkable.

On our own system, in order to keep our rolling stock, rails, and other equipments up to the highest state of efficiency, we have expended the past year over $150,000. An important factor in economically operating an electric road and putting it on a paying basis is the consolidation of the smaller lines, making one large system, and the rapid transportation of through passengers on long hauls. Through traffic and long car mileages are far more profitable to the company than short runs. Then again consolidation besides being a benefit to the company is also a great benefit to the public. Today we can carry over our lines a passenger 6 1-2 miles for five cents. When the road was first opened and before it had consolidated with other roads two miles was the longest distance we could carry a passenger for the same amount of money.

If the Railroad Commission would allow us to consolidate with the Braintree street railway we could give the Braintree division greater improvements.

When we took hold of the Braintree line we lost $13,,000 the first year we operated it, but later we have placed it on a paying basis and have made up the deficit. It seems to me that it is possible the commissioners may see fit to allow us to consolidate at no distant date.

We have at present under consideration a great improvement in our Weymouth service, the transportation of passengers from Quincy center to Weymouth Landing for five cents. The deduction is easily made from what I have said that the larger the population on the line of an electric road the greater the mileage for the minimum fare.

Our political candidates especially those in Boston and other large cities are all the time harping on three cent fares, citing the example of European cities. But the roads of these continental cities charge at least a cent a mile, while on our system we do it for less, transporting passengers for one fare a distance of over six miles.

Motive power is now the great problem which confronts the managers of electric roads. There are at present three systems in use,--the trolley, the system with which our road is equipped; the third rail; and the storage battery. At present the overhead trolley seems to be the most practical.

Before closing I wish to say that I think that the Council always endeavors to do the right thing by the road. Possibly it is a little sharp sometimes as on the Hancock street paving. We pave between the tracks but in Boston the West End is not compelled so to do. We have just paid one paving bill amounting to $2200.

Our business this year, said President Graham in closing, has been profitable; an increase of $20,000 in profits over that of the previous year. There are but a few electric roads in the state that are more profitable than the Quincy & Boston street railway.

Councilman Sprague, the host of the evening, in his few remarks paid a well merited tribute to Quincy & Boston street railway, saying that a corporation that is weak financially is a curse to a community and a detriment to its growth, but in this company we have one that is strong financially and of a great benefit to the place.

Short remarks were also made by Mr. Henry H. Faxon and Councilman Field.

At the close of the speech making the City band marched down to Councilman Sprague's and serenaded the company. Mr. Sprague invited the members of the band in to lunch.

The police arrangements were in charge of Chief Hayden. He had with him Officers Connelly, Lyons, Geo. A. McKay, O'Brien and Morrison.

SPARKS.

The length of the Wollaston loop is two and one-eighth miles.

The Wollaston school was dismissed at 3 o'clock in order that the children might participate in the celebration.

In the afternoon one of the eight wheelers had 200 passengers on board.

The Pilgrim's fog horn got in its work.

Schedule time is now being run over the loop.

The City band rendered some good music.

President Bryant of the City Council was missed.

Car Accident.

Mrs. L. M. Jameson of Putnum street met with a serious injury one day last week while attempting to board an electric car at Lynn. She had just stepped inside the door and was reaching for a strap when the car started and she was thrown in such a way that she struck upon the back of her head. Her daughter, who was with her succeeded in getting her home but she grew worse and has been almost helpless since, paralysis being feared. She has a trained nurse.

THE HANGING OF THE CRANE.

House Warming at Birthplace of President John Adams.

"The lights are out, and gone are all the guests
That thronging came with merriment and jests
To celebrate the hanging of the crane."

The housewarming of Adams chapter Daughters of the Revolution on Tuesday was an enjoyable occasion, which not only marked the restoration of the birthplace of President John Adams to its original state, but the opening of this historic house to the public at large. It has been the pleasure of but few people of Quincy to go through this old residence but now all must embrace the opportunity at the earliest opportunity and view for themselves the low studded rooms with wooden shutters at the windows of many panes; the huge fireplaces, one with its large kettle suspended from an oak beam and the other with its crane; the winding stairways; the swinging mantel which discloses the huge chimney, and the brick and other treasures. The house is not yet furnished as desired, but has several antique chairs a bedstead and trunk from the old Fairbanks house at Dedham, and a few other articles.

On Tuesday three long tables were spread in the long room which faces Franklin street and they almost groaned with those good old-fashioned dishes, which included baked beans and brown bread, cold turkey and cranberry sauce, cold ham, white and graham bread, baked Indian pudding, pumpkin pie, squash pie, meat pie, cheese, tarts, doughnuts, pickles, apples, cider and tea. Miss Elizabeth C. Adams contributed several loaves of delicious sponge cake made from the recipe of Mrs. Abigail Adams. One loaf was made in one of her scalloped pans which Miss Adams forwarded with the cake, together with the receipt. Several toasts were drank during the meal, and one of these was to Miss Adams upon the announcement of the above gifts.

The exercises opened promptly at noon when "Auld Lang Syne" was sung in chorus. Miss Elizabeth Porter Gould was then presented by Mrs. Titus, the regent, and she read Longfellow's beautiful poem on "The Hanging of the Crane," the opening lines of which head this article. Miss Gould presented a book with the poem to Adams chapter, and inscribed upon the fly leaf:

"God bless the Adams Chapter of Quincy, Mass., Society of the Daughters of the Revolution, Mrs. Nelson V. Titus, regent.

"With delightful remembrance of the rehanging of the Crane, at the John Adams' birthplace, October 19, 1897.

"That the beautiful spirit of the occasion may extend to every heart and home of the land is the sincere wish of one of its participators.

Elizabeth Porter Gould,
Boston, Massachusetts."

Upon the reverse of this leave is the following:

John Adams once said to Hannah Adams:

"If I could ever suppose that family pride was in any case excusable I should think a descent from a line of virtuous, independent, New England farmers for one hundred years, was better foundation for it than a descent through royal or titled scoundrels ever since the flood."

After the singing of "Old Hundred" all were invited to the "simple country dinner." The guests of the day and members of the chapter were:

Edwin Wilson Marsh,
Henry H. Faxon,
Samuel T. Crosby of Hingham,
Mrs. Sadie Adams Smith of New York,
Miss Clara B. Adams of Lynn,
Miss Marion H. Brazier of Boston,

Mrs. Titus presided at the post prandial exercises. She said the house had been placed in charge of the chapter by Mr. C. F. Adams and would continue in their hands so long as it was well taken care of. Since Aug. 12 up to Saturday last the restoration and repairs had been going on and it was a work of pleasure to her. It was discovered that the original house had been two rooms deep, and a brick in the corner stone showed it to have been built in 1681 or 1687. The lean-to had been added about 1700, and in removing the partition red clapboard had been discovered proving it to have been "the red house." She spoke of the old fireplaces and other points of interest. She regretted no immediate representative of the Adams family was present. In this house we recall John Adams, not as the statesman or President but as the little boy. A silent toast to the mother of John Adams was drank.

Edwin Wilson Marsh was first introduced and the local historian was at his best and he had sympathetic listeners. He had always been proud to show the birthplaces of the Presidents to vistors. A short time ago they were threatened with destruction but they had been saved and he was glad to see them in such good hands. He spoke of the great change since 1793 and quoting from a census of school children in that year said the Penn's hill district included the children living on Franklin, School, Hancock and Granite streets, the only streets in that part of the town. In the district were 71 school children and in Quincy but 302. Mr. Marsh told many incidents and anecdotes of President Adams, and paid the family a high tribute.

A toast to President Adams was drank, and a rising vote of thanks given Mr. Marsh.

Pleasing remarks were also made by Henry H. Faxon, Samuel T. Crosby of Hingham, Mrs. Sadie Adams Smith, secretary general of the Daughters of 1812; Miss Clara B. Adams, President of the Young Women's club of Lynn; and Miss Marion H. Brazier of Bunker Hill chapter.

Mrs. Titus extended an invitaton on behalf of the Daughters of 1812 to all present to visit the warships in Boston harbor, Wednesday.

Upon motion of Mrs. W. T. Cummings a vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Titus for her work in restoration of the old house. The singing of "America" closed the programme.

An opportunity was then given to inspect the house.

A stomachful of undigested food is about as unhealthy a mass as one can well imagine.

What can be done with it?

There it stays. It won't digest. It churns up, ferments and decays; becomes poisonous (as all putrid matter does) and causes great pain and deep-seated disorders.

In order to change all this, take Shaker Digestive Cordial.

It stops fermentatiou and decay at once, so that no more poisons are created.

It clears the stomach of poisons already there. It helps it to turn the food that remains, into healthful nourishment. It strengthens the stomach for the next meal.

Here is the whole philosophy and cure of indigestion in a few words. And what's more, it's all true Try it.

Shaker Digestive Cordial is for sale by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 a bottle.

GEORGE PULLMAN DEAD.

Sleeping Car Man Succumbed to an Attack of Heart Disease.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Death came to George N. Pullman, who won fame and fortune by his connection with the sleeping car, at his home in this city yesterday morning of heart disease. Mrs. Pullman was not at home when her husband passed away, being absent in New York. While seemingly in good health, Mr. Pullman had complained of the hot spell, and said he was feeling rather uncomfortable. About 4:30 o'clock he awoke and called his body servant to his bedside, and spoke again of feeling uncomfortable. Finally, he requested that the family physician, Dr. Billings, be sent for. Before the call could be responded to Mr. Pullman was beyond the need of medical attention.

GEORGE M. PULLMAN IN 1894.

Mr. Pullman was born March 3, 1831, in Brockton, Chautauqua county, New York. When 14 years old he entered a store in Westfield, N. Y., at a salary of $40 a year. At 17 he joined his oldest brother in the business of cabinet making in Albion, N. Y., where his family resided. Before he reached his 22d year his father died, leaving him almost the only support of his mother and five younger brothers and sisters. This large responsibility compelled him to seek a wider business field, which decision took him to this city and shaped his subsequent career.

In 1864 Mr. Pullman, who had been giving the sleeping car business close attention, and who had become deeply interested in the thought that there was a wide field for inventive genius in that direction, met a master car builder of the Alton railroad, who was an old friend, and paid him $100 a month to take in charge the construction of a model car. The great question with him was how to have an upper and lower berth that would be comfortable. They were at that time the merest makeshifts to afford a night's rest. Mr. Pullman's idea was to have a car that could be run on long trips either as a day or a night car. With this object in view he started to build the "Pioneer." It was a wonder to everybody. The beauty of the finish and the marvelous innovation were advertised far and near by the newspapers and by railroad men, and some of the latter began to believe that the ideas of the inventor after all were practicable.

The railroads had to make way for the improvements that the convenience of the traveling public demanded. Everywhere the beauty of the Pioneer was talked of, and it was not strange that, when General Grant came home from the war, the use of the car was asked to convey the great hero from Detroit to Galena. The Michigan Central railroad was compelled to do precisely what the Alton road did—cut its platforms and in other ways make way for the car—and from that time on the railroads prepared themselves for the new palace car.

Up to 1867 Mr. Pullman conducted the business on his own account, but in that year the Pullman company was organized, and from then onward its growth was constant and steady. Its capital increased to $20,000,000, upon which 8 per cent dividends were regularly paid, and it became the most powerful corporation of its kind in the world.

Mr. Pullman's wealth is variously estimated at from $12,000,000 to $20,000,000. His financial interests were confined to a few corporations, the bulk of the holdings being stock in the Pullman Palace Car company, of which he owned about one-fifth. Some stock was also held in the Diamond Match and New York Biscuit companies. Mr. Pullman was married in 1867 to Hattie Sanger of Chicago. Four children are living, George, Sanger, Harriet and Florence.

Fight Hadn't Begun.

Lexington, Mass., Oct. 20.—Inspector Frank of the Lexington police received word that a prize fight was to take place in the limits of the town. After some hunting the Lexington police, assisted by 10 men of the Waltham force, located the place chosen for the battle. It was in a barn of a stock farm, a mile from Lexington. The police found nearly 200 men present. The crowd made a frantic effort to escape, but was shut in by the police. Many tried to escape by getting onto the joists of the building. The spectators were mostly from Waltham and Woburn. As the fight had not commenced the crowd could not be held. The fight was to have been between a negro and a white man.

Origin of Fire a Mystery.

Bethel, Conn., Oct. 20.—The factory of the Bethel Hat Forming company was entirely destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon, causing a loss of $30,000, on which there is an insurance of $15,000. The company, owning the factory, was a joint affair and included all the hat manufacturers of Bethel.

The fire started in the third story near a wardrobe where the female operatives kept their hats and wraps. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

In conclusion, he introduced Mr. Alexander Bernstein of Berlin, Ger., who gave a talk on the utilization of the by-products of the dairy. Mr. Bernstein estimates that there are daily over 20,000,000 quarts of skim and buttermilk wasted. He has discovered a way of making skim milk with a small amount of wheat flour or other farinaceous material. By adding rennet, a digestible cheese is made, or by adding baking powder, some palatable and exceedingly nutritious bread and cakes result.

AGREEMENT UNLIKELY.

Inability of the Luetgert Jurors to Reach a Conclusion.

Allowed to Suspend Consideration For Night's Repose.

Offer of Bribe That Has the Earmarks of a Hoax.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—It was demonstrated last night that another day of suspense was ahead of the defendant in the Luetgert case. At 9 o'clock last night the jury had gone to bed on cots which were placed in the court room and it was announced by Judge Tuthill that, even though by one chance in a million the jurors should wake up and agree upon a verdict, there would be no announcement and the court would under no circumstances be opened until 10 o'clock this morning.

Just before retiring for the night the jury took another ballot, the vote standing nine for conviction and three for acquittal.

There is much feeling against Harley among the jurors who favor the death penalty. They say he will not argue the case in any way, but sticks solidly for Luetgert.

Toward evening the jury sent in for the contract which Matron Kurth gave Gottleiba Schimpk at the time she took her into her home as a domestic. When the police learned two months ago that the girl, whose age is 11, had stated that she saw Luetgert and his wife walk toward the factory on the night of May 1, they took her to the Sheffield avenue police station, and later placed her in the home of Matron Kurth. A contract was signed by Mrs. Kurth to pay the girl $2 per week. This contract was read during the trial and offered in evidence. During the collection of the documents to send to the jury room, it was left out. One of the jurors wanted to see it, and, not finding it, sent for the paper. Attorney Phalen was inclined to the opinion that the contract had been omitted on purpose. State's Attorney Deneen denied this, and said he had no objection to it going to the jury. It was accordingly sent.

A few minutes after 8 o'clock Judge Tuthill appeared at the criminal court building and went directly to the court-room, where he was told by the bailiffs that several of the jurymen were almost exhausted by the ordeal to which they had been subjected, and that if they were not allowed some rest it would certainly result in some of them becoming ill. The jury also sent word that there was no immediate prospect of an agreement, and under the circumstances the judge gave orders that they be permitted to drop the case and go to sleep. Cots were quickly dragged in, and within a few minutes every juror was stretched out at full length, and all consideration of the case was off until they should wake in the morning.

"They have not agreed as yet," said Judge Tuthill when he left the court-house, "and when I became convinced that there was little prospect of their doing so, and saw how weary some of them were, I told them to go to sleep and try to agree in the morning. It would be no use in keeping them up all of the night, because in the first place two or three of them would be in a short time utterly incapacitated by fatigue, and no agreement could ever be obtained from men who are nervous from loss of sleep and exhausted with argument. When I came to the court I had no idea that a verdict would be reached, but I was anxious to do all I could for the comfort of the jurors. That was really the cause of my visit to the building."

There were rumors of all kinds afloat during the evening, all of them being to the effect that the friends of Luetgert on the jury were weakening. It was known during the day that the vote stood eight to four, and last night the rumors were that it was ten for the death penalty and two for acquittal. A later story was that it stood eleven for hanging and one for acquittal. Juror Harley is admitted to be the stout friend of Luetgert on the jury, and it is he who is leading the fight for an acquittal.

Over in the jail Luetgert anxiously awaits word from the jury room. He tried as usual to keep up an appearance of indifference and as usual made a failure of it. "If they don't agree," he said, "I will get bail and I will be out of this. I can give bail for a million if they want that much. My wife is living somewhere, but I admit she is having a lot of fun with me at present. There is one thing sure," the prisoner said with great positiveness, "there will be no conviction in this case. It will be an acquittal or a disagreement."

Asked where he obtained his information, he smiled and said: "Oh, I know; you go 'long. I won't be convicted though, you can bet on that."

The opinion around the criminal court is that all chance of a verdict has disappeared and that the result is practically certain to be a disagreement. It is considered possible, and even probable, that the state will have nine or ten of the jurymen and the defense the remainder. The chances seem to favor a disagreement of eight for conviction and four for acquittal.

Two letters offering bribes to the foreman of the jury which had been received by Judge Tuthill, are now in possession of the state's attorney, who is not disposed to regard the attempted bribery seriously. Inspector Schaack and Attorney McEwen look upon the matter with suspicion. The first letter was received last Monday morning. It was dated Oct. 16, the day upon which it was originally believed the case would go to the jury. It reads:

"Mr. Foreman: Dear sir—A powerful influence is at work to save Luetgert. Money is scarce, and in these hard times a $100 or so comes in handy. I have $1600 to divide among you 12 men. If you want it, have two good men smooth-faced, that are discreet, at the southwest corner of Randolph and Dearborn streets at 1 o'clock p. m. Let them wear white linen neckties or, if they prefer it, red bow ties. Everything will be alright. The money is secure in a Clark street bank. George Atrill."

The second letter is under date of Oct. 18 and is also addressed to the foreman. It is as follows:

"Dear sir—Why didn't you have the young men at the corner as suggested? In the present times $100 is pretty useful. If you will agree to vote Luetgert free we can yet arrange matters. Send the young men tomorrow.

George Atrill."

Judge Tuthill opens all mail sent to the jurors and in this way these letters fell into the hands of the court. His honor is inclined to regard the letters as a hoax. Mr. Deneen thinks the letters were gotten up by enterprising newspaper reporters. Both letters were written on fine linen paper, in good penmanship and enclosed in white linen envelopes.

Exclusive Right to Navigate.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Consul O'Hare at San Juan del Norte, Nicaragua, supplements the report he made last summer concerning the contract made with the Atlas Steamship company by the governmentof Nicaragua. In the former dispatch it appeared that F. A. Pellas owned all the boats on the San Juan river and Lake Nicaragua, also a machine shop which formerly belonged to the Maritime Canal company of Nicaragua, which he was to sell to the Atlas company. Although the constitution of Nicaragua provides that no exclusive contract shall be granted, the contract of the government with the Atlas company provides that for 30 years the company shall have the exclusive right to navigate by steam the Silico lagoon; that for the same time it shall have the exclusive right to construct tramways and railways along the San Juan river route to avoid obstacles in the river, and that for 30 years the government shall not grant subsidies to any other steamship line on Lake Nicaragua. The other concessions are considered extremely favorable.

Austrian Legislators Fight.

Vienna, Oct. 20.—The unterhaus was the scene last night of an extraordinary tumult. The sitting began last evening at 6 o'clock, and after the president took the chair the leftists pressed to divisions a long series of obstructive motions, amid the wildest uproar and the incessant conflicts of members with the president of the chamber.

The confusion increased until the chamber became a perfect bedlam. Finally the leftists and rightists engaged in a hand to hand fight. Dr. Kathrein, the president, then declared the sitting adjourned to 11 o'clock this morning.

Jumped and Broke His Legs.

Berlin, N. H., Oct. 20.—William D Connor, a native of Canada, jumped from the second story window of a boarding house last evening. He broke both legs and sustained other injuries. Monday he was prevented from drowning himself in the river.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Length of day—10:50.
High tide—6:01 a. m.; 6:20 p. m.
Moon rises—12:20 a. m.

The indications now are that the unsettled weather which is extending up the coast and eastward from the lake region will reach New England tonight, causing general cloudiness and probably light rains the early part of Thursday, with easterly winds on the coast; clearing weather is probable during the afternoon and fair Thursday night and Friday. At this time no marked change is indicated in the temperature for several days.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. The municipal corporation of Bristol, Eng., has voted to expend £1,500,000 in the construction of a dock to accommodate the largest vessels. A special agent is now in the United States negotiating for a steamship line. He reports that Boston capitalists may take up the matter.

At the treasury department yesterday attention was called to the fact that the day's receipts from customs were $681,423, which is considerably in excess of any previous day since the new tariff went into effect. As compared with the same day last year this is an increase of $318,300, or about 88 per cent.

Owing to the drouth there is certain to be a considerable shortage in the wool clip in Australia. The Melbourne Argus estimates the deficiency in New South Wales at 15 per cent, in Victoria at 10 per cent, in South Australia at 20 per cent and in Queensland at five per cent. The total shortage is estimated at 175,000 bales.

The state board of canvassers canvassed the returns of the recent constitutional election in New Jersey and found that the anti-gambling amendment had been carried by 802, the ad interim amendment by 7426 and the woman's suffrage amendment was defeated by 10,059. The returns also showed 961 rejected ballots.

Foundering of the Triton.

Havana, Oct. 20.—Three additional survivors of the wreck of the Triton have arrived here. The scene among the men, women and children when the steamer went ashore, the survivors state, was terrible. When the Triton foundered there were 230 persons, passengers and crew, aboard of her, but so far only 49 of this number have been heard from.

General Weyler has ordered the release from the Isle of Pines, the Spanish penal settlement off the coast of Cuba, of 11 prisoners who were, it is alleged, concerned in the uprising which resulted in the imprisonment of Evangeline Cisneros. The release of 20 other political prisoners has also been ordered by Weyler.

Ship In the Trough of Sea

St. John's, N. F., Oct. 20.—The British steamer Bonavista, Captain Fraser, from Montreal, has arrived here after the worst passage in her record. When off St. Pierre she encountered a terrible hurricane. Her rudder chains broke and the ship was left in the trough of the sea. Heavy waves swept the deck, killing four cattle and washing her deck-load overboard. Four hours later the chains broke again, and once more her decks were swept by mountainous waves. Finally the captain resorted to oil bags. The gale was undoubtedly the worst known along the coast in several years.

Six vessels have been sunk off Labrador and five lives lost.

Thieves at Windsor.

Halifax, Oct. 20.—Fifty regulars of the British army have been needed to guard what remains of value in Windsor from the depredations of thieves, a number of whom have turned up in the devasted town. Robbers have been carrying away considerable quantities of goods and furniture found unprotected, and the confusion that has prevailed in the burned district since the disaster has enabled them to pursue their occupations without hindrance. The fire has not yet been entirely extinguished in some spots, and at night the flames so far have served to illuminate the town.

Grand Encampment.

Stamford, Conn., Oct. 20.—At the 55th annual session of the grand encampment, I. O. O. F., held here, the following officers were elected: Grand patriarch, A. C. Wheeler, Norwalk; grand high priest, G. F. Barnes, Waterbury; grand warden, H. E. Thatcher, Hartford; grand scribe, Frederick Botsford, New Haven; grand treasurer, James E. Camp, Bridgeport; grand junior warden, William J. Berges, Stamford; grand representative, George W. Camp, Bridgeport.

Professor Crafts For President.

Boston, Oct. 20.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the Massachusetts institute of technology it was voted to recommend to the corporation the election of Professor James M. Crafts to the office of president of the institute, which has been vacant since the death of Francis A. Walker.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

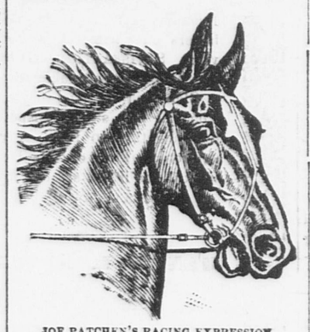
THE PACING RECORD LOWERED.

Yale-Brown and Other Foot Ball Matches of College Teams.

Joliet, Ills., Oct. 21.—Without any preparation for such a trial, Joe Patchen, the black pacing stallion, yesterday reduced the world's pacing record in a four-wheeled sulky by nearly four seconds. The record was established at Ingalls park track before 2700 people who had been attracted by the announcement that Star Pointer would go against both the wagon and high wheel sulky records, and that Joe Patchen would try to beat his own record of 2:01¼. When it was announced that Star Pointer was lame and Owner Murphy had refused to let him fulfill his engagement there was much dissatisfaction. Mr. Marks, the owner of Joe Fatchen, agreed to let the black horse take Star Pointer's place and go against the wagon and high wheel sulky records.



JOE PATCHEN'S RACING EXPRESSION.

Previous to this the great son of Patchen Wilkes had gone a really remarkable mile in attempting to beat his own record of 2:01¼. Driven by Atkinson, he went the circuit in 2:02¾, lowering the Ingalls park record. The time by quarters was 31¾, 1:02, 1:32½, 2:02¾. Several watches caught the time in 2:02½.

After scoring once Driver Ames signalled for the word, and away the big black went with the running mate trailing a length or two away. Ames rated his charge splendidly, covering the first quarter in 32½, skimming along the back stretch with the stallion moving easily in 31¼. Around the far turn the pacer faced the breeze, whatever there was of it, but it was here that Ames urged him. While the running mate drew alongside and responded to the call the noble Patchen sped over the third quarter in 30½ seconds. It was now a foregone conclusion that the record would be broken, and outbursts of applause began before the horse was well straightened out for home. Ames knew the staying power of his horse and never relinquished urging him by voice and an occasional sharp crack of the whip. The result was the last quarter was made in 30¾ seconds, the time for the last half mile being 1:01¼, and the great pacer finished, strong and true, nearly four seconds ahead of the record. Time, 2:01¾. The former record was held by W. W. P., having been made at Terre Haute in 1895. The announcement of the time elicited prolonged cheers.

Joe Patchen apeared fairly tired after the trial, but nevertheless he was taken to the stable, rubbed down and prepared for his trial against the high wheel sulky record. The general verdict was he would not be able to repeat his record-breaking, although the high wheel record, held by Johnston, is 2:06¼, and the black would not need to go as fast as his mile to the wagon in order to win. It was 5:15 when the horse came on the track hitched to the big wheeled sulky. After two scores Ames signalled for the word, and they were sent away, the runner trailing as before. The quarter was reached in 32½, the same time as made in the trial with the wagon, but the second quarter showed a decrease of speed, the time being 1:03¾. The three-quarters was reached in 1:35 flat and the mile in 2:06¾, half a second short of the record. This, however, beats the best efforts made by John R. Gentry this season against the same mark.

CRIDIRON CONTESTS.

New Haven, Oct. 21.—The surprise of the season in the football world was furnished by Brown yesterday, when Captain Fultz's men broke through the Yale line almost at will and ran up a total score of 14 points, scoring three touchdowns against the home team, the largest score ever made on the Yale field against a Yale eleven. Yale secured no more touchdowns than did the visitors, but her goal kicker, Guard Cadwalader, was successful in every try for goal while Hall, who made the attempt after the Brown touchdowns, failed in all but one chance. It was a terrific shock for Yale to see her line swept away by the Brown backs after the manner in which Princeton found it all holes last fall; but the medicine was swallowed with the hope that it will be a beneficial dose of tonic in preparation for the Harvard game, now only two weeks distant.

Gammons and Fultz were the twin stars of the Brown firmament. For Yale Kiefer alone seemed able to gain ground. Benjamin found the Brown line an irresistible body and also fumbled badly. Captain Rodgers was forced to do most of Yale's rushing, but his strength gave out the last few minutes, and Corwin was the only ground gainer who was left on the Yale team at the finish.

Brown took the lead at the start, Gammons escorting the ball across the Yale line after about six minutes' play. Fultz made the run that brought it to the Yale 10-yard line. Kiefer scored first for Yale on an end rush of 15 yards and Cadwalader kicked goal. The half closed with the score 6 to 4 in Yale's favor.

In the second half Yale dashed ahead by Captain Rodgers' irresistible rushing, which broke the Brown line, but as soon as Yale ran up the score to 19 Brown scored again on Fultz's end dodging, and the Brown figures were 8. Kiefer made another touchdown five minutes before time elapsed, and the Yale total was 18. Gammons took the ball across for Brown with about a minute more to play, Hall kicking this goal, leaving the score: Yale, 18; Brown, 14.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 21.—Princeton rolled up the biggest score of the season against Franklin and Marshall and defeated the Pennsylvanians by a score of 54 to 0. Franklin and Marshall's average weight is 150 pounds. The "tigers" loomed up like giants as compared with their opponents. At no point in the game were they able to hold the ball. The Princeton forwards frequently broke through and downed their backs for losses. The visitors' quarterback was so slow in passing the ball that several of Weisner's punts were blocked in their beginning.

Medford, Mass., Oct. 21.—The annual football game between Tufts college and Boston university on Tufts' oval was played yesterday, Tufts winning, 6 to 0. The game was disappointing to the 500 Tufts supporters present, who expected an easy victory. Both teams played very poor football. Fumbling was frequent, Tufts being the greater offender. Neither side was able to score in the first half, although Tufts had the ball on Boston's 10-yard line when it was lost on a fumble.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 21.—Harvard defeated the Newton Athletic association's eleven 24 to 0. In the first half, Harvard scored but once, and that was on long gains down the field in the first two minutes of play. During the rest of the half the ball would be worked gradually down to Newton's 15-yard line and then lost on downs and the work began over again. This happened four times. In the second three touchdowns were scored.

Meriden, Conn., Oct. 21.—The Wesleyan football eleven met the Amherst team at Hanover park Wednesday and the former won, 24 to 0, in two 20-minute halves. Amherst was clearly outclassed. At one time in the first half Amherst had the ball within eight yards of Wesleyan's line, which was the nearest approach to scoring. The score at the end of the first half was: Wesleyan, 6; Amherst, 0.

Andover, Mass., Oct. 21.—Technology defeated Andover at football by a score of 16 to 6. The game was rather loosely played and the home team did considerable fumbling and poor passing. Tech scored one touchdown in the first half, while Andover did not score until the second half. Nolte for Tech played the best game.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

Another Day Began With the Luetgert Jury Unable to Agree.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—At 8:30 last night it was announced from the office of State Attorney Deneen that there would be no announcement of a verdict in the Luetgert case before the opening of court today. Judge Tuthill went home early, leaving matters with Mr. Deneen, who was to send him word in case a verdict should be reached during the early part of the evening. The attorneys for the defense also left matters with Mr. Deneen and went home to await any word that might come from the jury room.

Mr. Deneen, pale-faced and red-eyed from long lack of sleep, sat in his office until 8:30, and then gave orders that his office be closed. "I shall wait no longer," he said, "and there is no need of anybody waiting after I leave. I agreed with Judge Tuthill and with the attorneys for the defense to remain here until 8:30 o'clock and to receive the announcement if a verdict should be reached. There is absolutely no chance now of anything being heard from the 12 men before tomorrow morning, at the earliest."

For a time last night it was rumored that if the jury had not agreed by today it would be discharged as soon as it reported its inability to reach a verdict. This, however, is not the case. It is the firm determination of Judge Tuthill to keep the jurors until Saturday night or late Saturday afternoon before he permits them to go with a disagreement. The jury stands about where it stood 24 hours ago. Reports vary from nine for the death penalty to three for acquittal, to 11 for death and one for acquittal. The one juror holding out for Luetgert is Harley, and it is thought that if he would change front there would be little time lost in arriving at a verdict. Juror Holabird is also credited with favoring the acquittal of the prisoner, but it is thought he would come around quickly if Harley could be induced to vote for conviction. The feeling among the jurors who are in favor of the death penalty is high against Harley, and they have done plain talking to him. At one time they sent for Judge Tuthill to know among other things if 11 men could compel one man to vote with them, or if a verdict would be valid if but 11 men signed it. This is the incident that gave to the state the idea that there was but one man standing between Luetgert and a death sentence.

Quantity and Quality of Potatoes.

New York, Oct. 21.—Not since 1892 has the potato crop of the United States proved so nearly a failure, said The American Agriculturalist in its final report of the yield of 1897. Compared with the liberal crop of last year, there is an apparent falling off of nearly 30 per cent in tonnage, and the quality of the whole is greatly deficient. County and township returns from all the leading potato-growing states show the yield to be 174,000,000 bushels, against 254,000,000 in '96, 286,000,000 in '95, 185,000,000 in '94, and only 135,000,000 in the short crop of '92. The average rate of yield per acre is placed at 64 bushels, taking the country at large, against 86 bushels in '96, 89 in '95 and 62 in '92.

The reasons for disaster to the potato crop of 1897 are about as varied as a multiplicity of causes could make them. Standing out with more prominence than any other two factors are blight and rot, as a result of extremes of weather conditions. Excessive rainfall here and there, failure of germination, later serious drought, rust, scab, insects, etc., have all been prominently in evidence, though complaints of this character are less general than of the two first named.

The joint committee of the City Council on Finance and Sewers now have before them a matter of vital interest to the property holders of the city, that of an equitable system of sewer assessment. They announce a hearing for Wednesday evening of next week at City Hall. By the sewer act already accepted it is provided that the city "shall not pay less than one-third nor more than one-half of the whole cost. It is therefore apparent that the abutting property must pay at least one-half and possibly about two-thirds of the cost. But for the stipulation that the city shall not pay more than one-half there are many who would have the city assume the whole cost, as in the case of the water works, and then assess an annual rental on all abutters whether they enter or not. If the city can assess all abutters in one way why not in another. Annual rentals would give the city an annual income, and we all know that the city needs more income. Unless the act is amended the assessments must be either upon fronatge or valuation or some combination of the two. There should not be both an assessment and a rental.

Before acting intelligently upon assessments it would be well if the Sewer Commissioners made a semi-annual report as required in section 7 upon its proceedings and expenditures, with an estimate of the cost of pumping station force mains and main sewers, and also the cost per mile of laterals, etc., etc.

THE FIRE RECORD.

Lively Blaze at West Quincy at 3 A. M.—Another Alarm.

It was about 3.15 this morning when the baker employed in the Italian bakery on Copeland street discovered that the adjoining building, occupied by McDonnell & Cray as a bowling alley, was on fire. He immediately gave the alarm and box 46 was rung in. When the department arrived the interior of the building, which is little more than a shell, was a roaring mass of flames. The department got to work quickly and was soon throwing gallons of water into the building and it was not long before the flames were drowned out, but not before the interior of the building had been gutted and the two alleys considerably damaged.

Just what caused the fire is not known but it is thought to have originated in some way from an oil lamp, as it is the custom to leave lamp burning all night. The loss is somewhat difficult to estimate until it is determined how much the two alleys are damaged, but the loss will amount to several hundred dollars.

Today's Alarm.

This morning shortly after 8 o'clock someone passing along Union street saw flames issuing from the chimney of a house at 25 Union street owned by John Harkins and occupied by a family of Italians. An alarm was pulled in from Box 171 at the corner of Main street and what little fire there was in the chimney was extinguished by a stream from the combination chemical. The loss was trifling.

Ex-Prisoners of War.

The twenty-second annual reunion of Massachusetts Association of Union Ex-Prisoners of War was held at the United States hotel, Boston, on Wednesday, on which occasion the following members from Quincy were present: T. H. Newcomb, Albert A. Hayden, Samuel D. Deforest, Thomas Magee, John Faircloth, Henry O. Studley, William Bird, Peter Dewey.

A RIGHT TO EXIST.

Decision on Debate on Abolishing U. S. Senate.

President Lewis called the Quincy High School Debating society to order at 12.25 P. M. on Wednesday. Miss Caroline Brown, '98, the new secretary, presented a full and interesting report of the last meeting.

Further remarks on last week's subject for debate were made by Miss Beckwith, '98.

Mr. Swift, '99, as critic, made some brief comments on the merits and defects of the last debate.

An entertainment of unusual merit was greatly enjoyed by the society. It included:

Recitation, Miss Lowe, '99.

Essay, "An Evil Genius," Miss Williams, '98.

Recitation, Miss Alicia Elcock, '99.

Essay, "Summer's Departure," Miss Ward, '98.

Piano solo, Miss Hultman, 1900.

The board of decision decided that the United States Senate has a right to exist, and that it ought not be abolished.

The new debate was on this subject: "Resolved, That the State ought to furnish free of charge a college education to all that desire it."

Affirmative speakers: Messrs. Baker, Cashman, and Damon, all of '98.

Negative speakers: Messrs. Marnock, McLean, and McDonnell, all of '98."

Mr. McDonnell made some strictures on the conduct of college students.

The debate will be concluded next week.

Mr. Frederic Allison Tupper, the head master of the school, will make an address. President Battison has certainly arranged an attractive programme.

HIGH VS. ADAMS.

The Two Elevens Play Another Tie Match.

The foot ball teams of the High school and Adams academy met again on Wednesday at Merry Mount park, and another very close fast game resulted. So sharp was the play that neither eleven was able to score, and another tie resulted. Adams had a slight advantage; she gained this wholly by Manning's punting. No long rushes were made. Three times the High made a fine stand, and held Adams for downs on the 10-yard line.

The best playing was by C. Magnuson, Scharnagel, Barry and Pendis for the High school and by Manning and Taylor for Adams.

The line up:

Lectures for Teachers.

The Teachers' School of Science of the Boston Society of Natural History announces free lectures in the Lowell courses, and applications for tickets may now be made to Alpheus Hyatt curator.

Professor W. M. Davis will give a course of eight lectures on "Geography" on Saturdays at 11 o'clock beginning Nov. 13. The subjects treated will be selected from among those presented in Professor Davis' course on geography in the Harvard summer school, as affording material most directly applicable in the work of grammar school teachers. The lists of subjects will probably include methods of field teaching, with especial reference to localities accessible from Boston, such as Franklin Park and other public reservations.

A course of laboratory lessons in Zoology (Paleontology) will be given on Saturdays at 2 P. M. beginning Nov. 20. The lessons will consist as heretofore partly of lectures and partly of laboratory work, each lesson lasting two hours. The great branches of the animal kingdom will be treated more or less thoroughly and illustrated by the practical study of specimens. This year the topics treated will be as follows: Oysters, Clams, Snails, Squids, etc., as types of Mollusca and various common insects selected as examples of Insecta.

A Gratifying Success.

The fair and entertainment given at the M. E. church, Wollaston, Wednesday evening, was a most gratifying success in every respect. It drew out a good sized audience and afforded a vast amount of pleasure.

The piano duets by Misses Bjorkman and Drew were received with much applause. The readings by Miss Carol Colgrove of Emerson college, were the features of the evening, and were marked for their good taste, proficiency and well merited applause. The whistling solos by Miss Warner were a pleasing novelty and delighted the audience.

Rt. Wor. Asa P. French of Randolph, district deputy grand master of the 24th Masonic district is announced to make an official visit to Rural lodge.

The Swedish Lutheran church will hold its annual fair this week opening on Thursday evening. Interesting programmes have been arranged for each night.

A board fence has been built along the ice pond of the Meadow Brook ice company on Columbia street. This is done to keep the boys from skating upon the pond.

Many children mistook the fire alarm for the no-school signal this morning, or else the storm kept them at home, for the attendance was small in some rooms.

Hodenosaunee tribe of Red Men of Wollaston will work the adoption degree that evening, and Nahanton tribe of Braintree will work the warriors Friday evening.

No Quincy bowling teams are in the City bowling league of Boston this year, but a local league to include Quincy, Wollaston, West Quincy and Braintree may be organized.

Miss Mary Dinnie has been offered the principalship of a four-room building, at Whitman. Miss Dinnie is now teaching at Southboro. She was graduated from our High school in '95.

The second night of the bazaar at Hancock hall under the auspices of Division 18, A. O. H., was well attended and many of the articles on sale at the several booths were disposed of.

The annual meeting of the Quincy & Boston street railway was held Wednesday and resulted in the reelection of the present board of directors who later organized with John R. Graham as president and Frederick H. Smith as clerk and treasurer.

President Clark told the stockholders of the N. Y., N. Haven & H. R. R. at the annual meeting on Wednesday that the new Southern station in Boston would be ready for occupancy either by next June or next October. At the most then it will be only a year.

The residents of Atlantic will be sorry to learn that our ex-Councilman Stephen O. Moxon, who has been a resident of that place for such a long time, left with his family Wednesday for Almeda, South Carolina, where they are to make their future home. Mr. Moxon has engaged in the lumber business at that place.

Quincy people will see more of Wollaston now as they journey to Boston by electric cars, and we hope to see more of Wollaston people at Quincy, shopping and socially. Already those who gave entertainments at Wollaston point out the convenience with which people from other parts of the city may reach the church or hall, telling them that "electrics pass the door."

In Red, White and Blue.

The Boston Advertiser today makes more of "Constitution day" than any of its contemporaries, and its edition of 24 pages in three parts, printed respectively on red, white and blue paper, is one of the best examples of journalistic enterprise of "The Hub." There is so much of historical and general interest, that a hasty review cannot do it justice. In addition to all the regular news features there is an illustrated history of "Old Ironsides," and the story of the launching; an article on Boston of 1797 accompanied by a map which is contrasted with 1897. There are some up-to-date article too; one on "Our great transit problems."

Of a certainty you'll hear of Burns, and Scott, and Robert Bruce—and well right will the boast of Scottish prominence with either pen or sword be justified by the facts.

Possibly oatmeal hasn't made Scotland what she is, but of a truth the consumption of that grain has been coincident, at least, with Scottish power of brain and brawn.

Oatmeal and other grains are highly desirable food, particularly on the breakfast table.

We carry in stock everything that the market affords in the cereal food line, and here are just a few prices

Only a few years ago the ordinary grocery store sold one or two preparations of oats, and the sale was very limited. Sousa's Band at Fair.

It is almost unnecessary to speak of the playing of Sousa's Peerless Band or of its admirable conductor, John Philip Sousa, whose fame as a composer of marches is as great as that of Strauss as a composer of waltzes. The popular conductor gets from his forces a delicacy of shading, expression, precision and accuracy that is marvelous, and he infuses the music with a magnetic personal charm of his own, which accounts for much in its hold on the public. He plays fine music with breadth and power, and he gives to popular airs a charm which they fail to achieve in any other rendering. This makes the encores, with which the leader is exceedingly generous, the most popular feature of a Sousa concert. "Molly And I And The Baby" and "Sweet Marie" are played as if they were classical melodies. This band with Sousa is at Food Fair during the week of Oct. 25 to Oct. 30.

The First Thanksgiving Dinner.

The first Thanksgiving dinner was celebrated in this country two hundred and seventy-six years ago at Plymouth, Massachusetts. The whole American army was present—it numbered twenty men. Myles Standish, the backward lover of Priscilla, sat at the feast, while Priscilla served at the tables. The story will appear in the November issue of The Ladies' Home Journal. Here Indians and whites sat down together by the tables set in the woods, and enjoyed the roast turkey, beechnuts, clam chowder, fish, salad, cakes, fruit and other delicacies provided. It was at this historic dinner that the first oysters were served. The illustrations of the article show portraits of the Pilgrim fathers.

Dr. Everett's Vote.

Estimates of Dr. Everett's vote for Governor do not come in singly now, but often-times a half dozen or more. They take a wide range as will be seen below, but are generally in the vicinity of the party vote last year.

The summary:

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. THE POLITICAL SWIRL.

Candidate Williams Addressed Rallies In Two Cities.

Party of the People Pledged to a New Duty.

Candidate Tracy Depreciates Seth Low's Strength.

Northampton, Mass., Oct. 21.—George Fred Williams and Christopher T. Callahan, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, were given an enthusiastic reception last night by an audience of 600 in the city hall. Ex-Mayor Cook, who presided, scored the Republican party for its inconsistency. He said: "The party which stole the presidency 21 years ago is now trying to steal the smile of providence in its claim that prosperity was due to the Republican party returning to power. It was the smile of the Almighty that had given the west a bountiful crop of wheat and caused the people to rejoice in a plethora of money."

Mr. Callahan confined himself principally to considering the attitude of the Democratic party on the silver question. It was this party that discovered the cause of the distress of the people and declared it through that great Democratic standard bearer, William J. Bryan. There was one man in this state who was still determined that the cause of the people should not be crushed, and that man was George Fred Williams. The Republican party was silent on this great question. The question of how far injunction of the courts shall be tolerated in the governing of this country has been taken up by the party that adopted the Chicago platform. The Democrats want the responsibility and accountability of the commissions in this state defined, as in the Police Commissioner Martin case, where the governor had to refer the matter to a council before acting. Both speakers had to shorten their speeches in order to catch a train for Holyoke to speak at a rally in that city.

"I believe that I am giving my weak mind to the laying of a foundation deep and wide for a new movement in the politics of the United States," said Mr. Williams. "I believe at last there has arisen—and is to grow in this blessed land of ours—a party which is pledged to a new duty, a party whose purpose can best be described in the designation, 'a party of the people.' I am not surprised that the creation of such a party alarmed many conservative interests and even conservative citizens in our country. It was not to be expected that such a revolution as was proposed in the creation of this party should commend itself at once to the conservative thinkers of this country.

"The Boston Journal calls my attention to the fact that in discussing the tariff in former campaigns I have protested against high prices caused by the tariff. It is true that I have protested against certain high prices. It is true that I am here to protest against low prices. It is a broad economic question with which I have to deal. It must be borne in mind that the high prices against which I protested in the tariff discussion were not universal high prices. They were high prices which were supposed to be produced under the operation of a law. The low prices against which I am now protesting are universal.

"The tariff is a mere local instrument by which some may be able to exclude competition for the purpose of creating high prices for the consumers of the land. That is its avowed purpose. The new party of the people has gone beyond the tariff question. I object to prices which are mere levies upon a patient people. I have tried to make it clear that the reason I have espoused the cause of the free coinage of silver is, that the prices of all the products of human toil have been dragged down year by year until there is no profit in producing wealth; until the productive industries of the country are at a standstill, and until want and starvation are abroad in the land. How do you explain such a thing as a universal and continuous fall of prices? You can understand it only by knowing what the price is. The price is the money measure of value of the commodities, or when they have something else as a factor besides the great bulk of the commodities of the world. We are measuring the commodities of the world with something, and that something is money; and if money measures all the commodities of mankind, it is easy to conceive that all commodities will fall if the measure has become more valuable. That is the secret of it. In some way the measure of everything is growing greater year by year, and as a result that which it measures is expressed in lower terms than ever before."

George Fred In Paper City.

Holyoke, Mass., Oct. 21.—George Fred Williams repeated in this city the speech which earlier in the evening he delivered in Northampton. He was greeted by about 800 people in the city hall. The first speaker was Clarence T. Atkinson of New Jersey, who spoke against capitalists, trusts, etc.

Christopher T. Callahan charged the Republican party with being afraid to discuss the questions at issue, and said they were maintaining an insolent silence on all important questions. He was warmly received by his townsmen.

Mr. Williams was given a kindly reception, and his speech was frequently interrupted by applause.

A Prediction as to Low.

New York, Oct. 21.—General Benjamin F. Tracy, candidate for mayor; Secretary of the Interior Cornelius N. Bliss and Governor Frank Black addressed an audience of 1500 persons at a Republican meeting last night. The speakers and their speeches were enthusiastically applauded. This is the first time Secretary Bliss has spoken in the great municipal campaign.

General Tracy said: "Low won't come within 100,000 votes of election. There are some districts that he will make a showing in, but there are whole assembly districts where he cannot poll 500 votes. In this city he cannot get 35,000 votes, and in Brooklyn the other night I conferred with prominent men, and from the result of that conference I learned that if the election occurred today Mr. Low could not get 30,000 votes; so what chance is there of his election?"

Governor Black said: "In every spot where the fight is on it is waged on the lines of St. Louis and Chicago. Socialism, anarchy, junk money and every wild-eyed hybrid that stared through the Chicago platform of a year ago will gather in knots next month around the polling places of this republic. He who pretends that anarchy is dangerous only once in four years, that repudiation is dishonest only in national elections and is willing at other times to keep them company is himself a dangerous citizen and unworthy of its privileges."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

New Time Set For Establishing Peace In Cuba.

The New Captain General's Ideas.

Wey'er Warned Against a Demonstration on Leaving For Madrid.

Madrid, Oct. 21.—A dispatch from Corunna says that Marshal Blanco, prior to embarking for Havana to assume his new position as governor general of Cuba, made the following statement: "I go to Cuba with full confidence in the efficiency of the new program to insure immediate and certain success. My military and political action I shall develop simultaneously. I have not been instructed to maintain any reserve regarding the intention to bestow the full autonomy offered by the Liberal party when I was in the opposition.

"I have not consulted the government about the divisional commands, but, so as to have more time for political affairs, I wished to be accompanied by generals like General Parado, who, as second in command, will bear the brunt of the military action, and General Pando, who will direct the campaign at the head of the army.

"I cannot fix a date for the termination of the war. One of my generals has expressed himself as confident of returning victorious in seven months. Matters might take a turn to confirm this surmise, but, if all ends well, it will make no difference even if we do take a little longer to reach peace."

The government has cabled to Lieutenant General Weyler strictly prohibiting any demonstration on the day of his departure for Spain, and intimating that if these instructions are not complied with by him he will be held strictly accountable.

Shelved a Discussion.

Vienna, Oct. 21.—On the reassembling of the unterhaus yesterday, after Tuesday night's disorderly proceedings, the chamber began the discussion of a series of motions to impeach the members of the cabinet for an alleged violation of their ministerial powers by the issuance of a decree, on June 23 last, authorizing the official use of the Czech language in Bohemia.

Dr. Herold, one of the deputies for Prague, Bohemia, intervened with a motion to shelve the entire discussion. In supporting this proposal he said: "A great historical combat is proceeding at the present moment in which all the peoples of Austria are fighting for equal rights as opposed to the supremacy of the Germans. Obstruction will not win the day; but even should it ultimately prevail the Bohemian people would survive such a victory. In the interest of the Bohemians and of the cause of freedom and legality, the Czechs will not support the impeachment proceedings.

After a 10- hours' sitting the unterhaus, by a vote of 161 against 141, adopted Dr. Herold's motion to shelve the entire discussion. The house then adjourned.

Connecticut Pythians.

New Haven, Oct. 21.—The Connecticut grand lodge of the Knights of Pythias concluded its two days' session yesterday with the installation of these officers: Grand chancellor, F. W. Chesson, Waterbury; grand vice chancellor, Joseph Stokes, Meriden; grand prelate, E. V. Cutler, Bridgeport; keeper of records and seal, H. O. Case, Hartford; grand master of exchequer, William N. Potter, Willimantic; grand master at arms, Edward Schulze of Hartford; grand inner guard, Florin Benedict, Norwich; grand outer guard, William Read, East Hartford; supreme representative, Past Grand Chancellor Alson J. Smith of Danbury.

It was decided to hold the next meeting in Norwich the second Tuesday in October, 1898.

Boundaries of Reservation.

Washington, Oct. 21.—The interior department is making an examination of the geographical conditions of the country in the vicinity of the mouth of the Yukon so as to obtain the data that will enable it to prescribe exactly the boundaries of the proposed reservation. It is regarded as desirable to limit the reservation to the smallest dimensions that will take in St. Michaels as a center and yet include the estuary of the Yukon, where it is possible that a lawless element might gather if excluded from the town itself. The present laws of Alaska will continue to prevail over the lands within the reservation, but the military officers in charge will have considerably enlarged powers in the matter of ejecting obnoxious characters.

Demonstration by Strikers.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 21.—The strikers made another demonstration last night in front of the factory of T. D. Barry & Co., with the result that John Boland and Henry S. Cain were arrested. At one time the situation looked serious and the riot act was read, but the crowd with considerable reluctance dispersed.

The backbone of the strike seems to be broken, notwithstanding the fact that the strikers are making every effort to keep up appearances. Many of the men are trying to get back to their old places, but the factories are nearly all supplied with help and those particularly affected by the strike are running a night force.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

CONSTITUTION DAY.

Launching of Old Ironsides Fittingly Commemorated at the Hub.

Boston, Oct. 21.—One hundred years ago today the tide in Boston harbor was high at 11:45 in the forenoon, and at that hour the work of launching the frigate Constitution, which had been begun on Sept. 20, and was not carried out because the vessel then sat too level upon the ways, saw its end.

Decked out in flags, the noble craft slid gracefully overboard Her record in the last century is known to every well-informed boy and girl, and it stirs patriotic hearts throughout the land.

Today the tars from the finest squadron in the new navy landed in Boston, about a mile from where the Constitution now lies tied up at the navy yard dock, and less than a mile from where she was built, and formed and marched in a parade in honor of the grand old ship. It was a great day for Boston, despite the rain.

The exercises at the Old South church began at 1 o'clock when Senator Lodge delivered an oration. At the close the governor and other special guests of the day entered carriages and took their places in the procession, which continued to the navy yard.

This evening will witness probably the grandest display ever witnessed in the harbor. The warships will be electrically illuminated from 6 to 8 o'clock, and then searchlights will be operated from 7:30 to 8 o'clock. All today the ships were dressed, and the national salute of 21 guns was fired from each ship at noon.

ACCUSED OF MURDER.

Charge Against a Resident of Norwood, Mass., Has Uncommon Aspect.

Norwood, Mass., Oct. 21.—Alphonse Bernard, who, it is said, allowed his wife to commit suicide Sunday by drinking carbolic acid, was arrested Wednesday on a charge of murder, and was committed to jail without bail to await a hearing on Saturday next before Judge Lane.

Bernard and his wife came here about two years ago from San Francisco. For the past few months it is said their married life had not been happy. Sunday Bernard packed up his things and told his wife that he was going to leave her. The woman became so depressed that she went to the closet and, taking out a bottle of poison, told her husband that she was going to drink it. It is said that he told her to go ahead, and after she had done so, he refused to get her any assistance. The woman died Sunday night after suffering fearfully for a number of hours. The case is a peculiar one, and will be watched with much interest.

Vessel In a Hurricane.

Boston, Oct. 21.—Captain A. T. Bacon, the commander of the three-masted schooner Oscar C, Schmidt, reports a terrible experience on the passage to this port. The vessel left Charleston, S. C., Sept. 24, and on Oct. 2 the wind blew a perfect hurricane from the northeast, accompanied by a tremendous sea, which deluged the vessel's decks continually and made the work of handling most hazardous. The vessel at this time was about 20 miles north of Cape Hatteras. Her foresail was blown in ribbons, the maingaff broken, and the mainsail and spanker were torn.

It became necessary to run to the southward for safety, under stormtrysail. Sea after sea swept over the vessel, straining her so badly that her seams opened and she began to leak at the rate of 500 strokes per hour. The crew manned the pumps and by constant work managed to keep the water from gaining on the vessel. Before the storm abated the vessel had been blown 260 miles down the coast.

On Oct. 6, 7 and 8 while in the gulf stream, the schooner passed through immense quantities of yellow pine lumber of various dimensions, supposed to be from the deckloads of vessels caught in the same hurricane. While the storm was at its height one of the sailors, a colored man, was thrown down by a huge comber, striking his head on the edge of the hatchway, and cutting a fearful gash, which incapacitated him for duty for four days. The tarpaulin from the rear hatch was ripped up and Captain Bacon fears that the water gained access to the cargo of kiln dried phosphate in the hold.

Snow's Request For an Injunction.

Boston, Oct. 21.—Judge Richardson, in the equity session of the superior court, referred the application of the plaintiff in the case of G. G. Snow, a Brockton shoe manufacturer, against Secretary McSherry of the Sole Fasteners' union, and 15 others, striking employes, to B. W. Harris as master. The case will take three or four days, and the master will make his report to the superior court for Plymouth county. The suit is brought for an injunction to restrain the defendants from alleged unlawful and illegal interference with the plaintiff in carrying on his business.

For the Larceny of Silverware.

Boston, Oct. 21.—Acting under instructions from the New York police, Inspectors Cleary and Morrissey went to South Weymouth and arrested George G. Meacham, 24 years old, who is charged with the larceny of silverware valued at $160, the property of the Gorham Manufacturing company of New York city. Meacham is said to have been a salesman in the employ of this company. The police say that the prisoner admits his guilt, and is willing to return to New York without waiting for requisition papers to be issued.

Harvard Council's Recommendations.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 21.—The members of the Harvard university council have expressed themselves in favor of the extension of suffrage for election of overseers to graduates of all departments of the university. At present only those who hold degrees of B. A. are elected. The council has also requested the corporation to select a costume of cap and gown to be the authorized costume for all academic occasions. This request is in consequence of an effort by several Harvard graduates who are in favor of a prescribed uniform.

Took French Leave.

New Haven, Oct. 21.—Thomas Elkins, aged 30, a "hobo," and Frank Miller, aged 28, of Meriden, who were serving time in the county jail, escaped from that institution and have not been recaptured. The men were removing old machinery and were alone at the time. They made their escape by knocking down a portion of the brick wall.

Pope Leo Interfered.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Definite details became obtainable Wednesday concerning the cable message sent by Cardinal Rampolla, secretary of state, expressing the desire of Pope Leo concerning the case of Dr. Schroder, professor of dogmatic theology at the Catholic university, which has seriously agitated the board of directors of the university during their present meeting. The cablegram came to Mgr. Martenelli and gave him definite instructions. Prior to this a letter had been received from Cardinal Steinhuber at Rome, stating that the pope had expressed a desire that Mgr. Schroeder should not be removed at the present time. As this was not directly from the vatican, a number of the executive board of the Catholic university cabled to the authorities for an official representation of the pope's wishes on the subject.

In response to this inquiry a cablegram to Mgr. Martinelli was received on Sunday. The cable dispatch directs the delegate to communicate to the board of directors of the university that the pope desires that no change be made in the status of Dr. Schroder as professor of the university at the present time.

Sheriff Martin Condemned.

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—At yesterday's meeting of the National Lithunian convention the shooting of the striking miners, five of whom were Lithunians, by Sheriff Martin's deputies near Hazleton was discussed. Resolutions, condemning the sheriff and his deputies, the coal operators and all persons who had sought to justify the shooting, and appropriating $1000 for the prosecution of the shooters and the relief of the orphans and widows, were unanimously adopted.

A protest was entered against the Russian edict which seeks to make Russians of the Lithunians by prohibiting them from publishing or circulating any books or papers in their language. It was stated that there are about 100 Lithunians, men of education, at present in Russian prisons for this offense alone.

Spanish Paper's Denunciation.

Madrid, Oct. 21.—The Imparcial makes a violent attack on the United States, basing its remarks on the alleged departure recently of filibustering expeditions from American ports bound for Cuba, and urges the Spanish government to ask explanations of the government of the United States. The paper mentioned, in this connection, recalls the words of Mr. Sagasta before he assumed the premiership, and concludes with remarking: "It is impossible for us to submit to such humiliations. We must act with energy towards Washington."

G. A. R. Post Insubordinate.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 21.—Fletcher Webster post, G. A. R., held a meeting last night and voted to refuse to pay the per capita tax levied by the department commander until an answer had been received in regard to the time of the charges against the post. Messages tendering sympathy and aid were received from posts in Woburn, New Bedford and East Weymouth.

Had Despaired of Life.

North Adams, Mass., Oct. 21.—Henry T. Rextrew is dying at the Brunswick House from an overdose of a narcotic. He returned from New York, where he had expected to get money from an endowment policy. He went to the hotel and was found in an unconscious state. Letters left by him showed that he had despaired of life, and he talked about his burial.

Death of a Centenarian.

Marlboro, Mass., Oct. 21.—John Murphy, the oldest inhabitant of this city, died yesterday at the advanced age of 105 years and 7 months. He was born in county Clara, Ireland, and had lived in this country 48 years.

Eternal Vigilance.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." It is the price of everything worth having.

It is the price of life itself. A man needn't be always looking for danger, afraid that something will happen to him; but a wise man will form a habit of care about the important things of life.

It isn't half so much trouble to take care of yourself as it is not to. A man who follows regular, healthy habits, feels good all the time. Life is worth living to him. But a man who "don't want to bother" with taking care of himself has more pain and misery crowded into one day than a good healthy, hearty man who lives right would ever know of in a whole year.

When a man's stomach is out of order, and his digestion don't work; when his liver gets to be sluggish and won't clear the bile out of his blood, it is time for him to look out for himself. He gets no nourishment out of his food. His blood gets thicker and thicker with impurities. His nerves get irritated. He loses energy and fighting force.

He may say, "I can stand it, I will feel better to-morrow;" but the chances are he will feel worse to-morrow and worse still next day. He ought to put himself right at once. He needs Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is made for just this condition. It rouses up the digestive and nutritive organs, and gives them power to extract from the food all the nutritious elements and transform them into rich, nourishing blood. It enables the liver to cleanse out all bilious impurities and pour into the circulation an abundance of highly vitalized blood, full of the life-giving red corpuscles which build up healthy flesh, muscular strength, and nerve-energy. It does not make flabby flesh. It is the only suitable tonic and strength-builder for corpulent people.

SHIP CONSTITUTION.

Patriotic Boston Pays Tribute to the Old Frigate.

Centennial of Its Birth Enthusiastically Honored.

Exercises In the O'd South Church and a Naval Parade.

Boston, Oct. 22.—While that joy forever, if not exactly an architectoral thing of beauty, the old Constitution lay by the cold gray pier in Charlestown, apparently a useless thing, frowned at by lugubrious skies, just across the Charles, a ferry's distance, the people of Boston were celebrating the 100 years of that glorious sovereign of the seas, "Old Ironsides." The children were singing its fame in the schoolrooms. Great men of the present were rolling forth the story of its greatness in Old South meeting house. The populace assembled in the streets were cheering its name. For it the cannons were booming, the air was full of the sound of music, the blare of trumpets and the roll of drums was heard, a cavalcade passed through excited thousands, business was suspended, traffic ceased, and when night came the sky was alight with fireworks.

THE CONSTITUTION—OLD IRONSIDES.

The parade was under the direction of Brigadier General J. L. Carter, inspector general of Massachusetts, who was chief marshal, and on its way through the streets the various organizations were heartily cheered by thousands of spectators.

The enthusiasm of the citizens was not dampened by the cold and rainy weather, and everywhere the buff and blue button annexed to a brilliant red streamer, with the word "Constitution" in gold, was displayed on the coats and cloaks of pedestrians. From all the national, state and city buildings and big business houses the national flag was thrown to the breeze, while in the vicinity of Constitution wharf, the place where "Old Ironsides" made her first dip into the ocean, the decorations were elaborate.

The chief features of the day's celebration were the literary exercises in the Old South church, where Governor Wolcott, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt and Senator Lodge delivered speeches, and the naval parade in the afternoon. Long before the hour assigned for the exercises to begin, the historic church was filled to its utmost capacity by men, women and children.

Governor Wolcott acted as presiding officer during the exercises. Prayer was offered by Chaplain Dowse of the Massachusetts senate. Governor Wolcott then delivered the opening address, referring in eulogistic terms to the vessel in honor of which the anniversary was held and the patriotism which marked her history.

Governor Wolcott said in part: "This is a memorable day. With profound gratification the commonwealth of Massachusetts welcomes back to her old moorings the most famous vessel of the United States. With decoration and banners, with the roaring of cannon, and the acclaim of her people, the commonwealth commemorates the 100th anniversary of the launching in her own waters of the frigate, now old and dismantled, which won imperishable glory for American seamanship.

Old Ironsides won her victory not alone because her armament was heavier than that of any other frigate of her day, nor because the lines of her hull and her sail plan enabled her to outsail the line of battleships of the enemy, but because she was handled with consummate seamanship, was fought with an accuracy of gunnery that was unequaled and was manned from the quarterdeck to the forecastle with a crew inspired with that heroic determination and ardor that reck not of death when glory is the prize."

Governor Wolcott then introduced Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, who spoke in part as follows:

The moment of the Constitution's launching was the beginning of our navy as we know it today. It was 15 years after launching of the Constitution and her sister ships before that proud flag which menaced us was humbled, and during that 15 years there were many people who objected to the maintenance of a navy, "lest we should be tempted to use it." There were those then as now who failed to recognize that the existence of a navy is the cheapest form of insurance against encroachment and danger from foreign powers.

It was because we had the Constitution and her sister ships that we came out of the war with credit, and it is due to a policy contrary to that which prompted the introduction of such vessels that in recent years brought us into danger of gravest national dishonor.

The orator of the day was Senator Lodge. His address was largely historical, but toward the close he drew this moral: "One hears it often said by persons who are prone to mistake for thought the repetition of aged aphorisms, that some people intend to have peace even if they fight for it. They imagine that they are giving utterance to a biting and conclusive sarcasm, when in reality they are stating a profound and simple truth. All the peace the world has ever had has been obtained by fighting, and all the peace that any nation which is neither subject nor trivial can ever have is by readiness to fight if attacked.

"In our cities and towns we maintain a large army of soldiers. We call them policemen, but they are drilled and organized, and are in essentials a military body. For what purpose are they maintained? To make war on any one? On the contrary we have police in order to keep the public peace.

"In the same way must the peace of nations be kept. Weakness and fear and defenselessness mean war and dishonor. Readiness, preparation and courage mean honor and peace. Where we were unprepared in 1812 we suffered, where we were prepared we prospered and vindicated our national existence.

"That is the true line of national policy for which the Constitution stands today just as much as when she overcame the English frigates. Her builder, building better than he knew both in timber and in words, called her with a fine eloquence, 'a powerful agent of national justice.'

"So she was, and she was also a minister and guardian of peace; not the peace at which a spirited people revolt, but the peace of which Lowell sings. But there is still something more in this ship Constitution than vivid instruction as to the truest national policy. She is the yet living monument, not alone of her own victories, but of the men behind the guns who won them. She speaks to us of patriotism and courage, of the devotion to an idea and to a sentiment for which men laid down their lives.

"Turn her into a training vessel if you will, and let American boys learn from her lessons of patriotism as well as seamanship, but at all events let her be preserved. She represents gallant deeds and goodly victories. She stands for the spirit of patriotism which uplifts nations, and without which no people can be great.

"So I say all honor to the brave old ship. You may strip her of sails and rigging, cut away her masts and take out her guns, but you can never tear from her the memories she bears. Let her have then, now and always, the love and honor and care which are hers by right.

"But whatever befalls, let us at least not suffer her to perish by neglect and fade away from sight like the dull weed that rots itself in ease at Lethe's wharf. If we cannot keep her in honor then let it be said now even as was said nearly 70 years ago:

Nail to her mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the God of Storms,
The lightning and the gale.

The parade and reception on the Constitution were concluded by 5 o'clock, and by dark all the seamen and marines had reached their respective ships. The searchlight display in the harbor last night was one of the finest of the kind ever seen in these waters. The long, slender beams of light from the New York and Massachusetts in the upper harbor almost interlaced the rays from the Iowa, Texas and Brooklyn farther down the bay, while all the ships glowed with incandescents hung in pendant rows from the military masts. The display was impressively silent, the absence of the usual noise from bombs and other customary explosions of fireworks being particularly noticeable. The flashing ended at eight bells (10 o'clock), and the bay once more was in darkness. The fleet put to sea at 6 o'clock this morning.

Girls Burned by Vitriol.

South Norwalk, Conn., Oct. 22.—Jennie Kinsella is in a critical condition as the result of having vitriol thrown in her face. Her assailant is a shoemaker named Kelly, who is a well-known character about here. The object of the assault is a mystery. Kelly was arrested. Miss Kinsella and other girls were returning from work when they were overtaken by Kelly, who accosted them and continued walking behind them. When they reached the cemetery the man disappeared, but just as the girls, who all reside in the same house, had reached their home he suddenly reappeared and, without any remarks, threw the contents of two glasses in the face of Miss Kinsella and Mary Troy, one of her companions.

Miss Kinsella was terribly burned about the face and was blinded. It is thought that even if she survives the shock she will entirely lose her eye sight, besides being badly disfigured. Miss Troy was badly burned about the face, though not seriously. As soon as possible the alarm was given and Kelly was overtaken, but professed to know nothing of the affair. He was identified by one of the girls. Kelly is about 45 years old and, though he has never before shown vicious tendencies, he has of late years always done something to cause him to be sent to jail for the winter months.

THE SWEDE FAIR.

Plumer's Hall Prettily Decorated —Those in Charge.

The annual far of the Swedish Lutheran church opened Thursday night at Plumer's hall with a large attendance. The hall was very prettily decorated. wide flag streamers being festooned overhead from the corners and sides of the hall to the centre, while colored streamers were draped along the side.

In the centre of the hall was a wide table loaded with aprons, and fancy articles, while about the hall was the grab, ring toss, tonic and ice cream tables.

A pleasing entertainment was given, consisting of music by the orchestra, reading of the Bible and address of welcome by August Weiden; reading by Axel Wallin, and selections by a quintette composed of Eric Erickson, Carl Chilsted, B. Johnson, Fritz Swanson and John Johnson.

An art museum is one of the attractions. It contains views taken in many of the cities of Europe including the Stockholm exposition, and also examples of fine art. The lenses are owned by Mr. W. R. Lofgren and the views were collected by him on his recent European trip. The works of fine art were mostly collected by Mr. C. F. Carlson. Different pictures are shown on different evenings. Messrs. Lofgren and Carlson are assisted by Miss Ebba Lofrenholm of New York.

Those in charge of the tables, etc., were as follows:

Coffee table: Olida Olander, Mrs. Silard Sellberg, Anna N'lson, E. Anderson, Mrs. Peter Carlson, Mrs. Gustaf Johnson, Mrs. Nels Nordquest, Mrs. C. T. Sahlster, Alma Sandberg, Britta Magneson, Ingried Jepson and Esther Wallin.

Ice cream: Krestina Sandberg, Britha Nilson, Carolina Nilson, Krestina Nilson, Anna Nilson and Maria Jacobson.

Tonics: Victor Hamnstrom, Nels Pechrson, Andrew Hellquist, Albion Johnson, E. Eckblom and Otta Ericson.

Lifting machine: Teoda Hermanson.

Bull frog: O. P. Dalstrom.

Shooting gallery: Eric Erickson.

Ring toss: Axel Anderson

Cake: Alma Carlquist and Axel Nordein.

Fancy table: Mrs. W. Johnson, Mrs. Fritz Swanson, Mrs. Gustaf Bengstron, Andrew Nilson, Mrs. Andrew Anderson, Miss Augusta Peterson.

Wire Stolen.

It has been discovered that some one has been trying to enrich themseves by stealing the return wire of the street railway on the Norfolk Downs loop line. At the time that line was built the return wire was run along between the tracks, legs on each side connecting it with the rails. Much of this wire has been pulled up of late and carried off. In doing so there was danger of crippling the road by breaking the return wire but the parties were careful in cutting off the wire to leave the rails connected. The present method of the return circuit is to connect the rails by a small copper loop.

Sale and Turkey Supper.

The second and last night's sale at the Wollaston M. E. church concluded with a turkey supper, which was greatly enjoyed by the people of the society and their friends, to the number of about two hundred. The various tables were well patronized and all present enjoyed the evening's entertainment of instrumental music, and the reading, by Mrs. John W. Emerson, who told in poetry, how each lady of the society earned a dollar. Great credit is due all the members of the Ladies' society who worked so hard to earn a success and also to the kind friends who assisted them.

HORRIBLE DEATH.

A Former Quincy Lady Killed on the Railroad.

Shortly after 11 o'clock Thursday morning an unknown woman was killed between the Crescent Avenue and Savin Hill stations. She has since been identified as Mrs. Annie A. Rideout, the wife of W. H. H. Rideout, formerly of South Quincy, and daughter of the late George W. B. Taylor of Wollaston.

A Boston daily says that just before the accident, Mrs. Rideout stopped at the Crescent avenue depot and borrowed a pencil from the station agent. After writing a few lines on a card she returned this pencil, and, walking out of the depot, stepped on to the tracks and started in the direction of Savin Hill.

There was an inward-bound train approaching at this time, while an outward-bound train was almost due. In stepping out of the way to avoid the former she put herself directly in the path of the outward train, which struck and killed her instantly.

Among the personal effects found upon her clothing was a card bearing the names and addresses of three or four persons, preceded by the single word "notify." This is regarded by some as an indication that the woman committed suicide.

Mrs. Rideout lived at 49 Sydney street, Savin Hill. Owing to some family troubles, she and her husband separated some time ago. Her father committed suicide several years ago. She was graduated from the Quincy High school in the class of '78, and was the second wife of Mr. Rideout, who is in the internal revenue service.

Unitarian Sociable.

The Wollaston Unitarian society gave its first sociable of the season on Thursday evening. There was a large attendance and the affair was very successful. It was in charge of Mrs. Charles T. Baker, Mrs. E. Walter Arnold, Mrs. S. D. Delano, Mrs. Joseph N. Smith and Mrs. George Holmes.

After the supper Mrs. F. A. Page and Mr. E. Walter Arnold rendered vocal solos, Mrs. George W. Bennett read an original poem which was exceedingly clever, and Mr. W. E. Simmons read a couple of dialect stories.

Fall of Derrick.

There was a narrow escape from a serious accident this morning at the granite yards of Long & Saunders at South Quincy. For some reason one of the guy ropes of their large derrick gave way, and the derrick fell with a crash. In its fall it struck the roof of their cutting shed damaging it somewhat. There were several men at work near by at the time but fortunately no one was struck. There were also a number of monuments about the yard and they also escaped injury.

Suicide in a Cell.

New Haven, Oct. 21.—Louis Koch, aged 40, committed suicide at the central police station last night by hanging. The man had been arrested for drunkenness and breach of the peace.

Mrs. Koch is at the city hospital in an unconscious condition, attributed to abuse at the hands of her husband, and also by shock at his arrest.

Yellow Fever Bulletin.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Surgeon General Wyman's bulletin of new cases and deaths from yellow fever is as follows: Mobile, eight cases and one death; Edwards seven cases; Scranton, Miss., 16 cases and one death; Pascogoula, Miss., three cases and one death; Biloxi, 17 cases.

NEW CLASS LIMITS.

Yacht Racing Association Vote to Make Changes.

The representatives of the Quincy Yacht club were opposed to any changes in the classes in yacht racing, and voted against the measure at the meeting of the Massachusetts Yacht Racing Association on Thursday evening. It was proposed to raise the class limit one foot in every division and the first vote was 12 to 9 in favor. This was not the necessary two-thirds, but a recess was taken, an after this the vote was reconsidered, and it was voted 15 to 6 to make the change. The clubs in favor were: Burgess, Cape Cod, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hull, Manchester, Massachusetts, Mosquito Fleet, Savin Hill, Wellfleet, Winthrop, Wollaston, Boston, Lynn and Old Colony, the last three changing over. The opposition were American, Dorchester, East Boston, Jeffries, Quincy, South Boston, and East Gloucester.

The classification for 1889 will therefore be:

A, cabin boats, 30 feet and not over 35 feet.
B, cabin boats, 25 feet and not over 30 feet.
C, open boats, 21 to 25 feet.
D, cabin boats, 21 to 25 feet.
K, knockabouts.
E, boats 18 to 21 feet.
H, boats 15 to 18 feet.
J, boats under 15 feet.

As the rules now stand the time allowance as been abolished, so that it will be boat for boat, with no favors for the older boats. This, however, is to be considered at a meeting to be held within two weeks.

Swedish Mission.

Mission meetings are to be opened this evening at the Swedish Congregational church on Garfield street to continue on Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, and on Sunday at 10 A. M., 3 and 7 P. M. Several out-of-town ministers will participate, including: Rev. A. L. Anderson of Worcester, Rev. G. Staaf of Springfield, Rev. J. E. Johnson of Campello and Rev. C. L. Lungren of Waltham. Tonight's meeting will be at 7 o'clock and all Scandinavians are invited.

At the Norfolk county probate court this week these wills were allowed: Augusta Hall late of Hyde Park, Rebecca Eaton of Wellesley, Mary H. L. Cabot of Brookline, Isabella Chisholm of Dedham, John H. Hammond of Dedham, Catherine Crowley of Millis, Catherine Crowley of Needham, Franklin Shaw of Braintree, J. L. Kennedy of Newton, Mary E. Henry H. Mann was fined $7 for larceny from John H. Pool at Randolph.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. Y. M. C. A. RECEPTION

A Welcome to be Extended Secretary Hoehn and Wife.

This "Birthday Party" is given to you;
'Tis something novel, 'tis something new,
We send you each a little sack—
Please either send or bring it back
With as many cents as you are years old;
We promise the number will never be told.
The "Y. M. C. A." with greetings most hearty,
Feel sure you'll attend your own "Birthday Party."

Next Tuesday evening, the 26th inst., there will be a reception to welcome the new Y. M. C. A. Secretary, Mr. Hoehn. In connection with this welcome, there is to be a birthday party for the purpose of wiping out the debt incurred by moving and fixing up the new rooms. Bags will be distributed at the churches on Sunday, and it is hoped that all who are interested in the Association will return the bags on or before Tuesday evening with as many pennies as they are years old. It is hoped these bags will find a good many Methusellas, whom it will be remembered lived to the good old age of 969. Call yourself a thousand, or five hundred, or one hundred for this occasion, and return the pennies accordingly, and the debt will be easily annihilated. Come one, come all to the reception, and inspect the new rooms, enjoy a social time, and make the acquaintance of our new secretary and wife.

Q. H. S. Alumni.

The quarterly meeting of the Alumni Association of the Quincy High school to be held this evening bids fair, if indications are to be considered, to surpass that which was held some time ago and which was pronounced a complete success. It is hoped that the alumni and the friends of the school will come out in numbers sufficient to warrant the governing boards of the future in maintaining these meetings. All are cordially invited to be present.

THREE STRONG AS NINE

Inability of the Luetgert Jury to Reach a Verdict.

Accused Made Affidavit Protesting His Innocence.

Two Witnesses Likely to Be Prosecuted For Perjury.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Judge Tuthill, when he entered the court building Thursday morning and learned that the jurors were not more prepared to report on the Luetgert case than when they had stretched their tired bodies upon the cots which were furnished to them, decided not to adhere to his resolution to keep them together until Saturday evening. As the jurors filed into the court about 10:40 o'clock they were a haggard looking set of men. Several of them were collarless, and the eyes of all of them were swollen and red.

"Gentlemen, I have called you into court to ask if you have reached a verdict," said Judge Tuthill.

Foreman Heickhold arose and replied, "Your honor, we have not."

"Is there any prospect of your reaching one?" asked the court.

"I don't think so. In fact I know there is not—at least that is my firm belief," responded the foreman.

"How do you stand, numerically, not individually?" queried the court.

"We stand nine for conviction and three for acquittal," replied the foreman. "We have stood that way for 38 hours. There has not been a solitary change during the past 38 hours. In my opinion there is not the least possible chance of an agreement."

A sigh of relief went up all over the courtroom that the end had at last been reached. There was a rush on the part of the newspaper men to get out of the building, and as soon as the bailiffs could restore quiet Judge Tuthill adjourned the court.

When the jurors had received their vouchers they were taken down to the basement in an elevator and left the criminal court building by way of a rear entrance to the jail yard. The jurors left in squads of four. They did this to avoid the great crowd that had collected in front of the building and also to get away from reporters; but the latter gentlemen were fully posted on exits and entrances of the building and met the jurors as they emerged from the yard. It was reluctantly admitted by several of them that the disagreement was brought about by a wide difference of opinion regarding the rings found in the vat, the testimony of Emma and Gottlieba Schimpke and the testimony of the Kenosha witnesses who positively testified that they saw Mrs. Luetgert alive in the Wisconsin town on May 3, 4 and 5. Juror Harley did not believe the rings were Mrs. Luetgert's rings. Holabird was inclined to believe the story of the Kenosha witnesses despite the impeaching evidence introduced, and Barber would not believe the strong evidence given by the Schimpke sisters. These were considered the strong features of the trial by these jurors.

LUETCERT'S AFFIDAVIT.

Tells the Public That He Is Not Guilty of Wife Killing.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—The Associated Press obtained the one great feature missing in the famous Luetgert trial—the sworn testimony of the defendant himself, Adolph L. Luetgert. Closely following the final result of the trial, Luetgert made under oath a statement concerning the fearful crime charged against him, the first sworn statement yet made by him, and the first statement of such a kind ever known in newspaper annals. The affidavit was put in writing in legal form and is certified to by a notary. Ex-Judge Vincent, the man to whose brains, skill and energy Luetgert beyond a doubt owes his great legal victory, gave consent to the affidavit being made.

The scene in the jail when Luetgert took the oath was as dramatic as the circumstances were unique. In the dimly lighted jail corridor, Luetgert, standing erect and grasping the iron bars that still kept him from liberty, lifted his right hand and solemnly assented as the notary administered the binding form. The affidavit, which explicitly declares Luetgert's innocense, is as follows:

To the public: The result of my trial ending today is a victory for me because of the disagreement of the jury, but I am very much disappointed and very much surprised that the jury did not bring in a verdict of not guilty. I did not kill my wife and do not know where she is, but I am sure that it is only a question of time until she comes home.

I did not go upon the witness stand because my lawyer, Judge Vincent, was bitterly opposed to my doing so, and because he advised me it was not necessary. I am grateful for the tremendous change in public sentiment in my favor, and time will demonstrate that I am not only an innocent man, but a very grievously wronged man.

A NOTED CASE.

Its Importance Lay In the Character of the Circumstantial Evidence.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—The Luetgert trial has been one of the most noted cases in criminal history. Adolph Louis Luetgert, who had been a wealthy manufacturer of sausages, had recently failed in business, losing much of his fortune. May 17 he was arrested, charged with the murder of his wife, Louise. Mrs. Luetgert disappeared from her north side home May 1, but the fact was not reported to the police until her brother started an investigation a week later.

According to the theory of the prosecution, the murder of Mrs. Luetgert by her husband was a horrible one. It was asserted by the state that the sausage maker, having tired of his wife and desiring to marry Mrs. Christine Feldt, a wealthy widow, had enticed the missing woman to the basement of his factory on the night of May 1, and then, after terrible struggle, killed her with a club. After the murder, according to the prosecution, Luetgert placed the body of his wife in one of the huge vats and, with a quantity of caustic potash, boiled the body until it had almost entirely disappeared, sitting by the vat throughout the night, alone and on guard.

Soon after the police took charge of the case the sausage vat was drained and several bones, two rings and some corset steels were found. Upon this evidence the state based its case. Over the identification of the bones a desperate battle of expert opinion was waged, the identifications ranging all the way from the statement that the bones were those of a woman about Mrs. Luetgert's size to the assertion that they were plainly all that was left of a pet dog of the Luetgert family. The expert testimony alone cost the state $5000, and the entire cost of the trial to the prosecution is estimated as between $15,000 and $20,000.

Luetgert's defense was that his wife had left home while temporarily insane. The use of the caustic potash in the sausage vat was explained as an experiment in soap making, and much testimony was introduced to show that the rings found had never been worn by Mrs. Luetgert, and that the bones were not human. The trial, which consumed eight weeks, was marked by intense interest and dramatic incidents, the courtroom being packed daily.

To Indict Witnesses For Perjury.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—It is quite probable that some prosecutions for perjury will result from the Luetgert case. While the state's attorney refused to affirm or deny this, it is given on first class authority that the testimony of two of the principal witnesses for the defense will be laid before the grand jury for an investigation. It may be that more than two people will be included in the list, but it is practically settled that indictments will be asked for against two before the Luetgert case can be reached for trial again. The two witnesses are William Charles, Luetgert's business partner, and Mary Siemmering, the domestic in the Luetgert household.

Wind In Hurricane Form.

Boston, Oct. 22.—A genuine West India cyclone which, sweeping up from the south, made its appearance off the southern New England coast Wednesday, redoubled its efforts Thursday, blowing with terrific force along the shore and causing at least one wreck on Cape Cod. The storm had been pretty well advertised by the weather bureau, so that a majority of the coastwise vessels received an early warning of its approach and few went to sea Wednesday night. Those ships, however, that missed seeing the signal flags had a hard time of it off the coast, for the wind blew at least 50 miles an hour, and probably considerably harder near the centre of the storm.

Along shore, Block island kept up its reputation as a wind gatherer, and headed the velocity list with a 56-mile an hour gale. Nantucket was not far behind, and the whole of Cape Cod experienced a heavy blow. In this city the highest velocity was 40 miles an hour, but as the storm worked farther off shore in the afternoon the wind decreased rapidly, although it left an ugly sea in the bay, so much so that the Baltimore steamer Essex, and the Bangor and Portland boats did not sail. Along the Maine coast, the storm seemed to have little effect, confining its efforts apparently to its old haunts along the shore from Montauk to Highland light.

At a late hour last night the wreck of the Lamper off Nauset, which fortunately was unattended by loss of life, was the only disaster reported.

Lifesaving Service.

Washington, Oct. 22.—General Superintendent Kimball of the lifesaving service reports that the number of disasters within the scope of the service during the year was 699, being considerably greater than for a preceding year. The number of vessels totally lost, however, was only 53, against 67 in 1896 and 73 in 1895. On board the documented vessels were 548 persons, of whom 3697 were saved and 42 lost. On board the undocumented vessels there were 706 persons, of whom 695 were saved.

The lifesaving crews saved and assisted to save during the year 671 vessels, valued with their cargoes at $3,015,040. Of these vessels they saved without assistance 541, valued with their cargoes at $981,775, with a loss or damage of only $7105. In the remaining 150 instances they united with other agencies, wrecking vessels, tugs, revenue cutters, etc., in saving property valued at $1,941,475, out of property imperilled of an estimated value of $2,072,680.

Photograph at a Murder Trial.

Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 22.—For the first time in the history of murder trials an X-ray photograph has been offered in evidence. This occurred in the Haynes murder trial yesterday afternoon. In this case the prosecution claims that a 32-calibre bullet struck Allen on his jaw; that it split and one piece was deflected into the chin and the other into the back of Allen's head. The defense claims that the substance at the base of Allen's skull is not a fragment of a bullet, but is a complete bullet. To prove this the defense produced an X-ray photograph of Allen's neck. Dr. Cannon, who made the photograph, says that the bullet is not a 32-calibre bullet. Both sides argued for several hours over the offer in evidence of the photograph by the defense. Justice Wright finally allowed it.

Held Up by Footpads.

Newburyport, Mass., Oct. 22.—Daniel G. Tenney, agent of a wire fence company, was attacked on the outskirts of the city by three masked men, armed with shotguns. They ordered him to hold up his hands, but he refused and was fired on by two of the robbers. One of Mr. Tenney's feet was shattered and one of his hands badly injured. He was robbed of a $37 watch and other valubles.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

THROWING THE HAMMER.

Succinct and Scientific Directions For This Kind of Athletic Work.

To explain the exact technical points involved in throwing the hammer gracefully with two turns is no easy matter.

Have your ring laid out seven feet in diameter on perfectly level ground and let the whole lot in which you practice be perfectly level, for there is no glory in throwing a mile down hill.

Plant your feet firmly, about 20 inches apart. Grasp the handle firmly and describe three preliminary revolutions, keeping your arms at full length when the weight swings in front of you and making the circumference just as large as you possibly can. Do not move your feet during these turns, but stand perfectly firm and be just as graceful and easy as you can, gradually putting more and more power into the circles until you are hurling it almost as fast as you can on the third revolution. Just as this is about completed bring the weight down close to the ground with all your might, your arms out at full length, and just before it gets directly in front of you turn just as quickly as you can. Keep hold of the hammer, and its momentum, greatly augmented by the turning of your body, will take you around again. Still keeping your arms at full length, do all you can to add to this momentum, and when the second turn of your body is about completed give the weight a mighty upward toss over your left shoulder, which should send it high in the air and directly behind you. If you are going to throw the 16 pound hammer, do not monkey with a light one, but keep your hammer up to weight. If you are trying for a record with a 12 pound hammer, do not practice at all with the 16. But above all, do not deceive your friends and delude yourself by throwing a vast distance in practice with a "16 pound hammer" that weighs 14 pounds, because when you come to perform in an intercollegiate or championship field day, where the weights are required to be up to the standard, your duplicity will become only too apparent to every one.—George H. Hazzard in San Francisco Call.

THE RULED OUT HORSES.

How They Came To Be Awarded Fourth Money In a Certain Race.

At a recent meeting the judges were much exercised in their minds as to what to do with a certain fourth money. At the end of the fifth heat three horses had won a heat apiece and a fourth two heats. The rest of the field went to the stable, none of them standing at that moment to win any of the purse. One of the heat winners, however, went lame and had to be withdrawn from the race, and the judges then were in a quandary as to what to do with the fourth money.

Much argument ensued, and finally the judges awarded the fourth money to the ruled out horses standing best in the summary. What else could they do? The rules specially state that being ruled out for not winning a heat in five shall not operate to deprive a horse of any portion of the purse it may be or become entitled to, and in the absence of any special provision to the contrary any accident such as the one referred to simply moves the ruled out horse up one place in the completed summary.

Had there been three heat winners instead of four in the race alluded to the best of the ruled out horses would have gone to the barn with fourth money won. Had one of the three heat winners been drawn or distanced third money would not have reverted to the association, but the fourth horse would have become the third and the fifth the fourth. In the case referred to the fifth horse became the fourth under the operation of the rules, and the judges need have spent no great amount of time reaching their decision to do right or the dissenting horsemen much gray matter in figuring out reasons why fourth money should not have gone as it was awarded. The rules do not contemplate the reversion of any part of the purse to the association so long as four horses remain in the race.—Horseman.

May Postpone Races.

On account of the yellow fever at New Orleans the winter racing meeting, which is advertised to be opened there on Nov. 15, may have to be postponed until some time in December. A frost is absolutely necessary to stamp out the disease, and they don't have much frost in New Orleans until about Christmas. Speaking about the matter recently, the veteran turfman, Captain Billy Williamson, said: "I am afraid that yellow jack will prevent racing in New Orleans until after Christmas. Sometimes New Orleans is not visited by Jack Frost until that time, and if such proves to be the case the coming winter I hardly think there will be any racing at New Orleans before January."—St. Louis Republic.

Baseball Aftermath.

The warlike tendency of the game never had a better or worse exemplification than during the past campaign. The League games were few and far between in which some dispute was not recorded. Umpires were assaulted and forced to seek safety from the spectators or players under escort of the police, players slugged one another on slight provocation, insolent members were fined, reprimanded and expelled from the grounds for insubordination or for manifesting too little respect for the dignity and majesty of the umpire, and many a brawl and battle between "rooters" has served to vary the excitement of the season's work.—New Haven Palladium.

Cost of the Racing Game.

The cost of maintaining British race courses and training and breeding establishments is not less than £8,000,000 a year. This is exclusive of over £300,000 a year which is paid in stakes for winning horses.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 24. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Confessing Christ before men; why and how.—John xii, 35-43; Rom. x, 8-11. (A meeting for especial thought of the associate members and the unconverted.)

This topic appeals especially to the associate members. It appeals to all who believe in Christ, but who have not confessed Him as Lord before the world. Some people hold the opinion that all who really believe will confess Christ. This is a mistake. I firmly believe that many people sincerely believe in Jesus Christ who will not confess Him, at least by uniting with His church or in a public way. We have Scripture authority for the belief that men may believe in Christ and yet not confess Him. John tells us that "among the chief rulers also many believed on Him, but because of the Pharisees they did not confess Him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue, for they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God." Many today believe in Christ, but do not confess Him. Some think it is not necessary to make a public profession of their faith, some are too timid, some feel their personal unworthiness, some that they may not be able to represent Christ properly, and some, alas, are afraid of the opinions of others, like the rulers of old.

All believers should confess their belief. Nothing should keep us from confessing Christ if we really believe in Him. There is no just reason for not doing so. There are many splendid reasons why we should: 1. Christ expects us to confess Him before the world. He requests it of us. He attaches the promise of blessing to the command to confess Him. Christ's wish should be law to believers. What He wants us to do we should do. He wants us first to believe and then to confess Him. Confession should be the natural and logical result of faith. When we believe in the heart, we should confess with the mouth. 2. We should confess Christ for the benefit of others. All have an influence in the world. Our influence should be for Christ if we believe in Him. It will not be unless we confess Him. By silent love and silent faith we cannot exercise an influence for Christ. Our very silence will speak against Christ. 3. We will want Christ to confess us when we stand before the bar of God. He has promised to do so if we confess Him in the world. How can we expect it if we neglect or refuse to confess Christ now?

How should we confess Christ? First of all by uniting ourselves with Christ's church. It is in this way that we proclaim ourselves Christians. Then upon every occasion given by word and deed, by testimony and by life we should confess Christ. Our tongues and our lives should testify to the world that we have been with Jesus.

Bible Readings—Math. x, 32, 33; xvi, 13-20; Mark viii, 27-38; Luke ix, 18-27; xii, 8, 9; xviii, 9-14; xxiii, 39-43; John ix, 22; Acts ii, 14-17; viii, 26-40; II Tim. ii, 12; I John i, 7-10; ii, 23; iv, 2, 3.

Be Charitable.

Hasty judgment of the actions of others is dangerous and often unjust. We measure too much by some superficial appearance and condemn hastily, when, if we knew all and understood the motives and reasons we would warmly approve. We sometimes say of some one, "This pain, sorrow or loss has not deeply affected him."

But we do not know. It is like the death of a few of the soldiers in front of a regiment. The broken ranks close up again into the solid phalanx, and the loss is not apparent. There may be no disorganization, no surrender, no craving for pity, no display of despair. It is like the calm, dazzling play of the waves warmed by the morning sun after a night of storm and disaster. There is no sign of the wreck; the tide has carried the debris away far out on the ocean; the treacherous water has swallowed all signs and tokens of the night's awful work.

We see only the fairness of the morning, not the suffering of the night. Let us be charitable in our judgment and condemn not when we do not know.—Church Standard.

By Deserving It.

If we deserve sympathy, we are pretty sure of getting it by courageously and quietly showing that we are deserving. We cannot have it by demanding it with whines and lamentations and demonstrations of our suffering forced upon unwilling ears.—Sunday School Times.

Preferable.

I'd rather trifle with the forked lightning or the deadly pestilence than with my chance of eternal life.—D. L. Moody.

The Reapers.

O ye reapers, go forth reaping,
Reap in every clime!
Gather, gather in the harvest,
Precious is the time.

Wait not until the sun hath set
And the night is on,
For, alas, ye cannot labor
When the day is gone.

All the fields are ripe and ready,
And the happy song
Of thy brothers who are reaping
Echoes sweet and long.

Sheaves of pain and sheaves of sorrow
Ye must gather in,
Casting out with holy anger
All the tares of sin.

Look by the way, for there the grain
May be growing, too,
In some dark, neglected corner,
Hidden from thy view.

In the fields of God, the Father,
O ye reapers, roam,
And the weary and the suff'ring
Gladly gather home!

The fields of God are waving white,
And there's room for you,
For truly great the harvest is,
The harvesters few.

The reapers that have gone before,
Who have reaped and sown,
Now, high in the realms of glory,
Sing around the throne.

—Philadelphia Ledger.

LUETGERT NOT BAILED

Prosecution Vigorously Opposed by State Attorney.

Writ of Habeas Corpus May Be Applied For.

Then Immediate Steps For a New Trial Will Be Taken.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Judge Tuthill, State Attorney Deneen, Assistant State Attorney McEwen, ex-Judge Vincent and Attorney Phalen had an informal conference yesterday. Luetgert was brought into court, and the report went abroad that a formal motion to admit him to bail would immediately follow the conference. No agreement was reached. Mr. Deneen vigorously opposed the demand that the prisoner be released on bail, and the upshot of the argument was that no formal demand was made for the prisoner's admission to bail.

Ex-Judge Vincent said he would let the matter rest for two or three days and then make formal application. He added that any reasonable bond could be given. It was intimated that if the formal demand was denied a writ of habeas corpus would be applied for. If this action is taken State Attorney Deneen says he will at once put the Luetgert case on the calendar for trial again, and it is among the possibilities that the big sausage maker may again be on trial for his life by the middle of next week.

Speaking of the prospects of a new trial, Judge Tuthill said: "I fancy Luetgert will never again be tried in a court in this county. That is a question which must be decided upon when the state gets ready to make another move. From the wide publicity, however, which the newspapers have given the evidence in the case, the marked attention which it has attracted in all parts of the country and the frenzied interest which the people of Chicago have taken in the outcome of the rial since the case went to the jury, I hardly think that the prosecution can find 12 men who have not already tried the accused in their own minds and either acquitted or convicted him. That is the problem confronting the state attorney now, and unless he solves it by producing the men of course Luetgert will go free."

FALLING OFF EVIDENCES

Reported fn Bradstreet's Weekly Review o' the Business Situation.

New York, Oct. 23.—This issue of Bradstreet's says: While the general trade movement is somewhat irregular and there are still further evidences of falling off in demand, the volume of business continues of large proportions. Speculation in wool has ceased and demand for the staple is less than for weeks past. Cotton goods are dull on the weakness of raw cotton, and jobbers report drygoods slower than a week ago. Interior merchants in the central west have not distributed fall stocks as promptly as expected, and many jobbers at western centers find that they overstocked the consumptive demand when securing fall goods. Unseasonable warm weather has interfered with the movement of heavy goods at the west. Almost all the larger eastern cities report a decreased movement of merchandise and a tendency of collections to fall away, notably Baltimore, owing to its southern connections.

The industrial situation continues to furnish employment to as many as at any preceding period of this year, and at higher wages. The extraordinary heavy and steadily increasing production of iron is starting up furnaces long out of blast, and although consumption is heavy, it is not improbable that production may outrun it in the near future, which constitutes an unfavorable point in the outlook.

This week's bank clearings are 24 per cent larger than in the week a year ago, and 13 per cent larger than two years ago. Clearings at 10 out of 78 cities are smaller than in the like week a year ago.

There are 205 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, against 196 last week, 292 in the week a year ago, 259 two years ago, 221 in the week of 1894, and 329 in 1893.

Gambling Contracts.

Des Mones, Ia., Oct. 23.—The Iowa supreme court has rendered an important decision affecting the legality of contracts between grain speculators. In the case of Counselman & Co. vs. Manuel R. Reichart the court declared thta "contracts for grain where the intention is merely a speculation on the chances of the rise or fall of the market and no delivery is intended are gambling contracts and void. It is not enough to render the contract void that the buyer intends it as gambling contract unless the seller participates in that intention."

Population of Alaska.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The report of John G. Brady, governor of Alaska, for the past fiscal year estimates the present population at 30,000 natives and 10,000 whites; predicts that with reindeer transportation mails can be sent all over Alaska during the winter, and recommends that $100,000 be appropriated for government buildings and $60,000 for schools. It urges congress to create a commission of five, one senator, one representative and three bonafide Alaska residents, to codify laws for Alaska.

Phenomenal Records.

Kansas City, Oct. 23.—With the Dupont cup and the world's championship at stake, Fred Gilbert of Spirit Lake, Ia., and J. A. R. Elliott of Kansas City made phenomenal records in their match here yesterday. Gilbert was the victor. Out of 250 birds shot at by the two cracks but one was missed. Six others fell out of bounds. For 100 birds the cracks tied with 97 each. On the shoot-off at 25 birds Gilbert won the match with a clean score.

Assaulted by a Negro.

Xenia, O., Oct. 23.—Miss Kate Swabb was brutally assaulted by William Carter, and now lies in a critical condition. The negro fled. An angry crowd of citizens will cause serious trouble if the assailant is apprehended.

CROKER ON HIS CRITICS.

Accused Them of Trying to Hoodwink Voters of New York.

New York, Oct. 23.—Richard Croker, in an interview, replies to the attack on him by Henry George and Charles Dayton in their stumping for the Jefferson Democracy. Mr. Croker said: "It is not the custom of Democrats in this city to resort to personal abuse. I regard the attacks of Mr. George and Mr. Dayton as the utterances of men who have been disappointed in their ambitions, and who are now seeking to hoodwink the voters in the interest of the Republican party or of its ally, the Citizens' union. I feel complimented by the fact that they appear to have made me their platform. They claim I went abroad. So I did. I went because my health demanded it. Had I not done so I would not be alive today.

RICHARD CROKER.

"Of either of these gentlemen I have nothing personal to say. This is not a campaign of personality. The Democracy is seeking to establish a government that will lower taxes, restore order out of chaos in the public streets, and give more freedom and liberty to all who wish to live in our splendid city. Mr. George and Mr. Dayton seem to have adopted Jimmy O'Brien's old tactics.

"The Democrats, in my judgment, will not be hoodwinked this time by the effort of men who make deals with the Republicans. The voters have too much at stake. People want prosperity and a sound Democratic government restored to this city. If Mr. George wants to conduct the canvass the way he is now doing I am sure I have no objections. If we cannot win our elections on Democratic principles and Democratic platforms we do not want to win at all. If Mr. George believes that personalities will get votes for him he can keep right along. If he is such a great lover of justice as he pretends to be the grand jury room is open to him now just the same as it would be if he were mayor. If I have offended him by coming home and doing my duty as a citizen and a Democrat I am very sorry he takes a different view of the matter than I do. So long as I live and have my health I shall continue to do my duty as a citizen of this city."

George's Devoted Friend McGlynn.

New Yory, Oct. 23.—The following statement has been issued from the George headquarters as the views of Dr. McGlynn in this campaign and stated by him personally: "I am in the greatest sympathy with Mr. George's movement; more than I ever was before, if that is possible, and regret that I cannot see Mr. George oftener, as I am 60 miles out of town. I have the greatest esteem for Mr. George, his character and his personality, and my adherence to his doctrines has increased and not declined. I told the New York Journal and Advertiser some time ago that I would vote for a good man if the Democrats had sense enough to put up one, for instance, Henry George, for whom it would be the dearest wish of my life to vote. Mr. George's nomination was therefore a great delight to me.

"I have been asked more than once if I would take the stump for Mr. George, and I have said that I thought it better not to do so, in view of my duties as pastor and in view of my promise to the archbishop. I have come into town expressly for the purpose of paying my respects to Mr. George and affirming my thorough devotion to him and his cause, and I earnestly desire and pray that he shall win. I believe that Mr. George ought to be elected and pray that he shall be, because he is a thoroughly honest man; because he is a man of vast knowledge; because he is a man who will do right though heaven fall; because he is a man who will give us a thoroughly honest and at the same time liberal administration. He is a man who will never sacrifice principle for mere policy. He will appoint none but thoroughly honest men to positions, but, over and above all, I believe that Mr. George's nomination and the campaign he is making—better still his election—will give an immense impetus to the principles he is advocating. I believe that Mr. George is the foremost teacher of proper principles."

DRAGGED WITH A ROPE

Startling Innovation on Disciplinary Methods at a Fort.

Captain Confesses to Use of Drastic Measures.

Private Kicked and Prodded and Then Dragged on His Back.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Were it not for the corroboration furnished by the accused, himself, and Lieutenant Bernard, the story given by Private Charles Hammond, before the court of inquiry, of his treatment by Captain Leonard A. Lovering would be given little credence. That an officer could be guilty of the harshness confessed by Lovering when army regulations are so comprehensive and stringent is the reason for astonishment. The methods employed for subduing a perverse spirit were such as are expected in countries where despotism rules.

Private Hammond did not present a very healthy appearance when he appeared Friday before the court of inquiry ordered to investigate his charges. He was pale and gaunt, having undergone imprisonment for two weeks on bread and water besides the corporal punishment administered to him for his contumacy.

Under oath he testified as follows: "On Friday I refused to go to work and was ordered from the guard room into a cell. Saturday I was told that I would have to appear before a court of inquiry. I told the officer of the guard that they would have to carry me there. Captain Lovering came with two members of the guard, and orders were given to drag me out. Lovering put his heel over my head and threatened to stamp me in the face. Then I was allowed to walk back to my cell.

"Later Captain Lovering returned to my cell with four sentries and gave the order, 'Go in and jerk that man out.' Two of the sentries stepped in and threw me to the floor. Captain Lovering kicked me in the side while I was down four times with his foot, and as I was dragged over the door sill he gave me a violent kick on the shoulder. He slapped me over the right side to the left and prodded me twice with his foot, and gave me three more violent kicks about the shoulders. During this scene he cursed me constantly, using the most vile oaths.

"Lovering then ordered a rope and gave orders to have my feet tied. I placed my hands behind my head. Then Lovering and the sentries began to drag me. He prodded me in the right hand with his sword and then in the shoulder. I was dragged to the guard room and out to the porch, where, with one hard jerk, they started me down the stone steps on my back across the road. I was dragged over pavements and roads to company D's steps, up the steps, then down again across the pavement, and finally up into the adjutant's office. Lieutenant Colonel Bainbridge ordered the rope untied just as I was called before the court. At 2 o'clock I asked to be taken to the hospital, where the doctor sponged the blood from the sword stabs. On Monday I was called before Captain Richards and have since been in solitary confinement on bread and water."

Hammond was asked why he left his barracks at Plattsburg, N. Y. The witness replied: "I had some private business in Chicago, and as the inspector general was at the barracks I knew the request for release would be refused. I had no intention of deserting, and reported at Fort Sheridan so as not to be so ranked." He refused to appear before the court because he expected punishment when he returned to his own post and did not consider that the Fort Sheridan court had any right to try him.

Captain Lovering was then recalled. He made no attempt to deny any of the accusing witness's statements. He admitted that by his orders Hammond had been dragged from the guard house, and that he had pricked him with his sword; also that he had struck the soldier. None of this treatment, Captain Lovering said, had injured Hammond in the least. The methods used, in his opinion, were necessary for the discipline of the army.

Declines Mediation.

Madrid, Oct. 23.—At the meeting of the cabinet council yesterday the drift of the proposed reply to the note of the United States on Cuba was under discussion and was unanimously approved. The reply explains that General Weyler has been replaced for reasons, and includes a statement of the government's decision to grant autonomy to Cuba and a protest against fillibustering expeditions from the United States. The council also approved unanimously the proposal introduced by the minister for the colonies to grant amnesty to political prisoners in Cuba and Porto Rico.

The papers say that the government "declines mediation of any kind in the Cuban question."

Floods In Italy.

Rome, Oct. 23.—Unusually heavy rains and floods have done serious damage in the districts about Ancona, on the Adriatic, Recanati, in Macerata, on the Musono, and at Rimini. All these towns are partially submerged.

Railway transportation has been stopped; at many points the bridges have collapsed, and in the Ancona district there has been some loss of life. The government has assigned troops to assist the inhabitants in saving property and in the work of repairs.

Didn't Discuss Politics.

Washington, Oct. 23.—In reference to reports to the effect that the former queen, Liliuokalani, has formally abdicated in favor of her niece, Princess Kaiulani, the ex-queen in person, gave the following authorized statement: "There is no truth in any report that she has abdicated. No official action has been taken during the meeting of Kaiulani with her. The question of politics did not pass their lips."

Regarded as Harmless.

THE NEW HALL.

It Is Well Appointed and a Beauty.

The new Music hall building on Hancock street, is practically completed and will be opened to the public for the first time on Thursday evening, Nov 4, with a grand entertainment. With the completion of this new building Quincy has something that has long been needed, viz: a large, well appointed public hall. There are several public halls in Quincy but they are all small, and since the old Town hall was given up to the use of the City Council there has been nothing of any size outside of Guy's coliseum which was poorly adapted.

The new building, in which the hall is located, is on the westerly side of Hancock street, within a few minutes' walk of City Square, and is easily accessible to electric cars, which pass the door. The lower part of the building is given up to business purposes. Here there are two stores with 16 feet front and 60 feet deep, one with 22 feet front and 40 feet deep and one large store with 3,000 feet of floor space.

The main entrance to the public hall is through large double doors on the northerly end of the building. These open into a small vestibule, at the left of which is a ticket office. An eight-foot stairway leads to the hall floor, ending in a large vestibule.

From this vestibule three doors, two single and one double, enter to the large hall. At the right. doors lead to the cloak room which is provided with 500 boxes, and to the gentlemen's toilet room, while a door at the left leads to the ladies' parlor or retiring room.

Both the ladies' and the gentlemen's rooms have doors leading to the hall, thus making five exits on this end. The ante-rooms are also supplied with set-bowls and other sanitary arrangements.

THE HALL ITSELF.

The hall is 57 by 70 feet, and will be supplied with individual opera chairs. It will have a seating capacity of 725. The walls are tinted in terra cotta, while the ceiling is laid out in panels and is handsomely frescoed, the ground work being tinted a light blue.

Ten large windows furnish ample light during the day and at night 178 incandescent lights will shed forth their bright light. Thirty-eight of these lights are in the centre chandeliers while four smaller chandeliers are supplied with twelve lights each. There are also wall chandeliers upon the sides of the hall.

At the southerly end of building is a large, well appointed stage, having a frontage of 27 feet and a depth of 20 feet.

A door on either side of the stage furnishes entrance from the main hall to the dressing rooms. That on the left leading to the wing of the stage from which a stairway leads to a dressing room above, while the door at the mright leads to a small vestibule fro which there is an exit to the rear of the building. Another stairway also leads to a dressing room above. At the right of the stage, facing the hall is a scene shifters and promptors stand while at the left is a little jog in which is located the switch board, which controls the lights. Both of the stage dressing rooms are supplied with set wash bowls and other sanitary arrangments.

THE SCENERY.

The stage scenerny, which is being painted by John Graham, the well known senic artist of New York, will be something elaborate. There will be five drop curtains besides the front curtain, representing a landscape, garden, woods and street scenes. There will also be stage sittings for a cottage, prison, parlor, chamber and kitchen.

Overlooking the hall is a large gallery which is reached by a broad stairway leading from the vestibule at the entrance to the main hall. This gallery has a seating capacity of 272 and will also be supplied with individual opera chairs which are arranged on an incline so that those in the rear command a good view of the stage.

At the back of the gallery is a door leading to an iron fire escape. There is, also, a wide, well lighted, enclosed passage way leading from the front vestibule to the banquet hall which will be located in the room now used as Republican headquarters.

The interior finish of the hall is of Florida ash, natural finish, the floor being of Georgia matched hard pine.

WELL VENTILATED.

The building is heated by steam. Ample arrangements are also made for ventilation, two large air shafts opening from in front of the stage to the hall these shafts leading to a four feet shaft running to the top of the building.

In the rear of the building, some ten feet away is a large boiler, which will furnish steam for heating the building and will also run an electric lighting plant which will generate the electricity to light the entire building. Should, for any reason, the electric lights fail, the building can be lighted by gas.

The contractor was Mr. F. A. Perkins and it is worthy of note that, as far as possible, all work was done by Quincy labor. The wiring for electric lights was by Mr. E. S. Beckford. The plumbing and gas fitting work was by J. J. Keniley.

Many inquiries have already been made for the hall and there is not the shadow of a doubt but what the promoters, the Quincy Real Estate Trust, will find it a paying investment. Mr. A. G. Durgin has been the "leading spirit," but all the directors should receive the thanks of the entire community for their enterprise.

Officer Roughly Handled.

Officer Henry A. Patterson, of East Milton, was badly used up yesterday afternoon by a gang of Italians. Many complaints have been made to the police for fruit stealing and the officers had been instructed to arrest all parties found stealing fruit. Friday afteruoon, while officer Patterson was passing the Walter B. Beck estate on Adams street, he saw two Italians stealing fruit and promptly placed them under arrest. He was taking them to the patrol box when another gang of five Italians made an assault on the officer to rescue the two prisoners. As Officer Patterson was not on duty at the time and unarmed, he was no match for half a dozen excited Italians. He, however, fought to retain his prisoners. In the fight which ensued Officer Patterson was badly used up. A rock was thrown which struck him under the eye cutting a deep gash. The force of the blow knocked him down, and while down the gang jumped on him and kicked him, knocking out several teeth and breaking his nose. After half killing the officer the Italians made their escape. Although badly used up and covered with blood he managed to reach the patrol box and sent in a "hurry-up call."

Chief Pierce and a squad of officers quickly responded and they scoured the Italian shanties but were unable last night to get hold of the man who threw the rock, as the Italians deny all knowledge of who the parties were.

The Italians are a part of the gang employed putting in the Metropolitan water pipes and have given the officers more or less trouble ever ince they commenced work.

Chief Pierce is determined to bring the guilty parties to justice and it is hoped that he will succeed.

Kingston a Hustler.

The address of T. H. Kingston, the lowest bidder for the pumping station of the sewer system, was given yesterday as Boston, but Mr. Kingston is a well known resident of Norfolk Downs. He has figured upon several public buildings, and as among the lowest for the High school, but this will be his first work for the city. It will not be an all winter's job for he tells the Ledger that with good weather he may complete the station and 100-foot chimney in thirty days. The sewer system will soon be a reality.

TIRRELL—HOYT—In Quincy, Oct. 21, by Rev. Carlton P. Mills, Mr. Arthur P. Tirrell to Miss Ida Hoyt, both of Quincy.

Y. M. C. A. RECEPTION

A Welcome to be Extended Secretary Hoehn and Wife.

This "Birthday Party" is given to you;
'Tis something novel, 'tis something new,
We send you each a little sack—
Please either send or bring it back
With as many cents as you are years old;
We promise the number will never be told.
The "Y. M. C. A." with greetings most hearty,
Feel sure you'll attend your own "Birthday Party."

Next Tuesday evening, the 26th inst., there will be a reception to welcome the new Y. M. C. A. Secretary, Mr. Hoehn. In connection with this welcome, there is to be a birthday party for the purpose of wiping out the debt incurred by moving and fixing up the new rooms. Bags will be distributed at the churches on Sunday, and it is hoped that all who are interested in the Association will return the bags on or before Tuesday evening with as many pennies as they are years old. It is hoped these bags will find a good many Methusellas, whom it will be remembered lived to the good old age of 969. Call yourself a thousand, or five hundred, or one hundred for this occasion, and return the pennies accordingly, and the debt will be easily annihilated. Come one, come all to the reception, and inspect the new rooms, enjoy a social time, and make the acquaintance of our new secretary and wife.

Q. H. S ALUMNI.

Head Master Tells of Advantages of Association.

The expectations of a good programme were fully realized by those who attended the quarterly meeting of the association of the Alumni of the Quincy High school last evening, at the school building. The address of Mr. Frederic Allison Tupper, the headmaster, was particularly entertaining, and is given below in full. The cornet solos of Mr. W. H. Baker of Chelsea were grand, he responding to one encore. Mr. Arthur R. Torrey, the tenor, sang with ease and was in good voice; he also was recalled. Miss Beckwith, '98, gave by special request "The Honor of the Woods" by Murray, and it lost none of its effectiveness upon repetition. Mrs. May Benson, '93, gave a pleasing piano selection, and Miss Ward, '98, favored the audience with the fine production which won her a prize at the prize speaking. President Battison introduced the artists, and Miss Florence G. Olney accompanied the musical numbers.

Mr. Tupper's address in type for this issue is crowded out and will appear Monday.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

is the most dangerous of all human ailments because its approach is unobservable. Its symptoms are common to other diseases, viz., Severe Headache, Backache, Dizziness, Sleeplessness, Blurred Vision, Dyspepsia, etc. Once let it get a firm hold on the system and it is difficult to dislodge. It is caused by inability of the kidneys to filter the Urea from the blood.

Yet it can be

CURED

I would first say that the action of Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills in my case was almost miraculous. In January, 1895, I was paralyzed on my left side. Shortly afterward my feet and limbs commenced swelling. A year ago I came here from Paducah to die at my daughter's home. I passed nearly a year of suffering and about February 1st, I was without hope. I had not lain down for months, was very badly swollen, my legs measured twenty-six inches round the calves. My urine contained over 40 per cent albumen, with other impurities. The first box of the pills removed nearly all the swelling, and I have gone to bed every night since. Now, after taking four boxes, I can walk a mile without stopping, and my general health is better than it has been for six years. I am still taking the medicine and do nothing but talk it. I have been the cause of quite a number of persons using it, with good results in every case. My doctor is using and recommending the pills. He was very much surprised at their action at first, having no faith in them. You can't know how thankful I am for my recovery, and my praise of the pills never ceases, wishing you all the success in the world. JOHN P. ZELNER, Crab Orchard, Ky. [Mr. Zelner, when he resided at Paducah, served as Sheriff and County Commissioner of McCracken County, Ky.]

The Art Exhibit at Atlantic.

The Art exhibition on Tuesday evening given by Rev. J. H. Whitaker and the artist and decorator, Mr. W. Jay Sanborn, for the benefit of the "experience social" of the Atlantic Memorial Congregational church was a great success and a very rare treat. The choicest of draperies, bric-a-brac, oils, carbons, tapestries, photographs and curios greeted the eye of the visitor at every step as he sauntered through the various salons with catalogue in hand, everything being arranged most tastefully in the apartments with their higly polished floors, Persian rugs and lovely furnishings.

One salon was noticeable having a frieze of dainty silk with a light green background arranged in waves while the entire walls were otherwise lined with fish-net which served as a background to the numerous pictures in the room and with various sea relics, crabs, spiders, star-fishes, etc., attached, gave a very pleasing and unique effect. Another salon had its walls wholly decorated with tapestries, and several very interesting ones were framed and exhibited. Couches with Bagdad coverings and cushions galore, a corner divan with Persian draperies, a pretty Holland lamp having as its base a Holland milk can, Roman scarfs and blankets, oriental drapes, Venetian lamps lighted and giving a dim, religious, light, a cast of Nike the headless statue of Winged Victory, and other objects too numerous to mention which Messrs. Whitaker and Sanborn secured in their travels abroad, feasted the aesthetic sense of the beholder and gave uncommon pleasure and satisfaction. The Misses Corinna Wilde, Laura Hall and Eleanor Nelson and Masters Howard Wade and Robert Nelson assisted in serving the ice cream. Several sofa cushions painted by Mr. Sanborn and a number of art studies were sold. Many in attendance have urged the gentlemen to repeat the exhibition which they may possibly do at some future time for the benefit of this same experience social in which they are deeply interested.

Much interest is being taken by our local amateurs in the annual cross country run of the Young Men's Christian Association to be held Thanksgiving day. Nearly all of last year's competitors and many others have already entered.

The new gymnasium affords an excellent opportunity or practice, which is being taken advantage of by the members.

—Mr. Walter E. Loud's violin recital is announced for Wednesday evening, Oct. 27 at 8 o'clock in Colonial hall, Savings Bank building. Mr. Loud is to be assisted by Miss Annie Dean, contralto and Mr. J. Herman Loud pianst, and an excellent programme has been prepared. Tickets can be purchased at Hearn's Drug store, and of Mr. Loud. 4t-1wp

A CARD.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cold or cough. We also warrant a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or no pay.

A. G. DURGIN,
Oct. 9—6m. G. A. LORING, Wollaston.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. TALK OF THE CITY.

South and West Quincy, Atlantic, Wollaston and the Point.

Mrs. Mary A. Wood is quite ill.

Today's game between the Atlantics and the High school has been cancelled.

The dance held at Music hall, Atlantic, last evening by the Alpha club was a success.

The friends of Miss Lucy Crane will be pleased to hear that she has recovered from her long illness and is able to be out again.

The directors of the Quincy Co-operative bank meet this evening at 8 o'clock to declare a dividend and for the retirement of shares.

Miss F. N. Locke displays at her home, No. 107 Washington street, a rich assortment of lace work. She gives private and class lessons in modern lace making.

The Altar society connected with the Wollaston Unitarian Sunday School held a successful sale at the home of Miss Helen Sibley on Grand View avenue, yesterday afternoon and even-

Mr. James H. Slade spoke interestingly to a good-sized audience of Democrats at the K. of H. hall, Wollaston, last evening, upon the issues involved in the coming election.

Mr. C. F. Derby, proprietor of the clothing store, is to become a resident of Quincy. He will occupy a house at Williams corner, and will move from Holbrook the first of November.

Mr. J. L. Gibbs is soon to sever his connection with the Cape Cod fish market, having accepted a position with the Swift Company at Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs will remove to that city.

Division 18 A. O. H., who have held a three days' bazaar at Hancock hall, this week closed with a social dance last evening which was largely attended. J P. Flannigan had charge of the floor, and was assisted by a large corps of aids.

There was a very large attendance Firday evening at the fair of the Swedish Lutheran church at Plumbers' hall. A pleasing entertainment was given during the evening consisting of vocal and instrumental music and readings. The fair will close tonight.

The funeral of the late Mrs. B. R. Redman of Atlantic was held from her home yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Geo. H. Hosmer of the Unitarian church of Neponset officiated at the services and was assisted by the Rev. J. H. Yeoman. The interment was at Mt. Auburn.

There was a good attendance at the opening service of the mission at the Swedish Congregational church last evening. The pastor Rev. C. A., Bjornbon, extended the welcome. The speakers were Rev. L. Anderson of Worcester, and Rev. J. E. Johnson of Campello. Another service will be held tonight at 7, and others at 10, 3 and 7 on Sunday.

Mr. Samuel T. Crosby of Hingham in his remarks after dinner at the Adams chapter, house warming at the John Adams birthplace on Tuesday said that besides the day being the birthday of John Adams it was also the anniversary of the Battle of Yorktown when 116 years ago Lord Cornwallis surrendered his sword to Gen. Benjamin Lincoln an ancestor of the speaker.

Mr. Alex. Rose of Centre street, was agreeably surprised at home last evening by about seventy-five of his friends from Quincy, Braintree and Boston. Whist and other games were indulged in. During the evening he was presented with a handsome gold watch chain. Alex. McIntosh, Robert Craig and Ernest Nelson are to be congratulated upon the success of the affair. Recitations, speechses and singing were enjoyed. The young people departed after bidding their friend Alex. "Always keep the chain in sight."

Relics.

Adams Chapter was presented on Tuesday with an old footstove, used by President John Adams and family, by Miss Elzabeth C. Adams; Mrs Annie Pike sent an old cow bell which has quite an interesting history being brought from England in 1762 by the Downing family of Maine. It is said it can be easily heard a mile in the woods and has a most musical note. Mrs. Mary Lawton loaned a flax wheel and Mr. Samuel T. Crosby of Hingham, a trammel and pot hooks. The big brass lined kettle used in the fire place is over a hundred years old, being used in the Field family for years and presented to Adams Chapter by Misses Mary and Susan Field, several months ago. Now that Adams Chapter has had John Adams birthpace restored an had such a good old-fashioned house warming as it had on Tuesday they will not rest until the house is properly furnished with furniture as ancient as the house. Already they are receiving many handsome donations.

October is treating us handsomely.

VISITATION.

Rural Lodge Gives Fine Exemplification of Work.

The annual visitation of the District Deputy Grand Master to Rural lodge is always an occasion for a large gathering of Masons of Quincy and vicinity, but the excellence of the work of the local lodge is widespread and last evening about 300 crowded their commodious rooms. About half of these were visitors representing over fifty lodges, including: North Star, Norfolk Union, Pequessett, King Solomon, Corner Stone, Konohasset, Sohegan, (N. H.,) Union, Revere, Columbian, St. James, Polar Star, Mayflower, Temple, Montgomery, Adelphi, Dalhousie, Rabonni, Lafayette, Orient, Washington, Macedonian, Puritan, Fraternal, (N. H.), Memphrenagog, Henry Price, Doirc, Paul Revere, St. George, Corner Stone, Orphans Hope, Satucket, Delta, St. Paul, Carleton, (St. Johns), Evening Star, Francais, (Va.), Wm. Parkman, Rising Star, Operative, (Scot.) St. Clements, (Scot.), Campello, Gate of the Temple, South Boston, Boston, Brooklyn, (Cal.), Greecian, (Me.)

J. W. —Rt. Wor. W. H. H. Soule.
Treas.—Wor. A. W. Alden.
Sec.—Wor. H. M. French.
Marshal—Wor. F. C. Granger.

Wor. Joseph L. Whiton and his officers were assisted by the Weber quartette, and there was a fine exemplification of the M. M. degree upon to candidates. It was an interesting fact that both the new members were sons of past masters and the fathers assisted in raising the sons.

A social followed at Faxon hall, where a grand spread was served by Henry Seiler of Boston, including salads, escalloped oysters, cream fritters, creams, sherbet, frozen pudding, cake, fruit, coffee and cigars.

Late cars were run at midnight.

INVASION OF LIBERTY.

Mr. Williams Describes It at His Rally In Woburn.

Says Remedy Lies In Proper Use of Ballot.

Injunction Cry Attacked by Senator Hoar at Worcester.

Woburn, Mass., Oct. 23.—The Democratic rally last night was an enthusiastic one, with an attendance which filled Lyceum hall. The permanent chairman was Jonathan C. Bla. The chief address was made by Mr. Williams, the other speaker being John A. O'Keefe, candidate for attorney general. Mr. Williams said: "How is liberty invaded, is the question that every voter should ask himself first, and answer first of all questions. Laws are made which it is our duty to obey, and under the laws we all delight to vote. The law is made by the people's representatives and placed upon the statute books, and then placed in two departments of our government for administration and execution. It is there then, if we are anxious to guard our liberties, our eyes should go first. It makes a great difference who appoints the police of the land; what men are selected as judges. So long as the police power is in the hands of special interests opposed to the rights of the people; so long as the courts are in the hands of men who have been trained to guard special interests, so long are the liberties of the people in danger; but when a part of the people rise up and declare that every public servant shall look first to the rights of the masses and second to the interests of a party then we shall have at last an executive and judiciary that will have more feeling for the rights of the people than we have known before in the land."

Mr. Williams then proceeded to explain "an extraordinary law of 1895" wherein the directors of a street railway company are allowed to name an unlimited number of employes as special police officers, thus providing "an army of men picked out by a corporation who have the full police power given them, and they may destroy life or maim our citizens, and the corporation which has practically appointed them is under no responsibility whatever. Now I am prepared to say that such a law as that could hardly be printed in the statute books of Turkey itself. The German people, much less the French, would have been in open revolt against such a law, and yet this patient people of ours stands by without a groan. It is our responsibility that such laws are passed, and it is because of such laws that I appeal for a party that will not allow such laws to be placed upon the statute books. (Applause). You have not forgotten Homestead, and only a few days ago we saw the law again perverted for a private company; and we see what may come to us in Massachusetts if such private armies are allowed to be established. Now I do not wish to inflame the passion of men against such an act as that of the sheriff at Lattimer, but I do wish to inflame the hearts and minds of freemen so that such methods shall not be required in a free land. I want to warn the people of this state that they must take matters into their own hands so that hereafter no man is given the authority of the law except one who is wholly interested in the maintenance of peace and order.

"Now let me point to the judiciary. How soon will it be before courts of equity will take charge of our offices and our elections? How soon will it be before the executive power sees to it that political perdisans are placed upon the bench? There is but one remedy, and that is to place in power only executives who will uphold the constitution and place on the bench men who cannot be suspected of such frame of mind as has displayed itself in some judges."

Republican Rally at Worcester.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 23.—The campaign was opened here last night by a rally by the Young Men's Republican club. The attendance was light, only 800, the slimmest attendance at a rally of Republicans for years. Senator Hoar paid his respects to the "schoolmaster candidate," who, he declared, was much more useful as a professor of Latin than as an aspiring politician. He devoted some time to the government by injunction cry of the Williams party, and charged that the remedy for the alleged evil had been provided by the Republican party in the restoration of conditions that assured good business.

General Guild scored the last Democratic congress for its defeat of the emigration bill in sustaining the presidential veto after the measure had passed both branches. He charged that the defeat of the bill was instigated by alien steamship lines, whose vessels should be forbidden from American ports.

Attorney General Knowlton replied to the statement made by George Fred Willams at Chicopee Thursday, that not one of the governors of Massachusetts duhing the past 25 years, with the possible exception of Butler, had dared to appoint a judge to the higher courts who was objected to by the railroad corporations of Massachusetts. Mr. Knowlton said that he knew of two governors who had dared to appoint men regardless of railroad influences, and those were Governor Greenhalge and Governor Wolcott. He expressed his opinion that Governor Russell was beyond such practices.

MADE A SETTLEMENT.

Three of the Brockton Manufacturers Agree to the Strikers' Terms.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 23.—Labor circles were greatly interested in a new development in the sole fasteners' strike last night, an incident which may foreshadow an early ending of the present troubles. The firms of E. Taylor & Co., F. E. White company and Joyce & Fletcher each made a settlement with their striking men. It has been predicted for a couple of days past that the strike was nearing a settlement, that is, a settlement in which the strikers would lose. The action of the three firms is just opposite to general expectations outside of unionism. Taylor & Co. had two operaters, the White company four and Joyce & Fletcher two. The terms of agreement are not known, but it is generally understood that the price will be two and one-quarter cents per pair, the wage contended for, and that when the men go back to work the non-union help hired to fill the strikers' places will be discharged.

To offset the encouraging announcement for the strikers it is admitted that six strikers have gone back to work, all being well-to-do workmen, and three of them non-union men. Several other strikers have weakened and would go back if they could get company, as they hardly dare to face the taunts of the strikers should they go in. The demonstrations which have occurred nightly at the factories were lacking last night, and the quietude was a matter of general comment.

Little Inclined to Sell.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 23.—The print cloth market is quiet and manufacturers are little inclined to dispose of goods at the present prices, doing so only for nearby delivery. The production for the week is 230,000 peices, and 169,000 pieces have been disposed of on the present basis. Of this amount 67,000 pieces are for immediate delivery and 102,000 pieces are for future shipment. The stock of goods on hand has been increased by about 70,000 pieces. Although bidders are offering 2 7-16 cents for deliveries in January and later, manufacturers are declining to sell on that basis. The spot market is quiet at 2 3-8 cents.

Bad Man Imprisoned.

Boston, Oct. 23.—Thomas McCloskey, alias Thomas Geary, alias Frank Murphy, a pal of the noted "Dutchy" DeGroot, was sentenced by Judge Sheldon of the superior court to 25 years in state prison yesterday. McCloskey was arrested on the night of July 9 on suspicion of having committed a burglary, as he had in his possession one of the most complete sets of burglars' tools ever seen in this part of the country. Before he was overpowered he drew a revolver and attempted to shoot the arresting officer. In view of the bad record of the prisoner Judge Sheldon imposed the above sentence.

The Upsilon Fraternity.

Northampton, Mass., Oct. 23.—The convention of the Delta Upsilon fraternity closed yesterday. These officers were elected: President, Judge E. B. Sherman of Chicago, Middlebury, '69; vice presidents, C. H. Bumstead, Pennsylvania university, '98; C. H. Roe, Michigan, '99; C. W. Chester, Pennsylvania, '97; secretary, Goldwin Goldsmith, Columbia, '96; orator, Rev. Dr. McEwen, Adelbert, '78; poet, W. L. Corbin, Amherst, '96; historian, Stephen Cone, Syracuse, '94. It was voted not to adopt any grip, considering the fraternity is a non-secret one.

Gutted by Flames.

Bangor, Me., Oct. 23.—Fire last night in a wooden block of three stories, with iron casing, owned by F. W. Hill, was gutted by fierce flames, which made a grand illumination and alarmed the people, as it had gotten a great headway when discovered, and there were several wooden buildings near it. The fire was confined to the block, owing to the iron casing. The total loss is about $4000.

He Saw Many Summers.

Kenebunkport, Me., Oct. 23.—Joseph Manual died here yesterday, aged about 100 years. He leaves a widow, to whom he had been married 77 years, also a large family of children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Schroeder on His Rights.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The official correspondence relating to the case of Mgr. Schroder, which attracted such attention, became available Friday. The letter of Mgr. Schroeder submitted to the board of directors of the Catholic university is addressed to Bishop Horstman of Cleveland, who acted as attorney for the monsignor before the board. It was written shortly before the final meeting of the board, and concludes as follows:

"If I am a stumbling block, I am convinced that I became such because I did what I thought and still think to have been my duty. But as a Catholic and priest I also realize the fact that on account of the sentiments and prejudices existing in regard to me in this house, peace will not be re-established without a sacrifice on my part. And I understand that from this standpoint members of the board may find it advisable for me to make that sacrifice. I am ready to do so, and will send my resignation to his eminence, the chancellor, within or at the end of the scholastic year, '97-'98. Meanwhile I must enjoy all the rights and privileges that belong to my position as professor of dogmatic theology."

Played Ten Innings.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 23.—The Baltimore and All-American teams played here yesterday afternoon before a great crowd. The game was hotly contested and darkness prevented its completion, the game being called on a tied score in the 10th inning. Score:

Baltimore .....0 4 0 4 0 0 0 1 0 0—9
All-Americans .....0 0 3 0 0 0 0 2 1 3—9

Batteries—Horton and Clark; Powell and Donahue.

Desertion Caused Paresis.

New York, Oct. 23.—Belle Clifton, 42 years old, was taken to Bellevue hospital yesterday afternoon violently insane. For 20 years past Miss Clifton has been on the stage as a song and dance artist. Eight years ago she married Samuel Dearin, a musical performer, and he deserted her three years ago, going to Paris. His action preyed on the woman's mind and she developed paresis.

On a Charge of Abduction.

Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 23.—After a search for a week Frank and Henry Mendore were arrested near Prattsville for abducting Katie Clum, a white girl, aged 16, whom they took to Tea Neck, N. J., after Henry and the girl were married at Haverstraw. The two men, who are colored, went back to Prattsville after the girl had been taken from them by her father.

Advance In Wages Sought.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23.—The 250 employes of the dress goods manufactory of F. A. Bochman & Co. went out on strike on Friday because of the refusal of the firm to grant their demand for an increase of 10 per cent in wages. The firm declares that the condition of the business does not permit an increase at this time.

WOLCOTT'S SUGGESTIONS.

How Great Britain Might Help the Bimetallic Cause.

London, Oct. 23.—The correspondence in regard to the bimetallic proposals of the United States monetary commission was issued by the British foreign office last night, and the following account of the negotiations was taken from it.

SENATOR WOLCOTT.

On the invitation of the British premier, Senator Wolcott explained that the object of the mission was to ascertain in advance of an international conference, if one sohuld be called, the views of the government. The envoys had reached a complete and satisfactory understanding with the French government for free coinage at a ratio of 15 1-2 The senator then presented the following list of contributions which he suggested that Great Britain might make:

First, the opening of the Indian mints and the repeal of the order making the sovereign legal tender in India.

Second, placing one-fifth of the bullion in the issue department of the Bank of England in silver.

Third, raising the legal tender limit of silver to say £10 and issuing 20 shilling notes based on silver, which shall be legal tender, and the retirement, in graduation or otherwise, of the 10 shilling gold pieces and the substitution of paper based on silver.

Fourth, an agreement to coin annually so much silver, the amount to be left open.

Fifth, the opening of the English mints to the coinage of rupees and to the coinage of British dollars which shall be full legal tender in the straits settlement and other silver standard colonies, and tenders in the united kingdom to the limit of silver legal tender.

Sixth, colonial action and the coinage of silver in Egypt.

Seventh, something having the general scope of the Huskisson plan.

The meeting then closed and it was understood by the parties that the absence of the French ambassador, Baron De Courcel, from the proceedings should be regarded as informal and a second conference was held. The French ambassador said that France was ready to reopen her mints to the coinage of silver if the commercial nations adopted the same course, and he advocated at great length the ratio of 15 1-2; but, he explained, France would not consider the reopening of the mints of India alone as being sufficinet guarantee to permit the French government to reopen the French mints to the free coinage of silver.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach then announced definitely that Great Britain would not agree to open the English mints to the unlimited coinage of silver, and that whatever views he and his colleagues might separately hold regarding bimetallism, he could say that they were united on this point.

Baron De Courcel said, as a personal suggestion, that among contributions he though Great Britain should open the Indian mints and also agree to purchase £10,000,000 of silver for a series of years.

Senator Wolcott accepted the proposal that the British government should make this purchase with proper safeguards and provisions as to the place and manner of its use.

Since this conference the British government has been considering the proposals and finally made the reply handed to the United States ambassador Thursday.

Nearly Thirty More Cases.

New Orleans, Oct. 23.—The new cases of yellow fever Friday night had nearly reached 30, and there had been no fewer than five deaths, of which one was that of a distinguished citizen, Rev. Dr. Purser of the Valence Street Baptist church. Three cases developed in the asylum for destitute orphan boys, and it seems now as if every institution of this character in the city will be infected to some extent before the disease is stamped out. Eight or more have already reported cases. Several cases appear in houses that were previously infected.

There have been rumors of frost in the outlying country. Captain Kerkam of the weather bureau says, however, that the temperature in Louisiana has been entirely too high for frost, and that none need be expected until November.

Slash In Salaries.

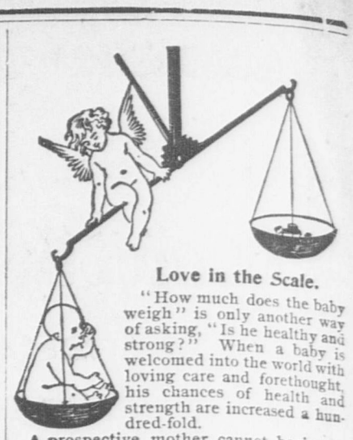
Chicago, Oct. 23.—Salaries were slashed at yesterday's meeting of the Western Baseball league. Hereafter the amount paid to any one player for one month's work in any club of the league will be limited to $200. When the total salary list of a club exceeds $2400 per month that club will be subject to a fine of $500 for each month in which the salary list exceeds the limit. The question of the eighth club is still unsettled, but the general sentiment is in favor of retaining the old circuit and leaving the franchise in Grand Rapids.

Universalists Denounced.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Capital punishment and the use of fermented wine at communion were denounced at the Universalist general convention yesterday. Although there were no dissenting voices when reference was made to the official condemnation of the use of wine at communion, it was decided that such an important step should not be taken without careful consideration, and the resolution was laid on the table for action at the convention of 1899.

Solace For Lacerated Heart.

Danville, Ills., Oct. 23.—Carrie Corbett, aged 32, a widow, was awarded $54,333 damages for breach of promise. John Gernand, aged 71, a retired capitalist, was the defendant.



Love in the Scale.

"How much does the baby weigh" is only another way of asking, "Is he healthy and strong?" When a baby is welcomed into the world with loving care and forethought, his chances of health and strength are increased a hundred-fold.

A prospective mother cannot begin too early to look after her own health and physical condition. This is sure to be reflected in the baby. Any weakness or nervous depression, or lack of vigor on the mother's part should be overcome early during the expectant time by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which promotes the perfect health and strength of the organism specially concerned in motherhood.

It makes the coming of baby absolutely safe and comparatively free from pain; renders the mother strong and cheerful, and transmits healthy constitutional vigor to the child.

No other medicine in the world has been such an unqualified blessing to mothers and their children. It is the one positive specific for all weak and diseased conditions of the feminine organism. It is the only medicine of its kind devised for this one purpose by a trained and educated specialist in this particular field.

Mrs. F. B. Cannings, of No. 4320 Humphrey St., St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I am now a happy mother of a fine, healthy baby girl. Feel that your 'Favorite Prescription' and little 'Pellets' have done me more good than anything I have ever taken. Three months previous to my confinement I began using your medicine. I took three bottles of the 'Prescription.' Consequences were I was only in labor forty-five minutes. With my first baby I suffered 18 hours, then had to lose him. He was very delicate and only lived 12 hours. For two years I suffered untold agony, and had two miscarriages. The 'Favorite Prescription' saved both my child and myself. My baby is not yet three weeks old and I do not think I ever felt better in my life."

A TRIBUTE OF LOVE.

It Was Very Beautiful, but Some Parts of It Needed Explanation.

"Your tribute to your departed friend," said the editor of The Family Mourner to the tall woman in black, "was beautiful in many respects, but I thought I would let you explain some parts of it to me before we ran it."

"Yes, sir."

"For instance, take these two lines:

"We buried him deep in a hummocky hole
Which was small for his body, but large for his soul.

"Saying nothing about the peculiar, hummocky character of the hole, why do you refer to it as large for his soul?"

"Did you know Mr. Bargins?"

"I did not, madam, have that pleasure, but"—

"Well, if you had known him, you would understand why I said the hole was large enough. His soul will never find the sides of it."

"Ah, yes; I see. And take these lines as another illustration:

"He's gone from us far to the mist hidden sphere.
We hope there's peace there, but we know there's peace here.

"The meaning of these lines seemed a little ambiguous to me. They have a beauty which is all their own, but perhaps you would kindly explain their exact intent to me."

"Sir, I am Mr. Bargins' widow, and"—

"Say no more; say no more. I comprehend. And that fact, too, doubtless explains these two lines:

"I would not the angels should hear my low moan,
For I feel that at present they've grief of their own.

"We will let that pass, for I think I see, but this verse—do I—that is, the meaning seems clear, but—well, we will read it:

"The widow looked charming in shimmering black,
While a tear down her nose made the calcimine crack,
And her fair bosom heaved like the aqueous sheet—

Her address at present is 16 Potts street.

"Madam, if I compre"—

"Sir, I am a poor, forlorn"—

"S-s-sh!"

"What is it?"

"Won't you give it away?"

"Never."

"S-s-sh! The foreman wants to be married."

They were wedded last week. And what could be sweeter than the tale of love as it is told and retold in this sad old world?—San Francisco Examiner.

Little Giffin.

[A ballad that ought to rank with the rarest gems of modern martial poetry.—P. H. Hayne.]

Out of the focal and foremost fire,
Out of the hospital walls as dire,
Smitten of grapeshot and gangrene
(Eighteenth battle and he sixteen),
Specter such as we seldom see,
Little Giffin of Tennessee!

"Take him and welcome!" the surgeon said.
"Much your doctor can help the dead!"
And so we took him and brought him where
The balm was sweet on the summer air,
And we laid him down on a wholesome bed,
Utter Lazarus, heel to head!

Weary war with the bated breath,
Skeleton boy against skeleton death,
Months of torture—how many such!—
Weary weeks of the stick and crutch,
Still a glint in the steel blue eye
Spoke of the spirit that wouldn't die

And didn't. Nay, more, in death's despite,
The crippled skeleton learned to write—
"Dear mother," at first, of course, and then,
"Dear captain," inquiring about the "men;"
Captain's answer: "Of eighty and five
Giffin and I are left alive!

"Johnston's pressed at the front, they say!"
Little Giffin was up and away.
A tear, his first, as he bade goodby,
Dimmed the glint of his steel blue eye.
"I'll write if spared." There was news of a fight,
But none of Giffin. He did not write!

I sometimes fancy that were I a king
Of the princely knights of the Golden Ring,
With the song of the minstrel in mine ear
And the tender legend that trembles here,
I'd give the best on his bended knee,
The whitest soul of my chivalry,
For little Giffin of Tennessee.

—Dr. Francis O. Ticknor

If They but Could!

How often we hear discontented ones talk
Of grand opportunities lost
And how by the waves of condemnable luck
They've ever been ruthlessly tossed.
They'll tell in a sort of disconsolate way
Of laboring always in vain
And how they would handle the contract if they Could live their lives over again.

The man who has failed in his business affairs,
The prisoner locked in his cell,
The wedded ones battling with family cares,
All have the same story to tell
Wherever we go that disconsolate cry
We hear in a pitiful strain,
"You'd see matters different with me if I Could live my life over again."

We should never weep over milk that is spilled.
But hustle around for some more.
We cannot recall opportunities killed
Nor chances blown off from our shore.
This word of advice is the best we can give:
Don't over the past sit and brood,
But tackle the future determined to live
The balance of life as you should.

THE AGOUTI'S FATE.

A Result of Disobedience and Too Much Curiosity.

Mrs. Agouti and her small family lived in a hole under a great rock on a hillside. Hill and rock and hole all belonged to a lovely island in the Caribbean sea, near the north coast of South America. So far as the hill and the rock and the hole were concerned they might have been in an island in the temperate zone, but their surroundings proclaimed them all to be in the tropics. There were beautiful palms and tree ferns on the hillsides, and the weather was always warm—always, even in midwinter—and snow and ice were never known in this island, except that the latter was sometimes brought in vessels.

And as for Mrs. Agouti herself, she, too, was different from any animal we have in our country—in shape something like a rabbit, but with only the least bit of a tail, and something like a muskrat in color, but as afraid of the water as the muskrat is devoted to it. In fact, she was a curious compound of rabbit, muskrat and woodchuck. An agouti, in fact—called gouti for short by the people of that island—is just the funniest little animal you ever saw. Her family consisted of her husband, Mr. Gouti, who was generally roaming about looking for something to eat, not only for himself, but for his little family of youngsters, Miss and Master Gouti, and two wee babies as yet without their eyes open to this world.

On the morning in which we are supposed to make their acquaintance, Master Gouti, being of a venturesome disposition, wanted to roam abroad, like his father, and find out something about the things at the bottom of the hill. It was a sweet, delicious morning, with dew on the grass blades and perfume in the air. Master Gouti stuck his nose out from beneath the overhanging shelf of rock and sniffed with his sensitive nostrils, which were always in motion, like those of a hare. And then he went back and told his mother, who was in the inner chamber attending to the wants of the babies, what a perfectly beautiful morning it was and couldn't he just take a little run down to the banks of the stream at the foot of the hill, where the air was so cool and where there were so many roots and vegetables that he could find to eat?

Mrs. Gouti thought for a moment and then said: "Well, if you will promise not to go near that great clump of bamboos there by the spring you can run out for half an hour or so, but be sure to come back before the sun gets hot."

Master Gouti promised readily enough, being like some little boys and girls in that respect, and skipped off down the hill perfectly delighted. If you had seen him hopping off so happily, looking as sweet as a little brown angel, you couldn't help but love him; he was so good and cunning. He hadn't any suspicion of harm coming to him, because he was so innocent himself and didn't believe he had an enemy in all the world.

When he reached the foot of the hill and saw the bright stream rippling over the rocks and pebbles and the broad leaved plants growing lush and rank on its borders, he was delighted. He darted in under one of the great plants and stopped a minute to consider which way he ought to go. Peering out, he saw the bamboo clump with its immense shafts, like great spears, decorated with bright green leaves, and he scanned it curiously, wondering why he should not venture near it.

Now, Mrs. Gouti had not told him why, for she was a woman with theories as to the bringing up of children, and one of her theories was to keep a child as innocent of the evil all about him as long as you can. And so she never told the little weakling that the reason why she didn't want him to go near the bamboos was because it was the lair of a big and dreadful serpent, an immense anaconda, who would gobble him up in a minute. She wished she had afterward when the day went by and the night came again without any signs of her small son returning.

But here I am anticipating events again when I meant merely to have told the story just as it happened. Well, Master Gouti wondered why his mother had forbidden him to go into the bamboo clump or near it, and he also wondered what she meant by "near," whether a rod, or a foot, or less. He might go a little nearer, he thought, anyway, without disobeying, and so he hopped out from the shelter of the big leaf and then stopped and viewed the bunch of bamboos. There was nothing forbidding in their appearance, so he hopped just a little nearer, until he was within a yard or so of the rattling spears and falling leaves. Then he was suddenly transfixed by a bright round eye like a glittering diamond set in the head of what we know was the anaconda. But he didn't know it, he was so innocent, and he was drawn nearer and nearer, until all at once he saw a long and loathsome body behind the head, twined about the bamboo shafts for ever so many feet of their length.

Then the glittering eye fixed him, rold and shivering. A huge red mouth opened like a great red oven, big enough to take him in without an effort, and not only him, but all his family.

He may then have realized the peril he was in and have tried to back out, but it was too late. There was such a fascination about that big red cavern, with its rows of pointed teeth, and, above all, the glittering diamond eye, that he couldn't move for the life of him.

Then the anactonda eemed to say, "Jump in, my litle frisend, jump right in." And the big red cavern looked so warm and comfortable that Master Gouti made one leap, his last on earth, and—well, that was all. The big mouth closed with a terrible snap, the diamond eye twinkled with satisfaction, and if you want to know anything more about the adventures of Master Gouti you will have to ask the anaconda.

How It Made Confusion In a Telegraph System.

A short time ago the telegraph system of Japan was thrown into utter confusion without apparent cause. Every morning for several days it was impossible to get a message over the line during the early hours. Then an odd word here and there managed to struggle along the bewitched wires, arriving at some point for which, as it was afterward discovered, it was not intended.

After a little more delay messages did get through, but this did not relieve the strained nerves of the officials, for the telegrams were of the most bewildering nature.

The first few telegrams of this description were sent to the addresses in the belief that they were code messages. One man nearly went out of his mind on receiving one such telegram, and was only saved by discovering that it came from a place where he had no correspondent and must therefore be a hoax or a blunder.

As the morning wore on the messages became fairly accurate. This continued until the puzzled officials became convinced that some steps must be taken to ascertain the cause, as the scared employees, whose superstitious fears made them dread to manipulate the instruments, showed signs of revolt, and the public were complaining loudly.

A party of linemen, under the superintendence of a Japanese expert, was sent out to throughly overhaul the wires on the trunk line. They examined the line for a considerable distance without discovering any clew, but one morning, when about 50 miles from Tokyo, the expert saw a nest of gigantic spiders which had spun their webs about the wires and in some instances down to the ground.

On putting out his hand to brush away one of these webs he received a shock, and then the cause of all the trouble was clear to him. The morning dew made the spiders' webs good conductors of electricity, and the current was carried to earth in the early morning, and the drying of the gossamer threads here and there accounted for the jumbling of messages later in the day.

He Saw the Minister.

There was once a Scotch farmer, famed for his strength, who was often challenged by people from a distance who had heard of his reputation. One day there arrived from London Lord D., a well known amateur pugilist. He found the Scot working in a field. "Friend," said his lordship after first tying his horse to a tree, "I have come a long way to see which of us is the better wrestler." Without saying a word the farmer seized him round the middle, pitched him over the hedge and resumed his work. His lordship slowly gathered himself together, whereupon the farmer said, "Well, have you anything more to say to me?" "No," replied Lord D., "but perhaps you'll be so good as to throw me my horse."

Who Is a Candidate?

The following advertisement is published in an English church paper: "Home wanted for an unmanageable boy, aged 10, with a clergyman. Strict disciplinarian, accustomed and willing to birch. Liberal terms; sings in the choir."

A GREAT SURPRISE IS IN STORE

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee as about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O. builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

Teachers' Convention.

The 51st convention of the Norfolk County Teachers' Association was opened in Lorimer hall, Tremont Temple, Boston, yesterday, with President D. F. Howard of Dedham in the chair. The reports of the secretary by and treasurer were read and the following committees appointed: Nomination, James N. Nowland, E. H. Brackett, Ruth E. Sanders; necrology, F. H. Dean; on membership, T. B. Pollard; attendance, A. W. Armstrong; anditors, J. Finch and E. W. Cross.

Miss Anna B. Thompson of Thayer Academy read a paper on "History as a Disciplinary Study." She believed that the interest taken in that study to be largely dependent upon the teacher. History is not a statement of facts, but a collection of problems. In the study of the subject she believed, with Aristotle, that it was best to begin at the beginning and observe things as they grow in history, as in all other things.

Referring to the idea that Harvard College was antagonistic to the public schools, she paid its professors a very high compliment, and said that if the teachers would only help each other as Harvard wanted to help the public schools, there would be little trouble and great results. Miss Thompson advocated original work in the study of history, and told of a class digest she had improvised. On one side of the notebook she had her pupils write in black ink what the teachers had helped them to find out, and on the other side of the page she had the pupil write in red ink what he or she had found out by research or 'study concerning the subject in hand.

Mr. E. D. Daniels of Franklin was elected president. Mr. F. E. Tupper of Quincy is one of the councillors.

Castle Square Theatre.

In the selection of Pinero's charming comedy, "Sweet Lavender" as the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre for the coming week, Director Tony Cummings has again made a happy choice and the patrons of this popular play-house may safely anticipate a most enjoyable occasion in witnessing its performance. The play has been greatly favored by the Boston public in its earlier performances here and its clever lines, bright scenes and laughable incidents easily explain its extended career as a stage attraction. The action passes in the chambers of Messrs. Phenyl and Hale, Brain Court, Temple, London and the story from dealing with nobody's business comes to effect everybody's business. The cast arranged is as follows: Richard Phenyl, Mr. J. H. Gilmour; Horace Bream, Tony Cummings, Geoffrey Wedderburn, William Humphrey; Clement Hale, Charles Mackay; Dr. Delancey, Wm. C. Masson; Mr. Bugler, Lindsay Morison; Minnie Gilfillian, Grace Atwell; Lavender, Mary Sanders; Mrs. Gilfillian, Adele LaGros. Bronson Howards "Shenandoah will follow as the Castle Square attraction for the week beginnning Monday, November 1st.

Keith's Theatre.

Lillian Burkhart, who is the acknowledged leader of the legitimate people who have sought the vaudeville stage, is to be the star of the programme announced for the entertainment of Mr. Keith's patrons the week of Oct. 25. Miss Burkhart will present a new piece entitled "Extravagance," in which she will have the support of that conscientious and clever young actor, Forrest Mood, who supported her last season. Among the other entertainers at Keith's next week will be Servais LeRoy, the deft sleight-of-hand man who has made such a big hit the current week, his palming and other deceits recalling the late Alexander Herrman; Mlle. Olive a clever juggler; the Edisons, instrumentalists; Harding and Ah Sid, the clown and Chinaman acrobats; Ward and Curran, comedians and vocalists, and Charles Kenna, monologue comedian. In the biograph, which continues to hold a firm place as one of our best features of the weekly programme, will be new motion pictures, including several additional local views. The handsome new Tremont street entrance continues to attract large numbers of out-of-town visitors.

—The Federation of labor in Chicago refused to take part in a demonstration over the executed anarchists. This is sensible and reassuring. Anarchy is as deadly a foe to the interests of labor as corporate tyranny.

A petition is being circulated in East Braintree asking for the widening of Commercial street from the conjunction of Union street to the Weymouth line. The plan has thus far met with but little opposition

The Jonas Perkins School Association held a regular meeting last Tuesday evening. Miss Ella Macgregor read an original paper entitled "The lights and shadows of Scottish life." Miss Jessie Macgregor read a selection from "Tillyloss Scandal," and Miss MacGillvary gave some fine vocal and instrumental selections

Thirty-three years ago last Wednesday night our townsman, Mr. R. M. Sanborn, was on picket duty at Cedar Creek. He remembers the details of the battle very vividly—Sheridan's ride and how glad the boys were to see the hero. Of the five men in the company who were on picket duty that night, Mr. Sanborn is the only one living.

The Ladies' Aid society connected with the Universalist church held a harvest supper in Red Men's hall, Wednesday evening; about 100 enjoyed a fine supper. Following the supper dancing was indulged in. Cuff's orchestra furnished music. Fifty couple enjoyed the merry dance.

Study for Christian Endeavorers.

The Advisory Committee of the Boston Christian Endeavor Union has recommended what may prove a great plan of Bible study for the young people of the vicinity of Boston.

The design is to have the Endeavorers all about the city as far as possible, come into a class in connection with the Gordon Training School, at the Clarendon street Baptist church, on Thursday evening, beginning October 28th, for which arrangements are now being made. The work expected of the class is not taxing but rather agreeable, and yet it is said, a person of average intelligence with a fair amount of application, can practically master the whole of the Old or New Testament as the case may be, in one term of instruction of thirty to thirty-five weeks.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, —The present Republican state central committee is thoroughly in touch with the masses of Republican voters throughout the state. They are frequently seen, by repesentative members, at state committee headquarters, and they are always welcome. The highest desire of the committee is to do just what the masses of the party want done, and all their efforts are to that end. And if any member of the party, no matter in what capacity, wants any advice or assistance, he can get both with the genuine desire to give all practical help, by calling at headquarters or by writing to them.

—The Boston Herald says, "an alarm is expressed in quarters which it is needless to specify because a Roman Catholic in the person of Atty.-Gen. McKenna is to be appointed to the United States supreme bench. There is a Roman Catholic already there in the person of Judge White, and there have been other eminent men of the same faith there before him. We believe their presence there has never interfered with the course of justice. The reported worriment is unnecessary.—Herald.

TRAIN GOES INTO THE HUDSON RIVER

Twenty-Eight Persons Meet Death on the New York Central Railroad.

Garrisons, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Just at the break of day Sunday the New York and Boston special express train over the New York Central and Hudson River railroad was thrown from the track into the Hudson river at Corbin's basin, two miles below here.

There were 96 passengers and 14 trainhands on board. No list was obtained of those who were in the sleeping cars. Twenty-three persons are known to be dead, and the list is not yet complete. The bodies recovered are all at Cold Spring, where the coroner has his office. The engine and express car are in 50 feet of water. The combination baggage and smoking car and one day coach are submerged.

There was nothing to presage the terrible accident which so suddenly deprived these unfortunates of life. The New York Central train which left Buffalo Saturday night had progressed for nearly nine-tenths of the distance towards its destination. The engineer and his fireman had just noted the gray dawn breaking in the east and the light streak of red betokening the sun's appearance, when the great engine, a servant on the rails and a devil off, plunged into the depths of the river. Neither engineer nor fireman will ever tell the story of the terrible moment, for with his hand on the throttle, the engineer plunged with his engine to the river bottom and the fireman too was at his post. Behind them came the express car, the combination car and the sleepers, and these piled on top of the engine.

It is known that it was a little foggy and that the track was not visible, but if there was any break in the lines of steel it must have been of very recent happening, for only an hour before there had passed over it a heavy train laden with human freight; neither is there an explanation ready, and all is conjecture.

The section of the road was supposed to be the very best on the entire division. There was a retaining wall all along the bank, and while the tide was high, yet it was not unprecedented.

What seems to have happened was that underneath the tracks and the ties the heavy wall had given way, and when the great weight of the engine struck the unsupported tracks it went crashing through the rest of the wall and toppled over in the river. Then there happened what on the railroad at any other time would have caused disaster, but now proved a very blessing. As the train plunged over the embankment the coupling that held the last three of the six sleepers broke and they miraculously remained on the broken track. In that way some 60 lives were saved.

Of eye witnesses there were none except the crew of a tug passing with a tow. They saw the train with its lights as it came flashing around the curves, and then saw the greater part of it go into the river. Some of the cars with closed windows floated and the tug, whistling for help, cast off its hawser and started to the rescue.

A porter jumped from one of the cars that remained on the track and ran into the yard of Augustus Kah's house near where the accident occurred and stood screaming for help and moaning that the train was in the river and that the passengers were drowned. Kah hastily dressed himself and, getting a boat, rowed with the porter to the scene of the accident. As they turned a point in the bank they came upon the express car and the combination car floating about 20 feet from shore, but sinking every minute. One man was taken from the top of the car and efforts were made to rescue those inside who might be alive. A few were gotten out, the passengers left upon the track making a human bridge to the shore to take the wounded over. The day coach and smoker had gone down in the deeper water, and rescue was impossible. In the latter coach the conditions must have been horrible. The car turned completely over, and the passenger end of it was in the deep water, while the baggage end stood up towards the surface. The men in that lower end must have fought like fiends for a brief period, for the bodies when taken out were a mass of wounds.

The closing scene of the first day of this tragedy is drawn around a common car that stands near the scene of the accident, where nearly a score of badly mutilated bodies, none of them yet claimed by friends, are lying in a long row, grewsome evidences of a disaster, the greatest that has ever occurred on this railroad.

The wrecked train was known as the state express. It left Buffalo at 7 o'clock Saturday night and was due in New York at 7 Sunday morning. The train was hauled by engine 872, and consisted of one American express car, one composite baggage and smoking car, one day coach and six sleepers. This was the make-up of the train when it left Poughkeepsie, the last stopping place before the disaster, at 5:15 a. m. At this time there were in the smoker, in addition to the baggage man, Herman Acker of Peekskill, who was in his compartment; eight Chinamen, en route from the Canadian border to New York, and a middle aged man, supposed to be Thomas Reilly of St. Louis. All of these, excepting the baggage master, perished. The day coach contained 18 or 20 passengers, many of whom were women and children. How many of these escaped is not known, but at least 12 were drowned or killed in this car. Behind the coach were the six sleepers, the Glenalpine, with 15 passengers; the Hermes with 12, the Niobe with 11, the Diana with about 15, Anita, nearly full, and Backet River with no passengers. The total cargo of human freight consisted of something over 100 people.

At Fiskill the train lessened its speed, as it is customary to run from that point to Tarrytown at the rate of about 25 miles an hour. Most of the passengers were asleep, those in the sleepers being in their berths, while the occupants of the coach and smoker were for the most part doubled up in their seats. Just how the train met its awful fate will never be fully known, for the men who first felt the danger, Engineer John Foyle and Fireman John Tompkins, lie dead in the cab of their locomotive at the bottom of the river. Conductor Parish, who was in charge of the train, and who was making up his report in one of the cars when the crash came, was rendered unconscious by a blow on the head. When he recovered he was three seats ahead of the one in which he had been sitting.

One of the few occupants of the coach who escaped with his life was Frank J. Degan, a wood finisher of New York. His left eye was cut by broken glass and his body was slightly bruised. Mr. Degan made this statement: "With my friend, W. H. G. Myers of Passaic, N. J., who was killed in the car from which I escaped, I had been to Poughkeepsie. We boarded the train at that place and took a seat in the coach. Three other people got on at Poughkeepsie, one a woman and the two others were men, one of whom looked like a railroad employe. As near as I can judge there were 18 people in the coach, most of them being women and children, and nearly all were asleep. Myers and I sat in the middle of the car.

"When the crash came the car gave a great lurch and rolled over on its side. The water rushed in, and almost instantly the lights went out. I knew we were in the river, and the car seemed to plough through the water for some time after it was submerged. The car was tilted over on one side and I managed to reach the fanlight overhead and cling to it until help came. I heard people in the back part of the car groaning as if they were pinned fast. It was so dark that I could see no one, and I think the passengers must have been drowned like rats.

"After awhile—it seemed an age—I heard people on the top of the car, and an ax crashed through the roof. The noise of that ax in the splintered timbers made the sweetest music I ever heard in my life. Soon they had a hole cut in the roof and pulled me out through it. A man and a boy, father and son, were also rescued in the same way, but I know of no other occupant of the coach escaping. The car at this time was floating, but fast filling with water, and we were put ashore in a rowboat. I am sure that my friend Myers was drowned."

Augustus Kah, living near the scene of the wreck, gives this description: "It was about five minutes before 6 when I was awakened by someone in my yard calling for help. Looking out of my window, I saw a sleeping car porter, who shouted: 'For God's sake, man, if you own a boat come quickly. Our train is in the river and people are drowning.' I dressed myself, and accompanied by the porter, got into my rowboat and rowed around the curve to where the train was in the river. When we reached the cars, which were submerged nearly to their roofs, the engine being entirely out of sight, the crews of the tugboats were making efforts to save the passengers. The first man I saw them take out was, I think, the agent of the express car. The first persons we succeeded in rescuing were two Chinamen who were sitting on the roof of the smoker. One had his arm broken. We put them ashore, and then took three more persons off the top of another car. At the same time people in their underclothes were being taken out of the sleeping cars by the crews of the several tugs. One man on shore, with an arm cut off, was dying, and we made his last moments as comfortable as possible. I want to say that the porters showed great bravery and saved many lives."

One of the trainmen who survived the disaster made it his first duty to run to the nearest signal tower to telegraph for help. The place where the wreck occurred is rather isolated. It is just at the entrance to what is known as King's cut, three miles south of Garrisons and five miles north of Peekskill.

The other express trains were following close behind the ill-fated state express, and the engine of one of them was sent to Garrisons for General Manager Toucey, who lives there, while the other engine hurried to Peekskill for medical aid. Mr. Toucey was the first official of the railroad at the scene, reaching there at 7:30. The engine which brought him there returned to Cold Spring and brought back Drs. Winslow, Fillebrown and Murdock. In the meantime Drs. Charles and Percy Mason, Tilden, Sowden and Lynn had arrived, and all the doctors were soon at work among the injured.

Of the dramatic horror of the situation in the combination car when it left the track and struck the water perhaps the best account is to be had from the story of Hermann Acker of Peekskill, the baggageman. Acker was suffering from shock when seen, but the scenes he graphically described. He said: "John Shaw, agent for the Westcott Express company, and myself were in the compartment, when suddenly there was a terrible bump and then a rush of water that forced us toward the roof of the car. The car seemed to turn completely over and had filled with water to within about a foot of the top. When we struck the car whirled completely around, the end which the Chinese occupied being under water, while our end was tilted up. We swam around and got a ventilator open and, noting the situation, got an ax from a tool box which was afloat and smashed a panel in the end of the car. We crawled through the hole to the roof of the car, and a rowboat came out and took us ashore."

Acker has been a railroad man many years and has escaped from three serious accidents. His arm is badly cut and his body bruised. Shaw escaped injury.

The first victim of the disaster was found on shore, dying. He was badly bruised about the head and body, and his right arm was cut off near the shoulder, the bleeding stump alone showing. The member was not found. The man was placed on a train and taken to Peekskill, but died on the way. The body was that of a middle-aged man.

Five men were rescued from the top of a floating car a few minutes after the accident. They were put on a train and taken to Peekskill, about 10 miles down the road, where they were admitted to the hospital and their wounds dressed. Of the five three were Chinamen and none was fatally injured. The Americans were: John E. Ryan, Jersey City, 30 years old, badly lacerated hands, shoulder and knee; Clarence Morgan of Aurora, N. Y., aged 26, clerk in the office of the comptroller of the New York Central railroad, broken shoulder. The three Chinamen were suffering from bad scalp wounds. Morgan escaped from a floating car through a broken panel and swam ashore. Though badly hurt, he helped another passenger out.

When a diver arrived from New York this afternoon the first thing he did was to go through the submerged sleeping cars. He reported that he found no bodies, but said that one or more might be under the berths, which were in great confusion. It was three o'clock before the derrick and hoisting engine could raise the combination car, consisting of the smoker and baggage compartments, to such a position that the top of it was out of water. Slowly the big load began to rise, and in a few minutes it had been turned over so that the windows were clear of the water. The body of a man came out of a window as this car was being brought to the shore. A boat was near by, and the oarsmen secured the body. A derrick next pulled the day coach to the shore, and the searching parties were able to reach it. Although it is known there were many more in the coach, but six bodies were recovered, and two of these were women. They were all placed side by side.

General Manager Toucey gave the following statement as to the cause of the disaster: "The accident was caused by the bed of the railroad being washed out in some inexplicable manner. In this undermined condition the track sank as soon as the weight of the train was put on it, and the embankment, giving way, the train was of course precipitated into the river. Such a condition as this we have never looked for. Trains have been running over this spot for years and years without accident or difficulty of any kind, and this piece of track was considered as good as any section of the road. Not only was the roadbed the hardest kind of an embankment, but it was strengthened by a retaining water wall of solid masonry three feet thick."

Other railroad officials were of the opinion that a quicksand foundation of some kind below the water line was responsible for the sinking of the roadbed.

The terrible evidences of the frightful wreck were visible at the point two miles below here Sunday night under intensely spectacular circumstances. The great wrecking car torch threw a red glare over the men busily engaged in tearing apart the wreckage to get at any bodies that might be under it. The men worked with as much energy as if there were living creatures to be saved, and ever and anon would bring to the surface a body cramped into abnormal position, and then renew their efforts. On the top of the partly submerged cars a gang of men chopped away with axes, and the huge derrick from the wrecking train tore out the mahogany trimmings, ceilings and berths in the endeavor to recover somebody's loved one from the wreck. On shore a great gang of men worked to get the inside or up track so repaired that there would be no trouble in getting trains through.

Before noon General Manager Toucey had formed an estimate of the number of dead, which he placed at 28, and no change in this estimate was made during the day.

City Council Business.

Two public hearings will be given by the City Council at its meeting tonight, one on the petition of the Quincy & Boston street railway for the location for another track on Hancock street between City Square and Adams street, and between Squantum street and the Boston line; and the other on the petition of the Boston, Milton and Brocktn street railway for a location on Randolph avenue between the Randolph and Milton lines.

The appointment of election officers for Ward Four will come up for confirmation. The order granting the New England Telephone Co. a location for poles on Squantum street and Newbury avenue will come up for its second reading. The committee on Licenses will report upon a number of petitions for minor licenses, and there will be other business.

Three Arrested.

Three of the Italians who are said to be part of the gang which assaulted Officer Henry A. Patterson at East Milton last week Friday have been arrested and were arraigned in court this morning, at which time the cases against them were continued until next Monday, as Officer Patterson is a yet unable to appear in court. Chief of Police Pierce, who has personally conducted the case, feels sure that the three men he has arrested can tell all about the case if they were not the parties who committed the brutal assault. Officer Patterson is reported as comfortable, and will probably be all right again in a few days, although he will be sore for some time yet.

Several members of the Dedham Cycle club, including six ladies, made a half-century run to Brockton and return on Sunday. There were 24 in the slow class which started at 10 A. M. and 8 in the fast class at 12.30. They passed through Quincy upon the return about 5 o'clock, reaching Dedham at 5.40.

THE ADVANTAGES

Of a High School Alumni Association in Quincy.

The address of Mr. Frederic Allison Tupper at the entertainment of the association of the Alumni of the Quincy High school on Friday evening will interest former pupils of the school. It is given in full:

Ladies and Gentlemen of the Quincy High School Alumni:

Your President, Mr. Battison, has asked me to talk about eight minutes on The Advantages of an Alumni Association." On such a subject, in the words of Cicero, it is more difficult to get to the end of a speech than it is to find a beginning." So that not so much abundance of material as a proper limit has to be sought."

When to the surprise and gratification of the citizens of Rochester, Madame Janauschek, the great actress began her starring tour at that place, one of the pleased citizens said to her: "Madame Janauschek will you kindly inform us why you saw fit to honor Rochester so highly by beginning your tour here?" "Mein Gott," replied the great actress whose English was not absolutely perfect, "I must begin somevare." It is just so in making a speech—one must begin somewhere. And so plunging into the midst of the subject, I would say that alumni associations are valuable in the first place, because they sustain and enew old friendships. When all has been said and done, are not these old school friendships among the richest of our possessions? In the words of Frederick W. Loring, Harvard Class of '70:

"Shall we forget each other's truth,
When May yields to December?
Dear friend, pray God preserve our youth
And grant that we may e'er remember.
In years to come, will form new ties,
Yet leave the old unbroken,
When to our children's lips arise
The words that we before have spoken.
Nor need we ever fear to see
Death come, this knot to sever;
A High School friendship! It shall be
For life, dear comrade, and forever."

It seems to me that all of us might make this world a pleasanter place to live in, if we should try to do our best in a social way. Most of us in this respect "have done those things that which we ought not to have done and have left undone the things that we ought to have done," even if our daily work keeps us constantly employed. Still the busiest people are always the ones that can do the most in every department of activity.

Secondly, our association forms a connecting link between the older graduates and the more recent ones. Such pleasant association with the constantly renewed classes of graduates is profitable in the extreme. It keeps us all young. Have five, ten, fifteen, twenty, or more, years slipped by, since we were graduated? It cannot be: these blooming young faces refute the slanders of time. We can say with Holmes:

"Hang the almanac's cheat and the catalogue's spite!
Old time is a liar! we're twenty tonight."

The fountain of perpetual youth is found in just such associations as ours. To be with the young is to be young. If I might venture to add a beatitude to that sacred list I would say: Blessed are the young in heart, for theirs is the Kingdom of earth and of heaven."

Third. We teachers need the encouragement that you and you alone can give us. The teacher's life is not a bed of roses without thorns. We are not carried to the skies on flowery beds of ease. So wearing is the profession of teachers that one of our poets has said:

"Uneasy lie the heads of all that rule,
His most of all whose kingdom is a school"

And so, I say, we need the encouragement of our alumni. We like to feel that we had something to do with your success in life; that, while we may not hope to acquire riches in our profession, we may yet be so useful, and so as respectable as the members of any other calling. We like to feel that whatever dreams, ambitious dreams, we may have had, that we are sure of realities like your sympathy and your warm regard—realities, I may say, vastly more real and more desirable, than countless aims supposed by many to be more practical. Practical—the very word has been so abused that its mention sends a shudder down one's spinal column as we think of that tremendous but practical man, Mr. Gradgrind, in Dickens's "Hard Times," "In this life," he says "we want nothing but facts, sir nothing but Facts," but the Angles of Love, and Beauty, and Truth, teach lessons far different from this.

Many years ago it was my privilege to hear the late Bishop Brooks of glorious memory. I was a sophomore at Harvard then, so that you may easily understand, that all this was long ago. But I remember the text: "Son of Man stand upon thy feet." And, oh, what a bracing, manly sermon it was. I have thought of it a hundred times and always with profit and pleasure alike. And so it seems to me that you graduates ought to come back to our school from time to time to catch again the inspiration of former days. If you were proud of your school in the past, you have still greater reason to be proud of it now. It stands today among the best schools in New Enland, and it is a real honor to be a graduate. Its success has attracted very wide attention, and though it has increased 170 per cent. in five years, it is still going forward, "conquering and to conquer."

And last, for I must not exceed my time, our association is valuable from the fact that we members have duties as well as privileges. It is our duty to stand as a unit for the interests of higher education in our grand old historical city; to stand for the best and most liberal methods of disseminating the truth, with enthusiasm, without favoritism, without prejudice.

At this point, Mr. President, it was my intention to conclude my remarks but today I attended the Norfolk County Teachers' Convention where I heard sentiments expressed that I cannot permit to pass by without an emphatic protest. Mr. Charles D. Hine, Secretary of the Connecticut State Board of Education, in his address on "High School Reform," advocated the elimination of Latin and Greek from the High school course. Mr. President, knowing the high disciplinary, linguistic, and literary value of those languages, I offer an energetic protest against any such incono celstic and anti-civilizing proposition.

At some future time, it would give me pleasure to discuss at length the classical question before this association, tonight I will say only this: Is it not a strange coincidence that a very large proportion of America's literary men of the first class have been classically educated and that a college education has so often proved the stepping stone to national greatness?

And then Mr. Bailey, the much admired Scituate humorist, made some grave strictures on the lack of enthusiasm in High schools. He may have been unfortunate in his experience. Certainly so, so far as our Quincy High school is concerned, the charge is as false as it well could be. Is it lack of enthusiasm that crowds our halls with 425 pupils, that support our Golden Rod, our Debating society and every subject taught in the school? Is it lack of enthusiasm that sends the gallant boys of our foot ball team through the rush lines of their opponents? Is it lack of enthusiasm that supports our prize contests, and our school orchestra? That sends our boys and girls to Harvard, to Technology, to Radcliffe, to Boston University and to the Normal schools? If all this is lack of enthusiasm, let us have some more "lack" just like it, for the highest enthusiasm itself could do no better. I thank you for your very kind attention.

The Measure of Life.

Rev. Charles H. Porter of Hingham, the son of Quincy's first mayor, preached in Boston on Sunday at the Young Men's Christian Union. The Herald gives the following abstract:

Men are rewarded in this world for "work done;" and it is not always that we measure superficially—we measure naturally against the standard of usefulness. But the honest motive is too often only used to curse a life which has been a failure.. I hold that individually the significance of a life to itself and to the world in the last analysis must be measured by the motive lying at its heart. The real value of a soul is according to its personal intrinsic worth.

The fairest deed may spring from the selfish motive; some sad failure may be the fruit of a heroic struggle for the right which failed. The opportunities for bearing life's fruitage are terribly unequal. Achievement is better than insignificance; but justice demands that the measurement of a life must be taken from the motives which, in either success or failure, struggles for expression.

The evil and the good men do must live after them; it cannot be interred with their bones. The idea of the actual waste in life's effectiveness must be wrong. Goodness, wherever it is born, has the greatness element of permanency. Even quicker than the wrong does the right reflect itself from life to life. The ultimate result of personal force of character is ineradicable, however modestly it be expressed, and the true measure of our life—the judgment of its final worth—only he can know who looketh on the heart.

Mayor Hall.

The name of John O. Hall, prominently mentioned a few years ago in connection with the mayoralty is again favorably considered in some quarters as the Republican candidate. Mr. Hall has been City Auditor since the incorporation of the city, and is well acquainted with wants and needs of all departments of the city. City Auditor Hall would make Quincy an excellent mayor.

FREEDOM PARTY.

Frank S. Merrill Handsomely Remembered by Friends.

On Saturday Mr. Frank S. Merrill of Wollaston was twenty-one years old. Frank is a native Wollastonian, having been born there in 1876. From his infancy he has been known to his playmates and friends as "Tot." It is queer how an odd nickname will stick to a person through thick and thin.

In order to appropriately observe Frank's twenty-first anniversary, Mr. Frank L. Merril, his father, gave an informal party at his residence on Woodbine street on Saturday evening. It was an informal affair, and a very jolly one, too. All of Tot's friends, and there are a great many, called and paid their respects. Beneath this seemingly informal party there was a big surprise in store for the recipient. It came in the shape of a beautiful upright piano which was presented by father to son. The presentation speech was made by Mr. Charles R. Sherman. Mr. Sherman's remarks were timely and highly complimentary. At the conclusion of his address Mr. G. F. Turner presented to young Mr. Merrill on behalf of himself and shopmates at the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co.'s works a pair of solid gold link cuff buttons.

There was plenty of good music by Metcalf's orhchestra, Mr. Willis E. Turner, pianist; the Quincy Quartette, Mr. J. E. Glover, Mr. Wm. C. Wormington, Mr. J. C. Pierce and Mr. G. F. Turner, Miss McKay, pianist; Miss Farrell, violinst; Mr. Herbert Cook, banjoist; and Miss Bolgher, vocalist. Mr. Thomas Raiche read a few selections in his usual pleasing manner.

Among those who were present besides those previously mentioned were noticed Mr. Walter Anderson, Mr. Albert Gardner, Mr. Edgar Tirrell, Mr. David Horne, Mr. Leslie Smith, Mr. Charles E. Anderson, Mr. Wallace Todd, Mr. John Lingley, Mr. Austin Sutherland, Mr. Joseph Page, Mr. Swiftie Decelle, Miss Sparrow, Miss Ferguson, Miss Humphrey, the Misses Waite, Miss McAlevy, Miss Watson, Miss Todd, Miss Hoyt, Miss Bisson, Mrs. George Turner, Mr. George Dealey, Mr. Charles H. Sargent, Mr. Fred'k Bent and Mr. James Giles.

Golf Tournament.

There was a large number of entries and some very goods scores in the open tournament of the Wollaston Golf club on Saturday. R. B. Porter of Quincy made the best gross score, (87), but large handicaps put four others ahead of him on the net score, and Messrs. Royce, Freeman and Wright were tied for first place with 83.

In the summary which follows all the players are members of the Wollaston club where no club is mentioned; N. C. stands for Newton Centre, Cam. for Cambridge, All. for Allston, and Nor. for Norfolk.

A Bonnie Scotch Lassie

or a braw Scotch laddie—ask either of them what oatmeal is and mark the reply you'll get.

Of a certainty you'll hear of Burns, and Scott, and Robert Bruce—and well right will the boast of Scottish prominence with either pen or sword be justified by the facts.

Possibly oatmeal hasn't made Scotland what she is, but of a truth the consumption of that grain has been coincident, at least, with Scottish power of brain and brawn.

Oatmeal and other grains are highly desirable food, particularly on the breakfast table.

We carry in stock everything that the market affords in the cereal food line, and here are just a few prices.

Only a few years ago the ordinary grocery store sold one or two preparations of oats, and the sale was very limited. We now carry more than a dozen varieties of oat preparations, and no breakfast table is complete without a dish of Oatmeal and Cream. We recommend Rolled Oats in bulk as economical, and the large quantity we sell insures fresh goods always.

The first section of the proposed law, imposing a tax on occupants of habitations reads:

"On and after the first day of May, in the year eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, there shall annually be assessed and collected in each city and town within the Commonwealth, upon every occupant of a habitation situated within such city or town, a tax of ten per cent. of the annual rental value of such habitation in excess of four hundred dollars. If any person is the occupant of more than one such habitation, there shall be deducted from the annual rental value of each such habitation a proportional part of four hundred dollars, according to the number of such habitations, and the tax shall be assessed upon the balance of the annual rental value of each.

"A habitation, for the purpose of this act, shall mean a building of that part of a building used as a place of abode by one or more persons forming a single household, with so much of the land and outbuildings about or connected therewith as is used in connection with the house for the purposes of residence, but excluding so much of the building, land and outbuildings as is used exclusively for purposes of trade, business or a profession, or for agriculture or other gainful occupation; if different parts of any building are used as places of abode for separate households, the part used by each household shall be deemed a separate habitation, and in any building used as a hotel, inn, apartment house or lodging house, each room or suite of rooms used as a place of abode for a guest or lodger having no household, or for several guests or lodgers together forming a single household, shall be deemed a separate habitation; each habitation in a building shall include all parts of the building and all land and all outbuildings to the exclusive use of which in connection with such habitation the occupant is entitled, and a proportionate share of all parts of the building, all land and all outbuildings to the use of which in connection therewith such occupant is entitled in common with others, such proportion being determined by the share of use to which each is entitled.

"Every person shall be deemed the occupant of the habitation within the meaning of this act who, as the head of the household, occupies by himself or others as a place of abode for himself, his family or dependents, or keeps for use as such a place of abode, such habitation, as owner or tenant, for a period of three months or more in the year preceding the first day of May; but if during the year such person permanently and in goon faith gives up the use of one habitation which he has so occupied, and occupies for three months or more prior to the first day of May another habitation situated in the same or in a different city or town in the Commonwealth, he shall be deemed the occupant of that one of said habitations which he has last so occupied.

"If two or more persons occupy a habitation in common under such circumstances that no one of them is a member of a household of which another of them is the head, then such tax shall be assessed to each upon such part of his pro rata share of the annual rental value of such habitation as exceeds four hundred dollars."

TODAY'S COURT.

John F. Parrott and Luther A. Parrott were arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Cases continued one week.

James E. McClusky of Quincy and Michael Carmody of Milton were each fined $5 for drunkenness.

Muschiarito San Bastiano, Carmino Moito and Giuseppe Furcineto were arraigned for assault with a dangerous weapon upon Officer Henry A. Patterson at Milton. Cases continued until next Monday, each being held in $500.

The continued case of George W. Rackerman for the sale of sixteen short lobsters at Quincy, was called. This is another case where two ladies, whose homes are in Bridgewater, came to Hough's Neck at the request of Mrs. Rena Hill, who also furnished the money, and went to Rackerman's place and bought lobsters. Upon their return with two packages of lobsters Mrs. Hill took them to her sleeping room where she kept them until morning when she sent for Charles N. Hunt, the agent of the fish and game commission. This is the second time that Mrs. Hill has got parties from out of town to come to Quincy and sent them to Rackerman's place to purchase short lobsters, and it was evidently done in the spirit of revenge, her husband having been arrested and fined early in the season for selling short lobsters. Rackerman was fined $80. Appealed.

Inian Lunbrano was arraigned for the larceny of two stone drills from Ernest Bizzazzaro at Quincy. Case continued until Thursday.

The Casper Struck a Reef.

Point Arena, Cal., Oct. 25.—Close under the rocky cliffs where she met her doom lies, bottom upward, the torn and battered hull of the ill-fated steamer schooner Casper, which was wrecked early Saturday morning on a treacherous reef. Of the crew of 15 there remain but two known survivors, Captain Anfindsen and Sailor Larsen. So far but one body has been found, which was identified as the remains of Chief Engineer Oppuseman. A sharp lookout is being kept for floating corpses, however. The Casper struck the reef inside the whistling buoy, only a few yards from that danger signal. After capsizing the ship was carried over the rocks nearly a mile distant by the force of the heavy waves.

Fire In Four Places.

Newton, Mass., Oct. 25.—An attempt at incendiarism was frustrated at Newton Highlands early Sunday morning. Lillian McKenzie was awakened to find the house full of smoke, and an alarm was sounded from box 54. On the arrival of the department, fire was discovered in four different places in the cellar. The woodwork and waste material had been saturated with kerosene, and the fire had made good progress. The damage was about $200.

Y. M. C. A. RECEPTION

A Welcome to be Extended Secretary Hoehn and Wife.

This "Birthday Party" is given to you;
'Tis something novel, 'tis something new,
We send you each a little sack—
Please either send or bring it back
With as many cents as you are years old;
We promise the number will never be told.
The "Y. M. C. A." with greetings most hearty,
Feel sure you'll attend your own "Birthday Party."

Next Tuesday evening, the 26th inst., there will be a reception to welcome the new Y. M. C. A. Secretary, Mr. Hoehn. In connection with this welcome, there is to be a birthday party for the purpose of wiping out the debt incurred by moving and fixing up the new rooms. Bags will be distributed at the churches on Sunday, and it is hoped that all who are interested in the Association will return the bags on or before Tuesday evening with as many pennies as they are years old. It is hoped these bags will find a good many Methusellas, whom it will be remembered lived to the good old age of 969. Call yourself a thousand, or five hundred, or one hundred for this occasion, and return the pennies accordingly, and the debt will be easily annihilated. Come one, come all to the reception, and inspect the new rooms, enjoy a social time, and make the acquaintance of our new secretary and wife.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. Extraordinary Scene In a Lynn Grocery Saturday Night.

Three Desperadoes, Masked and Armed, Took Possession.

Bookkeeper and Clerks Forced to Part With Their Money.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 25.—The entire city is alarmed by the boldness of a holdup that occurred Saturday night, and it is safe to say that there will be a big demand for revolvers for a few days.

Three desperadoes, heavily masked and otherwise disguised, and carrying revolvers in each hand, entered the grocery store of Allen F. Bartlett, on Sagamore street, near Newhall, at 9:30, and succeeded in holding the clerks and other persons in the store at bay while the bookkeeper and clerks were ordered to deliver over such money as they had in their possession.

Cash drawers were also rifled, and a driver of one of the delivery wagons, who happened to arrive just as the robbers were looting the store, was compelled to enter the store and surrender the valuables in his possession. In all over $100 was secured, but the robbers failed to examine the safe, which contained a large amount of money. No shots were fired. There was no need of any shots, for the occupants of the store were so completely cowed by the desperadoes before they could realize their situation that they were easy victims.

The greatest excitement prevailed when the story of the robbery became known, and Mayor Ramsdell authorized a reward of $— for the apprehension of one or more of the desperadoes.

Sunday the police discovered in the yard of a house two doors from Bartlett's store two long duck coats, which had never been worn more than once or twice, and to which a part of the original tag was attached. On the buttons of the coats was the firm name, "Coburn & Whitman." They also found a pair of blue overalls and a jumper, black with light stripes, both new. This clothing answers the description of that worn by the men who were concerned in the holdup. Several of the people who were in the store at the time of the holdup visited the police station, but failed to identify Patrick Hart, who was arrested Sunday morning on suspicion.

Hole In His Abdomen.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 25.—While squirrel hunting Sunday morning on the Gifford farm, across the pond from this city, David St. George, 29 years old, was fatally shot by his brother, Clement, aged 25. The two, with another brother, had gone into the woods for squirrels, and had just shot one. Mr. Gifford, the owner of the land, was attracted by the shot and ordered them off.

As they started away, David, who was walking ahead, turned to speak to Clement, just as the latter lowered his shotgun to take out an empty shell. The trigger caught in his clothing, and the other barrel of the gun was discharged, the full charge lodging in David's abdomen, tearing a fearful hole. The injured man was brought to the city in a wagon and died in the afternoon. He leaves a widow and four children.

One Man Drowned.

Wickford, R. I., Oct. 25.—James Sullivan of the battleship Massachusetts was drowned Sunday off the cliff at Narragansett Pier by the capsizing of a boat. Sullivan and a companion named Robert Neagel of Boston were on their way to New York in a sail boat procured in Newport, and the boat in gybing upset. Neagel reached the shore in an exhausted condition, but has now recovered. Captain Church of the life saving station instituted a search for the body, but without success. Neagel states that the pair, being short of funds, started with the boat, hoping to reach New York before the expiration of Sullivan's furlough, which was nearly up.

She Returned With Her Mother.

Boston, Oct. 25.—Miss Gertrude L. Stewart came here with Samuel L. Lewis, otherwise Harry Arnold, from Albany, N. Y., on Oct. 18, and was arrested together with Lewis late Saturday afternoon. Soon after the arrest the Albany police were notified, and the girl's mother and elder sister came here yesterday morning, and an affecting scene occurred. The prisoner expressed a willingness to return with her mother and was discharged from custody. Without bidding farewell to Lewis, she hurriedly took her departure. Lewis, her husband, is still locked up on a charge of abduction, awaiting the arrival of Albany officers.

Debs on "Social Democracy."

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 25.—Eugene V. Debs addressed two large audiences in this city Sunday, once at noon and again in the evening, in the labor church. His noon address was devoted to a general discussion of labor matters. Alluding to George M. Pullman, he declared that the misery caused by the big labor strike undoubtedly shortened Mr. Pullman's life fully 20 years. He hoped that when Mr. Pullman arrived at the gates of heaven he would find no judge there who would say "There is nothing to arbitrate here." The evening address was devoted to the topic, "Social Democracy."

Caught Near Springfield.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 25.—The clothing store of Besse, Carpenter & Co. was entered soon after 11 o'clock Sunday morning and $200 worth of clothing and about $30 in money taken. Three men giving the names of James Davis of Chicago, aged 22; Louis Parker of Baltimore, aged 18, and Mark Berry of Denver, 23, were captured in the afternoon three miles out of the city and the goods and money were found on them. They are without doubt professionals.

World's Pacing Record.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 25.—Searchlight, the three-year-old son of Dark Knight, has beaten the world's pacing record of 2:09 1-4 for three-year-olds, going the mile in 2:07 flat. The first quarter was in 34 1-2, the half was reached in 1:02 1-2. At the three-quarters the watch showed 1:35 1-4, and the mile was reached at 2:07.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Length of day—10:37.
High tide—10:20 a. m.; 10:50 p. m.

The severe storm which was central off the Virginia coast last night, causing severe gales and rain north to Nantucket, will probably prevail over New England today with dangerous easterly gales on the coast. Owing to its slow movement it is not likely to pass off until late tonight or Tuesday morning, but clearing weather now seems probable Tuesday forenoon and fair weather in the afternoon and night, with winds shifting to westerly and diminishing in force.

THREE DEAD.

Leaped For Life From the Second and Third Stories of a Hotel.

Oil City, Pa., Oct. 25.—Three persons were burned to death and seven more were severely injured in a fire that destroyed the Hotel Brooklyn at Kelletville, 25 miles southeast of Oil City, on Sunday morning at an early hour. The building was a three-story one, roughly built of double boards. When the firemen first discovered it, there were 17 persons asleep in the hotel. At that time the fire, which had originated on the second floor of the building, shut off all retreat from rooms on the floor above. Six men on the second floor and five on the third sawed themselves by jumping from the windows to the ground below, but there was none of these who escaped without severe burns or hurts.

Those killed are: Professor Tucker, aged about 60 years, who traveled about the country giving stereopticon sketches and is supposed to have come from Sewickly, near Pittsburg; Andrew Salagiver of Tionesta, a mail carrier, aged 21 years, and partly paralyzed; Kate Miller of Kelletville, aged 19 years.

Emma Kiser, a teacher in the Kelletville schools, was so badly burned about the face and body and so severely injured by jumping from the second story that she may die. What remained of the bodies of Tucker and Salagiver were gathered together and were not enough to fill an ordinary cigar box. The fire is supposed to have originated by Professor Tucker knocking over a lamp in his bedroom, as he had the toothache and used the lamp for making hot applications.

Arrest of Flim Flam Workers.

New York, Oct. 25.—Willard Walker of Buffalo, 42 years old, said by the police to be an old offender, and John F. Ellis, 44 years old, were arraigned in the police court Sunday charged with working a "flim—flam" game on men leaving for Europe on cattleships of the Anchor line. Complaints had been made to the police by men who had been swindled out of money by two men answering to the description of the prisoners. The latter, it is alleged, got the men to buy spurious bonds, telling them they could be cashed in either London or Liverpool. When searched the prisoners had two finely executed bonds, one of which had the name, "Bank of England," engraved on it, and the other had the heading, "Massachusetts and Montana Gold and Silver Mining company." The men waived examination and were remanded.

Found With a Bullet Hole.

Halifax, Oct. 25.—Berwick was startled Saturday by the news that a man had been found shot through the head at his home in the outskirts, the case presenting the elements of a murder mystery. The victim was Thomas Buckley. A bullet from a 38-caliber revolver had passed entirely through his head, entering behind the left ear and coming out through the right temple.

Buckley was a respectable man and carried on a cooperage in connection with his farm. When found he was lying on his back in a pool of blood on the floor of the only room of his modest cottage, where he lived alone. The revolver was found on the floor near the body. There is no reason why Buckley should have committed suicide, and the case is generally regarded as one of deliberate and well-planned murder.

Witnessed by Seven Thousand.

Kansas City, Oct. 25.—Seven thousand people witnessed a most exciting and closely contested game between the orioles and All-Americans Sunday. Both pitchers were very effective, but Corbett for Baltimore carried off the honors, striking out seven men and proving exceptionally good at critical times. A striking feature of the game was the work of Doyle at first and Donohue, catcher of the All-Americans, they being credited with all the putouts in the first six innings. Other features were Griffin's home run in the first and Jenning's excellent work at short. Score:

Baltimore	1	0	1	2	0	0	0	1	1	—6

Batteries—Nichols and Donohue; Corbett and Clark. The Baltimores lost Saturday, 6 to 1.

Burglar Shot a Pal.

Webster City, Ia., Oct. 25.—Three masked burglars robbed the state bank of Hairsburg Sunday. They used dynamite and the explosion shattered the large plate glass window and badly wrecked the building. They secured $1000 worth of securities and a small amount of money.

When the first explosion occurred it awoke half the town. James Connor's yells frightened the burglars, and they ran. In passing a corner they saw Edward Gillicoin, who was one of their pals, advancing towards them. It was dark and in the excitement they mistook him for an officer and shot him twice. One bullet entered his chest and the other his abdomen. He was captured and is not expected to live. The other two escaped.

Liberals' Program For Cuba.

London, Oct. 25.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "A member of the cabinet assures me that the government intends to give Cuba complete local government, with universal suffrage to elect municipal and provincial councils and an insular parliament. The latter will be composed of upper and lower chambers, having entire control of taxation and tariff. The responsible government will be composed of five ministers, whose councils will be presided over by the governor general. Senators and deputies for Cuba will continue to sit in the Spanish cortes and the imperial government will control the army, navy, police and tribunals, as well as foreign affairs of the colony, exactly as the program of the autonomists demanded."

Was Not For "Coffee Cooler."

London, Oct. 25.—The boxing match between Dick O'Brien, the middleweight of Boston, and Frank Craig, "the Harlem coffee cooler," which took place at Birmingham, Eng., Saturday evening, resulted in the defeat of Craig. O'Brien securing a decision after a round and a half had been fought.

At the beginning of the second round the "coffee cooler" slipped and O'Brien, taking advantage of the opening thus afforded, got in two body blows, his opponent going down. Craig rose at once and dashed in with his right, but O'Brien smashed him on the chin with his left, and the black once more went to the floor, remaining down eight seconds. He arose once more, only to be felled again, and the fight was given to O'Brien.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

List of the Killed Now Fixed at Nineteen.

President Chauncey Depew Makes an Indignant Denial.

Garrisons, N. Y., Oct. 26.—The number of persons who visited the wreck yesterday was well in the thousands. Every train brought its full quota of passengers who wished to gratify their curiosity by gazing upon the evidences of the disaster. Women formed the greater part of the visitors, and Chief Detective Humphreys says he saw a woman at the place at 2 o'clock Monday morning. Nothing could induce any of them to leave the place, and despite the heavy rain they stood about the spot for hours. The crowd became so large that it was necessary to rope in all of the space from which the tracks had gone into the water. A force of men was put on guard with instructions not to permit ayn but newspaper men and employes inside of the roped area; but even this was not sufficient, for they somehow managed to crowd in upon the workmen and divers.

Sandwich and hot frankfurter venders went through the crowd offering their wares for sale. The camera lovers were on the spot, and anything out of the ordinary was a mark for a snapshot. The spectators were finally rewarded for their vigil by seeing the derrick hoist the last of the two sleeping cars, the Hermes and Niobe, out of the water and place them on a transport. The two divers were also the obects of much attention.

The relic hunters were particularly active. Anything and everything pertaining to the wreck was a treasure of great value. Pieces of wood from the cars, pillows, glass, door knobs and the like were eagerly seized and carried away.

The known number of fatalities is said to be 19, and there is little doubt that this is the total list of the killed. The bodies of the engineer, fireman and Van Etten's secretary are yet in the river, with small hopes of their immediate recovery.

The incidents and features of yesterday had a tinge of the dramatic around them, the contrasts of light and shade being somewhat remarkable. Had it not been that torrents of rain poured down all the afternoon the New York Central railroad people would have had an excursion upon their hands larger than any one for many years. As it was, trainload after trainload of curiosity seekers either landed at the stations near the point of the wreck and walked through the drenching rain to stand there and stare at the burning embers and mutilated cars, or else rode down on the trains to the vantage point.

There was a similar display of curiosity at Cold Spring, where the 16 dead bodies lay. Of those 16 dead, eight were heathen foreigners, whose names or residences meant scarcely anything to the general public, and yet six of these eight were identified and claimed long before any person had come forward to inquire or seek for two well-dressed and evidently very respectable white women, the only women killed in the wreck. In the morgue they lay unclaimed and unsought, evidently, while the other dead were claimed and taken care of. The 16 bodies that were held at Cold Spring for identification and the claim of the relatives were divided between the undertaking establishments of Mr. McKeel and McIlvary. All day long these places were besieged by crowds of the curious, but only those who might in any way establish the identity of the victims were admitted to look upon them.

One of the two women was identified last evening as Mrs. Mary Lindsman of Utica, N. Y. She was identified by her husband, Robert Lindsman, who said that his wife left home on Saturday night to go to Croton on a visit to her mother. Mr. and Mrs. Lindsman were married in August last. Mrs. Lindsman was 24 years old and was a good looking woman. Her husband was very much affected when he saw her dead body.

The wrecking company made another vigorous search for the bodies of the engineer and fireman and Superintendent Van Ettan's clerk, Mr. McKay. When the diver came up he declared that it was his belief that the bodies were some distance away from the wrecked engine. He said: "The boiler and machinery of the engine lie out some 50 feet from shore, and the cowcatcher and front of the boiler are away down in the sand. The body of the engine left the trucks, for the trucks are within 25 feet of the shore and further up the stream. The tender broke away from the engine and lies partly turned over somewhat to the rear. The cab of the engine is badly smashed, but I could find no trace of any of the missing men, and I don't believe they are near the engine. I should say that if they did not jump, and it looks as if they did not have time, then the rush of water through the cab was so fierce that it fairly swept them out of it and drowned them. I would not be surprised if they are half a mile or a mile beyond the engine."

Still later in the day the diver went down again and began the work of fastening lines and tackle to the tender so that it can be raised. When this is accomplished the other parts will be brought up, and if the bodies of the three men are not found by that time the search will be abandoned, the theory being that the bodies will eventually come to the surface. Mr. Chapman of the wrecking company says that he would not be surprised to hear of them being found 10 miles from here.

But for a few burning embers and the twisted rails, it would be difficult to determine any signs of the wreck last night. Division Superintendant McCoy decided that none of the cars would ever be fit for use again, and that with the exceptions of the cushions there was nothing worth saving. The torch was applied to the day coach and combination smoker car and baggage car. The work of raising the sleeping coach Hermes proceeded slowly, and it was not until 1 o'clock that it was floated upon a transport. While being raised the trucks gave way and fell with a crash into the river. The car was towed down the river and deposited on the bank, where it was destroyed by fire. The last coach of the ill-fated train, the Niobe, was gotten out of the water at 5 o'clock and also burned. The express car is around the little knoll of the mountain, 300 yards below. No attempt was made to raise it until today.

Heard the Swish and Swirl.

New York, Oct. 26.—Truman Parsons, the head of a clothing firm in this city, and who was thought to have been killed, told the following account of the scenes that followed the first crash and jerk that awoke the passengers. He was in the sleeping car Hermes: "I jumped and grabbed the bar over my head," said Mr. Parsons, "and hung to this bar for an instant until the car stopped its motion. Then I heard the swish and swirl of water. The air seemed to be full of splinters. The groaning and wailing and cries for help seemed to be on all sides. I began to think about getting out. I looked out into the car and saw that both ends were smashed into kindling wood. I looked up and saw a little bright light through a hole in the roof of the car. The car was half over on its side, and I made up my mind to try to get to that hole. I climbed toward it and found it was big enough to let me through. I climbed through and stepped upon the roof of the car. I was the first man out of my car. Then I started in to help others escape.

"I helped a bridal couple out first. The bride dropped on her knees and began praying. Then I saw a little woman hanging out of a window. I caught hold of her arms and pulled her through the window. She was covered with blood, resting on broken glass and in water up to her waist. She was the bravest woman I ever saw. She wanted to know if there were no others that I could help get out. I told her to let me get her out first, and presently she was standing on the roof with the others. I know I pulled four women out of that car, and soon there were a dozen or more of us standing on that car roof. We were all very scantily clad. We stood there for an instant, and then called to the people on shore to build a bridge so that we could get ashore. They did so out of the debris and we walked ashore. Then they brought us blankets, and I wrapped three of them around me. Then they turned the passengers all out of the sleepers that had remained on the track and put us in. I was counted among the injured, although I was not hurt much."

President Depew's Indignant Denial.

New York, Oct. 26.—President Depew did not arrive at his office in the Grand Central depot until 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was given a statement printed in an afternoon paper to the effect that the company had for some time past been watching the place where the wreck occurred, well knowing its dangerous condition. "That is so absurd," said Mr. Depew, "that I hardly care to make any reply. We run the New York Central to make money. As its officials we ride over it almost daily in the same trains with the passengers. Now, does it seem likely that we are knowingly risking our own lives? The only way we can make money out of the road is to make it safer than any other, and we spare no expense to do this.

"I have wired the state railroad commissioners, asking them to come at once while the matter is fresh and make a thorough investigation. One of the commissioners was at the scene of the wreck Sunday, but I want to get all of them there."

YALE MEN FIND FAULT.

Conditions of the Game In New York Not to Their Liking.

Amateur Record For Triple Century Again Reduced.

Boston Pugilist Loses In a Sledge-Hammer Bout.

New Haven, Oct. 26.—Great dissatisfaction is expressed among Yale men at several features of the Yale-Carlisle Indian game in New York city Saturday. The Yale team found the ground too soft for any quick work, and the crowd kept up such a din that the men could not hear the signals. The Yale Daily News says that the game was an added argument for playing no more games in New York, but wholly on college grounds.

Fall and Final Trotting.

Medford, Mass., Oct. 26.—Two good races were run off Monday afternoon at Combination park in the opening of the fall and final trotting meeting of the year in this vicinity. The 2:07 pace brought out four well known horses, and five heats were necessary to decide the race. Refina took the first two easily, but was beaten in the third and fourth by Prince Alert. In the fifth, however, Alert went to a break, and before he got squared away he was a double distance out, and the flag fell in his face. Refina won first, third and fourth moneys.

There was not much of a contest in the 2:16 trot. Prince Lavalard laid over his field in a burst of speed and none of his four opponents headed him off from a straight heat victory.

Uninteresting Games.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 26.—The annual field and track sports of the Harvard freshmen class were held on Holmes field Monday afternoon. Aside from the entries of Tom Burke in the half mile and the quarter, of Mills, last year's national interscholastic champion, in the mile, and of Robinson, the interscholastic champion, in the 100-yard dash, there was nothing to raise any interest in the games. These three men so heavily outclased their fields that the time was slow in every race. In three of the events, the high jump, the pole vault, and the 220-yard dash, there were only two entries. There was not a single exciting contest and the games as a whole were decidedly uninteresting.

Sledge-Hammer Rounds.

Buffalo, Oct. 26.—Billy Rotchford of Chicago and Mike Sears of Boston fought 15 sledge-hammer rounds before the Olympic Athletic club last night. The first few rounds were about even, but thereafter Rotchford had all the best of it, Sears staggering around the ring and all but out. Rotchford swung and jabbed on the stomach continually until Police Inspector Martin was compelled to stop the fight. The referee explained that under the rules he was compelled to call the battle a draw, a decision that was roundly hissed.

Denny Murray of this city knocked out Billy Haley of St. Paul in the third round.

Young, but a Record Breaker.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Emil Schuler of the Morse Cycling club lowered the triple century amateur record made recently by J. Hoffbaer by 16 minutes. He finished strong. Schuler rode the first 75 miles unpaced, finishing the first 100 miles in 8:35. He rested an hour and a half, and started on his second century, riding unpaced and in total darkness in 11:50. His actual riding time for the 200 miles was 29 hours, 58 minutes, and his total time 34 hours, 18 minutes. He is 18 years old.

To Compete In Paced Races.

New York, Oct. 26.—E. A. McDuffee and Fred Titus have signed contracts to compete in paced races with Jimmy Michaels in Chicago on an indoor track in the coliseum Nov. 12 and 13.

A cablegram from Lodonn says that Teddy Hale has signed a contract to compete in the six-day race at Madison Square garden next December. Stocks, Walters, Cordang, Chase and others may also compete in middle distances in New York and Chicago during the coming winter.

Landed Where He Willed.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Charley McKeever of this city bested Tom Williams of Australia in a six-round bout at the Quaker City Athletic club last night. McKeever was entirely too quick for the antipodean and landed his left on the face and his right on the body almost at will. No decision was rendered, but the feeling unanimously favored the local man.

Pugilist Under Bonds.

New York, Oct. 26.—Fred Whitman, the pugilist, who, on Saturday night at the Athletic Club bouts in Brooklyn, so badly knocked out Tom Hawkins that he had to be carried to a hospital, was held in $1000 bail for examination in the police court yesterday. It is thought that Hawkins will be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

Forester's Anniversary.

Quincy Court, M. C. O. F., observed its eighth anniversary on Monday evening at Grand Army hall, by a gathering of members and a few friends; delegates also being present from St. Gregory court of East Milton, St. Peters court of Dorchester, and St. Francis court of West Quincy. Chief Ranger Burns presided and the programme included vocal and instrumental music, and an address on Forestry by Prof. John Concannon of Boston college. Other addresses upon the order were made by Mr. Murphy of the high standing committee, Deputy Dinegan of East Milton, Mr. Fahrenkoff of Boston, Rev. F. A. Cunningham and Past Chief Ranger John H. Dinegan of Quincy court. After the exercises an adjournment was made to the banquet hall where an appetizing collation was served by Caterer Nash.

Harvest Concert.

The harvest concert at the Park and Downs Union Congregational church on Sunday evening last was largely attended, there being hardly standing room. The scholars of the different classes of the Sunday School which number 96, gave a very pretty and interesting programme of recital and song. The church was handsomely decorated and with the smiling faces of the little children a prettier picture can hardly be imagined. Rev. M. F. Knight, the pastor, made an appropriate address to the little ones. The special parts given by the different children were so generally good and deserved of merit, it would be hard to comment individually.

Woman Deserted.

About 3 o'clock this morning Officer Barry picked up a buggy in front of the Hancock House, in which were a man and woman both badly under the influence of liquor. They gave their names as James Rawlings and Dora Hartford, and as they were unable to take care of themselves he gave them two rooms in the hotel under City Hall. They were fined $5 each a few hours later in the District court. Rawlings paid but left his fair companion to get out of the scrape as best she could. The woman, who was in the vicinity of 50 years of age, was later escorted to Dedham jail.

MOTIONS, ORDERS, ETC.

A recess was taken at this point until 8 o'clock.

STREET RAILWAY HEARINGS.

The first hearing was on the petition of the Quincy & Boston street railway for the location of a double track on Hancock street between Saville and Adams streets and between Squantum street and the Boston line at Neponset.

President Graham of the company said there was no doubt, everyone must acknowledge it, that there was necessity for a double track. The Wollaston loop had recently been built and the road found it would have to put on more cars, and the double track as asked for will be of great convenience. Electric roads create new business for the city. The road had recently bought land at Neponset and the plan was to make improvements there and build a car house. With the double track the road could better accommodate the people.

In reply to questions Mr. Graham said. It was impossible to build the double track this year. He did not consider the Atlantic depot bridge wide enough and should not lay another track on it as it was now. He did not think the railroad would bear the expense of widening Neponest bridge and did not think it necessary to widen it. The matter of free transfers lay with the board of directors as did also street watering which he did not think they would do.

Councilman Philips then asked about the double tracking of Neponset avenue in Boston and was informed that it had been done a year ago.

James H. Slade appeared as a remonstrant. He said he came to the meeting to meet a friend and did not know of the hearing, but he felt called upon to object to any further grants to the railroad without a corresponding return for the franchise. It has been granted almost everything asked and makes no return, as it should be made to do in the way of transfers, lower fares, etc. In Glasgow the fare in street cars was but two cents. The speaker then commenced to tell what the West End did but was called to order by President Field. Continuing the speaker said there was a growing sentiment for municipal ownership. Here he was again called to order and reminded that the hearing was on a double track on Hancock street and not municipal ownership. Mr. Slade then said that it was the duty of the Council to require some equivalent for the franchise granted.

President Graham, in replying to the last speaker, said that he must have been living in the backwoods somewhere when he states nothing has been paid for the use of the street. We are giving the people more than received. We are carrying them for five cents where it cost them fifty. In Glasgow, which the gentleman has quoted, they have the zone system and carry a passenger a mile for two cents. We carry them six and a half miles for five cents. Our system is way ahead of European systems. This year the Quincy & Boston has spent over $8000 for paving it was not obliged to do. Wherever we have built, the streets have been improved. We have expended over $150,000 for the benefit of the people of Quincy. We give them the best equipment of any road in the State. No road in the State carries people so well and so far for the money, considering the population, as we do. The double track is an accommodation to the public. We can make more as it is today. We are working up to the point where we shall be able to give transfers within six months.

In answer to Councilman Sprague Mr. Graham said that in Glagow the motormen were paid 90 cents a day and the conductor $1.20.

Mr. Slade again took the floor and said he would like to tell a story but was informed by President Field that the hearing was not for stories. The speaker then told of Toronto when he had riden to the extent of the city limits for three cents. The railroad was compelled to keep the whole street in repair, to pay $50 tax per car and an additional tax per mile, and in twenty-five years the road reverted to the city for the money the road had actually paid out for construction.

The conditions of the Quincy & Boston are such that they can afford to pay a very substantial sum for the franchise. It was the duty of the Council to see that the people were properly compensated. Also the duty of the Mayor.

Councilman Pinkham asked if under the present laws the Council had a right to make a bargain with the road, to which Mr. Slade replied that the Council could refuse to grant locations or require certain returns. He would have it so that no further extensions should be granted without some return for the franchise granted.

The hearing then closed and the order was recommitted.

The second hearing was on the petitions of Boston, Milton and Brockton road for a location on Randolph avenue, between the Randolph and Milton lines.

Mr. Morse, representing the directors of the road, told of the route proposed which was from Randolph to Milton Lower Mills and it was necessary to pass through a small section of Quincy.

No one lived on the street.

In reply to Councilman Nickerson, Mr. Morse said he thought his road would take care of the street to any reasonable amount. On the Taunton and Bridgewater road which he built, Brockton required paving between the rails and eighteen inches outside in the city proper and also paving at street crossings and we did the same thing in Taunton. He never saw a case where the road was obliged to pave the whole street and the Commissioners limited the expenditure per mile for construction.

Henry H. Faxon hoped the location would be granted. Land was worth more after a street railway was built. The people could not be benefited more than by a street railway. They had done more to build up the city than anything else.

Councilman Cain said he thought the president would please the council by calling the speaker to order, as he did not consider he was speaking to the point.

President Field said he considered Mr. Faxon's remarks pertinent to the question and he could talk all he wanted to.

Mr. Faxon however had but little more to say and the hearing was closed.

The order recommitted.

TALK OF THE CITY.

South and West Quincy, Atlantic, Wollaston and the Point.

Miss Gertrude Stafford is visiting Mrs. L. W. Allen of Botolph street.

Mr. and Mrs. James Baker of Worcester are the guests of Mrs. L. E. Lucia of Old Colony street.

Dr. Kendall's reception to the junior members of the Boston Bicycle club will be illustrated in tomorrow's Ledger.

The Old Colony association of Universalists holds its annual session at South Weymouth tomorrow. There will doubtless be a large delegation from Quincy.

The opening entertainment in the course of popular concerts at Norfolk Downs hall will be given tonight by the Albion quartette, assisted by Miss Thomas, viollnist.

The Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church, Atlantic, will meet at the home of Mrs. S. Burr, Wednesday afternoon to sew and transact business for their annual fair, which is to be held in Music hall.

The rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association will be opened for inspection at 7 o'clock this evening and the recepton to Secretary Hoehn and wife will be at 7.30. A "birthday party" will follow.

The two daughters of Rev. H. A. Philbrook, formerly pastor of the Universalist church, were in town visiting friends over Sunday. Their present home is at Middletown, Conn. In the short period they lived here, they made many pleasant friends and acquaintances, a number of whom were glad to welcome them to their old seats in the church.

A surprise party was given Monday evening to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carlton, 18 Quincy street in honor of the fourth anniversary of their marriage, by about 30 of their Welsh relatives and friends of the community. Several selections were sung by the Welsh Glee club. Refreshments were served and a very enjoyable time was had. The gifts were numerous and valuable.

The Universalist minister's meeting at Boston Monday, was addressed by the first native Japanese minister ever ordained to that church He is the first fruits of the Japan mission and is over here in the interest of that cause. He is a very earnest and intelligent man, a fluent speaker in his own tongue, and even with his broken English, does not fail to interest his hearers. He had a warm and hearty welcome from the ministers present.

Among the impressive faces at the strangers at the Universalist church Sunday, was that of Hon. Henry Lord's of Bangor, Me., who with his wife, made a flying visit to his old time pastor and friend, Rev. E. W. Preble. Mr. Lord has been frequently honored politically by the Republican party of his native state, has been speaker of the house and president of the senate, and has moreover, been often mentioned as candidate for governor, a position which his business interests alone have prevented him from accepting. He is a clean cut and widely respected man, still young and vigorous and evidently has a bright future before him.

Opening of Quincy Music Hall, Thursday, November 4.

Quincy's splendid New Music Hall will be opened on Thursday evening, November 4, by

THE BOSTON OPERETTA COMPANY,

a vocal organization of unusual strength. The company includes

MISS LOUISE GUZMANN, MISS HATTIE GODDARD, } Sopranos.
MR. J. F. HANSHUE, MR. J. F. McDEVITT, } Tenors.
MISS JENNIE PAINE, MISS HELEN DAY, } Contraltos.
MR. L. W. FLINT, Baritone. MR. W. W. NYE, Bass.

MR. ALMON FAIRBANKS, Pianist

A large number of engagements were filled last season, and the company will appear in many "course" and club "Ladies' nights" entertainments during the ensuing season, giving both concert and opera programmes.

Miss Guzmann has a clear, high soprano voice of wonderful flexibility. She will sing an exceptionally brilliant waltz song by Arditi, in the concert programme, and play the part of "Siebel" in "Faust", singing the beautiful flower song in "A Marriage by Lantern." She has a thoroughly congenial role as one of the widows looking for a rich husband.

Miss Goddard has a powerful, dramatic soprano voice of fine quality, which is especially adapted to the requirements of the role of "Margherite," while she is also happily cast in "A Marriage by Lantern" as the other widow. The "quarreling duet" in the operetta is capitally done by Misses Guzmann and Goddard.

Miss Day has a fine contralto voice, with the range of a mezzo-soprano. She will be heard in an interesting solo selection, and will sing the part of "Martha" in "Faust." It would be extremely hard to find a young lady better fitted to play the part of "Martha," her voice and stature being decidedly in her favor. Miss Day and Mr. Flint have a capital scene in the third act of "Faust." It is needless to say that they improve every opportunity for comedy in that scene.

Miss Paine has a full, low contralto voice of exquisite quality, which will be heard to excellent advantage as "Lisa" in "A Marriage dy Lantern."

Mr. Flint is conceded to have a splendid voice, capitally trained. He will sing the great "Torcador's Song," from "Carmen," and "Mefistofele" in "Faust," in each of which he is thoroughly admirable.

Mr. Hanshue has had a long experience on the operatic stage, having played many important parts in the famous Boston Ideal Opera Compaey, and for two years with the Castle Square Opera Company of Boston. He made a great success of "Faust" in and near Boston, while in "A Marriage by Lantern," "Lucia," "The Mikado," "Pirates of Penzance," "Fra Diavolo," "The Gondoliers," "Carmen," and other works, he had widely different roles, and on one occasion played, with success, a leading role at very short notice, and no rehearsal.

Mr. McDevitt has a fine tenor voice, and with Mr. Nye will be heard in the great sextette from "Lucia."

Cary's Concert Orchestra.

E. C. CAREY, Conductor,

Composed of some of Boston's representative musicians, will render several fine selections, and accompany the vocalists.

The Advance Sale.

It will be something new for Quincy to have a rush for the opening sale of tickets, but then the city is to begin a new lease of life with its grand new hall. Quincy Music hall will be opened on Thursday evening, Nov. 4, and on Thursday of this week the tickets for this eventful night will be placed on sale. All the seats are good and there are many of them, but it is expected that everyone will want to go and that tickets will be at a premium. The attraction will be a first class one and is well set forth in the large advertisement today. It is the Boston Ideal Operetta Co., assisted by a full concert orchestra, and the programme is an excellent one.

Accident.

On Sunday as Mr. Channing H. Evans, engineer at the Lyons' Granite Company plant was endeavoring to cut a piece of linoleum at his home on Bates avenue, with a dull jackknife, he had the misfortune to have the same slip, the blade entering his leg just above the knee, making an opening an inch long and nearly penetrating the bone, from which the blood flowed profusely. Although the wound is not considered dangerous it is very painful. Mr. Evans was able to resume his duties at the plant this morning.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Rawlins was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Dora Hartford was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Jacob Reidy was fined $5 for drunkenness at Randolph.

Daniel E. Donovan was arraigned for assault on John A. Billings, at Braintree and was fined $8. Appealed.

DIABETES

is a disease which if allowed to fasten its hold upon the victim will surely land him in a premature grave. It is caused by inactive kidneys. They fail to filter from the blood the impurities and poisons which it takes up from the food, and which should be thrown out of the system by way of the urine.

Weak or inactive kidneys and all symptoms of Diabetes can be

CURED

I have been troubled so much with kidney ailment for several years, often with diabetes, thas I was forced to get out of bed from two to four times from 11 p. m. to 6 a. m. every night. Since using one box of Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Kidney Pills bought of Wood Bros., Druggists, I can remain in bed all night without any trouble. I can safely recommend the pills for kidney trouble. Respectfully, H. W. JAQUET, 781 Chapel st., New Haven, Conn.

Remembered.

A large and pleasant social was held last evening in the Universalist vestry. After a short entertainment Mr. Herbert Fay Nye, in a very touching speech, presented to Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hobby an envelope containing a slight token of the feelings of the society towards their dear brother and sister who are soon to move from Quincy to Lynn.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobby have for many years taken great interest in the Universalist society in this place, being very constant to the church and Sunday school, and the society feels it quite a loss to part with them.

Mr. Hobby feelingly responded thanking the members for their token of esteem. He said they felt sorry to leave Quincy and their many friends in the society; but he felt obligedto go where his labors were more in demand.

Rev. Mr. Preble made a short speech expressing his regret to lose from his flock so devoted attendants and wishing them the best wishes of himself and the society. A bountiful collation was then enjoyed.

Surprise Party.

Miss Mary Scates was pleasantly surprised at her home, Davis street, Wollaston Thursday evening Oct. 21. Friends were present from Hyde Park, Milton, Quincy and Wollaston. The evening was spent in games and a collation A presentation of an opal ring was made to the hostess. Among those present were: Misses Lillie Miner, Alice Hirtle, Georgia Miner, Addie Conrad, Alta Shay, Stella Thomas, Carrie Saunders, Emily Hirtle Elvia Hirtle, Anna Hayden, Hattie Phelan, Mary Scates, Charles Wood, Clyde Saunders, Charles Hamilton, John Carlson, Will Lawton, Charles Sowden, Bert Corbett, Charles Scrivens, Allen Hirtle, Steward Hirtle, Eugene Merrill, Ernest Pooley, Ernest Shay.

Y. M. C. A. RECEPTION

A Welcome to be Extended Secretary Hoehn and Wife.

This "Birthday Party" is given to you:
'Tis something novel, 'tis something new.
We send you each a little sack—
Please either send or bring it back
With as many cents as you are years old;
We promise the number will never be told.
Then "Y. M. C. A." with greetings most hearty,
Feel sure you'll attend your own "Birthday Party."

Next Tuesday evening, the 26th inst., there will be a reception to welcome the new Y. M. C. A. Secretary, Mr. Hoehn. In connection with this welcome, there is to be a birthday party for the purpose of wiping out the debt incurred by moving and fixing up the new rooms. Bags will be distributed at the churches on Sunday, and it is hoped that all who are interested in the Association will return the bags on or before Tuesday evening with as many pennies as they are years old. It is hoped these bags will find a good many Methusellas, whom it will be remembered lived to the good old age of 969. Call yourself a thousand, or five hundred, or one hundred for this occasion, and return the pennies accordingly, and the debt will be easily annihilated. Come one, come all to the reception, and inspect the new rooms, enjoy a social time, and make the acquaintance of our new secretary and wife.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
☞ Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

TALE OF DISILLUSION.

Two Gold Seekers Who Gave Up Fortune Hunting.

Of the Opinion That There's No Place Like Home.

Supposed Murder Proves to Be a Case of Accident.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 26.—Two men of this city, John and Robert Cook, who left for the Yukon gold fields July 26, have returned to their homes with a tale of hardship and suffering. They were accompanied by two men anmed Tucker and Powell, whom they met at Boston. The party left Seattle Aug. 5 on the steamer Cleveland, and 27 days later arrived at Fort Yukon. Here they left the large number of gold seekers and pushed on toward Circle City. Finding nothing but starvation ahead, they returned to Fort Yukon and then set out for Manook.

While prospecting, Tucker and Powell became separated. The Cook brothers later found the dead body of Tucker, who had died of starvation and exposure, and shortly after found Powell a raving maniac. They tell a story of exposure and starvation with exorbitant rates for everything. Large quantities of food were waiting at St. Michaels to be transported to the interior, while the steamers were carrying quantities of whisky. The brothers deny the report that large quantities of gold are being brought back, and insist that the stories are grossly exaggerated. They returned with $12 worth of gold.

Suspicion of Murder Not Warranted.

Calais, Me., Oct. 26.—There was thought to be some mystery connected with the finding of the body of Patrick O'Brien, a wealthy farmer, in the water of a brook at Chamcook, N. B., Sunday. On the report that a murder might have been committed, the attention of the coroner at St. Andrews, N. B., was secured.

It is generally believed that O'Brien met his death by accident while returning from St. Stephens, where he had sold a load of produce last Thursday. His horse probably ran away, throwing O'Brien out. The horse naturally went home, while O'Brien started to follow on foot. On the footpath on the bridge over the Waweig brook were loose planks, and it is supposed that he fell through and into the water below.

A searching party found O'Brien's hat on the bridge, and when they dragged the stream below the body was found. The coroner's inquest will probably clear up what mystery is supposed to surround the death.

The severe storm which prevailed on the coast from Nantucket to Hatteras yesterday diminished in force during the afternoon, and at the evening observation appeared to be drifting slowly seaward and dying out, so that it does not now promise to further affect New England. For Wednesday the indications now point to fair weather, though with perhaps with some cloudiness and temperatures much the same as today, with easterly winds of light velocities except off the southeast coast, where it will probably continue brisk.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly; indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. The Strength of Nature.

According to the ancient mythology, when Hercules wrestled with Antæus, every time he was thrown he jumped up again stronger than ever, gaining fresh power from every contact with the earth. Hercules conquered him at last only by holding him in the air away from the source of his strength, until he grew weaker and weaker and finally became exhausted.

Antæus is a perfect symbol of mankind. Nature is the real source of health and vigor. The closer we keep to Nature's laws the stronger and healthier we grow. When we get away from them we are sure to be overcome by weakness and disease.

When sickness gets hold of a man the only remedy to really cure him must be a natural remedy. It must work according to natural laws and bring him right in touch with Nature. Any unnatural stimulus or mere temporary "appetizer" does no permanent good to a person who is debilitated and "run-down."

In these conditions the most perfect, natural strength-builder is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It acts directly upon the natural nutritive processes, and creates solid, permanent strength and vital force in the same way that Nature creates them.

It capacitates the stomach and liver to vitalize the circulation and feed the nerve-centres with pure, healthy blood. This is exactly Nature's way of curing nervous exhaustion, debility, insomnia, and neuralgia.

During the past 30 years, Dr. Pierce's medicines have become recognized standard remedies throughout the world. His "Pleasant Pellets" are a perfect and permanent cure for constipation.

Sister Eliza L. de Falcon, of Corpus Christi, Nueces Co., Texas, writes: "This is to tell you that I have been ill for twenty-one years and was finally cured by your medicines 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription.' I was completely cured after taking the medicine."

RALLY AT HAVERHILL.

Mr. Williams Criticises the Platform of the Republican Party.

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 26.—Thomas Saunders presided at the Democratic rally Monday night, and members of the Democratic city committee occupied seats on the platform. Mr O'Keefe was the first speaker and prefaced his remarks by stating that Haverhill was the first city last year that supported Mr. Williams' action at Chicago. "The party," he said, "will stand by the platform adopted at Chicago, as it stands more than any other for the rights of the common people. At no time in its history has the Democratic party been so free from corporate influence as it is today. No agent of any corporation, be he William C. Whitney or any other man, can dictate to it. It was early in the eighties that the late Governor Butler attempted to rescue the party from the power of corporations." This reference to Governor Butler called forth a storm of applause.

Mr. O'Keefe spoke on the injunction question, and said that men are now forbidden from walking in front of a factory where a strike is in progress by an edict of the supreme judicial court.

Mr. Williams followed with one of his characteristic speeches. He said: "No more insane, empty or meaningless platform was ever produced than that which came from the Republican convention of 1897. There is not a living issue in it that is worth considering, and with such a platform of air I am not surprised that the Republican speakers have all retired, fearing to stand upon it lest they should have a fall. The distinguished junior senator from Massachusetts has made an apology to the shoemakers of New England for what he acknowledges to be a sacrifice of their interests. The governor rose to make two statements: first, that the Republican party had gone too far in the appropriation of the people's money, and that therefore retrenchment was immediately necessary, and secondly, that the boards and commissions of the state to do the public business are all sufficient in number and should not be extended. Who knows what moth or caterpillar may crawl into the state next year and ask for an appropriation of half a million of dollars from the taxpayers?

"Now the Democracy proposes to place it in the power of the people to do two things: first, if petitioned by a certain number of persons to have any law passed by the legislature submitted to the approval of the people. Second, if the legislature refuses to pass laws which the people demand then a given number of citizens may frame legislation and demand that it be submitted to the people for their approval. These are the essential planks in the Massachusetts platform of 1897. The first in importance demands the restoration of silver to the coinage of the land at a ratio of 16 to 1. As we have justified our prophecies this year, so surely when the time comes next year will we justify them."

Mr. McNeil on Taxation.

Boston, Oct. 26.—The minority report of George E. McNeil of the special commission on taxation was submitted to the governor yesterday afternoon. Mr. McNeil combats the proposition made in the majority report of the commission for the abolition of the present tax on stocks, bonds, securities, loans on mortgages and income, by maintaining that such a plan would cause the burden of taxation to rest heavily upon the manufacturer, merchant, wage earner and farmer, in order that the commonwealth might be a haven of rest for those who invest their wealth in stocks, bonds and securities within or without the state.

Mr. McNeil favors an inheritance and succession tax, but he would amend the proposition of the majority by the addition of graduated rates. In consideration of the claims that large amounts of capital are deposited in savings banks for the purpose of escaping taxation Mr. McNeil recommends a tax upon all deposits in savings banks for $500 or over at a rate above the present rate.

Mr. Debs at Faneuil.

Boston, Oct. 26.—Faneuil hall was filled last night with an audience composed almost entirely of workingmen and women who assembled to listen to Eugene V. Debs. Mr. Debs denounced the judge who issues an injunction as the Russian czar does an ukase and sends his protesting victim to jail. While the present extremes of wealth and poverty continue there can be no social order or peace.

As a means of bringing on the new system, he urges as one of the means the economic education of workingmen. It was proposed, he said, to overthrow the capitalistic system of production, to abolish the wage system, and to put in their place the collective ownership of all means of production and distribution.

Brought Down by a Bullet.

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 26.—John C. Clark, an officer at the Hillsborough county farm at Goffstown, fired at Caspar Blanchette, a runaway prisoner, striking him behind the right ear. The bullet passed dangerously close to the main arteries and the prison surgeon decided not to attempt probing for it.

Blanchette went to the institution Sept. 28 to serve six months for the non-support of his wife. He was working with a gang of prisoners, who were breaking stone for a new contract road. The farm has lost an unusually large number of prisoners of late, and when Blanchette broke from the gang and dashed up a hill, Clark called to him to stop and fired twice in the air. He fired again and the bullet brought the runaway down.

Important Capture in Lawrence.

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 26.—John Averhill, alias Arthur Howard; John Sayers alias Philip Coyle; John King, alias Driscoll, and Frank Le Clare were arrested Monday afternoon as being much wanted burglars. They have been under surveillance since Friday last, when they struck town. During their stay here overcoats, jewelry, revolvers, etc., have been pawned. They are wanted for burglaries in Auburn, Lewiston, Brunswick and Portland, Me., and the police in those places have been notified of their arrest. Three of the men were armed when arrested and showed fight, but were soon overpowered by the officers.

FEMALE MINSTRELS.

Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor Give Unique Show.

Last evening, the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor held their first sociable for the season in Doble's hall, South Quincy, when a grand minstrel entertainment was presented by members of the order.

Entertainments of this nature are by no means uncommon in our city; but in this case the affair was unique on account of the entire absence of the masculine element from the makeup of the troupe. As on former occasions, the ladies proved equal to the task they had undertaken, and carried their venture to a highly successful issue. With faces blackened in the regulation style, and wearing gay colored costumes, in which yellow, black, and pink, predominated; together with diamonds of the largest description, sparkling on some of their fingers, they presented a spectacle which was striking, and grotesque, in the extreme.

The novelty of the entertainment drew a large crowd, and when the opening hour arrived, the hall was filled to such an extent that standing room was at a premium.

The following ladies composed the circle: Miss Mary Rose, Mrs. Christina Raleigh, Miss Lula McIntosh, Mrs. Lizzie McIntosh, Mrs. Alice Nicol, Miss Agnes Reyolds, Mrs. Mary Lamb, Miss Katie Black.

End women: Mrs. Emma Marnock (Topsy), Mrs. C. Raleigh (Rosie), Miss Mary Robertson (Sukey), Mrs. Lizzie Perry (Dinah).

Interlocutor: Mrs. Lillie Ross.

The programme was commenced with the chorus: "The Colored Four Hundred" which was rendered in excellent form by the whole troupe. Miss Mary Rose then sang "Rosey Posey" and Mrs. Christina Raleigh gave "Don't Forget Dar's a Wedding Here Tonight." Miss Lulu McIntosh contributed "I ain't Obliged to Stand no Nigger's Foolin," and the theme chosen by Mrs. Alice Nicol was "Tell Me Do You Love Me." Mrs. Lizzie Perry sang a parody upon the popular song: "There'll be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" introducing some local hits, which were received with enthusiasm.

All of the singers acquitted themselves remarkably well, which fact was fully testified to, by each of them being recalled, and by the unstinted applause of the large audience.

The jokes and gags of the end women were in general excellent; many of them had a bearing upon local characters, and subjects and these proved a source of great amusement to all present. In getting off their jokes, however, the aspiring "coons" showed somewhat of a lack of training; inasmuch as they did not preserve that gravity of demeanor which is so characteristic of the veteran minstrel. This is a matter which should be attended to when a similar affair is contemplated.

A feature of the entertainment was a stump speech delivered by Miss Lizzie Esson. That young lady, who by the way had a manuscript several yards in length, showed herself an orator of no mean ability. She appeared as a shining light upon the question of woman's suffrage; and the very concise reasons advanced why this measure should be adopted, was the cause of a vast amount of merriment.

Miss Henrietta Esson played the accompaniments with much skill and taste, thereby adding greatly to the enjoyability of the vocal part of the entertainment.

Following the entertainment, coffee, and cake were served. The hall was then cleared for dancing, which was kept up until twelve o'clock, Mrs. May Benson effectively supplying the music.

The affair in all its features was a complete success.

The following are the names of the amusement committee, who worked with much energy in getting up the entertainment: Mrs. Lizzie Chalmers, Mrs. Lizzie Malcolm Miss Mary Duthie, Miss Lizzie Smith and Mrs. Maggie Stronach.

Birthday Anniversary.

On this delightful October day Mrs. William Field, one of the smart aged ladies of this city, enjoys at her old homestead on Adams street, the anniversary of her birth. She is eighty-six, and quite smart and well.

We wish her continued health, strength and happiness for many years to come. For about three score years the Quincy Patriot has been a visitor to her pleasant household, and she has enjoyed many happy hours in reading its pages.

Going South for Winter.

The Rev. Rufus B. Tobey of Wollaston, president of the Memorial Trust and the Ingleside Corporation, and chairman of the board of managers of the Floating Hospital of Boston, goes South with his family Nov. 6, for an extended stay.

His trip abroad during the summer vacation was of great benefit to his health, which had suffered from too close attention to the duties of his various positions. The trip South is taken to render doubly sure the improvement already attained and to prepare him for the constantly increasing calls, both in magnitude and number, upon his strength. Mr. Tobey will spend the winter months at Pinehurst, N. C., a well known resort.

The various institutions under Mr. Tobey's management will continue to receive his close attention, the minor details being in the hands of trusted assistants.—Herald.

HEARTY WELCOME

Extended New Secretary of Y. M. C. A. and His Wife.

The new general secretary of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association, Mr. William Frederic Hoehn, and his wife, received a hearty welcome to Quincy from the members and friends of the Association Tuesday evening. It was also the first opportunity offered to many to visit the new rooms in the old Court Room building.

The judgment of the committee who selected the new secretary was readily endorsed, as Mr. Hoehn was quickly sized up as the right man in the right place, while his charming young wife will undoubtedly assist him considerably in his work.

Secretary and Mrs. Hoehn received in the parlor and were assisted by Mr. A. D. Albee, the president of the Association, and Mrs. Albee, and also Mrs. T. B. Pollard the president of the auxilliary. The hundreds who attended the reception were presented by Mr. T. H. Wason, Mr. George H. Brown, Mr. Horace W. Pinkham, Mr. W. F. Cummings and others.

The parlor had been beautified by plants and fall flowers by the ladies. Among those to greet the new secrtary were Representative Newcomb, Rev. E. N. Hardy, Rev. Preston Gurney, Rev. E. H. Robinson, Rev. P. A. Englund, Rev. M. H. Turk, Councilman Sidelinger, Councilman Nickerson, and others prominent in Association work.

The whole building was opened for inspection and many were surprised to find the new quarters so well adapted to Association work. At the top of the stairs to the right is the parlor; at the left the game room; and from this hallway opens the small office of the secretary at the front of the building, between the two rooms mentioned. The gymnasium is entered from the hall and the parlor, and out of the gymnasium opens the bath and toilet room and the locker room all these small rooms being connected. On the third floor above the parlors is the reading and class rooms. The feature of the new quarters not observed by many on this occasion was the field in the rear which is popular for athletic sport.

In the gymnasium lemonade and fancy crackers were served by Mrs. George Macfarlane, Mrs. A. G. Coffin and Mrs. C. W. Guy, assisted by Miss Ada Park and Miss Maud Macfarlane.

The committee was disappionted on the entertainment, as one of the members of a quartette was unable to be present, but there were piano selections by Prof. C. C. Bradford, a pleasing duet by Mrs. N. G. Nickerson and Mrs. Frank Sprague, and speeches by President Albee, Rev. Preston Gurney, Rev. E. N. Hardy and Secretary Hoehn, the new secretary bringing the greetings from "Jersey."

But an impotrant feature of the evening was the "birthday party," each guest being expected to deposit in little silk bags a penny for each year of his age. These were collected at the door and over $150 was thus realized, and the amount may be swelled to $200

Wollaston Post Office.

Advertised letters for week ending Oct. 23: Fred O. Webster, Esq., A. Pigeon, Mr. W. A. Pratt, Mr. C. M. Smith, Mr. William Jackson, Mr. Charles Bowen, Mr. Frank Bowen. Mrs. Fannie Bowen, Mrs. George Woolaver.

A photograph of Mount Blanc has been taken at distance of 56 miles.

Such was the invitation of Dr. W. G. Kendall of Atlantic to the new junior members of the Boston Bicycle club, and it was a merrie outing.

Some time recently the Boston Bicycle cub, which is the oldest and most exclusive of the many bicycle clubs in the State, introduced a new departure, namely a junior membership, limited to the sons of members. These juniors held their first annual run on Saturday.

Dr. Kendall and a few of the senior members met the juniors at 1 o'clock, and shortly after, the start was made for Squantum kennels at an easy pace. As they spun along toward Quincy they made an interesting picture. The genial doctor led the way on a high wheel, which he rode for the first time for eight years, and following him came wheels ranging from 28 inches down to an 18 inch, the latter being ridden by a 5 year old tot who was evidently a chip of the old block. The above stetch illustrates it well.

Arriving at Dr. Kendall's picturesque residence, the boys dismounted and they passed the afternoon in a thoroughly enjoyable manner. First they had their photographs taken in a groop in front of the house, and then from the outlook in the tree. They also had a good time admiring the famous Boston terriers in the kennels and in many other ways not forgetting a fine spread which Mrs. Kendall had prepared for them. Not the least among the interesting things the boys saw was the curiosity shop, where hung upon the walls are all the wheels ridden by Dr. Kendall, some dozen or more in number.

During the afternoon the juniors who number 25 members, organized with Harold Everett as president and secretary.

A Fire Bug.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

My attention has been called to the attempt to burn a stable at Quincy Point last Saturday evening, and needs a passing word. About six o'clock on that evening, the stable belonging to Mr. Daniel McNeil was discovered to be on fire, and it was found to be saturated with kerosene. Had the fire obtained a headway it would doubtless have been a disastrous one as the building is in close proximity to a number of other old buildings. It looks like a case of spite, for Mr. McNeil had just left with his horse and the deed was evidently done by some who were watching their chance. The matter has been given, I understand, to the fire commissioners, who should probe the thing to the bottom and bring the guilty party to justice. We have no use for a fire bug at Quincy Point.

HAYES---GAVIN.

Wedding and Nuptial Mass at St. John's Church.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. John's church this morning, when Mr. Charles A. Hayes of West Quniey was united in marriage to Miss Alice Gertrude, daughter of Mrs. Margaret M. Gavin. Rev. F. A. Frigulietti performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. John F. Mundy of Cambridge, an uncle of the bride.

Mr. William Hayes, a brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Mary Louise Gavin, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. George B. Gavin.

The bride was charmingly gowned in a white organdie over white silk, with garniture of white satin and lace she also wore a necklace of pearls. The bridesmaid wore a white muslin over blue, large picture hat of black velvet and carried a bunch of white chrysanthemums.

Miss Margaret Garrity presided at the organ and the bridal party entered the church to the music of Lohengrin wedding march. Mendelssohn's march being played as they left the church.

After the marriage ceremony Nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. John F. Mundy.

A wedding breakfast followed at the residence of the bride's mother after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes leave this afternon for a short trip, returning from which they will reside at 20 Cross street, West Quincy, where they will be at home after Dec. 1.

Opening of Quincy Music Hall, Thursday, November 4.

Quincy's splendid New Music Hall will be opened on Thursday evening, November 4, by

THE BOSTON OPERETTA COMPANY,

a vocal organization of unusual strength. The company includes

MISS LOUISE GUZMANN, MISS HATTIE GODDARD, } Sopranos.
MISS JENNIE PAINE, MISS HELEN DAY, } Contraltos.
MR. J. F. HANSHUE, MR. J. F. McDEVITT, } Tenors.
MR. L. W. FLINT, Baritone. MR. W. W. NYE, Bass.

MR. ALMON FAIRBANKS, Pianist

Miss Guzmann has a clear, high soprano voice of wonderful flexibility. She will sing an exceptionally brilliant waltz song by Arditi, in the concert programme, and play the part of "Siebel" in "Faust", singing the beautiful flower song in "A Marriage by Lantern." She has a thoroughly congenial role as one of the widows looking for a rich husband.

Miss Goddard has a powerful, dramatic soprano voice of fine quality, which is especially adapted to the requirements of the role of "Margherite," while she is also happily cast in "A Marriage by Lantern" as the other widow. The "quarreling duet" in the operetta is capitally done by Misses Guzmann and Goddard.

Miss Day has a fine contralto voice, with the range of a mezzo-soprano. She will be heard in an interesting solo selection, and will sing the part of "Martha" in "Faust." It would be extremely hard to find a young lady better fitted to play the part of "Martha," her voice and stature being decidedly in her favor. Miss Day and Mr. Flint have a capital scene in the third act of "Faust." It is needless to say that they improve every opportunity for comedy in that scene.

Miss Paine has a full, low contralto voice of exquisite quality, which will be heard to excellent advantage as "Lisa" in "A Marriage dy Lantern."

Mr. Flint is conceded to have a splendid voice, capitally trained. He will sing the great "Torcador's Song," from "Carmen," and "Mefistofele" in "Faust," in each of which he is thoroughly admirable.

Mr. Hanshue has had a long experience on the operatic stage, having played many important parts in the famous Boston Ideal Opera Compaey, and for two years with the Castle Square Opera Company of Boston.

Mr. McDevitt has a fine tenor voice, and with Mr. Nye will be heard in the great sextette from "Lucia."

Cary's Concert Orchestra,

E. C. CAREY, Conductor,

Composed of some of Boston's representative musicians, will render several fine selections, and accompany the vocalists.

LOVE'S MESSENGERS.

The rose shall be my messenger,
The herald of devotion.
Each petal sweet shall be the seat
Of tenderest emotion.
And in the heart of each fair rose,
Deep hidden in the core,
There rests my soul, my inner self,
To love but you e'ermore.

Each rose will die, each petal fade
And wither fast away.
Each freighted heart that speaks my love
Will anguish and decay.
Not so with love—my soul that's hid
Within each rose's core.
That love will breathe and speak and live
Forever, evermore.

'Twill live for you and speak to you
When roses cease to be.
'Twill breathe the rose's fragrance rare
For thee, my sweet, for thee!
Then haste, my messengers of love,
Tell her my each emotion.
Oh, petals sweet, at her dear feet
Bespeak my fond devotion.

A PESKY WHALE.

"There's whales an whales," said the captain suddenly. "Some of 'em is pesky critters an some ain't so pesky."

Smoke went up in clouds and there was silence.

"Reckon you've got something on your mind, cap," said the doctor.

"Oh, nothin very particular," said the captain, "but when whales was introduced it reminded me. I had old Liz up Bering sea way two years ago—old Liz was my ship, her full name bein Elizabeth J. Barker—an we'd had a pretty good season. September we put around the Horn, an as things happened didn't see another whale till we struck into the forties. Then, sir, 'long 11 o'clock one fine mornin, we doin about six knots, we raised a whale that was a whale."

"Big, I bet," said the doctor.

"No, not so terrible big," said the captain, "but pesky. I was standin about 'midships when one of the men sings out, 'Hi, cap, look at 'im blow.' Sure 'nough, half a mile off an dead abeam to starboard he was blowin. He sent up a good spout an then seemed to kinder settle himself, like he was nappin, showin a good bit of his length. I love old Liz to, an we put over a couple of boats. Rowin in the small boat was a Dutchman named Frank. I mention him, 'cause he comes into the yarn pretty prominent. Frank was a good sailor, but one of them fellers that has dreadful little to say. He tended right to business an kept his hatch battened close. Well, as it turned out, the little boat licked the big one an got the first whack at the whale. They put a harpoon into him just over his port fin, an down he went.

"I stood a-watching things through a glass. I waited an waited for the boat to start off in tow, but she didn't do nothin but set still, which was puzzlin. In about five minutes somethin big an black broke water 'tween us an the boat, an there was old blower not more'n 200 yards from the place he went down. He warn't up long, but enough to get his bearin's, I guess, for down he went again, an I could see the bow man gettin ready to give him all the rope he'd take. Then the boat started, slowed a bit an come dead for the ship at a 40 mile clip. I never see a boat travel so. We watched 'em, an when she got within a quarter of a mile I thinks to myself: 'This is gittin blamed interestin. I wonder is that whale goin to sheer off, or is he goin to give us a ram?' That boat, sir, traveled for us as true as a hair, an I could see the men in her gettin excited. On she came, throwin spray like a liner, and I calkilated if she held her course she'd hit us so near 'midship it wouldn't be worth measurin the difference. Then I see the man in the bow make a pass for the rope with the hatchet, but he was nervous like an missed it, for the hatchet went overboard, an he, losin his balance, along with it. The rest of the men warn't long decidin what they'd do. It was go overboard or git smashed to flinders, an when they got within 50 yards of us they all went over but Frank.

"'Jump, you idiot!' yells I. 'Do you want to git stove?' Mebbe he didn't hear, but I reckon it wouldn't made no difference, for as I'm livin, doc, that Dutchman lay himself out on his stomach in the bottom of the boat, grabbed a foot cleat with both hands an hung on for dear life. Well, old whale kept steam on. I could see the boat go down a little by the head as she got close to us, an I knew the rope was scrapin the ship's keel. We was all holding breath an waitin to see Frank splatter his brains against the ship's side, when the boat went nose down, starn up an under water with a kerchug. She missed reachin us by about five yard.

"All hands aboard ship leant over to see Frank an the splinters come up, for the boat would sure fetch again the keel an go to kindlin wood. We waited an waited an waited, but, by gum, there warn't no splinters an there warn't no Frank. All of a sidden one of the men sings out, 'By the holy poker, look!' I whipped 'round, an there, 20 fathom off our port, was the little whale boat, full of water to the gunnel, an Frank standin up in her, waist deep, holding onto a rowlock for dear life. So help me, doc, that boat was towed clean under old Liz, the Dutchman in her, an come up sound on the other side.

"Yes, sir, under the ship slick as a whistle, an the Dutchman in her. That whale was a scientist, sir. He calkilated right to lose the boat, but, bless you, it's a bigger job than any one wanted to tackle to stave that craft, an as for floatin, she was boxed at each end an couldn't sink. But that ain't the end of the story. We remembered the fellers that jumped, an we seen the big boat would pick 'em up before we could put another over, so we turned to look at Frank again. There warn't anything left in the boat to bail with, an he couldn't do nothin but wait on the pleasure of that whale. He traveled away from the ship as fast as he come at it, an he must 'a' gone a third of a mile before the boat slacked. Then we seen her slow down an come to a dead stop. 'Line bu'sted,' says I. 'Man a boat an fetch in the Dutchman.' I hadn't no more'n spoke the words when a big wave seemed to rise up near the boat an old whale blowed 30 feet high. Then he got old Liz in range. Up his tail goes, an he under water again. I could see Frank wade forrard in the boat an try to pay out line, but it was jammed, an before he could make it loose the boat give a jerk 'round, almost a-throwin him out, an come at us again. What I'm sayin is truth, doc. That boat struck another bee line for us. I suppose, more properly speakin, the whale did. Gosh! How she did come kitin! Frank quit foolin with the line an just hung on. I reckoned the boat was movin faster'n ever, only she didn't throw so much water, 'cause she set down almost to her rowlocks. We stood speechless while she was drivin for us. When she got within 100 yards the mate took a big breath an let fly.

"'Jump, you —— Dutch lubber, or you're a dead man.'

"But he didn't jump an I see him gittin ready for another dive under old Liz.

"I grabbed up a bucket, climbed on the rail an when the boat came near enough I let drive at Frank, hopin to knock him overboard if I hit him. He seen it comin, dodged an just as the boat went tail up again yelled:

"'I can't swim!'

"Down went the boat like a soundin lead, an this time we all slid over to starboard to see her come up. Seven or eight seconds passed, maybe, an then about 15 fathoms off our beam up come the boat, bottom up. 'Oh, Lord,' groaned the cook, 'he's a goner!' But he warn't. No, sir. The boat hadn't traveled 20 yard afore she righted, an we seen Frank's head bob up over the gunnel. Well, old whale didn't run so far this time, for he broke water a few hundred fathoms off. In about a minute he sent up a stream of blood. I seen that the harpoon was a good throw an he wasn't goin to fight long.

"I sent the second boat out after him, but they didn't git far 'fore down goes the whale for the third time, an in a second the little boat slewed again, an we knew he was comin at us. There warn't no way to stop the whale, so we just waited again, while the little boat made tracks for us like she was goin to ram. Just when I reckoned by the line out that the whale was passin under us there was a tremendous barg, an every mother's son was throwed flat. Old Liz rolled to starboard an then back to port an lay rockin while we got up. Reckon you guess what happened, doc. That whale miscalkilated. He laid his course fine as silk, but his elevation was off a couple of points. He didn't fetch deep enough an hit old Liz a welt tha'd like to rip the keel off her. That settled the business too. We looked over the rail an seen some bloody water, then a flipper, an soon a big, black body floated up alongside. There was our whale, sir, dead as a hunk of salt pork, with the top of his head half torn off. He was a blue whale, doc, an he measured close to 62 feet. What become of the Dutchman? Why, the boat slowed down when the whale rammed us an the other boat took him off. Hurt? No. He went to work cuttin up that whale along with the rest of 'em. I did hear afterward that he was grumblin 'cause 'twas his bucket I throwed at him an it warn't picked up. Right lively whale, warn't it, doc?"

Children's Stories.

In looking over some stories written and sent by children to the young people's department of a paper some curious points were noticed. Part of the stories were wildly imaginative. The heroes of them went through experiences that out-Gullivered Gulliver. But after all their adventures the manikins always came home safely, laden with glory and trophies, to relate their valorous deeds and wonderful experiences to admiring hearers.

The child story teller loves a satisfactory ending. He has no patience for the ill contrived methods which bring the hero through one experience safely only to plunge him into another and leave him there to get out as best he may. The princes and the knight must marry and live happily ever after, enjoying the happiness attending such glorious actions before the story ends. Jack must finish all his giants and get home to supper before we leave him.

In the more humble tales of everyday life a strong point is the little author's sincere belief in the absolute working of a righteous law. The good boy invariably comes out triumphant and is rewarded with kisses and cakes. The bad boy is as surely brought to confusion. The career of the wicked youth who defies authority will not learn his lessons, quarrels with smaller boys or takes his father's gun without leave, is cut short by an opportune policeman, by the paternal switch or perhaps by a fall out of the boat or, again, by the measles. Somehow the childish author shows that, in his opinion, the law should be satisfied and the wrongdoer should suffer.

It is quite possible that these little writers have behaved badly or missed lessons occasionally themselves, but the artless confessions of their moral tales convince us that they do not do it without pricks of conscience. In the depths of their naughty little hearts they are quite sure that they deserved the fate which they so ingenuously deal out to the doughty heroes of their stories.—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Interpretation.

"I wonder," said Mrs. Cumrox thoughtfully, "what that nice, old fashioned lady means by putting 'P. P. C.' on her card."

"That means she is going away," replied her daughter.

"Oh, I see, and she wants us to know that she is going to travel in a Pullman palace car."—Washington Star.

ALLEGED MURDERERS.

Arrest of Two Men Wanted For Killing a Farmer.

Murderous Use of a Gun In a New Hampshire Town.

Two Men Dead and a Third Likely to Die of His Injuries.

Huntington, Conn., Oct. 27.—After a period of waiting, extending over nearly three months, the Bridgeport police succeeded in capturing Charles A. Bonai and David Weeks, wanted for the alleged murder of Farmer George Marcus Nichols at his home in Trumbull. The men were surprised at the house of Mrs. Bassett, the mother of Weeks, located in a portion of this town known as the Isinglass district.

The house had been constantly watched for some weeks, and Tuesday the much-wanted pair arrived there. Word was immediately sent to the Bridgeport police. Every avenue of escape was cut off and a descent was made upon the place. Bonai and Weeks were taken completely by surprise and, always desperate, attempted to draw revolvers. They were speedily overpowered and in a short time were captives.

It is firmly believed that Huntington has furnisehd a rendezvous for the desperate men almost from the very date of the tragedy. Residents of this village had begun to tell stories which warranted the belief that the men were in hiding within the confines of the town and that their capture was possible. There was no hesitancy on the part of Huntington residents to assert that Bonai and Weeks have been in this section at frequent intervals since the perpetration of the deed.

The alleged rendezvous is located in a patch of woods about three miles from Huntington Center, and possibly a mile from Isinglass, where is located the home of Bonai's wife. In these woods is to be found a shanty occupied by Alfred Perry, a woodchopper, and his wife. The rendezvous was visited by two reporters, to whom the following story was told: The day after the crime was committed, Charles Bonai entered the Perry shanty. He informed Mrs. Perry, to whom he was well known, and who is exceedingly fond of him, that he wished to bring a "pal" there. He was given permission, and later on the same day he returned with David Weeks. The latter was intoxicated and ugly. He carried a rifle, two revolvers and a knife, all of which he hurled on the table with an oath, adding "I would like to see those things dripping with blood." The two men were fed, and the next day they received newspapers containing accounts of the tragedy and the doings of the officers who were seeking their capture. For three or four days they remained in the woods, coming to the hut for their food. They then left to return at intervals, and since then the Perry hut has been their rendezvous. Mrs. Perry describes Bonai as "a splendid young fellow," and to her Weeks is a "terror."

The story of the robbery and murder is familiar. In brief it may be added that on a stormy night three months ago, two men broke into the house occupied by Farmer Nichols and his aged sister, Mary. They shot Mr. Nichols so that he died within a short time, and wounded the sister. They then ransacked the house, stealing money and papers, aggregating in value something over $1000. Collecting whatever of eatables they could easily lay hands on, the desperadoes ate and drank, while the farmer lay dying within a few feet. Their work done, the two men left, and several hours later Mary Nichols crawled to the roadside and gave the alarm. A reward of $4000 was offered for the apprehension and conviction of the two men.

TRAGEDY IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Rum-Crazed Fellow Shoots Two Men Dead Without Provocation.

Gorham, N. H., Oct. 27.—Joseph Ganthier and William Thoits were killed and Selectman Gates fatally wounded by rum-crazed Thomas Monahan Tuesday morning. The shooting of Gauthier took place in a shanty used as sleeping quarters by employes of the Grand Trunk Railroad company. Monahan appeared there at 4:30 with a gun and, after compelling his victim to dress, shot him dead. Then he went out and fired at William Thoits, whose lifeless body was found an hour later.

Just as Monahan reached the crossing, Selectmen Gates and Fogg, who had come up the track, met him. Mr. Gates stepped quickly towards Monahan, who, without a word, leveled the gun which he still carried and fired the contents of its second barrel almost in the selectman's face. The shots pierced the neck in many places, some of them severing the jugular vein. As the gun flashed, Mr. Fogg, who was close beside his associate, attempted to seize Monahan. The murderer clubbed his gun and aimed a heavy blow at Mr. Fogg's head. The latter warded the blow with his arm, receiving a serve bruise and grappled with Monahan. Both men went to the ground, but Mr. Fogg gained the mastery and disarmed Monahan, who had a preliminary examination subsequently and was bound over on two charges of murder.

Monahan is about 30 years of age. He has been known as a disorderly, idle fellow, whose time was mostly taken up by drinking and fighting. Up to about two months ago, however, he had been employed by the Grand Trunk railroad. After his discharge he became more drunken and quarrelsome than ever. He has always lived here and, as he was unmarried, his home was with his widowed mother, who is a woman of excellent character.

Baptists' Annual Conference.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 27.—The 68th annual conference of the Massachusetts Baptist association was held here yesterday. A paper was read by Rev. H. O. Hiscox of Malden on "Soterial Character of the Abramic Covenant and Revelations of Moses," after which a general discussion took place.

At the afternoon session the annual sermon was delivered by Rev. E. A. Capen of Watertown.

The report of Treasurer Rev. Francis T. Hazelwood of Boston showed receipts of $16,691.52, with a balance on hand, in excess of payments, of $1,431.85. He also reported the permanent fund as $60,241.01.

The appointments were then made for next year: Essayists, A. R. Dilt, Northampton; alternate, Rev. J. B. Garton, Cambridge; annual sermon, Rev. T. D. Johnson, Lynn; alternate, Rev. E. T. Generous Gift to Boston.

Boston, Oct. 27.—At the meeting of the board of aldermen last night a communication was received from Mayor Quincy announcing the gift of $50,000 from William C. Todd of Atkinson, N. H., for the purpose of establishing a fund, the income of which shall be devoted to the purchase of current newspapers for the Boston public library. The gift was formally accepted by the board.

Since 1893 Mr. Todd has contributed $2000 annually for the above purpose, and his latest offer is in order that a permanent annual income may be assured. In his letter Mr. Todd says: "I am not a citizen of Boston, but regard it as a city of rare privileges, and it will certainly be one of them to have free access to representative newspapers of the world. It is the metropolis of New England, the center of a large and cultivated population, and the attractive resort at all times of strangers from every section of the globe, ever anxious to see their home papers. My only interest in this matter is the wish to do some good to a great many people."

Knocked Out and Robbed.

Rockland, Me., Oct. 27.—Ralph Hastings, residing at South Hope, was robbed of $13 last night while returning home from this city. He had almost arrived home when he paused to obtain a drink at a watering trough beside the road. While drinking a man jumped from behind a tree and struck Hastings on the head with some implement, knocking him senseless.

This robbery followed close to another attempt Monday evening. G. F. Taylor went to his barn to feed his cattle. As he opened the door a man sprang upon him from inside and struck at him with a sandbag. The blow did not land fairly and Taylor shouted for assistance, whereupon his assailant fled.

State Liquor League.

Boston, Oct. 27.—At the convention of the State Liquor league of Massachusetts, the committee on credentials reported 85 delegates present. The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: N. F. Doherty, Boston, president; C. C. Murphy, Jr., Fall River, vice president; J. J. Kavanaugh, Taunton, second vice president; Thomas Penrose, Roxbury, secretary; Timothy Buckley, Taunton, financial secretary; Frederick McGrath, Boston, treasurer; Oliver W. Leach, Fall River, sergeant-at-arms. It was voted to hold the convention next year in Fall River.

Lottery Promoter Arrested.

Boston, Oct. 27.—Val Bailey, a self-confessed lottery promoter, was arrested here and the police also seized a large quantity of tickets at his rooms on Tremont street. Bailey says he was sent here by the Canadian Lottery company to establish agencies. The bearer of a ticket was entitled to compete in the distribution of works of art, consisting of musical instruments and works valued at $1000 down to a small amount. Bailey thinks he supplied fully 100 agents in Lowell, Springfield, Worcester, Fall River, Haverhill and Waltham.

Accused of Criminal Assault.

Augusta, Me., Oct. 27.—Rev. W. A. Tuttle of Windsor Corner, Methodist, aged 28 years, was arraigned before Judge Stevens at Hallowell Tuesday for alleged criminal assault upon a 16-year-old girl, a ward of the Maine industrial school, located in that city. Tuttle confessed having made the assault, and was bound over to the December term of the superior court. Sureties were placed at $3000, and, failing to secure bondsmen, he was committed.

Forest Blaze Put Out.

Great Barrington, Mass., Oct. 27.—The forest fire which has been burning on the mountains between Alford and Austerlitz, N. Y., for 12 hours was stopped by digging long ditches. When the selectmen found the fire companies unable to cope with the flames, they called on all able bodied men to assist in fighting the flames. Harrison Calkins lost 1500 cords of wood. Over 2000 acres have been burned over, and the loss is over $1500.

To Exhume a Floater.

Boston, Oct. 27.—The body of a woman was found in Charles river May 29. It had been in the water about a month and was almost unrecognizable. After remaining unidentified in the morgue it was buried in the potter's field at Mount Hope cemetery. Yesterday arrangements were made for the body to be exhumed for the purpose of ascertaining if it is that of Grace Stevenson.

Refused Medical Advice.

Attleboro, Mass., Oct. 27.—Rev. Henry Manchester, a prominent divine of this town, died yesterday at the age of 44 years. Notwithstanding that he had been ill a long time he resolutely refused to have the advice of a physician. His eccentricity also led him to conduct his church according to his own ideas.

Struck by a Train and Killed.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 27.—While walking on the Boston and Maine railroad tracks, Joseph Kennedy, a Saugus shoemaker, 28 years old and married, was struck by a train and instantly killed.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about one-fourth as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

100 YEARS AGO.

Dwellings and Modes in Time of John Adams.

Mr. C. F. Adams writes interestingly in his "Three Episodes of Massachusetts History" on the dwellers and modes of life of a century ago, during the times of the Presidents Adams. The following, in connection with the opening of the birthplace of John Adams at Quincy last week, is timely:

"The primitive simplicity of the early homes can now hardly be realized. They had none of the modern appliances of luxury, and scarcely those now accounted essential to proper cleanliness or even decency. As dwelling-places during the less inclement seasons of the year, the houses are well enough, though existence within them was simple and monotonous to the last degree; but in winter there was little comfort to be had. John Adams towards the end of his life used to wish that he could go to sleep in the autumn like a dormouse, and not wake until spring. The cold of the sitting-rooms was tempered by huge wood fires, which roasted one half the person while the other half was exposed to chilling drafts. The women sat at table in shawls, and the men in overcoats. Writing on the "Lord's Day, January 15th, 1716," Judge Sewall notes, "An Extraordinary Cold Storm of Wind and Snow. Bread was frozen at the Lord's Table. Though 'twas so Cold, yet John Tuckerman was batpized. At six o'clock my ink freezes so that I can hardly write by a good fire in my Wive's chamber. Yet was very Comfortable at Meeting." And to the same effect, four years later, Cotton Mather says, "'Tis dreadful cold my ink glass in my standish is froze and splitt in my very stove. My ink in my pen suffers a congelation." Such was the indoor temperature at times in rooms artificially heated; while, as for the unventilated bedrooms, water was not left in them over night for the simple reason that in the morning it might not improbably be found solid ice; and entries, which could not be heated; had the temperature of modern refrigerators.

Such were what might be called the mansions of the colonial gentry; and such in Braintree they continued to be until long after 1830 when the gradual introducton of coal and new appliances for heating revolutionized modes of life.

The dwelling of the farmer was of another class. It was the simplest form of domestic architecture. A huge stack of brick chimneys was the central idea, as well as fact, in it, and about this the house was built. It was one room only in depth, and two stories in height. The front door opened on a narrow space, with rooms on either side, while directly behind the door, and some four or five feet away, were the crooked stairs, supported on the chimney. Behind this outer shell was a lean-to, or leanter as it was pronunced and is sometimes found spelled, the sloping roof of which, beginning at the rear eaves of the house, descended to within a few feet of the ground. In this were the kitchen and wash-room; and here, on all ordinary occasions, the family took their meals and the household work was done. Of the front rooms, one was the ordinary sitting-room, and the other, the best parlor formal, unventilated and uncomfortable, was entered only upon the Sabbath or great occasions, such as a funeral or a wedding or a christening. About these houses, which as a rule stood facing towards the south and as near as might be to the road, though rarely square with it were the out-houses, sheds and barns necessary for carrying on farm or household work.

The wearing apparel and household furniture, as revealed through the Braintree inventories, speak also of a modest and almost Spartan simplicity. There seem to have been a few beds, possibly one of feathers, and generally of wool or of corn husks, — some bolsters, blankets and coverlids; but, except in the case of the more wealthy, there is no mention of bed linen. Col. Edmund Quincy's two carpets were appraised at one pound. There was one table, and possibly two; a few chairs, perhaps half a dozen, and, in the case of the rich, a scattering of cushions and covers to chairs, but stools were chiefly in use. Knives and forks are not mentioned in the probate inventories until a comparatively recent time but pewter and earthenware is generally valued at from a few shillings to as many pounds. The kitchen utensils seem to have consisted of a brass and iron pot or two, and some pans. There would be a Bible in the house, and possilby a few other books; an old musket and sword a looking-glass now and then. The dress was of home-spun and worn and reworn until there was nothing left of it. In the division of personal affects, "Benjamin Had a pair of Soles," and "David Had a Beaver Hat,' while "I Had one worsted Cap and a pair of old Shoes." A hat would thus descend from father to son, and for fifty years make its regular appearance at meeting. The wearing apparel of a whole family would be stored away for generations, fashions never changing; and accordingly it is a noticeable fact that wearing apparel constitutes the first and generally one of the largest items of the inventories while in the wills, especially of the female heads of large families, every article of raiment, especially finery, was devised to individuals with long considered impartiality.

The food and drink of dwellers in Braintree during the first century or two of town life were as simple as their furniture. Indian corn meal was the great standby; and, even as late as the earlier years of the present century, flour was bought by the pound, and used only in the houses of the gentry. As bread made wholly of meal soon became dry, rye was mixed with it; and Governor Hutchinson told George III in their interview immediately after the arrival of the former in London, in July, 1774, that, from long use, the people of Massachusetts had at that time learned to prefer the coarse bread made of rye and Indian-corn meal mixed to flour or wheaten bread," and some of our country people prefer a bushel of Rye to a bushel of Wheat, if the price should be the same." Fresh meat was rarely seen, but the well-to-do in the autumn of each year were in the custom of salting down a hog or a quarter of beef, bits of which later on were boiled in the Indian porridge.

During a period of fourteen years, including the last years of the seventeenth century and earliest years of the eighteenth, a man named John Marshall, who lived in Braintree, kept a diary, in which he jotted down homely items which were to him of interest. This diary has been preserved, and the material portions of it published. In it Marshall notes that in January, 1704, a hog weighing two hundred and sixty pounds cost him fifty shillings, or about $8.33, and a quarter of beef, seventy-four pounds, cost him twelve shillings or $2; and he at the same time mentions that provisions were then "more plenty and cheap than is frequently known, beef for six farthings per pound, pork at twopence the most, the best two and a half pence, Indian (meal) two shillings per bushel, mault barlay at two shillings." Naturally the constant use of salted meat created thirst and this thirst, the necessary consequence of what it is the custom to call a simple mode of New England. The use of tea and coffee as beverages was not general until about the middle of the last century, and prior to that time people drank water, milk, beer, cider and rum. The excessive use of the last, and its demoralizing consequences, it will be necessary to speak of presently. Meanwhile it will be noticed that Marshall in his short price-list mentions "mault barlay" as the staple next in importance to corn-meal. A brewery was one of the earliest Braintree institions, second only to the mill. The first was established by Henry S. Adams, the town clerk, shortly after 1640, and was afterwards carried on by his son. Later, cider seems to have suplanted beer at the every-day and all day beverage, and the quantity of it drunk by all classes down to a late period in this century was almost incredible. In the cellars of the more well-to-do houses a barrel of cider was always on tap, and pitchers of it were brought up at every meal and in the morning and the evening. To th end of his life a large tankard of hard cider was John Adams morning draught before breakfast; and in sending directions from Philadelphia to her agent at Quincy, in 1799, Mrs. Adams takes care to mention that "the President hopes you will not omit to have eight or nine barrels of good late-made cider put up in the cellar for his own particular use."

THE LIGHT HELD HIM

CONVICT COMPELLED TO HIDE ALL NIGHT IN A SHADOW.

He Had Reached the Prison Roof, but Was Afraid of the Searchlight's Glare. His Preparations Were Elaborate, and His Chagrin Was Deep.

John Myers made a bold attempt to escape from the New Jersey state prison the other day. He had made elaborate preparations to get away on the previous night and succeeded in getting to the roof of the main building, but was prevented from going farther by the rays of the new electric searchlight which brightened the roof about him and made it easy for the guards on the prison walls to see him in case he made the attempt. From 8 o'clock in the evening until 4 o'clock the next morning Myers sat upon the roof, in the shadow of a large ventilator, awaiting some chance that would direct the rays of the searchlight in another direction long enough for him to reach the walls, but the light was swung around for a moment only, at short intervals, and returned to the point which lighted the prisoner's path to freedom.

Myers, who is about 55 years old, was sentenced from Union county in the fall of 1894 to seven years for burglary. He has been what the officials call a good prisoner and one of the last they would have suspected of making an attempt to get away. But, according to the story he told, he had been making plans for a long time. Securing a table knife from the cookhouse, he had fashioned a sort of chisel to remove bricks and mortar from the ceiling of his cell. The handle of his chisel was made of a piece of broom handle. The bricks and other rubbish he placed in his bed and covered up so as to make it appear that he was in bed. He stole a loaf of bread, and, wetting it, molded it into the shape of a man's head. Tissue paper was pasted on to represent a man's face, and eyebrows were painted with soot secured from the gas jet. This dummy deceived the deputy who makes the rounds of the wing at intervals.

With a sharp shoe knife stolen from one of the shops Myers fashioned from his grayish blue blanket a pair of trousers and a cap, and by some means he had bleached the stripes from his prison shirt. From a part of his bedding and a piece of carpet he made a rope about 20 feet long with which to let himself down from the wall. Myers told Keeper Moore that he began to dig his way to liberty several days back. On the evening of his attempted escape he got into the attic, and with a saw made from a knife cut through the tin roof and one of the joists. The hole he made in the wall of his cell was 8 by 16 inches in size, and through this he squeezed himself into the attic. When he reached the roof, he found himself in front of the ventilator, and here he sat shivering in the cold through the night, waiting for the chance that did not come.

In the morning Myers turned out for breakfast and later went into the yard to exercise. At noon, when most of the deputies are at dinner and the prisoners are locked in their cells, Myers went through the hole to the roof and made the bold attempt to do at midday what he had failed to do at night. He had dressed in his blanket suit, and with his rope in a bundle boldly walked across the roof, hoping he might be mistaken for one of the tinsmiths who were repairing the roof of another wing. John H. Medcraft, one of the guards, thinking all was not right, sent word to Keeper Moore that there was a strange man on the roof, and an alarm was sounded. Myers had lowered himself from the main building to the roof of a portico at the main entrance and was fastening his rope there when Deputy Jacob Reinhardt thrust a revolver through the grating of a window and commanded him to surrender. Myers, who was but 14 feet from the ground, gave up at once. When taken before Keeper Moore, the keeper said to him, "This is a nice thing you have done, isn't it?"

"Yes," replied Myers. "It's your place to keep me, and it's my place to get away if I can."—New York Sun.

Mr. Harmsworth's Ambition.

Mr. Harmsworth, who defrayed the expenses of the Jackson expedition in Franz-Josef Land, has declared that he will send two ships to the arctic next season and keep an expedition in the arctic regions till a complete map can be made of all the accessible parts of the north polar world. The Jackson expedition has cost him $200,000.

English Like Us Even When Dead.

Next to having wealthy Americans live in England, the English people would like to have them die in that country. It is said that the heirs of William Louis Winans of Baltimore, who died recently in England, will have to pay into the British treasury a probate duty of $961,200.

No Birds, Millions of Beetles.

New Orleans is suffering from the invasion of a new variety of beetle, of which 50,000 bushels were swept from the sidewalks on a recent morning. As millions of birds have recently been killed in Louisiana for their plumage, this invasion of beetles is not surprising.

Young Marlborough.

The brand new babe at Spencer House,
A tiny little chap,
Will have so many titles that
They'll sadly overlap.
He's Blandford's marquis, first of all,
Then Earl of Sunderland,
Then earl, again, of Marlborough,
Then Baron Spencer and
A prince, you know, of holy Rome,
A prince of Mindelheim,
A baron of the Churchill brand,
And other things in time.
And yet he's such a tender chap,
So very, very small,
That folks will wonder how the deuce
He's going to hold 'em all.

MORE SEWER WORK.

Laterals Being Put on Cottage Avenue and Chestnut Street.

It was somewhat of a surprise to the residents of Cottage avenue this morning to see a gang of laborers commence work laying a lateral sewer pipe. It is the desire of the Commissioners to keep the citizens, that were employed laying the fore main, at work as long as the weather permits, and they were therefore put to work as noted above.

The sewer at this point will be an eight-inch pipe and will be laid at a depth of about eight feet. The first opening was made at the corner of Cottage avenue and Ctotage street and they will work toward Chestnut street here the pipe will be laid in both directions as far as possible before the ground freezes up. This will be done as was the laying of the force main under the direction of the Commissioners by citizens of Quincy.

At other sections of the sewer under construction work is progressing. Messrs. Craib, who are building section one, have a gang of men at work near Butler's pond building the connecting link there, and another gang at work near the pumping station at Merry Mount park putting in the connecting link there. At this point a tunnel is being put through the hill which necessitates a cut of about 40 feet in depth.

Messrs. Knight who are building section two, have the trench opened the whole length of Newcomb street, and quite a section of the main built.

Messrs. Sheahan, who was awarded the contract for building section three have commenced to get their engine and apparatus on the ground at Wollaston and will commence work in a few days.

The contract for building the pumping station and chimney has been awarded to T. H. Kingston of Norfolk Downs, who will commence work in a few days and rush it through.

—Mr. Walter E- Loud's violin recital is announced for Wednesday evening, Oct. 27 at 8 o'clock in Colonial hall, Savings Bank building. Mr. Loud is to be assisted by Miss Annie Dean, contralto and Mr. J. Herman Loud pianst, and an excellent programme has been prepared. Tickets can be purchased at Hearn's Drug store, and of Mr. Loud. 4t-1wp

Norfolk Down's Concert.

The first of the course of popular concerts, which are to be held during the next few months at Norfolk Downs, was held Tuesday evening at Poland's hall. The talent was the Albion quartette, composed of Mr. Thomas E. Johnson, Mr. George H. Remele, Mr. James C. Bartlett and Dr. George R. Clark assisted by Miss Adelaide T. Thomas, violinist, Mrs. H. B. Holmes, reader and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, pianist. The concert was of the highest order and was fully appreciated by the large audience present who demanded responses to each number which were most freey granted.

There were but few of the Norfolk Downs people present, which is to be regretted as the course was instituted more particularly for their benefit, but now that the nature of the concerts has become known this section will doubtless be more largely represented at the future concerts in the course.

The quartette was heard in four numbers, Messrs. Johnson and Remele in a duet and Mr. Bartlett in a tenor solo with violin and piano obligato.

Miss Thomas, who is a resident of Norfolk Downs and an artist of high repute, gave a violin solo that completely captivated the audience. who were sorry that she was not down for more numbers.

Mrs. Holmes recited two numbers and her selections were of a light nature and were therefor much enjoyed.

Mrs. Smith who officiated as accompanist was also heard in a piano solo, rendering an air from the opera Alcsete, and it is hardly necessary to add that she fully sustained her reputation as an accomplished pianist.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

When wear bgins to exceed repair in your body you are going to fall sick. The signs of it are loss of flesh, paleness, weakness, nervousness, etc. The repair needed is food. You think you eat enough, and yet you feel that you wear out more tissue, energy, nerveforce, than your food makes for you. The difficulty is that you do not digest enough. And this is so serious it is worth sitting down seriously to think about. If you can't digest what you eat, take a few doses of Shaker Digestive Cordial. The effect of it will be to increase your flesh and make you feel stronger. You won't fall sick. Proof that it is in control of your repair apparatus. It's easy enough to test this for yourself. Take a few bottles of Shaker Digestive Cordial.

PEOPLE VS. OFFICIALS.

Distress In Ireland Giving No Alarm to Unsympathetic Rulers.

Dublin, Oct. 26.—There are two sides to the question of the famine in Ireland. One side is that of the government, which claims the famine is exploited by politicians as an argument against the administration of Ireland. The other side, held by many of the clergy, politicians and people, is that it is certain there will be great distress throughout

A meeting of Roman Catholic prelates was held at Maynooth last week, lates was held at Maynooth this week, and those present adopted resolutions that the archbishops and bishops of Ireland deemed it their duty to submit to the government a statement of their conviction, formed on the personal knowledge of several members of that body that the failure of the potato and cereal crops in many districts, particularly on the southern and western coasts, must lead to great distress and, unless speedy measures of relief are adopted, to disastrous consequences.

From delegates who were present at the convention of the independents at Dublin last week, details of the situation were learned. The situation is particularly bad in the middle and west Cork districts, south of Ireland, from Macroon to the borders of Kerry, including two congested districts. Meetings are being held, the parish priests presiding, urging the government to start relief work before the people are actually suffering. The district of Bantry, where the greatest suffering occurred in 1847 and in 1879, is as bad as the Cork district. The potatoes are practically exhausted already. In mid Cork and along the southern coast there is not more than a quarter of the usual crop. It is said that a very small percentage of the farmers in this district have saved their potatoes, and those saved are reported to be so bad that when eaten they produce "Irish cholera," and are worthless as seeds. It is feared that the supply of food will be exhausted before the new year. The other crops are very bad and the laborers are in a worse condition than the farmers, because now that the crops are harvested they have no expectation of work until the spring.

The government officials insist upon keeping themselves fully informed regarding the conditions prevailing, and will be able, apparently, to cope with the distress; but they say they are unable to announce at this time what districts or how many people will be affected. J. B. Dougherty, assistant under secretary of state for Ireland, discussing the situation with a representative of the Associated Press, said there would undoubtedly be suffering; but, he remarked, the predictions of a famine similar to that of the year 1847 were the "merest rubbage." He added: "There are several counties on the west coast of Ireland where the people have had an exceedingly hard time to attain self support under the best conditions, and it requires but a small push to send them over the line, so that with a small falling off of the crops they will be obliged to accept aid. This will be the case in parts of the west coast. But two circumstances will prevent a recurrence of the famine in Ireland under any circumstances, namely, the increase of railroad facilities since 1848 and the fact that the people are no longer dependent entirely upon the potato crop. The truth is that part of Ireland is not sufficiently productive to support its people, and it is a question whether manufactures should not be taken to them, or whether they should not be taken to the manufactures of England, the United States or elsewhere, though I am not prepared to say which."

Value of the Pullman Estate.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—All sorts of stories are current in financial circles over the Pullman will. It is said positively that the estate was not worth over $20,000,000 or $25,000,000. Some well-known men, however, say that Pullman's income has averaged $10,000,000 annually for a number of years. Mr. Lincoln said there were a great number of public bequests, but he refused to give them out. Neither of the executors of the will would confirm or deny the statement that Mr. Pullman had disinherited his two sons George M. and Sanger Pullman. Neither of the young men is said to be violently drawn toward a business career, and for that reason it has been declared that the bulk of the property is left to the widow and Mrs. Frank Lowden, his daughter. The Chicago university comes in for a large amount, it is also said. According to one report Mrs. Frank Carolan of San Francisco, one of the dead millionaire's daughters, will not receive over $2,000,000.

A Murder Mystery.

New York, Oct. 26.—The body of a well-dressed man was washed ashore at St. George, Staten island. The body was at first thought to be that of a drowned man, but the autopsy brought out the fact that the man was dead before his body was thrown into the water, and that death resulted from a pistol shot, or blow on the head from a club. The man was probably about 60 years old. The body had been in the water about five days.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. WILLIAMS' PROPHECY.

When Newspapers Will Cringe and Fawn Before the People.

Spoke of It at a Rally In Worcester Last Night.

Senator Teller Writes on the Hope For Bimetallism.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 27.—George Fred Williams and Christopher T. Callahan addressed a Democratic rally in Mechanics' hall last night. The attendance was much larger than that at the Republican rally Tuesday night. There were fully 1500 people in the hall, against about 800 for the Republicans Tuesday. Rev. John Gregson presided, being introduced by Eugene M. Moriarty. Mr. Williams was given quite an ovation as he responded to the introduction of the presiding officer.

The orator said: "I have been appealing to the people to arouse themselves to the fact that they have never had control of their own government. I have been attempting to teach the people that, whether the Democracy of the past has been in power or the Republican party, the people have not been properly represented. There needs to be some instructions to the politicians of our day to teach them to respect the masses of men no matter what political faith they may espouse. The press needs to learn it, which is also throwing about abusive epithets because we happen to be in a temporary minority, and it will be but a short time, my friends, when the newspapers will be crying and fawning at the feet of the people.

Mr. Knowlton arraigns me for an attack upon the courts of the commonwealth, and insists that I have insulted the judges of Massachusetts. I say there has not been, with one exception, a governor of Massachusetts in the last 25 years who dared to appoint a judge who was opposed to the railroads of Massachusetts; and that is a gross attack upon the courts of the commonwealth. There is no allegation made or intended that any of the judges have been false to their duty as judges willfully and because of corrupt influences, and yet Mr. Knowlton calls upon me to name a single judge who would sell his opinion or deny justice to anyone." Mr. Williams answered the challenge by quoting the name of Judge Bishop, who sentenced Jeremiah T. O'Sullivan to 18 months in jail for libel. Continuing Mr. Williams said: "No doubt I shall be criticised at mentioning the name of a judge in public and condemning for what I regard as an unrighteous use of his discretion. If we cannot have fairness and impartiality from the bench then indeed our liberties are in danger.

"What I insist upon is that the courts are the servants of the people. They are appointed by governors elected by you, and as soon as a governor is elected by an uprising of the people that governor will surely pick out for the bench men with liberal and progressive views, whose first duty it will be to give a tendency to decisions favorable to the masses of the people. You will never have your will expressed fully and freely until you have placed a party in power that will and has refused to accept contributions from the corporations for political assistance."

THE CONFIDENT GEORGE

Will Punish Croker and Platt if Elected Mayor of New York.

New York, Oct. 27.—The Jefferson Democracy of Harlem held a mass meeting last night, 3500 persons being present. Henry George, in the course of his address, said: "The light is coming. The principles Jefferson taught the party he formed are here again. His Democracy is not the Democracy of Croker nor of Tilden. I love it; I cherish it; I have been faithful to it. I will be true to it to my last breath. Come with me. We strike for the rights of men; the principles of liberty. This republic, where men die for want of work and children suffer; this republic of haughty millionaires and abject tramps, is not the republic for which the fathers fought and bled; it is not the republic fought for by the immortal Washington. The rights claimed in the declaration of independence are the rights granted by God to men. I was once called a socialist for maintaining these rights and was counted out to save society from my baneful influence. Years have passed, the cycle comes again, the people have arisen, the law of God has spoken. I shall be elected and I will not shirk my duty."

At this juncture a man in the audience asked the question: "Will you put Croker in jail?"

This provoked laughter and shouts of derision. Mr. George replied: "I will not; I'll put no man in jail. I'll do equal justice. All our citizens will have their rights, and that will involve putting Croker in jail if he is a malefactor. I will put Croker in jail and I will put Platt in jail if they have robbed the people. I will do right, and right is what evildoers most dislike. If Mr. Croker has honestly got his money, if he has worked hard in any way and with the proceeds got fine houses and running horses on English race tracks, it is none of my business. The question is, how did he get it? If he got it by robbing people, by naming men and measures, then, if I have the power, Mr. Croker will go to jail. (Cheers).

"As mayor of greater New York I will be entrusted with powerful functions. I will have the machinery which names juries and district attorneys, and have the best legal advice from the best lawyers. Would I not be a fool, a greater fool than I have been called, more stupid than Mr. Hewitt calls me, if I took Croker's advice and went to the grand jury? I know what that means. 'Will you walk into my parlor?' said the spider to the fly. I won't take his advice. I can wait a week, and on Jan. 1 I'll walk through the city hall and Mr. Croker won't wait for Jan. 1 to get sick; not if he is wise. He will go where there are no race tracks and where extradition treaties are unknown. What came to Boss Tweed and John Y. McKane? The mills of the gods will soon come to Boss Croker and to Mr. Sheehan of Buffalo who ran Croker's farm while he was away. (Great laughter and applause). I make no threats. I merely say what I'll do if I am elected and they are guilty. If guilty, it will be a wise thing for them to go."

"Plain People of the Country."

Pottsville, Pa., Oct. 27.—A letter bearing on political conditions generally from Senator Henry M. Teller of Colorado has been received by William Wilhelm, representative of the Republican silver party in this county. Among other things Senator Teller says: "I have never said I thought there was little hope for bimetallism. That is one of the many falsehoods of the gold press. I have said there is no hope of it under the McKinley administration, and I am confident that nothing will be done for the plain people of the country during this administration.

"I have no interest in the fight between Tammany and the Republicans. I do not hope for George's election, although it would please me greatly if he could be. The election of Tammany will not indicate that the Democratic party of the country is going to abandon silver. The Democratic party is committed to silver and will continue on that line, and the gold Democrats will go to the Republican party and, under the influence of the gold Democrats, it will degrade and debase the party to such an extent as to make the old liberty-loving Republicans leave it."

Excitement In Marlboro.

Marlboro, Mass., Oct. 27.—There was considerable excitement in this city yesterday over the attempt by a man, whose name is unknown, but who it is said was working in the interest of the Tammany organization in New York, to prove that E. F. McSweeney, candidate for sheriff of greater New York on the Low and George tickets, was a voter of this city. The man visited the offices of the city clerk, the tax collector and last the registrar of voters, and at the latter place he found a voting list with McSweeney's name on it. He then went to a local photographer and hired him to take a picture of the sheet.

By this time the news of the action of the man had been noised about the city, and as McSweeney, when he lived here, was very well liked, a number of his friends interviewed the photographer and prevailed upon him not to take the picture. The New York man sought the assistance of every photographer in town, but not one would take the picture, and he left without securing it. McSweeney was formerly a resident of this city, but he has not paid a tax or voted here for three years.

Outcome of Schroeder Case.

Washington, Oct. 27.—In the absence of the papal delegate, Mgr. Martinelli, it cannot be learned that any official communication has been received from the vatican leaving the Schroeder case entirely with the American bishops as indicated by dispatches from Rome. It is the general opinion, however, among high ecclesiastics that this will be the ultimate outcome.

The final decision at Rome is also felt to involve much more than the personal status of Mgr. Schroeder. Among leading churchmen it is said that the real issue is as to what extent the American archbishops and bishops can administer affairs relating essentially to the American church. While there is no disposition to question the final authority of Rome, yet it is felt to be desirable to establish the usage that the American prelates shall in the best exercise of their judgment have large discretionary authority on subjects of discipline and administration.

Colored Citizens Not Neglected.

Washington, Oct. 27.—In response to numerous inquiries on the subject the number of appointments of colored persons to positions in the government during the period from March 4 last to Oct. 15 is ascertained to have been 179, carrying salaries amounting to $129,390 per year. Of these appointments four were made under the state department, 72 in the treasury, 18 in the interior, 10 in the department of agriculture, eight in the navy, 14 in the postoffice department and 53 in the government printing office. The number appointed during the same period in 1889 was 96, carrying annual salaries amounting to $75,690. The promotions during this period number 125, carrying salaries aggregating $85,740. The number promoted during the same period in 1889 was 20, with salaries amounting to $17,830.

TERRIBLE CASUALTY.

Fifty-Four Killed During Panic In a Russian Church.

Alarm of Fire While Service Was In Progress.

British Accused of Inciting West Africans to Rebellion.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 27.—A terrible casualty has taken place at the village of Khnieleff, in the Kozloff district, on the western coast of the Crimea.

While service was in progress in the village church an alarm of fire was raised. A panic ensued in the crowded congregation, and the efforts of the officiating priests to calm the tumult were absolutely unavailing.

In the stampede for the exits 54 persons were killed by suffocation or being trampled, and 80 others were seriously injured.

Great Difficulties Ahead.

Paris, Oct. 27.—A semi-official statement regarding the reported trouble in West Africa was issued last evening. It says: "The news from West Africa foreshadows great difficulties at Nikki and in Borgu. The Niger company (British) is sending officers there to incite rebellion and distribute arms to the natives. In view of this situation, French troops have been dispatched from Senegal as a preventive measure. Moreover, the British negotiators for a settlement of the Niger question have been in Paris for over a week, and everything points to Great Britain seeking to let matters drag. Seemingly she does not intend to discuss the question, but means will undoubtedly be found to foil these tactics."

"If the French Persist."

London, Oct. 27.—The British colonial officials declare that there does not seem to be any reasonable fear of complications at Nikki, "provided the French government behaves reasonably;" but, it was added, Great Britain has taken the determination to more effectively police her territories, "and if the French persist in trespassing, complications will naturally follow."

Reason of the Czar's Refusal.

Berlin, Oct. 27.—The Frankfort Zeitung gives as the reason of the czar's refusal to receive the Grand Duke and Duchess of Baden at Darmstadt the fact that the Crown Prince of Baden wooed the czarina's sister, the present Grand Duchess Sergius of Russia, but was rejected, and the matter left a coolness amounting to rancor between the courts of Darmstadt and Carlsruhe. The czar, the paper mentioned adds, evidently wished to show that he shared the feeling of his wife and of the Darmstadt court in this matter.

A semi-official statement issued from Darmstadt denies that there is any political significance in the czar's reply to the intimation conveyed to his by the Grand Duke and Duchess of Baden that the latter would be pleased to visit his majesty at Darmstadt, adding that the Russian emperor's answer was bungled through themaladroitness of the officials concerned.

Captain Cruickshank's Trouble.

London, Oct. 27.—At the Bow street police court yesterday "Captain" James Henry Irvine Cruickshank was again arraigned on the charge of obtaining about $50,000 from a number of ladies, including Lady Randolph Churchill and her sisters, by false pretenses. Among the witnesses called to show that the prisoner did not apply the money advanced him for the purposes Lady Randolph Churchill and the others intended was a representative of the banking firm of Morgan & Co. who testified that the Paris agents of the house in October, 1894, notified the London house that they had given Cruickshank a letter of credit on New York. Cruickshank, the witness added, shortly afterwards called on Morgan & Co. and said he was not going to America. He also obtained from them cash to the amount of $10,000 for the letter of credit referred to. Cruickshank was remadned for trial.

Sought Refuge In Tree Tops.

Rome, Oct. 27.—The entire plain around Ascoli, capital of the province of Ascoli-Piceno, in the marshes, is flooded. Great damage has been done by the waters. Eight persons have been drowned and there has been considerable loss of cattle. Many of the peasants have taken refuge in the tree tops, from which the carbineers are now engaged in rescuing them.

Heavyweight Wrestling.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 27.—Dan McLeod won the championship of the world at heavyweight catch-as-catch-can wrestling last night from "Farmer" Burns before 1500 people. He took the first and third falls in 23 and 17 1-2 minutes respectively, Burns winning the second in 37 minutes. Tom Jenkins of Cleveland and Evans Lewis of Wisconsin challenged the winner after the match. The match was for $1000 a side and 75 per cent of the receipts.

An Advisory Board.

Baltimore, Oct. 27.—The Woman's Home Missionary society concluded the election of officers by the selection of the following advisory board: Mrs. Samuel Hamilton, Pittsburg; Mrs. S. H. Mansfield, Charlestown, Mass.; Mrs. J. P. Myers, Inwood, Ia.; Mrs. J. M. King, New York; Mrs. H. M. Teller, Washington; Mrs. H. W. Rogers, Evanston, Ills., and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, Cincinnati.

One Politician Kills Another.

Cincinnati, Oct. 27.—Patrick A. Joy a Democratic politician, died last night from a pistol shot wound from a weapon in the hands of Louis Trosky, a Republican politician. Both men were drunk and were recognized as dangerous men. Trosky is out on $5000 bail, and the police are looking for him.

Policeman Shot Dead.

New York, Oct. 27.—Policeman Frederick Smith was shot and killed this morning in the church of the Holy Redeemer, Third avenue, by Fritz Meyer, a burglar, who was robbing the poor box. Meyer was arrested. A mob nearly killed him.

THE ILL-FATED TRAIN.

Bodies of the Fireman and a Passenger Recovered Tuesday.

Garrisons, N. Y., Oct. 27.—The events of the second day after the Central railroad accident were the raising of the day coach of the ill-fated train, the finding of an additional victim and the raising of the engine, with the body of Fireman John Q. Tompkins tightly wedged between two masses of iron in front.

When the water had drained out of the car, those watching the operation saw at one of the windows a human hand badly bloated. The wreckers tore aside the debris, and soon had the body out. A vigorous search was made and the entire fixings of the car were removed so that anybody within could be easily reached. To the relief of the searchers and watchers no more bodies were found.

The body removed, making the seventeenth since the wreck and the twendieth known victim, was that of a man of 35 years of age. The shoes and coat had been removed, and it was evident that the man had been sleeping when death came. Whether he was killed by concussion or whether he was drowned never will be known. In one of the pockets of the vest was a wallet containing six $10 bills, a $2 bill and a casualty insurance company ticket such as is bought at railroad stations as an insurance against accident or death. It was made out for the usual sum of $2500 in case of death, but very curiously the name, or at least the last name of both payor and beneficiary were missing. The card read, as far as could be read, "Ike R" as the purchaser's name and "Mrs. E." as the person to whom it was to be paid. The railroad officials are of the opinion that the man boarded the train at Rochester. The body was taken to the coroner's office at Cold Spring.

The contents of the car, other than the body, showed that the people had made a great rush for their lives. There were women's shoes and hats, six men's hats, a woman's coat, eight gripsacks of various kinds, two men's coats and many small garments.

The heavy engine was dragged out of the river last night. The divers had located the tender early in the afternoon and brought it up without its trucks. When the engine came to the surface of the river it was seen that the front trucks were missing, and that the front of the boiler and the guards were smashed into an unrecognizable mass. As the great machine came in sight one of the men on the lighter saw clothes dangling from the front, and when the lanterns could be brought to bear it was found that the rags covered the body of Fireman Tompkins. The body was wedged in front of the boiler where the engine number plate is. It was sent to Cold Spring to the coroner's office. If the raising of the trucks of the engine and the tender do not bring to light the bodies of Engineer Foyle and Mr. McKay dredges will be put to work in the vicinity to see whether they are buried in the mud.

All that remains as a reminder of the wreck here now, with the exception of the wrecking machinery, are the broken up and burning cars on the river bank. The fact that the front trucks of the engine are yet in the river precludes any possibility as yet of determining whether a broken truck caused the accident. Eighteen bodies so far have been recovered.

Crank at Large In Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—"If I do not get my just deserts I may become a second Guiteau, and there will be serious trouble for President McKinley," said a man who gave his name as George Scholder of Otter Creek, Ia., in Senator Mason's law office. Scholder said a few years ago he was the owner of a large tract of land in eastern Kansas. He was swindled out of it through litigation, and now he wants the president to assist him in regaining the property.

He said he had come to Chicago in the hope of securing the sympathy of some prominent attorney, but had been unsuccessful and was almost discouraged. He had called on Senator Mason in order to persuade the latter to assist him in securing what he wanted from the president. The senator is not in the city.

Another appointment was made with the man on the suspicion that he was a crank, and detectives were sent for, but he did not show up again. He had been in Chicago three weeks, penniless and on the verge of starvation. He said he had a daughter living in Fort Scott, Kan., and if he did not go to Washington he would go to Kansas.

Who Will Stand the Loss?

Washington, Oct. 27.—Government officials are at a loss to know on whom will fall the loss by the $90,000 worth of bogus warrants on acount of the Creek Indian payment which are now out. The government will not lose anything, but the money on all these warrants has been paid out in an intermediary way. Whether the Creek nation, which is said to have paid some of the money on the warrants, or outside parties, who are known to have cashed at least a part of them on a premium as brokers, or others, will be the ones to stand the loss is not known. Secretary Bliss stated that while there are about $90,000 worth of bogus warrants out for the Creek payment, they had not been paid. Who holds the warrants cannot be learned, he said, but the government would not lose a cent.

He May Be Too Positive.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—"Within the past 24 hours we have received information that may make another trial of Luetgert unnecessary," said Attorney Phalen yesterday. "I will not reveal the name of my informant, nor the location of the city in which he lives at present, but it is within 200 miles of Chicago, and the man is an ex-official of the place. He is positive—absolutely positive—that he has seen Mrs. Luetgert within a few days. The information, together with his identification, is startling in its directness."

Boston Boy Killed.

Boston, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Mary Cadigan, her son, Daniel, and M. J. Maloney were picking up chips in a lumber yard near their home when a pile of lumber fell over on the boys. The Cadigan boy was crushed so badly that he died in a short time, while the Maloney lad received a broken jaw and other serious, but not necessarily fatal injuries.

Frank H. Pervear, a grocer, in some manner fell from his wagon and suffered concussion of the brain. His condition is very critical.

Narrow Escape From Foundering.

Boston, Oct. 26.—The schooner Brilliant, Captain Hart, which has arrived from Newport, had an exceedingly narrow escape from foundering when off Holmes' hole during the gale of the 17th inst. Soon after the gale began the foretopmast was broken off and the maingaff carried away, and as the vessel is 63 years old the severe straining opened her seams, so that at one time there was over four feet of water in the hold. As a last resort the crew cut away the sheathing and stuffed rags in the seams. This stopped the water in a measure and the vessel outlived the storm, putting into a sheltered place for further repairs.

Only Rolling Stock Damaged.

Warren, N. H., Oct. 26.—The Montreal day express going south had a head-on collision with a way freight train on the White mountain division of the Boston and Maine railroad yesterday afternoon. Although the rolling stock of both trains were considerably damaged the wreck was unattended by loss of life. The express consisted of a number of Canadian Pacific coaches and a through sleeper from St. Paul.

Bath's New Treasurer.

Bath, Me., Oct. 26.—The city council, in special meeting last evening, passed an order for the removal of City Treasurer William B. Palmer. In joint convention Oscar C. Rogers, treasurer of the People's Safe Deposit and Savings bank, was elected treasurer for the balance of the year.

Shot In the Head.

Boston, Oct. 26.—A quarrel in a lunch cart on Columbus avenue yesterday resulted in Daniel Mahoney, 19 years old, being shot in the head; he will probably die. William Graham, 23 years old, his alleged assailant, is at large.

Much Damage Wrought by Gale and Tide.

New York, Oct. 26.—High tides and higher winds that drove the sea inland have caused an immense amount of damage along the Atlantic coast at nearby points during the past 24 hours. Many buildings erected on the sands at the summer resorts were knocked to pieces and carried out to sea, and coast liners have suffered much loss and delay by reason of the storm.

The highest tides in years, supplemented by the wind, which blew at the rate of from 35 to 90 miles an hour, prevailed yesterday, and when the high water reaches its maximum today even greater damage is expected unless the gale abates. From down the Long Island coast the heaviest damage is reported.

The greatest damage is reported from the lowlands in the vicinity of Edgemore, where the mammoth Edgemore hotel is threatened with destruction. Wind and seas have already destroyed about $35,000 worth of the hotel property, mostly in the shape of small buildings, walks, bathing pavilions and in washing away the grounds.

The fury of the storm and the great force of the waves could be well observed at the highlands of Navesink. One hundred and fifty feet of the top work of the government trestle connection at Sandy Hook was carried away. The big rocks, which weigh several tons, and which were placed to afford protection for the railroad in just such emergencies as this, were rolled about by the sea as though they were so many marbles. Many of them were lifted up and deposited upon the railroad tracks. The bulkheads were destroyed.

All the places along Staten island sound reported high water and more or less flooding of the lowlands by the tides, but no great damage. The meadows below Elizabeth were all flooded. The meadows on Staten island were also under water.

Like Sancho Panza's Successes.

Havana, Oct. 26.—It is announced from the Spanish headquarters that Major Manuel Tapia Ruano, with a guerilla force, has been engaged in the outskirts of the Havana lines, between La Chorrera and Managua, with an insurgent force, which he dispersed, killing four of the enemy. Among the dead, the official report adds, was General Adolfo Castillo, the insurgent leader. His body was brought to Havana.

An official dispatch from Sancti Spiritus, province of Santa Clara, announces the surrender there to the Spanish authorities of Lieutenant Colonel Thomas Velasqus of the insurgent army and his honorary aide de camp.

Private advices here confirm the report that Castillo has been killed in an engagement. It is further stated that his body has been carried to La Chorrera, four miles distant from this city, where it is interred.

Another Blow at Woman's Rights.

London, Oct. 26.—The board of trade has refused to grant a yachtmaster's certificate to Lady Ernestine Brudenell-Bruce, a great yachtswoman who had prepared to undergo all the examinations requisite for a master's certificate. She asked to be examined by the board of trade, pointing out that she merely wanted authorization to command her own yacht and did not desire to serve on board other ships; but the board of trade replied that it would not permit a woman to be examined for a master's certificate, as the term, "Masters," clearly implies that only men are eligible.

Rotten Beef and Pork.

North Brookfield, Mass., Oct. 26.—The house and barn of Alvin Howe on the West Brookfield road were burned last evening. The fire followed the explosion of a lighted lantern in the barn. Four cows, two pigs, many hens and considerable feed and many farming implements were burned, but one horse was saved. The loss was $2200 and the insurance $1200.

Dr. Pond's Curves Pounded.

Kansas City, Oct. 26.—Fourteen hundred persons witnessed yesterday's game between the Baltimores and the All-Americans. The latter took readily to Pond's curves. Score: All-Americans, 9; Baltimores, 4. Batteries—Hastings and Donohue; Pond and Clark.

Used a Knife and Revolver.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 26.—The passengers of the steamer Farrallon, which arrived here Sunday from Alaska, bring the news of a murder committed near Lake Tagish Oct. 1. Two men from Seattle named Henderson and Peterson quarrelled over a trivial matter and Henderson, after stabbing Peterson with a bowie knife several times, drew a revolver and beat his victim's head into a jelly. Henderson was arrested and bound to a tree for 10 days until the arrival of the Canadian mounted police, who took him to Dawson City for trial.

FRUIT HINTS.

Shiftless fruit culture cuts down the profits.

It is always a good plan to mulch newly set trees.

A dressing of coarse manure makes a good mulch.

Pack apples so that they will not shake about in the barrel.

Keep down the weeds and suckers among the raspberry plants.

No farm home is complete without a good orchard and small fruit plot.

The orchard should not be cultivated at this season, nor should manure be applied until after the leaves have fallen.

Feeble growing and unhealthy trees are usually the result of starvation, bad soil or unfavorable conditions of growth.

It is not too late to examine the peach trees for borers. If found, dig them out with a sharp knife and destroy them.

When a tree is healthy, the top is luxuriant, but when it is weak or old the top dies or makes little growth, and small shoots sprout all over the trunk.

It is impossible for fruit to be perfect and well colored unless the tree—body branches and leaves—as well as the ground under it, is fully exposed to sunlight.

When the orchard is seeded to clover one of the best plans of management is either to mow the growth and let it lie as a mulch or let it die down as it was in the fall.—St. Louis Republic.

COOK RODE AT NIGHT.

She Made Good Omelets, but Is Now Seeking Another Position.

Ordinarily the hero of this chronicle is the meekest and most amiable man in Kenwood, Ills., but upon two subjects he is a crank—the one is omelet, the other the bicycle. Recently, however, peace descended upon the house. A cook had been found who could make a satisfactory omelet and the head of the family had been suited in a bicycle.

Aware that the cook who made an omelet to please her lord might do anything else she pleased, his wife also yielded to the fascinating wheel. The cook said she would never trust herself on such a thing, but the "lady of the house" was delighted to find her cleaning her own machine when she happened down early one morning, becoming as enthusiastic in her praise as was her husband. A week later the machine had a broken pedal.

"Oh, John," cried the wife, "I do believe the horrid thing rides my wheel when I'm in bed!"

Then the cook became possessed of an admirer who thought bicycling wicked, as she informed the family. Early one morning the head of the house arose, intending to take an appetizing spin. Throwing open the front door, he espied his next neighbor trundling the lawn mower which had curtailed his sleep.

"Hello!" cried the neighbor cheerfully. "Glad you weren't much hurt last night."

"Hurt! How?"

"Accident to your wheel, man. I saw you and your wife entering your back gate about midnight, looking as if you'd had a bad smash up. You needn't have been so glum, though, that you wouldn't speak to me."

"But we went to bed at half past 9 last night, and"—

"Oh, John!" shrieked his wife. "Come, see our wheels! They look as if they'd been in a cyclone."

The cook said it was the rats, but she had a black eye and a sprained shoulder. A person who makes good omelet, who does not ride a wheel and whose "steady company" owns one may obtain a good situation by applying at a Kenwood home.—Chicago Tribune.

A San Francisco dentist has been sued by a patron because he refused to treat her teeth when she came to his office wearing a bicycle bloomer suit. She further alleges that he made remarks about it.

In a public address at his home in Crawfordsville, Ind., General Lew Wallace gave the bicyclers a sharp rap, saying that they resembled monkeys more than men. He greatly deprecated the popular custom of wheeling.

When the postmaster of Hoboken, N. J., came to examine a case of destitution the other day, he found a new bicycle in the place. It belonged to the daughter of the house. He very naturally advised the sufferers to sell the wheel.

Damages For Cyclist.

A case of interest to cycle riders was decided recently by Squire Bloom in a way that satisfies the riders. The justice holds that the city is responsible for holes in the streets when these result in damage to riders.

The case was that of Miss Jessie M Oliver, who sued the city for $300 damages. She was riding on Woodburn avenue and ran into a hole in the street on a recent evening. There was no light or signal of any kind to give warning of danger, and she had her wheel broken, her clothing torn and received physical injuries herself.

A number of persons testified as to the plaintiff's injuries and the danger of the unguarded street hole. The city had a policeman to testify for it, and what he had to say did not relieve the authorities from the charge of neglect, and the judgment of the court was as stated.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A New Bicycle Accident.

F. Z. Buckley, a Kansas City wheelman, had a peculiar accident on a recent afternoon while repairing a bicycle at his shop. He was brazing a break in the handle bar by heat forced from a blowpipe.

The interior of the tube became so heated that the cement with which the cork handles were fastened on melted and caused gas to generate. This gas exploded and blew off the cork handles. The hot bicycle cement covered Buckley's left hand and arm, burning them so badly that the flesh peeled off.—Exchange.

SEWER PAYMENT.

Council Committee Gives a Public Hearing.

Difference of Opinion as to Portion to Assess.

And Some Still Adhere to a Rental System.

The joint Committee on Finance and Sewers and Drains of the City Council, who are considering the method of paying for the sewer system, gave a hearing at the Council chamber Wednesday evening to obtain the views of the citizens as to what proportion of the cost should be assessed on abutters and what on the city, and how it should be assessed.

For a question of so much importance to the citizens there was a very small number present outside of the committee. Some of the gentlemen who spoke on the question favored assessing two-thirds on abutters and one-third upon the city, some one half on each and some favored the rental system. Few ideas were expressed as to whether it was better to assess on frontage, or area, or valuation.

Councilman Anderson presided and the first speaker was

CITY TREASURER GRAY

Who believed two-thirds should be assessed on the abutters and one-third upon the city. This would make it easier on those who lived in the outlaying districts who had no sewer. By this method the tax rate would be less. It would not make the assessment heavy and many would pay before the ten years to save the interest. By keeping the tax down it would not head off any further improvements that might be wanted in the city.

HENRY H. FAXON

Spoke in his characteristic way. Suppose only a few enter who will pay the losses? Not ten per cent. of those who live on line of sewer will enter. The matter of paying for the sewer reminded him of a man who coming to the junction of two roads asked which was the best and the reply was, which ever he took, he would be sorry he had not taken the other. This trying to stave off debts for future generations to pay was a poor policy. This was going to cause more antagonism than anything ever inaugurated in Quincy. When a man has his property taxed for all it is worth, and then comes to be taxed for the sewer he will kick.

The sewer might have been put off five or six years. Those fellows who have speculated in clay land want it to sell their property. He would like to see any plan for two-thirds on abutters and one-third on city that would be satisfactory. One-half on each would be better.

CHAIRMAN ANDERSON

Stated that with the two-thirds on abutters a lot 60 by 100 would be assessed for about $65 and the owner would have ten years to pay it in at five per cent. interest. Where the assessment was two-thirds on abutters it meant that one-third would be assessed on each side of the street.

Mr. Faxon—When will the assessment be made?

Chairman Anderson—When the sewer in any part of the street is ready for use. There was nothing to compel one to enter the sewer but he must pay for it just the same.

City Treasurer Gray said the premium on the bonds will pay them for the first three years. There will be more bonds and interest the first few years but we shall have more money on hand to pay them with.

Mr. Faxon—I do not think annual rentals would work, as very few would enter the sewer. In order to get a revenue, rentals must be high.

POSTMASTER JAMES F. BURKE.

This matter is the most important that has confronted the city for some time. In looking over the matter in different cities many seem unsatisfactory. Had rather see an assessment than rental; rather a frontage assessment than area. The first question was how much each should pay. In getting the assessment upon each street was the committee to take the estimated cost of that street?

Chairman Anderson—It was figured upon the total cost of the sewer, which was about $11,000 per mile. It was necessary to estimate the total cost of the plant and base the assessment on that amount. It will be averaged up over the whole city and not per individual street.

In reply to Councilman Sidelinger Mr. Burke said that he believed the city should pay one-third. Some of the outlaying districts will not use the system for twelve or fifteen years and one third will be enough for them to pay. A man who does not live in the radius should not be asked to pay. People who are benefited should pay. He would not agreed with some that the whole cost should be paid on a general assessment each year.

Concilman Phillips—Would their not be a disposition to keep the sewer out of a street, if the assessment was two-thirds on abutters rather than if one-half.

Mr. Burke did not think so. There were certain streets that the Board of Health would make them enter.

Chairman Anderson—It will probably be a year before any assessment is made.

JOHN A. MCDONNELL

Believed the city should pay one-half and then the abutters would be more apt to come in. If the sewer is a public blessing let the people pay for it. The city can borrow money cheaper than the individual.

If there is no compulsion to use the sewer what is the use of it. The city should pay for it the same as the water system.

Councilman Field—If I lived half a mile from the sewer should I pay for emptying our cesspool?

Mr. McDonnell that would be your misfortune.

COUNCILMAN BADGER.

With the assessment plan there was no rental, the whole thing must be paid for. After you have paid your assessment the only cost to you is your proportionate part of the maintenance raised by taxation.

ALEXANDER MARNOCK

Believed the city should pay one-half. He was in favor of rentals as he believed that the most equitable way. It was a question of adjusting differences. The outlaying district who can not reap the benefit object to paying assessment and those who do are obliged to pay a large assessment. A large assessment would bear heavily upon many of our people and taking with this the amount to connect, it will make it a hardship. Many who are compelled to enter will have to borrow. The city can borrow cheaper. The question of those who get benefit and those who do not must be weighed carefully. If not a rental he would favor a larger part to be paid by the city. There are many who now are just able to get along and the amount to connect will come hard if they have to borrow. It was to be a hardship anyway and the only question was, how it would be the easiest. He was not sure whether it would be best to strike an average by valuation of property or by the number who use the sewer.

Councilman Phillips — You believe that those who use the sewer should pay the entire cost?

Mr. Marnock—Yes.

Councilman Phillips—Would that not put a heavy burden on the city?

Mr. Marnock—The city is growing rapidly and he did not think it would. In a little time it would pay for itself the same as the water system.

NEWMAN SAVAGE.

In the long run a direct tax would cost the abutters more. The assessment plan would be the cheapest in the end. The city should pay one-half.

LOUIS SANQUINET.

Believed the city should pay one-half and the abutters one-half. The hearing then closed.

Ministers' Day.

An incident that happened recently at a hardware store on Broadway, South Boston, again illustrates the old saying that "truth is stranger than fiction." A Quincy minister had occasion to call at the store for some article that he wanted, and after the lady clerk had done it up she said. "It is queer, but the last five customers I have had have all been ministers." And, although the store was of that character, and not a large one at that, and was in a quarter of the city away from the business center, and there was no ministerial convention going on, that was the fact. It was just one of those things that sometimes happen and for which there is no explanation.

CLOUGH--PERRY.

Church Wedding and Reception at Wollaston.

One of the swellest society events of the season took place at the First Congregational church, Wollaston, Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, it being the marriage of Miss Maud Adele Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin J. Perry of Wollaston and Mr. Frank James Clough of Somerville.

The auditorium and pulpit were decorated under Mr. William Patterson's supervision with a magnificent display of palms, ferns and hydrangeas, as was also the church vestry where the reception was subsequently held.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward A. Robinson, the pastor of the society, before a large concourse of relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The bride looked beautiful in a gown of cream colored lansdown, trimmed with point venise lace with veil and lilies of the valley, and carried a large bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor, Miss Anna P. Sartelle of East Pepperell, wore a dress of cream colored lansdown with pearl trimmings. The bridemaids, Miss Grace E. Clough, a sister, of the groom, of Tolland, Conn.; Miss M. Annie Perry a sister of the bride; Miss Mina Perry of Melrose a cousin of the bride; Miss Louise Wheeler, Miss Alice G. Thompson and Miss Susie P. Burbank of Neponset—were gowned in white muslin and carried bouquets of white pinks.

The ushers were Dr. A. J. Perry of New York, Mr. Charles P. Hutchins, Mr. Arthur T. Brasee, Mr. Charles B. Dickey of Portland, Me., and Mr. Walter F. Ellis of Braintree.

As the bridal party entered the church, the organist, Mrs. Amos Towle Leavitt, played the wedding march from Lohengrin, and as it left Mendelssohn's.

After the ceremony a largely attended reception was held in the church vestry, which had been beautifully decorated for the occasion with potted plants, rare rugs and other costly articles. Lunch was served by Cook of Boston. There was music by an orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Clough were assisted in receiving by Miss Anna P. Sartelle, Miss Grace E. Clough, Miss M. Annie Perry and Miss Mina Perry.

Upon their return from a wedding trip of a fortnight, to Connecticut and other places, they will reside at Somerville.

The Boulevard.

On Tuesday afternoon the Metropolitan Park Commissioners came out to Atlantic on the half past one train. They were met at the station by Mayor Adams and Mr. Nelson V. Titus and driven over the route of the proposed boulevard. Squantum and the Quincy shore were visited. It is expected the commissioners will come to a decision about the boulevard this week. If decided favorably it will be a great thing for Atlantic and our city.

Opening of Quincy Music Hall, Thursday, November 4.

Quincy's splendid New Music Hall will be opened on Thursday evening, November 4, by

THE BOSTON OPERETTA COMPANY,

a vocal organization of unusual strength. The company includes

MISS LOUISE GUZMANN, MISS HATTIE GODDARD,	Sopranos.	MR. J. F. HANSHUE, MR. J. F. McDEVITT,	Tenors.
MISS JENNIE PAINE, MISS HELEN DAY,	Contraltos.	MR. L. W. FLINT, Baritone. MR. W. W. NYE, Bass.

MR. ALMON FAIRBANKS, Pianist.

Miss Guzmann has a clear, high soprano voice of wonderful flexibility. She will sing an exceptionally brilliant waltz song by Arditi, in the concert programme, and play the part of "Siebel" in "Faust", singing the beautiful flower song in "A Marriage by Lantern." She has a thoroughly congenial role as one of the widows looking for a rich husband.

Miss Goddard has a powerful, dramatic soprano voice of fine quality, which is especially adapted to the requirements of the role of "Margherite," while she is also happily cast in "A Marriage by Lantern" as the other widow. The "quarreling duet" in the operetta is capitally done by Misses Guzmann and Goddard.

Miss Day has a fine contralto voice, with the range of a mezzo-soprano. She will be heard in an interesting solo selection, and will sing the part of "Martha" in "Faust." It would be extremely hard to find a young lady better fitted to play the part of "Martha," her voice and stature being decidedly in her favor. Miss Day and Mr. Flint have a capital scene in the third act of "Faust." It is needless to say that they improve every opportunity for comedy in that scene.

Miss Paine has a full, low contralto voice of exquisite quality, which will be heard to excellent advantage as "Lisa" in "A Marriage by Lantern."

Mr. Flint is conceded to have a splendid voice, capitally trained. He will sing the great "Torcador's Song," from "Carmen," and "Mefistofele" in "Faust," in each of which he is thoroughly admirable.

Mr. Hanshue has had a long experience on the operatic stage, having played many important parts in the famous Boston Ideal Opera Company, and for two years with the Castle Square Opera Company of Boston.

Mr. McDevitt has a fine tenor voice, and with Mr. Nye will be heard in the great sextette from "Lucia."

Cary's Concert Orchestra,

E. C. CAREY, Conductor,

Composed of some of Boston's representative musicians, will render several fine selections, and accompany the vocalists.

LOOK THROUGH MINE EYES WITH THINE.

Look through mine eyes with thine. True wife,
Round my true heart thine arms intwine.
My other dearer life in life,
Look through my very soul with thine!
Untouched with any shade of years,
May those kind eyes forever dwell!
They have not shed a many tears,
Dear eyes, since first I knew them well.

Yet tears they shed. They had their part
Of sorrow, for when time was ripe
The still affection of the heart
Became an outward breathing type,
That into stillness passed again
And left a want unknown before,
Although the loss that brought us pain,
That loss but made us love the more,

With farther lookings on. The kiss,
The woven arms, seem but to be
Weak symbols of the settled bliss,
The comfort, I have found in thee.
But that God bless thee, dear, who wrought
Two spirits to one equal mind,
With blessings beyond hope or thought,
With blessings which no words can find.

—Tennyson.

AN AERIAL FLIGHT.

I stood on the latticed roof of the rickety grape arbor, partially supporting myself by the tips of my fingers as I clung to the second story window sill.

Marie leaned as far out as was consistent with safety and rested her hand caressingly on my shoulder. Although my love for the maiden was intense, I could not for a moment forget the uncertainty of my foothold, neither could I forget that the sleeping room window of my sweetheart's father was directly beneath me.

"Never!" he had said, when I offered myself to him as a prospective son-in-law. "Never! No daughter of mine shall marry a penniless inventor."

During the many stolen interviews which had followed the adverse decision of the obdurate parent we had discussed the situation from all points, and ever with the same results. At last we had decided to separate for a season that I might the more fully devote my time to the solution of the problem by evolving from my mental workshop some practical creation which would bring to me both fame and fortune.

Marie was a modern woman in every respect. She had been caught on the psychological wave that was sweeping around the world and was familiar with all the 'osophies and 'ologies that accompanied the movement. She was an adept in mind reading and fairly proficient in the later science of telepathy.

"Watch for messages, dear Jack," she whispered, as she gave my shoulder a gentle pat and drew herself within the window. "You will hear from me often. Perhaps I may need you. Who can tell?"

At this point the brittle frame beneath my feet cracked ominously, and without further farewells I clambered down and started out on my mission.

Ted Browa, my college chum and confidant, was fully as enthusiastic as myself over the many experiments and inventions I had essayed, and when he heard my story he entered heartily into my plans, which, if perfected, would revolutionize modern traffic and travel.

One month later found us in the heart of the Rocky mountains and far from the beaten trail of prospector, sportsman or adventurer.

Our pack animals were already beginning to show signs of collapse, so severe had been the fatigues of the mountain journey.

Realizing the imprudence of farther advance skyward, we were about to turn back and seek some sheltered valley in a milder atmosphere, when I felt a gentle pressure on my shoulder. Involuntarily I turned, expecting to see my comrade beside me, only to find him several feet away, pulling with all his might the cinch strap on one of the pack animals. I lifted my foot to the stirrup, and again I felt the pressure on my shoulder, this time more forcibly than before, and a voice—I could swear it was Marie's—sounded in my ear:

"Turn to the right."

In an instant her parting words flashed upon my mind, and almost unconsciously I turned in the direction indicated.

What could I do? Our plans were already made. Should I yield, how could I explain to Ted in a satisfactory manner this sudden change in our movements?

Suddenly, without waiting for the dreaded explanation, I shouted to him as I sprang to my saddle, leaving him to follow, as I was quite sure he would.

As I drew near the mountain a zigzag seam, which reached from the summit downward, developed into a well defined cleft, broadening at the base, leaving an opening a few feet wide, through which I recklessly plunged without a thought of what danger might await me.

Scarcely half a dozen steps brought me out into an open space.

In ages agone some terrible subterranean upheaval had partially cleft the peak, and through all the countless years that had followed the action of frost and water had gradually worn and crumbled the sides of the gorge until there was formed an open circular space several feet in diameter and nearly surrounded by a solid wall of rock.

It is needless to go into details conterning the progress of the work. There were the usual seasons of experiment and failure, of hope and despondency, but through it all the great creature grew, until it nearly filled the little cirrular space.

A long, slender, hollow body, fitted up with a motor and comfortable seats; a huge pair of outspread canvas wings and a fan shaped rudder, altogether unlike any other aerial sailer that had yet made its appearance. And during all the time occupied in the construction of this birdlike navigator I had been so often encouraged and advised when apparent failure confronted me by the same voice that had led me to the spot that it really seemed as if Marie was as fully identified with the success of my undertaking as myself.

"All aboard!" shouted Ted as we took our seats and opened the valves that controlled the mysterious power. Straight as an arrow and as swift we arose from the little inclosure. The sky was starlit and clear, and the whole panorama of the rough and ragged country was fast disappearing before we thoroughly realized that our venture was a success. We moved at a fearful pace, judging by our aerometer, which clicked with the regularity of a clock as it marked the miles and degrees.

At dawn our aerial navigator was safely anchored within the rock inclosure, and we were wrapped in our blankets under our tents. Ned was soon snoring, but, excited and unnerved as I was, I could not sleep and at last threw the blankets aside and entered the inclosure to feast my eyes on my treasure.

I closed my eyes and soon was lost to consciousness until the familiar pressure of finger tips on my shoulder awakened me to the well known voice sounding in my ear:

"Jack, Jack, come quick!"

There was an earnestness in the tones I had never yet heard, which brought to my recollection Marie's parting words:

"Perhaps I may need you. Who can tell?"

Evidently Marie was in trouble, and I must go to her, and we began making preparations for our departure.

Our most valuable belongings, with food and water sufficient for the journey, were packed within the ship's lockers, and our tents stored within the inclosure. As darkness approached we unhitched the anchor chain from the staple in the wall of rock and started.

At midnight we were hovering over Marie's home. We dropped downward until I could outline the house and grape arbor. With a few hurried words to Ned I sprang lightly to the roof.

The window was open, and the next instant my sweetheart was leaning outward, with her hand on my shoulder in the old familiar manner, pouring her woes into my ears.

"Just think of it, Jack. Papa is determined that I shall marry Cousin Tom. The cakes are baked and in the pantry. The guests are all invited for the wedding tomorrow and the license is on the library table. What can we do?"

Of course there was but one thing to do, and that we did without delay. Marie stole quietly down into the library and secured the license. How simple a matter to erase one name and substitute another. And while she was about it, with her usual forethought she confiscated the bride's cake. This, with her wardrobe and jewels, was passed through a window, and then I signaled to Ted.

The ship settled down like a huge bird on the grape arbor. Marie gave a little shriek as we stepped on board, causing Ted for an instant to lose control of the lever. There was a crash of splintering pine as the grape arbor gave way beneath our combined weight.

Straight upward like a rocket we arose for 1,000 feet or more. As we turned the searchlight on the wreck we saw a figure clad in a long, white nightrobe gazing at us, and a voice, trembling with rage, called:

"Marie, come down here!"

"Poor papa."—Chicago Tribune.

Couldn't Be Deceived.

Dennis McCarty, a true son of Erin, was suing his neighbor, William Smith, for damages occasioned by the defendant's carelessness in allowing his donkey to escape from his stable and trespass upon plaintiff's premises, thus doing much mischief in his garden.

McCarty stepped into the witness box to give evidence in support of his case, and when he had finished the lawyer who appeared for the defendant proceeded to cross examine him.

"Now do you mean to say that all this injury to the property of which you speak was caused solely by Smith's donkey?"

"Sartinly, sor."

"Oh, indeed; and where did you first see this animal which you declare has been the source of so much mischief?"

"I saw him tied up in defendant's sthable."

"Yes, and where did you next see him?"

"On my primises, to be sure."

The lawyer now saw his chance and in his best manner pressed the question.

"How did you know it was the same donkey?"

"How did I know?" was the derisive exclamation. "If I saw yez tied up in a sthable don't yez suppose I'd know ye when yez got loose?"

The plaintiff was excused from further evidence.—Spare Moments.

Get Trusted For Their Fares.

It is perhaps not generally known, even in Brooklyn, that persons of respectable appearance may travel on the street cars of that city when they have no money. A woman who has left her purse at home or a man who has spent all his change speculating in stocks, if ordinarily well dressed, has only to tell the conductor the condition of affairs, on boarding a car, to get carried to any desired point.

The conductor gives the penniless passenger an envelope addressed to the office of the company, in which to forward later the lacking nickel. This is done as a matter of course, and only a passenger who looks disreputable meets with refusal.

The system has been in operation some time, which is apparent proof that the passengers who thus get trusted for their fares use the envelopes given them for the purpose for which they are intended.—New York Sun.

The Distinction Was There.

"You women," said he in the peculiarly exasperating way a man has of saying those two words, "You women buy bargain things because they are cheap."

"We do not," said she. "We buy cheap things because they are bargains." The distinction was almost too subtle for the blundering masculine intellect, but it was there.—Indianapolis Journal

DEFENSE OF QUEEN MARY.

She Was Not the "Bloody" Monarch That She Has Been Considered.

We owe to a Protestant historian, Lord Macaulay, the vindication of Queen Mary I from charges which have annexed to her name the widespread epithet of "Bloody." It was Mary's lot to live in an age in which religious persecution was accepted as right and justifiable by the adherents of all faiths. Personally Mary was a tolerant and even tender hearted woman, and she seized every opportunity of showing clemency to her enemies. Unfortunately Protestant religious opinion almost invariably expressed itself in terms of political discontent. By the common and the statute law heresy was classed as treason, and the queen found herself constrained by the law of the land to inflict capital punishment for what the victims believed to be Christian truth.

Nor does it materially extenuate the error of persecution to say that Catholic Mary only put into execution the laws framed by Protestant Edward and Cranmer. Two wrongs cannot make a right. We should bless God that we live in an age in which the fires of Smithfield cannot be kindled. The lesson of Mary's reign emphasizes the duty of abstaining in pulpit and in press from harsh invective against any creed and inflammatory appeals to the sectarian prejudices of men. Peace on earth, good will to men, are the guardian angels of every Christian temple.

The methods of physical science, which more and more guide the intellectual processes of the modern mind, have had a beneficial effect upon religious thought. The attitude of pure science to religion is negative. It passes no dogmatic or antecedent judgment upon the questions of theology. The mysteries of the faith are at the maximum of remoteness from the sphere of physical experience, in which pure science operates. By teaching men to refrain from all a priori judgments on truths which are infinitely beyond mere physical verification science teaches us toleration for the religion of our neighbor.

Queen Mary restored the public exercise of the Roman Catholic religion in England. The ecclesiastical history of her reign has recently been deeply investigated for facts bearing on the question of the validity of holy orders in the Established church of England. Pope Leo XIII, following his predecessors, pronounced Anglican ordination invalid, chiefly on the ground of the insufficiency of the Edwardine ordinal, by which the bishops and the priests of Edward's reign were ordained.

Leo's decision was contested by the English hierarchy in a very able and truly Christian letter, re-echoing the pontiff's prayer for the union of Christendom. The question of Anglican orders seems to have presented itself to the holy see as a practical difficulty rather than a possibly adequate form of a sacrament. Cardinal Pole, who as papal delegate reorganized the church in England, decreed that the clergy ordained according to the Edwardine ritual should be unconditionally reordained by the then universally practiced Catholic rite. The church of England herself revised and improved the Edwardine ordinal in the reign of Charles II.

All Christians must recognize as providential the permanence of Christianity in England under every stress and storm. It may also be set down to the credit of our own great republic that true Christian liberty of conscience was proclaimed as an essential constituent of our glorious constitution. The moral influence of America in protecting the rights of conscience has been felt in all parts of the civilized world. —Rev. Father Joseph V. O'Connor.

An Affronted Dog.

A pet dog who had grown old and gray in one family and had been always used to much kindness and petting became at last so fat that when the dinner bell rang—a sound which used to bring him rushing down stairs—he would sit on the top step of the staircase and whine piteously till some member of the family went up to him and carried him down.

Just at this time a puppy Newfoundland was introduced to the family, greatly to the chagrin of the old terrier, who would not make friends with the newcomer. On one occasion when the dinner bell rang the puppy, seeing the old dog sitting on the top step as usual, ran up to him and in clumsy play upset him so completely that the fat fellow rolled to the foot of the stairs, growling all the way.

The sight was very ludicrous, and several members of the family who had seen it could not refrain from laughter. But the pampered dog's behavior was curious. Gathering himself together, he refused to enter the dining room as usual, but slowly toiled up stairs again and retired to the wicker basket where he usually passed the night. Humble apologies were made to him, more than one child friend offered him dainty food, but though he must have been hungry, everything was refused and he passed the evening fasting. His pride had been too deeply wounded by the unfeeling laughter of his friends, and it was not until another day had dawned that he seemed to forgive the slight which he had received.

THE PULLMAN ESTATE.

Bequests to Thirteen Charities In the Millionaire's Will.

Money Left For a Free School For Manual Training.

Sons Suffer For Showing No Sense of Responsibility.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Public curiosity as to the disposition by will of the Pullman millions was satisfied Wednesday, when the document was filed for probate by Executors Ream and Lincoln. As was expected, Mrs. Lowden and Mrs. Carolan, the daughters, are the principal beneficiaries, receiving $1,000,000 each and the residuary estate. Through the wasting of opportunity, the sons are made to feel the father's displeasure in the comparative smallness of the patrimony allotted them. Besides having the use of the homestead, Mrs. Pullman, the relict, gets $50,000 the first year and the income of $1,500,000 during her lifetime.

"Castle Rest," on one of the Thousand islands, is given to Mrs. Lowden with the furniture, for life. She is requested to keep the place open from July 26 to Aug. 14 for the accommodation of all the descendants of the testator's parents, and is authorized to designate in her will who shall have the property after her death. A sum of $100,000 is left in trust for its maintenance.

The sum of $2,000,000 is left in trust for the daughters until they are 35 years old, when each is to receive $500,000 to become hers absolutely, the other $1,000,000 to be still held in trust, the income going to them. If either daughter leave issue, the sum held in trust is to become absolutely the property of such issue. In case of the death of either daughter leaving no issue, but leaving a husband, one-half of the property then held in trust for such daughter is to be absolutely the property of such husband, the other half becoming a part of the residuary estate.

The eighth provision of the will is as follows: "Inasmuch as neither of my sons has developed such a sense of responsibility as in my judgment is requisite for the wise use of large properties and considerable sums of money, I am painfully compelled, as I have explicitly stated to them, to limit my testamentary provisions for their benefit to trusts producing only such incomes as I deem reasonable for their support. Accordingly I direct that out of the remainder of my estate, after satisfying the provisions hereinbefore made for my wife and daughters and with respect to said island and 'Castle Rest,' my executors shall set apart bonds, stocks and notes or other securities in two portions, each of such estimated value as will, in the judgment of my executors, yield an annual income of $3000; and I give and bequeath said portions separately to the Illinois Trust and Savings bank in trust to receive the income and profits of each portion and of all property substituted therefor, and to apply the net income and profits from the time of my death of one of the said portions to the use of my son, George M. Pullman, Jr., during his life, and of the other of said portions to the use of my son, Walter Sanger Pullman, during his life; and upon the death of either son leaving issue of a marriage, the property then held in trust hereunder for each son shall become absolutely the property of such issue in equal shares, the child or children of any deceased child of such son to take the share the parents would have taken if living; otherwise such property shall then become a part of my residuary estate."

Two brothers, Royal Henry Pullman and John M. Pullman, and the sisters, Helen West and Emma Fluhrer, are bequeathed $50,000 apiece. The sisters are given equal shares in the furniture, pictures, etc., in the Belgravia apartment house in the city of New York.

The wife of his brother, Charles L. Pullman, is given the income of $25,000, the sum to go to her son, William Pullman, upon her death. Other bequests are: Florence Sanger, $20,000; Stuart West, $5000; Bertha West, $5000; Helen Fluhrer, $5000; Lewis Pullman Fluhrer, $5000; Mrs. Charles B. Smith, $5000; Mrs. Charles H. Eaton, $10,000; William A. Angells, $10,000; Silas W. Bretzfield of New York, $10,000; Charles S. Sweet, $10,000, and Maria Louise Orr, $5000.

The following amounts were left to "faithful employes:" Arthur Wells, $5000; William Wells, $3000, and William R. Johnson, $2000. The household servants are to get $250 to $500 apiece. Thirteen Chicago charitable institutions are to receive $10,000 each.

The testator states it was his purpose to found, erect and endow at Pullman, Ills., during his life a free school of manual training for the benefit of children of persons living and employed at Pullman, and to expend at least $200,000 for lands, buildings and apparatus, and to provide a fund of $1,000,000 for the maintenance, management and endowment of the school. His executors are directed to set aside $1,200,000 for this purpose. If the estate shall be more than sufficient to satisfy all the devises, trusts and legacies, the executors are directed to divide the excess into two equal shares and to add the same, respectively, to the two portions set apart in trust for the two daughters, who are to receive all the property which becomes a part of the residuary estate.

The total value of the estate is shown by the petition for letters testamentary to be $7,600,000. Of this amount $6,800,000 is personal property and $800,000 realty. Attorney Runnells, who prepared the will, said that these figures are a conservative but fair estimate of the value of the estate.

A Home For Bacchante.

New York, Oct. 28.—Mr. McKim is happy and his Bacchante is no longer out in the cold. The statute for which an offer of 150,000 francs by the French government was refused by Sculptor MacMonnies because he had previously promised it to Mr. McKim; which Boston accepted and then rejected, has been unanimously accepted by the board of trustees of the Metropolitan museum of art.

AMONG THE AFGHANS.

The area of Afghanistan is about twice the size of Great Britain and Ireland.

The Afghans are proud of their ancestors and claim descent from no less an exalted personage than King Saul.

The camel is a necessity with the Afghans, and nearly all the merchandise of the country has to be transported on the backs of these animals.

Everybody in Kabul is a nobleman. At least every person of any account calls himself a khan, which is the Afghan interpretation of the word.

The medical profession ought to thrive in Afghanistan, for fevers are very prevalent, and the people are also subject to a peculiar disease of the eye.

At Ghanzi, in Afghanistan, which is over 7,000 feet above the sea level, the cold in winter is intense, and it is nothing uncommon for the inhabitants to be snowed up in their houses for months at a stretch.

The Afghans are not passionately fond of soap and water, though they wash their hands before and after meals. They prefer using their fingers in place of knives and forks and change their garments about once a month.

The origin of the empire of Afghanistan was due to an accident arising out of the sudden and unexpected acquisition of vast wealth. In its earlier days the internal resources of the country yielded little or nothing to the imperial treasury, and the state coffers were replenished by plundering expeditions into India.

The Afghans are a fine race, of splendid physique, but of corrupt morals. One candid writer sums them up as perfidious, avaricious, selfish, revengeful, merciless, treacherous, idle, proud, vain and cruel, and it must be admitted, in view of England's experience with the country, that the writer's statement is pretty near the mark.

TOWN TOPICS.

With all her faults Atlanta is the grandest city of her inches in the Union.—Waycross Herald.

Chattanooga will probably refrain from annexing Georgia until it sees how this Greater New York experiment turns out.—Washington Star.

They may poke fun at Boston for her "school of domestic science and Christian work," but the combination promises well just the same.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Boston calls Chicago a "porcinarium." The Windy City might retort by reminding the Hub that it's the "beanificiary" of Chicago's hog products.—Kansas City Times.

The population of the town of Tombstone has declined from 10,000 to less than 1,000. In picking out a name its founders were altogether too farsighted.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Chicago paper says Chicago is not afraid of yellow fever. Should think not. With the combination of smells that Chicago can put up there is no show for yellow jack.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Chicago is going to make the attempt of cleaning her river. Presumably the pieces of the river will be dug out and buried and then the channel flushed with lake water.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

It is useless to enlarge upon the need of adopting some system of drainage. Baltimore has no sewerage system, being little better in that respect than it was a century ago, when it was first incorporated as a city.—Baltimore Herald.

GLEANINGS.

Japanese children are taught to write with both hands.

The cost of becoming a naturalized Englishman is about $30.

Fifteen Hebrew officers served under Wellington at Waterloo.

The United States contains today 4,564,000 farms, of an average size of 137 acres each

A colony of Italian fishermen in San Francisco support a Dante society of their own and read the poet together.

In a boiler 32 by 6½ feet, constructed recently in Saxony, not a rivet was used, the plates being welded together.

In Nicaragua, with the temperature in the nineties during the summer months, the heat is seldom oppressive, owing to the influence of the trade winds.

The Mennonites are to found a colony near Houston, Tex., purchasing an immense farm, to be colonized by all the Mennonites now scattered through the west.

Belgian swindlers have been pasting transparent paper over the postage stamps they put on letters. The paper took the postmarks, leaving the stamps beneath uncanceled.

A new Rotten row for London horseback riders is proposed in the Regent's park, skirting the eastern side of the Botanical gardens. The ride is about a mile long and part of the way passes through an existing avenue of trees.

JEWELRY JOTTINGS.

There is no limit to the amount of gem jewelry allowed for full dress occasions.

Jewel encrusted watches lead the styles. They are small in size, but gorgeous in effect.

Flexible bracelets set with gems are included now in every fashionable woman's collection of jewelry.

The trend of the times is toward primitive articles in the precious metals rather than articles prized merely as ornaments.

Empire powder boxes are tiny affairs in gold and silver. They are embellished with enamel and gems and are worn on a long chain.

Lorgnette chains afford a wide field for selection. There are gold and silver chains, plain and simple, and chains mounted with precious and semiprecious stones.

For evening wear there are flexible hair ornaments in which single diamonds of assorted sizes are mounted, each on a separate spiral of gold wire. As the gems vibrate with every movement, the result is decidedly effective.—Jewelers' Circular.

THE WILY SULTAN.

The European sovereigns are falling over each other in their haste to give the sultan "the glad hand."—Indianapolis News.

After a long season of experimenting with him, the diplomats of Europe are quite willing to concede that the sultan's illness is about nine parts cunning.—New York Journal.

Prince Constantine made a mistake when he undertook to be a bigger man than the sultan, but so did a combination composed of Victoria, Nicholas, William, Francis Joseph, Faure and Humbert.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WOMAN'S DELIGHT.

Plissed materials are in high vogue.

Much of the new elaborate autumn headgear is large in size, the hats tilted well to one side over the ear, the other side rolled high or arched in an upward direction.

Black materials will be greatly favored during the fall and winter seasons, and a special and very elaborate display of elegant black fabrics is made at the various importing houses.

Some very striking colors in prelate, royal and orchid purple appear both in superb satins and brocades, immense faille and satin plaids, figured moires, plain and fancy wools and in fall and winter millinery.

One decided feature of the Russian blouse is the slight pouching of the fullness front and back. This idea will be carried out in all materials of sufficient body to preclude the effect of a characterless droop.

The exhibit this season of tailor costumes is more than ever attractive and complete. This type of gowning possesses a certain characteristic grace and aplomb wholly its own and to be found in no other style of dress.

The trim, familiar tailor jacket has this season a score of rivals in the form of jaunty little basquines, French guard jackets with military braiding and novel jacket bodices and muscovite shapes, with loose, seamless fronts and fitted backs.

Autumn wraps show a wonderful diversity among the models of short, medium, three quarter and redingote lengths, all equally in vogue and presenting a choice more varied in style than has been exhibited at any one season within recollection.

Odd arrangements of frilling, lace, net, fur braid, velvet, fringes, etc., are very much used on bodices, redingotes and princess dresses fastened at the left side, and a very dressy appearance is imparted to otherwise simple gowns by the addition of these trimmings.—New York Post.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Bronson Howard has completed a new play, which will probably be produced this season.

Wright Huntington has been secured as leading man of the stock company at the Alcazar theater in San Francisco.

George Backus has won fresh honors by his clever and original interpretation of the title role in "Christopher, Jr."

It will cost Fanny Davenport $60,000 before the curtain goes up on the first performance of her new historical play.

Nat C. Goodwin will first play Shylock during his coming engagement at the Knickerbocker theater, New York city.

James Young is meeting with success in a Shakespearean repertory. He is the youngest and one of the best of American tragedians.

Charles B. Hanford has received a letter from Paris which announces the fact that Bulwer Lytton's "Richelieu," translated into French by Charles Samson, is being rehearsed at the Theatre de l'Odeon.

Frank Daniels has produced his new opera, "The Idol's Eye," with conspicuous success. Mr. Daniels plays the role of an adventurous aeronaut, who drops among the British soldiers and nautch girls.

Jessie Bartlett is branching out as a composer. She has set two of her poems to music, and they are meeting with much success. "Retrospection" and "Surcease of Sorrow" are the titles of her songs.

Pinero is a great admirer of Annie Irish. It was through him that she joined Edward Terry's company in London and played the role of Minnie Gilfillian in "Sweet Lavender" for over nine months.

CROWN JEWELS.

The Princess of Wales' favorite flower is the lily of the valley, and the largest grower of these flowers in Great Britain has his garden near Sandringham.

Out of compliment to the Emerald Isle the Duchess of York appeared in scarcely any other color than green—in some one or another of its various shades—during her recent visit to Ireland.

The German emperor has been put on an almost entirely fruit diet. He is not allowed to drink tea or coffee, and his physicians consider it imperative that he should always have eight hours' sleep.

King Oscar of Sweden is said to bear his age so well that no one would suspect him of being 68 years old, nor would any one fancy him to be a king judging by his affability and utter absence of hauteur.

The Princess Bernadotte, crown princess of Sweden, who as an intriguing maid of honor captivated the heir to the throne, is almost intemperately addicted to the delights of a full fledged cigar, a penchant which is said to be shared by the queen of Saxony and the Grand Duchess of Baden.

It is said that more than half the reigning monarchs of Europe are troubled with defective eyesight. Among those who wear glasses in private are Queen Victoria, the king of Denmark, the czar, the queen regents of Spain and Holland, nearly every member of the house of Hapsburg and the Prince of Wales.

CURIOUS CULLINGS.

In China to salute a person by taking off the hat is considered an insult.

In some European countries there is a firm belief among the peasantry that a dream of walnuts will be followed by misfortune.

During the war of the Spanish succession the English army in Spain was commanded by a Frenchman and the French army by an Englishman.

In certain parts of China the young women wear their hair in a long, single plait, with which is intertwined a strand of bright scarlet thread, which denotes them to be marriageable.

Among the obscure tribes of the Malay archipelago when a young girl dies her eyes are cut out and those of cats substituted, the idea being that in the next world she will be better able to see.

KLONDIKE NUGGETS.

Every Klondike emigrant who hears that only one in 1,000 can make a fortune from the gold mines has a momentary throb of pity for the other 999.—Chicago Record.

It is reported that the Canadian gold commissioner has abolished the name Klondike and substituted Throndike. But this will not make it a whit less cold or difficult to reach.—Cleveland Leader.

It is said that in the Klondike country the miners are much annoyed by fine dust which they inhale and which settles on their lungs. If the dust up there is as rich in gold as reported, those fellows are no doubt able to cough up the cash for everything they purchase.—Denver Post.

A MASTER AMONG US

Brilliant Violin Recital by Mr. Walter E. Loud.

The violin recital given last evening in Colonial Hall by Walter E. Loud was, from a musical standpoint, a pronounced success.

Although the audience was not large, there was no lack of enthusiasm, every number on the programme receiving a most generous applause, to which the artists responded with encores. Mr. Loud was heard for the first time since returning from his study abroad. Judging from the manner in which his solos were rendered, he has acquired a mastery over the violin which will place him in the front rank of violinists. His playing was brilliant and full of expression, and he played with a spirit seldom seen in musicians. In his own compositions, a "Cradle Song," and a "Tarantella," he deserves the greatest credit, both as a composer and a player.

Miss Dean possesses a deep, rich contralto voice, and she sings with a true musical feeling; her selections showing clearly that she is an artist of great ability.

As an accompanist, Mr. J. Hermann Loud has attained a degree of proficiency which is hard to surpass. His solos were finely rendered, especially the encore which is a composition of his own, and his playing throughout the evening, added much to the brilliancy of the programme.

The presence of two young lady ushers, Miss Ross and Miss Lapham, was one of the pleasing features of the evening, and it is generally acknowledged by all, that the recital was the finest musical treat ever given in Quincy.

We extend to Mr. Loud our best wishes for a successful musical career.

The programme:

1. Sonate for Piano and Violin, (op. 13.) Grieg.
John Hermann Loud and Walter E. Loud.
2. "Abandon," Gregh.
Miss Annie Dean.
3. Ballade and Polonaise, Vieuxtemps.

4. Polonaise Brilliant, Decevee.

Full Attendance.

Old Colony Association of Universalist church met at South Weymouth, yesterday and there was an unusually full attendance and a most enthusiastic meeting.. The exercises concluded in the afternoon, with an interesting discussion on "A Working Church," led by Revs. Coddington and Preble. Quincy had one of the largest delegations present, numbering twenty besides the pastor.

Tennis Sociable.

The tennis social given by the Y. P. S. C. E. of Memorial church, Atlantic, on Wednesday was well attended by the young people, and much enjoyed, the evening being made interesting by the untangling of rackets, trials of skill in solving anagrams, etc. Refreshments were served by the social committee.

Q. H. S. PRIZE SPEAKING.

The Prizes Offered, and the Subjects for Essays and Translations.

The Golden-Rod for October announces that another prize speaking contest will be held on April 15th next, and gives the following information in connection therewith:

For the sixth time Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan offers liberal prizes for excellence in English composition and translations from Greek, Latin, French, and German.

2.—Essays, Class of 1899, $3.

Dr. Sheahan's prizes amount to $39 worth of books, an amount larger than ever before in consequence of the addition of prizes for work in Homer and German. Very few schools are so fortunate as to have prizes so numerous and so liberal. It is hoped that the competition will be more general this year than ever before, as it is the wish of the donors that the prizes shall be genuine Academic distinctions, to be won by skill and industry, and to be held with honorable pride.

Keep to the Right.

Billings street, Atlantic, was the scene of quite a bicycle accident a few evenings since. Mr. Harry Wilder was skipping along home at a good pace when he suddenly crashed into an object that afterwards proved to be a small boy, also riding a wheel but on the wrong side of the street. Both were thrown violently to the ground and Wilder's wheel was about ruined, while he most fortunately escaped with a few bruises. The boy was slightly injured about the head. When people learn to ride where they belong particularly after dark less accidents will occur.

Drank slowly, along with one's breakfast, it acts as a gentle stimulant and healthful tonic.

Notice, however, the emphasis we put on that word "good," for it's poor, cheap coffee which produces that heavy, dull feeling which is so disagreeable.

When you use coffee bought of us you're getting the real article, and no mistake.

Our coffee isn't put up on the "guesswork" plan—there's a watch kept every step of the way.

ALL-ROUND ATHLETE

Harry Sheen, A Quincy Boy, Still Playing Foot Ball.

The following article taken from the Norfolk (Va.) Pilot will interest many of our readers, as it appertains to a former Quincy boy. Capt. Harry H. Sheen is son of Major and Mrs. W. G. Sheen of Bristol, Tenn., formerly of Quincy. "With all the football furore which has swept this country and had its fair share of enthusiasts in Norfolk, none have dopped to the fact that the present record-bearer in football history in this country resides and has resided for the past eight years in Norfolk, and it remains for the Pilot to bring this fact home to Norfolk, and from hence to the country at large.

Nineteen consecutive seasons on the gridironed oval is a big record and one that is only rarely approached and no cases comes to memory of its being equalled, much less surpassed. From three to five years is the rule of most players. Occasionally one is found deeply enough in love with the game to play seven, eight, or even ten seasons, though this is rare, and but two or three have a record of twelve consecutive seasons.

Captain Harry H. Sheen, center rush for the Norfolks, boasts of nineteen seasons in harness, and in that time most of the crack players of this country have felt the weight of his shoulder or the strength of his limbs. Splendidly built, a heavy weight, a boxer, a crack military commander and tactician and an all round athlete, Captain Sheen is the beau ideal of a foot ball player. Strong without brutality; quick on his feet, quick with his head, and a wily opponent, his early training stands him in good stead of modern crush work, and he wins as much with his brain and eye as with his muscle.

Captain Harry Sheen was born in Quincy Mass., but eight miles from Boston and played his first game of football as L. E. of the Quincy High school eleven. That was in 1878, when the Rugby game had just been introduced, and the line-up put six men on the line, with only the ends denominated. Back of them were three half-bakes, and in the rear, by goal, two full-backs.

High School Debate.

The Quincy High School Debating Society met Wednesday. Miss Bates, '98, Vice-President, took the chair, as President Lewis was in the debate. Miss Caroline Brown, '98, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting. An entertainment, fully maintaining the high standard of the society, then followed:

Speech of Gaius Gracchus, Miss Sibley, '99.

Essay, "A Lost Opportunity," Miss Perry, '98.

Vocal Solo, Miss Lull, 1900; Miss Sibley, accompanist.

Recitation, Miss Mitchell, '99.

The debate of last week on the proposed furnishing of a free college education to all who desire it, was then concluded.

Affirmative speakers: Messrs. Field, E. Hewitson, Lewis, all of '98.

Negative: Messrs. Pendis and Thayer, of '98.

Strong arguments were advanced on both sides, and when the question was brought before the entire society the speaking, purely voluntary, was highly animated and very effective. The volunteer speakers were: Mr. Thayer Miss Ward, Miss Williams, Mr. Lewis, Mr. McLeen, Mr. Field, and Mr. Hewitson. The value of this habit of engaging in off-hand speeches cannot be overestimated.

TODAY'S COURT.

Harry A. Talbot who has been at Dedham jail since his arraignment a month ago for forgery at Quincy, was brought in this morning by officers, and the case was further continued for one month upon his own recognizance.

Moses Swarty was fined $5 for peddling without a license at Quincy.

The case of Michael J. Cronin, for drunkenness at Quincy was continued for another week.

The continued cases of Walter Hunter, Irving Hunter and George Hamilton for breaking electric light globes were called and they was fined $5 each.

The case of Inian Lunbrano for the larceny of two stone drills from Ernest Bizzazzaro were called and he was fined $3.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

DIED.

GILBERT—In East Milton, Oct. 27, Mrs. Harriet F., wife of Rev. A. S. Gilbert, aged 32 years.

The Late Mrs. Redman.

Died in Atlantic Oct. 19, Mrs. Harriet Josephine, wife of Captain Benjamin R. Redman.

In the removal by death of this excellent lady, not only the home meets with an irreparable loss, but the community will miss a wise, thoughtful kindly spirit, one whose influence radiated far beyond her own home. It seemed as if she could not be spared, and it is an inscrutable providence that has taken her from those who were so dependent on her loving care. "Who is there like a mother among all who are on the earth?"

Mrs. Redman was a lady of fine education, a graduate of Antioch College, Ohio. She had a broad mind and generous instincts. She was everything a true wife and mother could be. Her children rise up and call her blessed, her husband also praiseth her."

Her death was most unexpected, after a brief illness, she succumbed to an attack of pneumonia, her husband watching by her bedside to the last. She leaves an aged mother, beside her husband and two boys.

Her funeral was at the home on Friday, the 22d, where a goodly number of friends and relatives gathered. Rev. George Herbert Hosmer officiated, assisted by Rev. J. H. Yeoman. The services were simple. Rev. Mr. Yeoman paid a feeling tribute to her beautiful character and life. Rev. Mr. Hosmer read appropriate selections and closed with prayer. The interment took place in Mt. Auburn, a brief service being held at the grave.

The sympathy of the whole community is with the afflicted family. Mrs. Redman's memory will ever be fondly cherished.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

THE ERIE'S DECLINE.

Tremendous Drop In the Business of a Great Canal.

[Special Correspondence.]

BUFFALO, Oct. 5.—Notwithstanding the millions of money now being expended by the state of New York on the Erie canal, the business of that waterway, once the great and only route for grain transportation from the west to the seaboard, has this year fallen lower than ever. This is true of almost every line of canal commerce, as I have found by comparing the annual statistics kept here by the canal officials, but the situation can best be illuminated by a comparison of the figures representing the movement of grain over the canal last year and this:

The total receipts at the port of New York during May, June and July, the first three months of the open season of 1896, were 35,894,975 bushels, 13,756,250 bushels by canal and 22,138,725 by rail.

The total receipts at New York during the same three months of the present year were 40,522,875 bushels, of which only 7,284,100 were received by canal and 33,238,775 by rail.

That is, although New York's total grain receipts for the first three months of this year's canal season were nearly 12½ per cent in excess of the receipts during the same period last year, the canal receipts were diminished almost one-half, and, while New York's receipts of grain by canal during the first three months of 1896 were nearly one-third of the total, this year's canal receipts for the same months amount to less than one-fifth of the whole.

This is not a showing calculated to inspire the friends of artificial waterways with hopefulness. In fact, it has thrown them into the dumps, and they are all busy answering the question, "What is the matter?"

The boatmen themselves, who make a livelihood out of the canal, declare, with few exceptions, that the trouble lies entirely with the railroads. "Corporate greed," they say, has decided that the canal "must go," and for all this class of canalboat men will ever do to prevent it the canal will "go," for they are helping to hasten its doom as efficiently as they can. Read what a solid business man of Buffalo had to say today in a talk with the writer:

"As a class the canalboat men are further behind the age in their methods than any other lot of men who are trying to do business at all that I know anything about. The patient mule is their chief motive power today just as he was in the middle of the century. Combination of capital, that potent method which has wrought wonders in every other line of human effort, is unknown among them. In this they are behind the men who did the canal business of 50 years ago, for then there were several regular lines of boats run by corporations composed of boat owners who had combined because they thought they could thus do business more economically and with greater efficiency.

"In those days the canal was a great artery of commerce. It was crowded with boats, which were hurried with all possible speed from this port to the seaboard and back. Every hour's delay meant a loss, and many schemes were resorted to by boat captains to pass one another. At the locks they often literally fought for precedence. Boatyards were to be found at intervals of a few miles all the way from here to Albany. Boatmen, boat builders and all who did canal business were making money.

"But those days are gone. It would be silly to say the railroads have had nothing to do with the change. They have been the most potent factor, of course, but with all their power the canal need never have sunk to its present insignificance had the boatmen become infused with the spirit of the age.

"Now, I am not going to advocate electric towage nor the giving over of the canal to the corporations," continued the speaker, "but I am going to say that I see little hope for the canalboat men unless they show the will and the power to get together in some sort of combination for their own protection. There are in existence now two organizations that were called into being for this purpose—the Canal Forwarding association and the Boat Owners' association—but neither of these has been of much value so far.

"Perhaps it would be proper to say that they need a man like 'Fingey' Conners, otherwise known as William J. Conners, more than anything else. This man Conners, as everybody familiar with lake business knows, took up the cause of the stevedores at the lake ports just when they were in the worst possible condition and put them on their feet. He was a stevedore himself, and before he arose in his might the stevedores were out of work half the time, were constantly engaged in quarrels with shippers and vessel owners and were poorly paid generally. Today they are about the best paid and most regularly employed body of men I know of. It is true that Conners has made lots of money out of them and that they are practically all in his employ now, but that does not detract one whit from the truth of what I say.

"Some students of the situation," continued the speaker, "say that business on the canal will continue to shrink until the work of enlargement has been completed, so that boats of much greater tonnage than those now in use can be employed. I am quite ready to admit that the enlargement of the canal is a good thing for water transportation and that the construction of a ship canal from Lake Erie to tide water, so that cargoes can be sailed from Duluth to New York without breaking bulk, would be a better thing, but I also contend that there is money in canaling under present conditions for those who go at it rightly and that combination of the boatmen would make it very profitable indeed."

CLASS AGAINST CLASS

Bryan Democracy Accused of Raising the Issue.

Dr. Everett Describes It as a "Terrible Crusade."

Candidate Williams Speaks at Cambridge and Somerville.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 28.—The national Democrats held the first big rally of the campaign in this city last night, nearly 800 people being present to listen to the discussion of the issues of the day by Dr. William Everett, candidate for governor, Colonel Henry A. Lamb of Brookline and William A. Murphy of Boston. Henry F. Hurlburst presided, and the first speaker to be introduced was Dr. Everett, who received a rousing reception when he was presented to the audience, and was frequently applauded during his address.

"Why should the Democrats of Massachusetts renounce their opinions?" he asked. "Why should they accept the sectional silver standard, got up in the interest of certain portions of the country and at the dictation of the delegations from other states in the Union? I have heard it said that Massachusetts did not vote for a Democratic president, and that therefore Massachusetts Democrats were bound to give up their idea of Democracy. Nothing for years has given the national Democratic party all over the nation such a start as the uprising in 1884 of thousands of Democrats in Massachusetts in support of the nomination of Mr. Cleveland. The strength and life and vigor and new force that have come into the Democratic party in the last dozen years have come, not from the old states that are always Democratic, but from the new spirit that came into the Democratic party from the states that have not been Democratic before, and the very greatest inspiration in the regenerated Democratic party came from Massachusetts under the three years' governorship of the late lamented Russell. (Applause).

"And it was something more than that. This idea that a majority vote in such a convention settles it all is not American liberty, it is not American Democracy, it is not American equality. I think, Mr. Chairman, this fact is beginning to be recognized.

"The party calling itself still the regular Democracy is beginning to find out there is something a little queer about its proceedings. It is getting spoken of emphatically as the new Democracy. It is a very new Democracy indeed. It has very little in common with the Democracy which has been coeval with the history of the republic. We believe the true principle of American Democracy is that every man in every part of the country is equal under the constitution and before the law, and that no American can claim he is in any sense more of an American citizen than his neighbor and his brother. (Applause). There is no difference in this respect between us and those who call themselves the new Democracy. They arraign the Republican party, just as we always have, for its violation of the true principles of American equality in legislation. (Applause).

"I do not hesitate to say that the so-called new Democracy is equally violating the new principle of individual equality of all men before the law. It raises class against class. Democracy has always claimed to be a national party. It has steadily stood in the way of all the tyrannical acts of the Republican party by which it attempted to kill off true manhood of the south and to reduce it to an inferior place in the nation.

"We hear a good deal about the new Democracy being the party of the people. Does it mean that every man is considered as good as every other man? Does it mean that every man is to be regarded and respected before the law and before his neighbor for his own worth, energy, industry and thrift? Does it mean that the man who saves his wages and educates his children and himself when he has won the respect of a community, not because of his money, but because of the honesty and thrift with which he made it and becomes a public benefactor, is to be stigmatized and put down simply because he has acquired an honest fortune? Is he to be lumped together with every man who has inherited a property and then dissipated it? Are we going to have this terrible crusade come which shall divide men into classes and masses, and shall arouse and influence working men as dumb-driven cattle at the voice of a demagogue to declare a war upon every man even if he rose from among themselves? It is the surest way to plunge the country into the very misery which it seeks to reform."

The gubernatorial candidate was followed by Colonel Henry A. Lamb, who spoke of the protectionist idea of the Republicans and the free silver dreams of the Democrats. He claimed the evil was the same, that the protectionist doubled the cost of the poor man's coat and free silver would halve the dollar in which the workingman is paid. William A. Murphy discussed the issues in general and specially alluded to the financial question, which he claimed is not yet settled by either of the great parties.

Two Williams Rallies.

Boston, Oct. 28.—George Fred Williams delivered two speeches last night, the first in Union hall, Cambridge, and the second about a half a mile away in Union hall, Somerville. At both places he had an audience of 1500, and his remarks aroused considerable enthusiasm. At the Somerville meeting, John A. O'Keefe, the candidate for attorney general, also spoke, but at Cambridge the candidate for governor was the principal speaker. In his Cambridge address, Mr. Williams said: "A year has elapsed, time enough for a redemption of the Republican promises. That party has installed its president and has passed a tariff bill, and in October of 1897 not a cloud has been lifted, and the people are plunged in distress as they have been for the past four years. With a little whimper, one Republican speaker, Senator Lodge, has attempted to repeat this operation, and at Music hall a few nights ago set up the same old scarecrow for a deluded people, and said that the brokers of State street assured him that the reason better times did not come was a feeling of uncertainty on account of the elections. Now think of the absolute dishonesty of such a statement as that to the people that have trusted him and his associates only to find themselves deceived. I trust that at last the eyes of the people will be opened to the humbug and hypocrisy with which they were turned away from the Democratic party in the last campaign.

"I stand on this platform with the same platform, unchanged by a word, that I attempted to impress upon this people last fall. I assured the people of Massachusetts that there was a deep, far-reaching, yes, world-wide cause for the depression of American industries, and it was my painful duty to say that until that cause was removed, the depression would continue and even increase. Tonight, if it is a dismal prophesy, and one that I dislike to make, I follow the logic that I have seen and say again that that cause must be understood by a free people and removed by a free people that it may succor itself from its position of danger."

At Somerville the excitement was intense when Mr. Williams was introduced to the audience. He spoke of the fact that he had come to believe that there were a great many whited sepulchres in politics, and he thought it was a good thing sometimes if one or two of these sepulchres were tipped over and expose the real state of affairs underneath. He said that while he had been for years in the Democratic party and was put forward to sound the slogan there were men in the back room making deals and schemes with all the evils that he was attacking from the public platform. "The time came when I could shake off those false leaders, clear my skirts of hypocrisy and weakness and corruption, and stand with a party that was honest and straightforward." Mr. Williams then repeated in substance the speech which he made at Cambridge.

Bryan In Ohio.

Manwert, O., Oct. 28.—William Jennings Bryan began a short campaigning tour in Ohio yesterday morning. He travelled in a private car. The first meeting was at Montpelier, where an audience of 5000 persons from all parts of the county had assembled. Mr. Bryan questioned the honesty of the vote of Ohio last year and then took up the silver question. He said: "I wish to submit some propositions for Republicans to talk about, for the Democrats are with us. It is only necessary to talk to Republicans who were willing last fall, in my judgment. The gold standard is a bad thing for the United States and we should not submit to it because the financiers of Europe want it."

He said the Republican party up to this time had never declared that the gold standard was a good thing. It promised last year to do what it could to get rid of the gold standard. He then reviewed the work of the monetary commission which President McKinley sent to Europe and said its mission had failed because the money changers were opposed to it. Mr. Bryan attributed the improved financial condition of the United States to the discovery of gold in Alaska and to the famine in India.

From Montpelier the train was hurried to Defiance, where an afternoon meeting was held. There was a large crowd at the depot. An audience of 5000, a majority of whom were Republicans, it is said, listened to the Defiance speech, which did not differ materially from that delivered at Montpelier. The applause was liberal, though it was apparent that Mr. Bryan was less of an attraction than when, as a presidential candidate, he visited this town last fall.

Mr. Callahan at Milford.

Milford, Mass., Oct. 28.—The first and only rally held here during the campaign occurred last night, about 700 persons being present. F. P. Dillon, chairman of the Democratic town committee, opened the meeting with brief remarks and introduced Dr. W. J. Welch, candidate for representative, as chairman, who made a short address on national affairs. George H. Stoddard of Upton, candidate for senator, was the next speaker. C. T. Atchkinson of Newark, N. J., explained the Chicago platform and discussed the gold and silver question. He was followed by Christopher T. Callahan of Holyoke, candidate for lieutenant governor.

Chicago Democrats to Visit New York.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Mayor Harrison, accompanied by his cabinet, a brass band and nearly 300 members of the Cook county Democracy, all wearing silk hats, left here at 10 o'clock yesterday for a three days' stumping tour of greater New York. Nearly every prominent Democratic politician of Chicago was in the party.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. GREAT POLICE POWER.

What Has Kept the Peace Among European Nations.

Holders of the Continent's Loanable Billions

Have Used Their Influence to Prevent an Outbreak of Hostilities.

Boston, Oct. 28.—President Andrews of Brown university spoke last night before the Twentieth Century club of this city, taking as his subject, "Peace or War." His remarks were of a most interesting character, and dealt almost exclusively with the situation in Europe.

President Andrews prefaced his address by stating that for a number of months he had journeyed about Europe, keeping his eyes and ears open, and thought that he had a pretty good idea of the state of affairs as between the different nations. "I was struck particularly," he added, "by the portentousness of the war cloud in Eurcpe. There never has been such a time when the nations were so isolated and distrustful of each other in spite of the alliances which many of them have made. There is a lacking of confidence even between those which seem to be most closely allied. This is especially true of England. The question has been asked, what is the chance of England's being invaded? I think it is quite possible. Take for instance the time when the so-called channel squadron is absent from those waters, for the fleet has been known to go as far as Gibralter. At such a time a bold dash would put the enemy on English soil and perhaps in London itself. It would no doubt be difficult to hold that city, but the invaders could make their own terms regarding its evacuation."

President Andrews surprised his hearers by his attitude on the Armenian question, showing as he did considerable sympathy with the Turks. "The Armenians exasperate the Turks just as the Jews do the Germans and Russians, and this is because, like the Jews, they are too clever and drive a bargain hard. The Armenians kicked up the fuss in the beginning, and the Turks set the Bashi Bazouks on them. Turkey was compelled to economize, so none of the Armenians were transported, but killed off.

"The money power is the great police power of Europe, and it is this that prevented a war long ago over the English occupation of Egypt. The holders of Europe's loanable billions have used their influences to prevent war, because it would smash the gold corner and raise a general crisis. The military chests, now chuck full of yellow metal, would be ripped open, and their contents put into circulation by a war. Toward a general war crisis your big money owner is always a bear. Any procedure which would make basal money more plentiful and so alleviate a crisis, your money princes will oppose tooth and nail, giving over only when threatened by some more dire calamity than the loss of the purchasing power of their hoards."

Policeman's Fatal Shot.

Providence, Oct. 28.—Thomas Hull, the father of five children, and a quarrelsome fellow when drunk, was killed by Officer Luby Wednesday morning. He was intoxicated, and when urged to go home took refuge behind a tree and discharged a revolver three times at the officer. Luby returned the fire and Hull was killed.

The witnesses who were examined at the inquest later were the officer who fired the fatal shot, his superior, who responded to the call for assistance, and another officer, who heard the dead man make threats against the officer who covered Luby's beat during the other portion of the night. The revolver of Hull's was found to have had three shots fired, thus corroborating the story of Luby. The cape of the officer was found to have two shot holes instead of one, the second having been caused by the bullet in its egress.

A Vineyard Inquisition.

Cottage City, Mass., Oct. 28.—Wednesday Trial Justice Eldridge began a hearing on the case of C. F. James, Amos Haskins, Henry Becker, Harry Henderson and Fred Tilton White, all charged with an assault with intent to kill upon John G. Martin. According to his story the defendants went to his house last Saturday night and persuaded him to come out of doors. As he stepped out the men, he says, seized him and, placing him in a carriage, drove off to a place several miles away, where they seriously maltreated and bruised him in an endeavor to make him confess that he cut a harness belonging to a neighbor and had committed other small injuries to the same person's farm.

Two Good Races at Medford.

Medford, Mass., Oct. 28.—There were two good races at Combination park yesterday besides an exhibition mile by Louis Victor, who made it in 2:16 1-4, and an interesting match race for pairs, Woodshed, after losing the first heat in the 2:10 class, took the other three with ease. In the 2:22 class Gussie Leonard showed up well in the first four heats and looked like an easy winner; but in the fifth she seemed to tire and Maud B, who already had two heats, won. One heat was trotted in the team race for pairs, Dr. Franklin and mate leading under the wire in 2:33 1-4. There were three starters in this race.

False Pretenses Alleged.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 28.—Dr. William H. Raymonton, at one time president of the Worcester Natural History society, and now one of its directors, was placed under arrest yesterday on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He was arraigned before Judge Almy in Cambridge and was held in $500 for the grand jury. Charles E. Perry of this city brought the charge against Raymonton.

Hypnotic Subject Removed.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 28.—A man in a hypnotic sleep was the attraction in a show window on Main street. He attracted such a crowd that the police ordered his removal. He had been put to sleep at a performance by a professor of hypnotism at one of the theatres and was to stay in the window 48 hours in a hypnotic state as an advertisement of the show.

Intestines Torn Out.

Norwich, Conn., Oct. 28.—William Rich, aged 36, was killed last night. It is supposed that he attempted to pass between two cars and that the train, backing up, caught him. He had a bad fracture of the pelvic bone, tearing out the intestines; and fractures of the right leg and left arm. He leaves a widow and two children.

SEVEN LIVES IN PERIL.

Young Women Unaware of a Fire In the Building Where They Worked.

St. Louis, Oct. 28.—A lighted cigaret dropped by a thoughtless clerk, is supposed to have caused the fire which practically ruined the building occupied by the general offices of the Wabash railroad and caused a property loss of about $900,000.

Just after the clerks had returned from their noon recess and were beginning work, a policeman standing on the corner below noticed a small tongue of flame shoot out from a window on the fifth floor of the building, which was used as a storage attic. The officer sounded the alarm, and instantly there was a confused rush for every means of exit. Fortunately the stairways were wide, the building in former years having been used for the public school library and polytechnic institute.

The attic was stored with old papers and documents, and within five minutes was a roaring furnace. During the excitement seven young women employed in one of the inner mailing rooms on the fourth floor had not been notified and were still working, unconscious of their peril. When they did discover their situation they found that it was impossible to reach the stairs, as the stairway was burning fiercely. They all got out of the building, however, by means of the fire escape.

A few moments after the girls had escaped the roof of the building fell with a crash, sending burning embers on adjoining buildings and starting fires, but prompt measures prevented further conflagation.

A. E. Field, a clerk, was carrying some books from the first floor when the crash came. Flying debris struck him on the head, tearing it open to the eyes and nose. His injuries may prove fatal.

Two Indians and a Deputy Dead.

St. Paul, Oct. 28.—A special from the Leroy lake reservation in northern Minnesota says: "Information has reached the reservation that a fight occurred Tuesday between two Indians and a game warden, in which all three were killed, as was also one Indian woman. A deputy warden, whose name cannot be ascertained, arrived at an Indian camp on an island between Bemidji and the Gass lake reservation, and seized two guns and a trapping outfit which belonged to Kak Kah Quas and Mahchoe-Annequah, two Indians on the Gass lake reservation. He made an attempt to seize some furs which they had, but they resisted, whereupon the warden clubbed the older Indian with a gun until he became unconscious, and then shot him. He next shot the other Indian and his wife, mortally wounding both. In the meantime, the older Indian having recovered consciousness, shot and killed the warden. Dr. Hart, overseer in charge of the sub-agency, sent a detail of Indian police to the scene to investigate the matter.

Dynamite Theory Disbelieved.

New York, Oct. 28.—General Manager Toucey of the New York Central believes that the Garrisons disaster was caused by a break in the engine's machinery. "I believe that something broke on the engine, and ploughed up the ground and jarred the roadbed so that it loosened and slid into the river," he said Wednesday. "The sudden stopping of speed of the train caused the cars to double up on each other and helped loosen the roadbed. That is what I believe caused the accident. That is the conclusion I reached from my investigation of the facts. If there had been a dynamite explosion before the train reached that place the engine could not have passed over it and 75 feet this side, as it did."

Spark From a Tug.

Buffalo, Oct. 28.—The Sturgis elevator, owned by the Buffalo Elevator company, and situated on the island at the foot of India street, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The origin of the fire is a mystery, but the owners are inclined to think that it was caused by a spark from a passing tug.

There were in the elevator at the time of the fire 79,000 bushels of wheat, 20,000 bushels of corn and 100,000 bushels of oats. The grain was valued at $106,000 and insured for $65,000. The loss on the building and machinery is $100,000; insurance, $75,000.

Is Opposed to Mob Law.

Atlanta, Oct. 28.—Mob law was severely condemned by Governor Atkinson in his message to the Georgia legislature. The message bristled with a scorching and sensational attack upon the lawless spirit that fosters the lynch law in this state. He says that to exterminate the practice of lynching the crime must be made odious and shameful. He advocates stringent legislation against mobs, and insists that the legislature pass a law laying every county wherein such a crime is committed subject to a large indemnity to the relatives of the mob's victim.

New Cabinet Organized.

Halifax, Oct. 28.—A special from Charlottetown, P. E. I., says: Premier Peters and his colleagues tendered their resignations to the lieutenant governor, who immediately sent for A. D. Warburton to form a new administration. The new government was sworn in yesterday afternoon as follows: Premier, A. B. Warburton; attorney general, Hector C. McDonald; commissioner of public works, J. R. McLean; commissioner of crown lands and provincial secretary and treasurer, Angus McMillan.

"Second Guiteau" Arrested.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Edward Scholeder of Otter Creek, Ia., who threatened to emulate the example of Guiteau and assassinate the president if the executive refused to secure for him certain rights which he claims have been wrongfully taken from him, has been arrested and will be examined as to his sanity. Scholeder claims that he was swindled out of a large tract of land in eastern Kansas.

THE GRIDIRON.

Harvard Had an Easy Time of It Against the Newtons.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 28.—Harvard defeated the Newton A. A. eleven at football yesterday in a poorly played contest. The score was 22 to 0. Three of the four touchdowns were made in the first half, but while the Newtons were pushed steadily back it was simply because of the weight of the Harvard line and not through superior play.

Cochrane's passing was poor, and he was replaced by Garrison in the second half. Sullivan made the first touchdown on a fake interference, and the next two were made by Boal, whose good work through the game was a refreshing contrast to that of the rest of the team. Parker replaced Dibblee in the first half and made a fine 45-yard run. The play in the second half was listless.

Amherst, Mass., Oct. 28.—A crowd of over 600 saw Wesleyan defeat Amherst by a score of 14 to 0. Although Amherst's eleven has a gooseegg to show for the work, the game was hard fought and hard won. The Young brothers played an invincible game and Rymer and Raymond's line bucking was of the star order. For Amherst, Howard played a phenomenal game, effectually thwarting all plays around his end, and Griffin and Whitney's dash in striking Wesleyan's heavier line was most prominent. A run of 30 yards through Yale by Whitney was the longest made in the game. Wesleyan's first touchdown was made only after 10 minutes hard playing in the first half. In the second, Wesleyan discovered Amherst's weakness at right tackle, and in five minutes scored the second touchdown. The final touchdown was the result of a kick blocked by Townsend on Amherst's 10-yard line.

Medford, Mass., Oct. 28.—Tufts easily defeated Boston college at football, 12 to 4, in the annual game. Tufts won on its merits, gaining ground at will. Boston college only scored on the old-fashioned criss-cross play, a run by Currie, the freshman short distance sprinter, netting 60 yards and a touchdown. Tufts started off with a rush, carrying the ball over Boston college's line in four minutes. Maddocks made the touchdown through left tackle. Toward the end of the half Tufts scored again, gaining 15 yards on a fake kick and bringing the ball to the two and one-half yard line, where Mills rushed it over. Phillips kicked both goals.

Neither side scored in the second half, and time was called on account of darkness after a 10-minute half. The Tufts men showed up much better than their heavier opponents and played with a dash that was encouraging to their supporters.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—Princeton defeated the Elizabeth Athletic club's football team by a score of 12 to 0. It was the hardest fought contest that has been played on the 'varsity field for many a day, and the result was a complete surprise. The "tigers" expected to win by a large margin, but the veterans who composed the visiting team put up such a stiff game that Princeton's players were forced to play the most desperate kind of a game to score a paltry 12 points. They were somewhat weakened by the absence of three players, who are on the retired list with severe injuries, but the substitutes did very good work and were not far behind the regular men in point of ability.

Brunswick, Me., Oct. 28.—Bowdoin showed great improvement and vim under the new coaching against New Hampshire college yesterday. The old players lately injured were back in the first half. Bowdoin played hard and fast throughout, scoring at will, while the New Hampshire boys had the ball only on the first kick-off. The score was 64 to 0.

Killed by His Son.

Redwood City, Cal., Oct. 28.—Patrick Flannelly, one of the most respected citizens of this place, was killed by his son, Thomas, who had been ordered from a ranch for disregarding the old man's wishes. The crime aroused the people of Redwood City to a high state of excitement. Posses were formed to pursue the parricide and he was finally located at the ranch he had been ordered by his father to leave.

When called upon to surrender young Flannelly opened fire on Sheriff McEvoy of San Mateo county and several of his deputies, one bullet taking effect in the sheriff's left arm. The fire was returned and Flannelly was wounded several times. He then surrendered and is now under a surgeon's care.

So great is the indignation over the killing of the elder Flannelly that open threats against the life of his slayer, should the latter recover from his wounds, have been made.

Passenger Vessel Ashore.

Norfolk, Oct. 28.—The German freight and passenger steamer Polaria, from Galveston, Oct. 18, for Hamburg, via Norfolk, went ashore off Cape Henry Tuesday night and lay in practically the same position last night. None of her crew or passengers has been landed, for the ship is resting easily and is in no immediate danger of breaking up. The lifesaving crew fired the Lyle gun nine times, but each time the shot carrying the line fell short of the ship. The heavy surf which is being piled up by the wild northeast gale has prevented the launching of a boat.

Mastership of the Rolls.

London, Oct. 28.—It is now known that Sir Edward Clarke, conservative member of parliament for Plymouth and former solicitor general, was offered the mastership of the rolls in succession to Lord Esher, but refused the preferment. It has been supposed that the speech of Sir Edward early in the year, criticising Great Britain's position in the Venezuelan case, would be a bar to the offer and that the appointment of Nathaniel Lindley, while very popular, was indirectly due to the speech.

Will Be Less Arbitrary In Future.

Portland, Me., Oct. 28.—The jury in the supreme judicial court awarded Jonathan P. Palmer of Somerville $550.90 against the Maine Central railroad. In 1896 Mr. Palmer was arrested by order of a conductor, after having refused to tell the latter whether the name on the mileage book he presented was his. The plaintiff sued for $10,000.

Settlement of a Strike.

New York, Oct. 28.—The strike in the Rhenania silk mill at College Point, L. I., has been settled and the strikers have won, getting the increase in wages which they demanded in May last. The state board of arbitration tried to settle the strike, but without success.

Yoke Fellows.

Many women work too hard. There is no question about that. If they did not have Love for a yoke-fellow they could never endure the daily, hourly grind and drudgery of life. But they bear it cheerfully, sustained by loving thoughts of husband and children.

But when physical weakness or disease is added to a woman's burden it becomes altogether too heavy. No woman can be cheerful or hopeful who is dragged down by continual pain and physical wretchedness.

The special weaknesses peculiar to the feminine organism are comparatively easy to overcome if the earlier symptoms are given proper attention. But if allowed to go unchecked, they are liable to develop into serious, chronic complications.

Any woman afflicted with these delicate ailments ought to have the immediate aid of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a perfect and unfailing specific for all diseases of the feminine organs. It was devised for this one purpose, and accomplishes this purpose as no other medicine has ever done.

For nearly 30 years Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., where in conjunction with his staff of associate specialists, he has successfully treated many thousand cases of "female complaint."

No physician living has had a more extended opportunity to study this class of diseases in actual practice. No medicine ever invented has done for women what his "Favorite Prescription" has.

THE SWEET, SAD YEARS.

The sweet, sad years, the sun, the rain—
Alas too quickly did they wane!
For each some boon, some blessing bore.
Of smiles and tears each had its store,
Its checkered lot of bliss and pain.

Although it idle be and vain,
Yet cannot I the wish restrain
That I had held them evermore—
The sweet, sad years!

Like echo of an old refrain
That long within the mind has lain,
I keep repeating o'er and o'er,
"Nothing can e'er the past restore,
Nothing bring back the years again"—
The sweet, sad years!
—Canon Bell in Leisure Hour.

OFF AT THE METER.

Vernal Choice was a pretty and commodious villa and Dovecottam a select and salubrious suburb. To the happiness of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Green—lately made almost complete by the arrival of the veriest cherub that ever came down from heaven—there were but two drawbacks. The first was of Maurice's making. He had a ridiculous fad about gas fittings. He believed them to be in a chronic state of leakiness. He told his long suffering wife almost daily that more gas escaped through unsuspected cracks and defective joints than served to illuminate the cozy rooms of Vernal Choice.

Mrs. Maurice Green's bugbear was burglars. Nothing could shake her conviction that when a burglar took his "dark suburban way" his objective would be, by decree of fate, Vernal Choice. Thus it came to pass that nightly, while Maurice was turning off the gas at the meter—he would on no account allow any one else to do it, as "gas is such a fickle thing"—his little wife was on her knees in the bedroom, not, as might be supposed, saying her prayers—though she made the same kneeling serve both purposes—but timidly peering under the flowered terra cotta valances for the burglar that never came.

Sometimes it would happen that the gas popped out just as she was in the act of raising the curtain that might reveal the tragedy of her life, and then, with a little scream, she would seek the matches—she never could put her hand readily on the matches—and light the delicately shaded candle on the dressing table, ere proceeding with her search and her devotions. At such times, when Maurice ascended from the underground regions where the gas meter meted out its dole to the company of his wife above stairs, she would rate him right soundly for so gentle a little body for what she styled his "absurd fad" about turning the gas off.

"What do a few extra feet of gas signify, when three precious lives might some night be sacrificed for lack of a light?" she would exclaim, with as much dramatic fervor as if she had been before a row of footlights and a crowded pit instead of a blue tinted, corrugated candle and a mildly scornful husband.

When Maurice wished to be withering, he was always studiously alliterative in his choice of words. He never failed to pooh-pooh the burglar notion. He said it was "the merest moonshine," and that there were "crowds of costlier cribs to crack than Vernal Choice, you bet."

Mrs. Green, as a rule, deigned no answer. She hated slang and wondered how a man of Maurice's sense—except upon the meter question—could stoop to its use. She generally refrained from saying so, however, like the sensible little woman she was, and, resignedly filling the baby's feeding bottle and tucking the little cherub, with sundry croonings, in its bedside cot, retired for the night, leaving Maurice to blow out the corrugated candle.

* * * * * * *

It was winter and it was midnight. Maurice had a cold, and so had the baby. The "little cherub," in fact, had a "touch of bronchitis," and his hard breathing as he slumbered restlessly in his little cot plainly testified the fact through the darkness.

"I wonder," murmured Mrs. Green, as she lay listening to the troubled breathing of the child on the one hand and the influenza snore of her husband on the other—"I wonder if the little pet is warm enough. I'm anxious about his little chest, bless him. I'd take him into my bed, only Maurice doesn't like it. The little fellow kicks the clothes off so. What could I do to prevent him from taking cold afresh? Happy thought! There's that little woolen wrap in the spare bedroom. It's either in the middle drawer of the dressing table or in the wardrobe, I know. Poor Maurice! He would willingly go and find it for me, but I wouldn't disturb him tonight for the world. I'm glad I succeeded in persuading him to sleep in his dressing jacket. Those nasty influenza colds need care, and I'm so apt to uncover him in reaching over to baby. I'll slip into the next room myself."

Thus soliloquizing she quietly got of bed—for where baby came in fear flew out—pushed the turned back bed clothes gently against her husband's back, so that he would not miss her, and proceeded to feel for the matches. The little receptacle at the bed head was empty. Not a match. "Oh, dear, dear, why will Maurice insist upon turning the gas off at the meter, especially when baby is unwell?" she sighed as she slipped into her dressing gown, which fortunately was hanging on the brass knob at the foot of the bed.

Slippers she could not find. Nil desperandum! She knew to a foot where the wrap was, or at least she thought she did, and she would know it the moment she laid a finger on it. The little cherub in the cot coughed in a choking manner. Light or no light, the wrap must be found, and without further delay the little mother walked gingerly into the next room.

No one could fail to find the wardrobe, as it was the first article of furniture encountered on entering the room. When its door stood open, it was possible to view oneself from the bedroom door, for it consisted of a three quarter length mirror in which Mrs. Green was wont to inspect the "hang" of her latest costume.

"I'm almost sure it's in the dressing table drawer," mused Mrs. Green, growing accustomed to the darkness and assisted by a suspicion of moonlight that shed a pale, uncertain light both through the skylight on the landing and the window opposite the wardrobe. Acting upon this thought, she ignored the wardrobe for the present, crossed the room to the dressing table, and after sundry clickings of little brass handles and tentative pulls at wrong drawers at last opened the right one, but failed to feel the wrap.

"It must be in the wardrobe after all," she thought, and accordingly closed the drawer with some noise, tripped across the dark room, opened the wardrobe door with some difficulty and buried herself in its spacious recesses.

Maurice was a heavy sleeper, and consequently apt to be a bit bemuddled on first awaking—more especially in the dark. On this particular night, after apparently dreaming for a full fortnight of "excursions and alarums," he awoke with a violent start. The room, to him, was pitch dark. There was not even the suspicion of moonlight on this side of the house. Besides, the blinds were down. He sat up, every nerve and sinew taut now. He was fully awake.

"By jingo," he breathed, and he felt the cold sweat start to his brow, "she was right! They've come." He put out his hand to wake his wife. He felt her form under the bulging bedclothes at his side. He could hear the baby breathing huskily. There was only one other person in that house unaccounted for. That was the little servant maid. But why should she be trying drawers in the spare bedroom? No, they had come, after all. Mrs. Green was right. It was burglars.

Maurice withdrew his hand, which rested on the hillock by his side, with the thought: "I'll not waken her, poor soul. She'd be scared to death. I'll know the worst first." So thinking, and with a sort of infatuation—which was perhaps bravery—to get a glimpse of the marauder, he stole out of bed, buttoned up his dressing jacket, took the little bedside chair by the back, and thus armed, his heart beating like a muffled drum, stealthily turned the corner between the two rooms.

A faint light came through the landing skylight. Heavens! The villain was at the other end of the room, right opposite the door. What he was doing he could not make out, for he looked like a man seen through mist. The wretch! Just then the draft along the landing took Maurice shrewdly on the bare legs. The influenza asserted itself. He fought against it desperately for a moment. It but augmented the force of the explosion. Like a thunderbolt he sneezed.

There was a muffled exclamation in the room. Maurice rushed forward with uplifted chair. The burglar, too, had seized a chair and was making at him with equal fury. Crash! The house seemed to have fallen. There was a fearful clatter of falling glass, a piercing shriek, the sound of a body falling on the floor, and all was still but for the wail of the frightened babe in the room he had left.

What had he done? He kneeled down, careless of broken glass, and his hand rested on a bare foot. Sick with apprehension, he groped elsewhere and encountered a plaited head and a few curling pins. "A match, a match, my kingdom for a match!" he would doubtless have said had he not been so terribly upset.

Just then a rectangle of light appeared and increased until, pale and trembling, stood the little maid in the doorway, a farthing dip in her hand, amazed to see the following tableau vivant: A wardrobe door swinging upon its hinges, with its long mirror smashed to fragments; a chair, with a broken leg, lying close by; a horrified man in a nightshirt and dressing jacket, kneeling at the feet of a prostrate woman in a dead faint, a dressing gown and plaits, who was none other than the horrified man's wife.

Maurice Green never turns the gas off at the meter now except when he takes his wife and family away for the summer holiday. Mrs. Green still looks under the bed for possible burglars before retiring for the night, but Maurice has never dared to chaff her since he mistook his own faint reflection in the wardrobe mirror for a desperate burglar. —London Tit-Bits.

"Rope Cure" For Grasshoppers.

The intelligence of scent of the red legged grasshopper enables it to select its food while on the wing in the air, where, by some process of signaling known only to itself, it gathers a great army of its kind to descend with massed force on the field beneath when a 45 acre field of corn will only afford them a single meal.

Last year the grasshopper reports sent to the University of Nebraska at Lincoln caused apprehension of an invasion this year, as great quantities of eggs had been deposited in the soil over a large area of country, and those eggs are expected to furnish an army of active "locusts," as they are technically named.

Farmers call them "hoppers," but the college entomologist talks knowingly of "M. Atlantis," "Packardi" and 'Cammula pellucida."

In Utah they have what they call a "rope cure" for the pest, and every man, woman and child takes part in the performance. It consists of drawing ropes, held taut by persons at each end, across the back, over the fields of grain, so that Mr. Grasshopper shall not find any room for the sole of his foot, and they keep this seesaw up until he is starved out.

No doubt the agricultural college will find a way to meet another visitation with some exterminating process, when the migratory locust will migrate to a clime where he will disturb no more, whither forbears of his ilk have gone.

It Sent the Mercury Down.

"I had a mighty queer surprise today," remarked a local broker. "I put on a winter suit on account of the cold snap—one of my suits of last year—and in one of my vest pockets I found a big roll of bills, which I must have forgotten, you know."

"Were any of them receipted?" asked a sad eyed bystander, and the look he received sent the mercury down about 10 degrees farther.—Chicago Times-Herald.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

VOL. 9. NO. 253. QUINCY, MASS., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1897. PRICE 2 CENTS.

Opening of Quincy Music Hall, Thursday, November 4.

Quincy's splendid New Music Hall will be opened on Thursday evening, November 4, by

THE BOSTON OPERETTA COMPANY,

a vocal organization of unusual strength. The company includes

MISS LOUISE GUZMANN, MISS HATTIE GODDARD,	Sopranos.	MR. J. F. HANSHUE, MR. J. F. McDEVITT,	Tenors.
MISS JENNIE PAINE, MISS HELEN DAY,	Contraltos.	MR. L. W. FLINT, Baritone. MR. W. W. NYE, Bass.

MR. ALMON FAIRBANKS, Pianist

Miss Guzmann has a clear, high soprano voice of wonderful flexibility. She will sing an exceptionally brilliant waltz song by Arditi, in the concert programme, and play the part of "Siebel" in "Faust", singing the beautiful flower song in "A Marriage by Lantern." She has a thoroughly congenial role as one of the widows looking for a rich husband.

Miss Goddard has a powerful, dramatic soprano voice of fine quality, which is especially adapted to the requirements of the role of "Margherite," while she is also happily cast in "A Marriage by Lantern" as the other widow. The "quarreling duet" in the operetta is capitally done by Misses Guzmann and Goddard.

Miss Day has a fine contralto voice, with the range of a mezzo-soprano. She will be heard in an interesting solo selection, and will sing the part of "Martha" in "Faust." It would be extremely hard to find a young lady better fitted to play the part of "Martha," her voice and stature being decidedly in her favor. Miss Day and Mr. Flint have a capital scene in the third act of "Faust." It is needless to say that they improve every opportunity for comedy in that scene.

Miss Paine has a full, low contralto voice of exquisite quality, which will be heard to excellent advantage as "Lisa" in "A Marriage dy Lantern."

Mr. Flint is conceded to have a splendid voice, capitally trained. He will sing the great "Torcador's Song," from "Carmen," and "Mefistofele" in "Faust," in each of which he is thoroughly admirable.

Mr. Hanshue has had a long experience on the operatic stage, having played many important parts in the famous Boston Ideal Opera Compaey, and for two years with the Castle Square Opera Company of Boston.

Mr. McDevitt has a fine tenor voice, and with Mr. Nye will be heard in the great sextette from "Lucia."

Cary's Concert Orchestra,

E. C. CAREY, Conductor,

Composed of some of Boston's representative musicians, will render several fine selections, and accompany the vocalists.

Woman's Alliance.

At the meeting of the Woman's Alliance, to be held on Tuesday of next week, at 3 o'clock in the Unitarian chapel. Mrs. F. B. Hornbrook of Newton will speak on "Ornamentation at the expense of Bird Life."

This lecture has, during the past year, been repeated by request many time before audiences of both men and women, in Boston and elsewhere. It should receive special attention in Quincy, not only as a protest against the wanton destruction of birds from a humane point of view, but as emphasizing a question which is each year becoming of more vital interest to every suburban community — the menace to fruit and shade trees and vegetation generally, involved in the unlimited use of birds for millinery purposes. All persons, men or women, are cordially invited to attend this lecture.

Is There a Scheme Here?

A civil service examination for clerks and carriers for service in Quincy will be held at the post-office building, Boston, Dec. 4, 1897, and applications must be filed before Nov. 13.

Formerly examinations for local service were held in Quincy but now all the districts within eight miles of Boston have been consolidated into a joint board under the name of the "United States Civil Service District of Boston" of which Edwin E. Stebbins is secretary. Is it a scheme to put Quincy in the Boston postal district?

A REDUCTION.

Water Rates of City to be Considerably Less.

It will be good news to the citizens of Quincy to learn that at the meeting of the Water Commissioners held Thursday evening it was voted to reduce the water rates in the city to take effect Jan. 1, 1898. Although the new table of rates has not been fully completed as yet the reduction will e quite a material one and is one of the results of municipal ownership. The Ledger will publish the new rates as soon as they are in shape.

ON BENCH 15 YEARS.

Judge Humphrey's Anniversary Remembered Today.

It is fifteen years ago today since Hon. James Humphrey of Weymouth assumed the judgeship of the East Norfolk District Court, and that this anniversary should not pass entirely unnoticed, the officers and newspaper men whose business calls them daily to the court prepared a little surprise. As His Honor took his seat upon the bench he was confronted by a handsome basket of choice cut flowers whose fragrance perfumed the entire court room. A card upon the basket read as follows:

"Hon. James Humphrey, with congratulations and best wishes of the Press and Officers of District Court of East Norfolk."

After the business of the court was over Judge Humphrey expressed his thanks for the kindness shown him upon this occasion. He was sorry that more of the officers of the district were not present. None but the kindest feeling had existed between him and those who had business with the court, and the relations had always been of the pleasantest. He would later express himself in a manner that would reach more of his friends.

Hon. James Humphrey was born in Weymouth Jan. 20, 1819, and is the descendant of one of the oldest families in his native town. He received his education in the public schools of Weymouth and at Phillips Academy at Andover, where he was graduated with honors in the class of 1839. Leaving college he taught school until 1852 when he entered the law office of D. W. Gooch in Boston. He was admitted to the practice of law at the Suffolk bar in 1855.

He was a member of the board of Selectmen of Weymouth for twenty years, a larger part of the time as chairman and served on the board during the civil war. He represented his district in the General Court in 1852 and again in 1869, and was Senator from the Norfolk and Plymouth district in 1872. In 1874 he was elected County Commissioner for Norfolk County and continued to fill that position until 1882, when he resigned to accept an appointment as justice of the District Court of East Norfolk at Quincy, having jurisdiction in Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree Holbrook, Milton, Randolph and Cohasset.

PASTOR ROBINSON.

Will Leave Wollaston Congregational Church Flourishing.

The resignation of the Rev. Edward A. Robinson as pastor of the First Congregational church of Wollaston, deserves more than passing notice.

Mr. Robinson is the senior Protestant pastor in the city, having been installed over the Wollaston Congregational Church in March, 1890.

At the time he assumed charge of that society it was not in an extraordinarily flourishing condition. Its finances were not in good shape, neither was its membership or the number of pews rented large. After ministering to the society for nearly a decade it has been placed upon a strong spiritual and financial foundation, second to no society in the city. In the one item of charity contributions, the past year $1,600 was contributed by the society.

Mr. Robinson is a power outside of his pulpit. No man has been quicker to extend the right-hand of fellowship or to render assistance to those in trouble and distress than he. Few men have manifested more the traits of a public spirited citizen. He has always been intelligent, honest and unselfish in his efforts for the general good. It is recalled by the writer that a fortnight ago a young man known to him was confined in the Charles Street jail, charged with a serious crime. But two persons visited him, one was Mr. Robinson, the other was his attorney.

As a pastor he has always been disposed to be active when less courageous men shrunk from interference. In this way he encountered opposition and was sometimes misunderstood. The thought of any risk to his own popularity was the last consideration to affect him. The only question he asked himself was if he was right. Those who know Mr. Robinson, irrespective of their religious belief, will feel the loss of a sincere friend an and upright and thoroughly manly companion.

It is not within the province of this paper to comment upon the causes which have led up to his resignation, such as the chief criticism which is made by some members of the Church Committee, that in seeking advice upon temporal affairs he has leaned too much upon one of the senior deacons of the church. Such criticisms come within the jurisdiction of the church and society, and it is for them to judge, and condemn or uphold the Committee and not for the general public.

Scare at Wollaston.

There was quite a scare at the Wollaston station Thursday evening. The 7.15 inward train reached the station before the outward bound train arrived. The outward train came along and pulled up just outside of the station. The brakemen, thinking that the station had been reached, threw open the gates and called out "Wollaston! Wollaston!" The passengers began to alight on the inward track directly in front of the other train. For a few seconds there was some scrambling to get off the track, but a few cool heads prevented what might have ben a terrible accident.

BOMBAY SPECULATING

Withdrawal of an Irish Battalion the Cause.

Tumultuous Scenes In Austrian Parliament.

Chairman Refused to Entertain a Motion to Impeach.

London, Oct. 29.—The Chronicle this morning prints a sensational telegram from Bombay, which says: "There is much speculation here as to the reasons for the withdrawal of the second battalion of the royal Irish regiment from Samena to Rawalpindi. It is asserted on one hand that the men sulked at the critical moment and refused to march further. On the other hand Colonel Lawrence says that the two companies were at the front with the other troops on the day in question, while the remaining companies were retired by order of a staff officer. This latter statement is contradicted from headquarters by the assertion that the order was to advance and not to retire. When the entire battalion was withdrawn to Rawalpindi, General Sir Yeatman Biggs gave as a reason that it was saturated with malaria. A medical examination was demanded, and this developed the fact that 85 per cent of the men were quite healthy."

Commenting upon this dispatch The Chronicle says: "Evidently somebody has blundered, and the case is one that demands inquiry. It is a singular fact that while there are numerous Scotch battalions on the northwestern Indian frontier, there are only one or two Irish battalions."

THUMPED HIS DESK.

A Speaker Reed and Reed Rules Needed In Austrian Parliament.

Vienna, Oct. 29.—The reichsrath had another stormy night session. The leaders of the German party protested against the policy, adopted on the suggestion of Dr. Kramarez, the acting president, of discussing motions for the impeachment of the ministry at the morning sittings and of devoting the evenings to the bill for the extension of the compromise with Hungary for a year. They protested against it as a violation of the standing orders of the house and of the Austrian constitution, and amid loud applause from the left and the socialists' seats, they declared that they would continue to resist with all their might the decree authorizing the official use of Czech language in Bohemia.

The vice president declined to allow a motion for the impeachment of the cabinet with reference to the renewal of the sugar bounty law, and called upon the house to proceed to discuss the compromise bill. This provoked an angry tumult, rendering debate impossible, and the vice president suspended the sitting for 10 minutes.

When it was resumed Mr. Lecker tried to address the chamber, but Mr. Wolff, the German Liberal, clamored for a vote on a motion to close the sitting and, being ignored by the vice president, began to thump upon his desk violently. This chaotic state of things continued for half an hour when Mr. Wolff declared that, as the vice president refused to hear him, he would proceed without permission. The result was that Lecker and Wolff were speaking simultaneously, the former almost inaudibly and the latter at the top of his lungs.

Finally Lecker moved that the sitting should be closed on condition that if the house rejected this motion he should be allowed to continue his speech. This vote was taken and the motion to close the session rejected.

To Maintain Gold Standard.

London, Oct. 29.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, speaking at Bristol last evening, reviewed at length the history of the recent currency negotiations between Great Britain, the United States and France. The chancellor thought the decision of the Indian government not to open the mints perfectly right. That view might not be shared, he observed, by his colleagues in the cabinet, but they were unanimous as to the impossibility of overruling India's decision. The government was pledged to maintain the gold standard, and had considered the subject not in the light of prejudice, nor even in the light of such theoretical opinions as members of the government might hold, but as practical statesmen; and had arrived at a conclusion which they would be able, if challenged, to justify before parliament or the country.

The chancellor defended the policy of the governor of the Bank of England on the question of a silver reserve, declaring that the governor had adopted a proper and cautious attitude. With reference to India's reply he expressed his doubts whether the gold standard could be adopted in India as yet; and he said he wished the Indian government had more clearly stated the grounds for its belief that the gold standard could be made effective.

Plausible, but Doubtful Tale.

Paris, Oct. 29.—A remarkable story is going the rounds as to the real animus of the tremendous demonstration in March, 1885, against Mary Van Zandt, the American singer. Mr. Goron, formerly a high official at the prefecture of police, declares that the memorable and offensive attack upon the singer was engineered by the followers of Mr. Ferry to counteract an intended demonstration against him by radicals and socialists after the disastrous defeat of the French at Lang-Son.

Mr. Camescasse, the prefect of police of the day, was consulted as to how to prevent the intended demonstration against the unpopular Ferry; and, according to Goron, he suggested a monster demonstration against Miss Van Zandt.

All the available detectives and theatrical claques were sent to the opera comique to howl at and hiss the singer. Whenever there was a lull in the uproar the cry was raised that Miss Van Zandt was going out by another door, and so successful was the trick that the excitement was maintained until midnight, and the attention of the intending anti-Ferry demonstrators was diverted until it was too late to go to the foreign office.

Police Patrolled Limerick.

Dublin, Oct. 29.—According to a dispatch from Limerick there was great excitement throughout the city last evening in anticipation of John Daly's departure for the United States. The police patrolled the entire town in special force, as it was feared there would be disturbance; and a strong detail guarded the residence of the mayor.

Mr. Daly addressed a large and enthusiastic meeting of his admirers, and in the course of an impassioned speech denounced the mayor of Limerick as "the myrmidon of Dublin castle" for having struck his (Daly's) name off the list of burgesses for the current year on the ground that he had not occupied a residence at Limerick for 12 months.

Sardines Were Roasted.

Lubec, Me., Oct. 29.—The entire plant of the Johnson Bay Packing company, manufacturer of sardines, was burned last night. It was located two miles from the village and was owned by Daniel Ellison. The estimated loss is $8000, with an insurance of about $1500. The fire originated in the solder shed near the main factory, towards which the wind was blowing, and the entire plant was soon in flames. It was in full operation, with about 300 cases on hand. One hundred hands will be thrown out of employment.

Victim of Cancer a Suicide.

Brattleboro, Vt., Oct. 29.—Gilbert D. Stedman, aged 79, committed suicide at Williamsville by hanging in his barn. He was suffering from cancer of the face, and specialists gave him no hope of recovery. He leaves a widow and four adult children.

Menace of Southern Competition.

Philadelphia, Oct. 29.—At yesterday's meeting of the New England Cotton Manufacturers' association, papers were read by William P. Wilson and Arthur Parkison of Providence on "Manufacture and Export of Cotton Goods." Mr. Parkison said in part: "It is well known that southern manufacturers with the present conditions can undersell or compete easily with the eastern mills on medium and coarse fabrics, and the future looks dark for New England. The facilities of manufacturing have been so increased that in many lines of goods the existing manufacturing establishments can produce a vast amount more than the United States can consume, and it seems likely that each year will cause stagnation for the industry, and of course the usual stoppage of mills during certain periods. As a result of this continued competition in certain lines of goods for the home market, the prices are low, wages are low and tariff legislation cannot help matters, for the merchant and jobber will buy in the cheapest market, and that means southern looms will be engaged ahead and the New England mills must take what is left."

Bartender In Trouble.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 29.—William J. Hickey, a bartender in Pierce & Buckley's saloon in this city, who was arrested Wednesday for connection with the death of Joseph R. Davies, was arraigned in the police court yesterday on the charge of manslaughter and pleaded not guilty, his case being continued until Nov. 4, under $5000 bonds.

Davies' death was caused by a fall from the doorway of the saloon, and it is alleged that the fall resulted from a blow by Hickey, who was attempting to eject him. The autopsy resulted in the discovery of the fact that death was caused by a hemorrhage of the brain, doubtless caused by the blow when the head struck the pavement. It was determined also by the physicians that a slight contusion under the left eye was a fresh wound and may have been caused by a blow from a man's fist.

Band's Future In Doubt.

Washington, Oct. 29.—In order to escape further criticism at the hands of the labor organizations the navy department has laid down the rule that hereafter the members of the Marine band shall not be allowed to play in any city where they might be regarded as competing with labor bands.

All the bandsmen have been enlisted with the understanding that they might eke their slender pay as enlisted marines by playing outside engagements. Most of the men are men of family who could not subsist upon marine's pay, so that this order is likely to result in the refusal of most of the bandsmen to reenlist and, in the case of the more noted musicians, in their buying their discharges, so that the future of the famous old band is in doubt.

HISSED BY BRAVES.

Extraordinary Occurrence During a Tammany Meeting.

Hostile Demonstration on the Appearance of Croker.

Secretary Sherman Writes on the Political Issues.

New York, Oct. 29.—Richard Croker was roundly hissed last night at the first great meeting in Tammany hall which he has attended during the campaign, and the hisses were given under circumstances which made the incident border on the sensational. The affair occurred at the meeting arranged for by Mr. Croker in honor of Carter Harrison, mayor of Chicago; Mayor Harrison's cabinet, a number of the Democratic members of the Chicago aldermanic board, and 300 members of the Cook county Democracy.

Mayor Harrison is the guest of Mr. Croker during his stay in this city, and the trip to New York of the Chicago Democrats was arranged during the recent visit of Mr. Croker to Chicago, when he acted in the capacity of "best man" at the marriage of State Senator Cantor of New York to the daughter of a Chicago millionaire. Mayor Harrison was on the platform when the hissing took place, and the Chicago delegation occupied front seats in the body of the hall. Owing to the repeated interruptions at Tammany gatherings care was taken to keep Henry George shouters out of the hall.

CARTER H. HARRISON.

The former ambassador to France, James B. Eustis, was cheered when he arose to speak, and during the delivery of his speech he was liberally applauded.

The Chicago men were warmly greeted by the crowds in the galleries. There was renewed cheering when Mayor Harrison appeared on the platform accompanied by Richard Croker. The most remarkable thing which has ever occurred at a Tammany hall meeting took place just then. Some one called for three cheers for Richard Croker. The response was a storm of hisses that swept over the hall. Not a cheer was given, and the man who called for them thought he would try again. In a very loud voice he called again for three cheers for Croker. There was a feeble response this time, but the cheers were drowned by hissing. Croker heard the expressions of disapproval for himself. Then he retired to a seat away back on the stage.

Mr. Eustis was the first speaker. He did not refer to Bryan, the Chicago platform or financial issues in any way. The interest in his address centered in his references to Cuba. He said that the heart of the American people had always gone out to a people struggling for freedom. The Democratic party had always sympathized with these patriotic impluses and they were especially interested in the cause of Cuba. He did not favor violation of existing treaties, but he did think that in so far as the sympathy of the American government could be extended to Cuba, that island should be given the benefit of that sympathy. He referred to Lafayette as "the greatest filibuster the world has ever seen."

CAMPAIGN ISSUES.

Secretary Sherman Sets Forth His Views In Letter to an Editor.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Secretary Sherman, after regretting that official usage precludes his participation in the campaign in Ohio, says in a letter to an editor in Cincinnati: "Naturally the first issue now is whether the administration of William McKinley thus far is approved by the people of Ohio. Upon this question there ought not to be any difference of opinion. His prompt calling together of the congress of the United States to provide requisite revenue for the support of the government and his recommendation of the prompt repeal of the feeble and indefensible tariff law known as the Wilson-Gorman law have met with general approval. The revival of all industries and the commencement of prosperity in all parts of the United States were the natural and necessary result of the action of the president and a Republican congress.

"In 1890 congress passed what is known as the McKinley tariff act which was a careful revision of all existing revenue laws. It largely reduced internal taxes and carefully revised the tariff laws then in force. If it had remained in the statute book to this time the policy of protection and dept paying would have largely reduced the public debt and prevented the severe stringency that followed its repeal. I confidently believe that within a year under the present law the revenue of the government will be ample to pay not only current expenditures but a large sum yearly in reduction of the public debt.

"It is now proposed as the cardinal principle of scattered parties that the holder of any silver bullion without regard to its market value may present it to the mint and have it coined into dollars and made a legal tender for all debts, public or private. At present the silver in a dollar is worth about 41 cents. It would seem that this bold and transparent proposition of repudiation of more than one-half of all debts, public and private, in the United States would shock the public sentiment of honest people and secure its prompt rejection; but, strange as it may seem, it is defended by so many that we are bound to consider their reasons before we denounce it as a fraud. It is said that free coinage would bring up the price of silver bullion to the ratio of 16 to 1. There is not the slightest ground for this opinion. Silver has gone down in price precisely as tin, iron, copper or indeed of all the metals except gold. The diversement in the process of mineralogy has kept pace with the cheapening of nearly all the productions of skill known as manufactures. Even gold may decline in relative value as the result of recent development of mines in several parts of the earth, but from its superior value in the smallest space and being less affected by corrosion than any other money metal, it is now and will continue to be the standard of value in the chief nations of the world. Silver will be largely used in all countries for minor coins, and if limited in amount and redeemed at its coinage value or made a legal tender for limited sums, it will be largely absorbed for minor transactions; but its free coinage for all who demand it would at once make it the sole coin in circulation, prevent the coinage of gold and place our great and powerful country in financial operations among the minor and poorer nations of the world."

MR. WILLIAMS' ADDRESSES.

Urges the Democracy to Assert the Rights of the Boston People.

Boston, Oct. 29.—Mr. Williams spoke at different meetings in this city last night. His principal address was delivered at South Boston, where he said: "I think that it is about time for the Democracy of Boston to assert the rights of the people of Boston. They have been taken away in the last year in the grossest and most shameful manner. A Republican legislature has passed two acts more serious and important to the people of Boston than any acts that have been passed in recent legislation. It has created a new company known as an Elevated Railway company, and has empowered that corporation to lease the West End Street Railway company. A lease has been executed for 100 years, delivering over to the new company all the rights and privileges of the West End Street Railway company. Not only that, but the elevated railway charter has bound the people of Boston for a generation to pay 5 cents and no less for a single fare. Why at the present time there are fares in Europe as low as 1 cent for a single trip, and the city of Boston ought not to charge a single passenger more than 2 cents. Why, then, do I discuss this question? In the Democratic platform you can read that remedy. It is that the people of Boston shall take possession of every foot of street railway in the city of Boston and run the railway themselves. That if there is any profit in that business it shall go into the treasury of the city of Boston and not into the pockets of the stockholders. That is but a sample of Republican legislation—it is but a specimen of the theory of the Republican party, that this government exists to enrich syndicates out of the pockets of the people.

"What other illustration have we? The railroads wanted a new entrance into the city of Boston. My friends, the course that should have been pursued if the people's interest was consulted was this: The city of Boston should have condemned the land necessary for the purpose and paid for it; it should have built its streets and paid for those improvements; it should have constructed a building and paid for it, and then it should have rented that building as public property to the railway corporations. A half million of dollars ought to be coming annually into the treasury of Boston in lieu of millions of dollars taxes levied upon the people.

"How long shall such a system prevail? We propose to reverse that system and without having in every respect a distinct policy we say this, that that system cannot be reversed until the people of this country shall rise up in their might, elect a president who may appoint a cabinet, elect a congress which shall legislate, elect governors of the states and state legislatures who shall at least make and administer the laws in the interests of the people. We need a popular victory in order to teach these public servants that they are the servants of the people and not the servants of wealth."

Sheriff Martin Must Answer.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 29.—A true bill has been returned by the grand jury against Sheriff Martin and his deputies for the Lattimer shooting. The bill included 19 for murder, one for each man killed, and one for the victims considered collectively. Thirty-six true bills were found in the same way for felonious wounding against the same defendants. The re-entry of Carman and McGaheren, who withdrew from the case at the time of the preliminary hearing, indicates that he prosecution will be pushed with vigor.

Died After Being Struck.

Salem, Mass., Oct. 29.—Patrick Brooks of Peabody, 45 years old, was struck by a train near Lynnfield last night and died an hour or two later at the hospital. He was walking on the side of the track when the train came along, and when struck was thrown high in the air. When he fell he struck on his head, fracturing his skull, the blow rendering him unconscious. He leaves a widow and four children.

Juror Had Expressed an Opinion.

Lancaster, N. H., Oct. 29.—The murder trial in which George A. Staples of Randolph is the defendant took an unexpected turn yesterday afternoon, when Judge Wallace discharged the jury and ordered a new one impanelled. The reason was that a juryman in the panel had publicly expressed an opinion as to the guilt of the accused.

Girl Attacked by Villains.

Nyack, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Annie Zehner, the 18-year-old daughter of Andrew Zehner, a farmer of Sickletown, Rockland county, went into the woods on her father's farm Wednesday evening to drive the cows home. Three men who were in the woods knocked her down, but her cries brought help and the men fled.

Cow on the Track.

Three Rivers, Que., Oct. 29.—A passenger train on the Taurentian railway struck a cow yesterday, and the engine left the rails and rolled down an embankment. Fireman Edward Plocho was instantly killed and Engineer Genan and Brakeman Plocho were seriously injured.

Good Afternoon.

This is the last Friday of the month, and the old saying is that it foretells the weather of the next month. The early morning rain indicated a light shower (of ballots) early in the month, and the noon weather was ominous for some of the Mayoralty candidates about the middle of the month. What will the afternoon bring forth?

November in the political field, certainly, will not be as stormy as in recent years, particularly over the State election, and few realize that election day is next Tuesday. Good notice has been given by City Clerk Keith of the date, polling places, and the offices to be filled, yet a small vote is probable. That of Quincy will fall far below last year. While the election of the straight Republican ticket, from top to bottom, is conceded, the Republican should all do their duty. Vote! Vote!

The city election, too, is upon us. The impression seems to be that Mayor Adams will not again be a candidate, but that was the talk last year. If the Democrats are called upon to select some other candidate, it will probably be Hon William N. Eaton, the ex-Commissioner of Public Works, or Hon. William A. Hodges, who was Mayor before Mr. Adams, and was the first Democrat ever elected to the mayoralty. Party nominations will undoubtedly be made this year as in the past, and if the Republicans can unite upon a candidate they will most likely elect him, as Quincy, it must be acknowledged is a Republican city. Who can unite the party?

All public matters should not be cast aside as indifferently as the State election. Such a question as sewer assessments should interest the property holders. The Council committee has given them an opportunity to be heard, and Wednesday evening was the time to express ones views. Those who did not attend should not grumble later at whatever plan may be adopted. But no one plan will be just in all cases. We have in mind one valuable estate of several acres which has a frontage of less than thirty feet, where other small lots in acute angles of two streets have a small area and considerable frontage. If the assessment is by frontage, how much shall be abated upon the second street? If a lot of less than 100 feet has a street front and back should it be assessed on both streets? Again, if the abutters pay two-thirds of the cost within ten years, and the city can pay off but one-fourth of its bonds in the same period of time, will not the assessments be too large or paid too quickly? If one-half the cost is paid in assessments within ten years, the amount received would exceed the maturing debt. It is not pleasant for taxpayers to contemplate, that as abutters they pay two-thirds of the cost in assessments and awake to the realization in ten years, that more than one-third, more than one-half even, of the cost is still unpaid.

The Ledger invites communications on sewer assessments.

THE TALK OF EUROPE.

Brief Reflections Upon Events of Current Interest Across the Ocean.

It is solemnly announced from Germany that the kaiser is "about" to perpetrate another of his musical compositions. The action of William in thus giving notice that he is "just about to begin" is presumably prompted by a species of imperial consideration toward the musical critics, who are thus afforded an opportunity of leaving the country before the blow falls. On the occasion of the publication of the emperor's "Sang zu Regir' nearly every critic who ventured to find fault with it was arrested and tried on a charge of leze majesty.

At the time when the Peninsular and Oriental liner Aden was wrecked on the island of Socotra, in the Indian ocean, last May, only those who had been deserted on board the stranded vessel were rescued, no trace being found of those of the passengers and crew who had left the ship on board the three lifeboats. Two of these contained only men, while in the third there were 12 sailors, 9 women and 8 children. It was believed until a few weeks ago that all three boats had gone to the bottom. But quite recently the British authorities at Aden and at Muskat have obtained information to the effect that at least two of the boats, one of them being that containing the two women and children, had reached the Arabian coast, and that those on board are now held in captivity by the lawless Arab tribes of the coast, who are disposed to treat for their release on the basis of ransom. The British government has now taken the matter in hand, and negotiations have been opened both from Aden and Muskat with a view to securing the liberation of the captives.

The widespread misery and want that prevail in Italy appear to be exercising a disastrous and degenerating influence on the physique of the masculine portion of the population. According to official statistics just issued by the war department at Rome, out of every 1,000 young men of 20 years of age liable for military service, which is obligatory in Italy as in Germany and Austria, 520, or more than half, were rejected by the medical authorities as physically disqualified for service in the army.

The French government, finding itself unable to increase the taxation, which is heavier per capita in France than in any other country of the world, has decided to resort to the conversion of its treasury bonds or rentes from 3 per cent to 2½ as the easiest, and indeed the only available, means of increasing the revenues of the state. The ground is taken that as the national credit is such that the government has recently been able to secure temporary loans at 1¼ per cent the interest charge on treasury bonds is far too high and that a conversion scheme would respond to the present state of France's national credit. That the latter should stand so high is surprising, when it is remembered that, although in the last 26 years France's population has only increased by 298,000 inhabitants, or at the rate of about 11,500 a year (England having doubled hers in the last 40 years), the consolidated national debt of France has grown from $3,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000, while the taxation, both direct and indirect, has more than doubled.

Now that the French government has concluded the agreement with England whereby the latter power at length recognizes Tunis as a full fledged French dependency, preparations are being made to begin work without delay on the improvement and extensive development of the defences of the Tunisian coast. Apart from the important fortifications at Bizerta there are to be large forts and arsenals at Mehedia and at Cape Le Bon. Government engineers have just left Paris to make the necessary surveys and designs.

A war has broken out at Paris between the restaurant keepers and the newsdealers occupying the kiosks that border the roadway of the boulevards. Hitherto the faces of these kiosks have been turned toward the pavement, and the occupants have been permitted to display their wares by means of boards and tables, which, of course, encroached on the footpath. Traffic was still further impeded by the action of the restaurant keepers and cafe proprietors, who persist in lining the front of their establishments with small tables and chairs for the accommodation of those of their customers who prefer to sip their drinks in the open air. The bonifaces, finding that the police were about to interfere, lodged a complaint against the newsdealers, mainly with the object of saving themselves. This has led to the issue of an order whereby the kiosks are twisted half round, so that their fronts and their tables of wares, instead of facing the footpath, now run parallel with the curb. The occupants of the kiosks are in arms, declaring that their trade will be impaired by the change and that, moreover, they are deprived of seeing at least one-half of life on the boulevards. They vent their wrath on the cafe and restaurant proprietors. This has brought joy to the various Paris newspapers, for until now the newsdealers have been in the habit of hiring out a number of newspapers for the day to the restaurants and cafes and then returning them 24 hours later to the newspaper offices as "bouillon"—that is to say, "unsold." In this way the Parisian press has been shorn of a considerable portion of its receipts, never at any time large.—New York Tribune.

ONE WON, ONE TIED.

Opening Games in New Bowling League—The Schedule.

The first games in the candle pin series of the Quincy and Weymouth bowling league were rolled Thursday night. The league at present comprises four teams. Two from Quincy, the Quincys and Granites; and two from Weymouth, the East Weymouths and Weymouths. It is also possible that the Norfolk Cycle club and the West Quincys or Wollastons may come in. The league has elected F. A. Burrell of Weymouth as president and J. F. Costello of Quincy as secretary

The opening games were played at Costello's alleys between the Quincys and East Weymouths, and at the Weymouth alleys between the Weymouths and Granites of Quincy. The result of these games was as follows.

QUNCYS VS. EAST WEYMOUTHS.

The Quincy had a snap with the East Weymouths and it needed only 1128 pins to bury them out of sight. They won every string handily, but R. Newcomb of the visitors was high bowler.

GRANITES VS. WEYMOUTHS.

The Granites pulled out a tie in an up-hill game. They lost the first string by 13 pins because of weak scores by Fitzgerald and Boutin, but all did well in the second string which resulted in a tie.

The Weymouths weakened on the third and Granites led by 13, which resulted in a tie on totals at 1252.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

HALLO'EEN PARTY.

Wollaston Y. P. S. C. E. Give Supper and Entertainment.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Wollaston Congregational society gave a Hallowe'en party in the church vestry on Thursday evening. A large crowd was in attendance and joined in the festivities.

At seven o'clock a blue jay supper was served, consisting of salads and other good things. The candy table, which was in charge of Miss Ethel A. Roberts and Miss Harriet V. Bates, was well patronized. And then there were the two witches who told fortunes which of course will come out true.

The entertainment consisted of vocal solo by Miss Eloise P. Flood; a piano duet by Miss Avice Williams and Miss Mabel Winship; and a reading by Miss Beckwith.

The entertainment committee was composed of Miss Margaret Thompson, Miss Alice Dunham, Miss Harriet Bates, Miss Abbie Mann and Miss Avice Williams.

DEBS' SOCIAL PLAN.

THE FIRST COLONY TO BE FORMED IN TENNESSEE.

At a Cost of $1,750,000 Three Hundred and Fifty Thousand Acres Have Been Acquired -Colonel Hinton Outlines the Plans.

Colonel Richard J. Hinton, chairman of the colonization commission of Eugene V. Debs' scheme of Social Democracy, has affixed his signature to papers which will transfer to the commission 350,000 acres of land in Cumberland and Fentrass counties, Tenn. Colonel Hinton, who left for Chicago recently, is the principal promoter of the colonization plans, one of the originators of them, in fact, and he outlines the plans of the projectors of the enterprise as follows:

"The Tennessee colony will be the first organized by the Social Democracy," said Colonel Hinton. "Next year it is the purpose to open similar colonies in Idaho and Washington. Indeed, it is my intention while in the west to conclude arrangements for the colonies in those states as well as for that in Tennessee. The land which we have acquired in Tennessee cost $1,750,000. The Kentucky Trust company supplied the commission with the money with which the purchase was made, the company accepting the commission's bond for $2,000,000. This will leave us a margin of $250,000 with which to inaugurate the colony.

"In establishing the Tennessee colony we shall make no effort to secure political control of the state, but we shall make that effort through the colonies which we will establish in the western states. Our purpose in Tennessee will simply be to prove that in a favorable location in one of the older states homes and security can be obtained by wage earners under a system of collective ownership of lands, transportation facilities and the machinery of production. We believe that the conditions in Tennessee are highly favorable to the establishment of comfortable homes and for the creation in course of time of many industries, the products of which will command constant sale throughout the United States. In brief, the idea which we will develop is similar to that upon which the Shakers are organized, except that our organization is political and theirs is religious. The Shakers have now $30,000,000 lying idle, and they are enabled to live in peace and comfort. That is the condition to which we hope to bring the workingmen who associate themselves with us.

"After the communities are fairly started they will control themselves. The colonists will choose their own administrative officers, and every man will be the equal of every other. The men who will form the colony at the start believe that such a movement is their only salvation. It is not expected therefore that there will be the least difficulty in maintaining discipline among them. Every man will be expected to do his duty, and his labor will have the reward to which it is justly entitled. No idlers will be tolerated in the community. Any man who is willing to work will be warmly welcomed. Those who are not will be informed that they are not wanted among us."—New York Sun.

RICE LODGED IN HER EAR.

Mrs. Birk's Painful Experience From an Old Time Wedding Custom.

Mrs. Albert E. Birk of Bridgeport, Conn., who was recently married at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Jennings, in Greens Farms, was compelled to undergo an operation in New York city the other day for the removal of a kernel of rice which had become lodged in one of her ears.

Mr. and Mrs. Birks were showered with rice on leaving the homestead by the happy throng which had assembled to witness the wedding. At the railroad station the performance was repeated.

After leaving the house Mrs. Birks was troubled with a peculiar sensation in one of her ears. She concluded that a particle of the rice thrown had become lodged there. She made several attempts to remove it.

While on her way to New York the piece of rice settled farther toward the drum and began to cause her much pain. On reaching New York the pain had become intense, and Mr. Birks called in a physician. The latter made several attempts to remove the trouble, but was unsuccessful.

It was not until the services of three doctors had been employed that the kernel of rice was removed. Then it had to be taken out in small pieces.

The bride suffered a loss of hearing, which it is feared will be permanent.

Mlle. Couesdon's Prophecy.

Mlle. Couesdon, Paris' notorious prophet of evil, has re-established communication with the angel Gabriel and is doing business again at the old stand. Royalty, she declares, will be re-established in France, and the capital will be transferred from Paris to Avignon. Terrible things will happen. The first fearful catastrophe will take place in the Champs Elysees, far eclipsing the charity bazaar calamity. Fire will then burst out in one of the big shops. Emperor William will die a violent death, and France, after again being in the throes of invasion, will be afflicted first by drought and then by inundations.

Shifted Interest.

The football season comes again,
So rouse, ye braves with flaunting hair,
While echoing over hill and plain
Applause proclaims your merits rare.

Who heeds the diplomatic row
Conducted in soft, civil tones?
That's far too mild to suit us now.
It blacks no eyes and breaks no bones.

These Bering disputants must learn
That o'er their words we can't enthuse.
The sealskin gives us small concern.
The pigskin's what the world pursues.
—Washington Star.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 31. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Trust Christ—for what?—II Tim. i, 1-12.

In the closing verse of the topical reference we have one of the most sublime expressions of profound trust in Jesus Christ to be found anywhere in sacred or secular literature. For the gospel's sake Paul was suffering. He had met with opposition and persecution, he had suffered untold pain and anguish, and yet in prison he is not dismayed, he does not doubt or waver in his faith. Instead his trust is only intensified. "I know," he says, "in whom I have trusted and am persuaded that He is able to keep my deposit till that day." He looks upon his soul as having been deposited into the care of Jesus Christ, and not even persecution was able to shake his belief in Christ's ability to save him.

We should trust Christ for everything and under all circumstances in life. In the midst of privation and want, when the temporal affairs of life are not as we would like, we should trust Christ, knowing "the Lord will provide." In times of persecution and trial and tribulation, because of our faith in Christ, we should still trust Him, knowing that He is able to keep that we have intrusted to His keeping till that day. In time of bereavement and sorrow, when the sun seems darkened, when God seems to have hidden His face from us, we should still trust Christ, knowing that His grace is sufficient for us. In time of temptation, when the tempter seems about to gain the victory over us, we should trust Him who is able to overcome even Satan himself.

Christ has been tried and has always proved sure and faithful. Paul was not putting his trust in severe trials in an unknown, untried person. "I know," he says, "in whom I have trusted." Paul is not the only one who has learned from experience that Christ can be trusted for all things. Christians in all ages have learned by experience to say, "I know in whom I have trusted."

Jesus Christ is the only one to whom we can intrust the interests of our souls. "There is no other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." It is folly to trust in anything else than Christ for salvation, for there is salvation in no other name. What a comfort, then, that salvation in Christ is sure; that we may know for a certainty; that we may be fully persuaded that He is able to keep all that we put in His care. Let us trust Christ for all things, but, over and above everything else, let us leave in His care the eternal interests of our souls.

Bible Readings.—Ps. iv, 5; xxxiv, 1-15; xxxvii, 1-7; xlvi, 1-11; lvi, 10; Prov. iii, 1-7; xvi, 20; xxviii, 25, 26; Isa. xxvi, 3, 4; l, 10; Jer. xvii, 7; Mark x, 23 26; Rom. x, 8-11; II Cor. i, 9, 10; I John ii, 15-17.

Sunshine In Religion.

Sunshine has its uses in making our religion what it should be—a thing of brightness. There is danger of making it too cold and gloomy. God did not intend it to be thus. It is a difficult matter, at any rate, to induce men to accept religion, and if they are left under the impression that when they unite with the church they are going into the sunless and gloomy region of an arctic land it will make it all the more difficult to induce them to choose the better part. Let joy, brightness, geniality, tempered by the spirit of Jesus, characterize our religion, and these persons will lay hold of it with earnestness. Let us make use of sunshine everywhere. Do cares come, let us go at them with sunshiny hearts. They will soon melt away under its power. If afflictions come, nothing will so brighten the sickbed as sunshine. Is the home darkened by the shadow of death? Sunshine will lighten it and show us the golden stairway up which our departed have gone. Sunshine, sunshine everywhere—in the world, in the home, in the church. There is joy and brightness in heaven. Why should it be wanting here?—Christian Register.

Signs of Church Activity.

The past year has been one of what many call hard times, yet it is a remarkable fact that a very considerable number of new church buildings and improvements and repairs have been reported. This may be taken as a sign of church life and activity. When the church is growing, it makes room for itself. New houses of worship and material betterments are indications of prosperity. The inward and spiritual expresses itself in these outward ways. Our Zion seems on the king's highway to future growth.—Reformed Church Messenger.

Vacation Time.

Vacation comes, vacation goes, but the pulpit remains. Whether forever or only for a short while, that is another question. Be it as it may, we have for all the same good wishes. To the "stay at home" brethren we say, "Blessed are they who abide in Thy house." The "going abroad" colleagues we greet with the words, "Blessed are they whose journey is blameless."—Jewish Messenger.

The Secret of Christ's Strength.

May the Holy Spirit teach us all the secret of taking Christ's strength for spirit, soul and body, which will make us contented, victorious and successful. —Christian World.

African Endeavorers.

Dr. Clark found a society in the diamond fields at Kimberley some of whose members spend their lives washing and sorting diamonds, of which $70,000 worth are found there every day. Young men of absolute honesty are needed for this interesting occupation, and Christian Endeavorers "fill the bill."

Some of the Endeavorers of South Africa have gone to the north to fight for their country in the bloody native wars which are constantly occurring—another kind of Christian citizenship.

MILTON.

The two-year old son of Mrs. William Smith was run over by a passing team on Pierce street early in the week. The wheels passed over the boys head, but fortunately no bones were broken, although he was severely bruised. No blame is attached to the driver of the team.

Officer Henry A. Patterson, who was assaulted by a gang of Italians last week, is still confined to his home but expects to be out next week.

A dancing school opens at the Town hall next Friday.

Word was received at East Milton Thursday, announcing the death at South America, Sept. 9, of yellow fever of Irving Hathaway, a son of Lemuel Hathaway. The young man went to South America as a missionary early last spring.

There will be a baptism at the East Milton Episcopal mission on Sunday evening by Rev. Reis of St Michael's church, Milton. A meeting will be held tonight to select an executive committee of five for the ensuing year.

The late Col. William H. Forbes of Milton made no public bequest in his will filed Thursday.

Dr. Everett's Vote.

Keith's Theatre.

Lillian Burkhart has never appeared to better advantage since she first adopted the stage as a profession as at the present time, and her success at Keith's the current week must be gratifying alike to the talented little woman and the management which first introduced her to the patrons of the continuous performance, who were quick to appreciate Miss Burkhart's ability, and with whom she has become the strongest favorite of the many actresses who have sought favor in the vaudeville. Her dainty little plays are veritable gems, and she always comes with something new to amuse her admirers. Next week Miss Burkhart will be seen for the first time in Boston in a charming little piece called "Tomorrow at Twelve," which is a mirth-provoking scene between two artists. The stage setting will be in the usual excellent taste for which Keith's is famous, and Miss Burkhart will be assisted by that clever young actor, Mr. Forest Flood.

Strength of Maine's Militia.

Augusta, Me., Oct. 29.—Captain C. G. Morton, in his report to the war department concerning the Maine national guard, says the strength consists of 118 officers and 1996 men. The average per cent attending muster was 89. He gives a good report of the signal corps, but recommends better equipments. Troops could be concentrated in 24 hours if needed. He recommends later style of rifles; that the national appropriation for guard be increased; that more regular army officers be sent to attend muster; that a revised drill be issued soon, close order drill be cut down, and that a post for a regiment of infantry be established at Bangor.

Not More Than Twenty.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct. 29.—It is now believed that no more than 20 lost their lives in the New York Central disaster. All of the sleeping car passengers have been accounted for. Of those who were in the day coach eight bodies have been recovered and at least four are known to have escaped from it. Conductor Parrish is certain that there were no more than 12 in the day coach. He says that there were no women besides the two whose bodies were found, and of whom one lies unidentified at Cold Springs. There was only one child in the car, a little boy, who was rescued.

Dynamite Theory Scouted.

Garrisons, N. Y., Oct. 29.—The theory advanced by some of the railroad people that the embankment of the New York Central railroad where the state express was thrown into the river on Sunday was blown out with dynamite by train wreckers is given little or no credence by the people of the surrounding country. The train wrecking idea is almost universally scouted, and the popular explanation of the cause of the disaster is that it was simply a "washout" of the kind so common to railroads that are built or made on ground alongside of large streams of water.

MATERIAL FOR NOVEL.

Singular Development During a Chicago Will Contest.

Woman Testified to Performing a Marriage Ceremony.

Her Uncle the Groom and a Deceived Woman the Bride.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Material for a novel on the wrongs of woman was unfolded yesterday during the hearing on a will contest in which a woman seeks to establish her right to be regarded as the widow of the testator. The narrative of Lillie D. Gregory would seem to establish the force of the axiom that truth may be stronger than fiction sometimes. Either the witness is a consummate actress and fabricator, or else she figured as the handmaid of justice in an episode as remarkable as it is strange. In short, she deposed yesterday that she was the person who performed the ceremony that made Allen Gregory, an uncle by marriage, and Martha Claybourn, man and wife and furnished a basis for the suit then pending.

Allen Gregory, known as the "father of the stock yards," died Aug. 2 last, leaving an estate valued at $1,000,000. He was supposed to be without a wife or child, and letters of administration were issued to collateral heirs. Soon after this, however, Miss Martha Claybourn, or as she claims, Mrs. Allen Gregory, asked that she be declared the widow. It is alleged that Miss Claybourn entered the home of Mr. Gregory in 1892 as a member of the family. She was generally known as Miss Claybourn, although it is asserted that Mr. Gregory on more than one occasion introduced her as his wife. Gregory was 73 years of age when he died, while the present claimant is about 62, and a member of one of the best known families in Chicago.

The witness said she had first met Miss Claybourn at her uncle's home, July 4, 1892. This was the date upon which Mrs. Gregory says she performed the marriage ceremony. Mrs. Gregory and her husband reside in Kansas City. "I was received kindly by my uncle," she said, "but indifferently by Miss Claybourn. The morning was passed pleasantly, and luncheon time arrived. Here it was that my eyes were opened to the true state of affairs in that household. Miss Claybourn had persisted for some time in my accepting 50 cents for a supscription to a magazine I publish. Finally she reached her hand with the money in it to me, but like a flash withdrew it and, clasping her hand to her head, gave vent to a heartrending gasp and turned ghastly white. Nothing more was said until after luncheon, when uncle went up to the second floor. Then Miss Claybourn told me she was going away; that she could stand it no longer. In an instant the whole terrible truth was plain to me. I asked her why they did not get married, and she said my uncle had promised year after year to make her his wife; that she was now satisfied that he would never fulfil those promises, and that she had resolved to leave him forever."

The witness broke down, but resumed: "I determined that something must be done to right this terrible wrong. I went up stairs to my uncle and asked him if he would allow this faithful woman to go out into the world alone, aged and friendless; if he intended to break all the promises he had made to her and cast her adrift. I told him he had wrecked this innocent girl's life and blasted another woman's hopes, and that he must suffer for his cruel actions. He told me to stop; that he would do what was right. He left his chair and walked up and down. Suddenly he commenced to cry, and in the midst of this scene Miss Claybourn walked in.

"'Miss Claybourn,' said I to her, 'uncle Al will marry you. Can't you get a minister?' Miss Claybourn replied: 'He has been promising me for 40 years. I don't want promises.'" Miss Claybourn then told the witness that she had not been to church for many years and did not know where to find a minister. At this the witness suggested that she was a minister's daughter and could remember the form of the service. According to the witness, she then spoke the words necessary to bind man and wife together, and both her uncle and Miss Claybourn repeated them. Mrs. Gregory then said she pronounced them man and wife, saying: "What God has joined together, let no man put asunder."

After the ceremony Mrs. Gregory testified, Allen Gregory said that he felt better, but that he did not want the circumstances announced to the relatives, although the witness endeavored to get him to do this.

Knocked Overboard and Drowned.

Lubec, Me., Oct. 29.—Captain Alfred Stanley, aged 72, was lost from his vessel, the Dreadnaught, in Lubec narrows yesterday afternoon. The main boom swung around and caught Captain Stanley unawares. He drowned before the schooner could be luffed up and a boat put out. The vessel and captain both hailed from Grand Manan.

Dollar Mark For Wheat.

New York, Oct. 29.—For the second time this season December wheat has reached the dollar mark in New York. The last time it sold at that figure was on Sept. 14; since that time it has been at low as 90⅞—on Oct. 4. Yesterday's advance was based on very bullish home conditions, offsetting the rather unpromising cables.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, FRIDAY, OCT. 29.
Sun rises—6:15; sets, 4:41.
Length of day—10 h. 26 m.
High water—1:18 a. m.; 1:37 p. m.
Moon sets—7:40 p. m.

The weather this morning was threatening over the eastern parts of the country, with the center of the storm in the St. Lawrence valley. The disturbance is expected to disappear to the eastward today, and fair, cooler weather is indicated for New England for Saturday and Sunday, with easterly winds. The weather continues fair and cool in the western country; freezing and frosts south to northern Texas.

SPORTING EVENTS.

Lowell Boxer Awarded a Decision at Bridgeport For Interference.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 29.—A crowd of at least 1200 people saw the first event under the auspices of the Horizon Athletic club last night. The first thing on the program was a bout between Harry Jamison (colored) of Bridgeport and Dan Murphy of Waterbury. Jamison battled only 10 seconds and then quit.

The next event was a 10-round go between Sammy Meyers of New York and Joe Kelly of Troy. The fight was a hot one and the audience was exasperated when the decision was awarded in favor of Meyers by Referee Chas. White of New York. Opinion seems to be that Kelly had the best of it throughout. It is alleged that Meyers fouled a number of times, but the referee failed to admit it.

The star event of the evening was the bout between Martin Flaherty of Lowell and Daniel McBride of New York. This was announced to be a 15-round go. In the point of science McBride was way ahead of Flaherty, but he did not have the staying powers. In the second round Flaherty committed (unintentionally) a foul, and was warned by Referee White. Afterwards Flaherty was more careful. In the tenth round Flaherty had McBride going, and the in-fighting became so close that they clinched and the referee went in and separated them. At that time one of McBride's seconds went into the ring and interfered; then the referee awarded the decision to Flaherty. It is the opinion, however, that McBride, but for the interference, would have stayed the limit.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 29.—The handicap games of the Harvard Athletic association were held yesterday afternoon. No records were broken, but nearly all of the track events were hotly contested, and there were some creditable performances. T. F. Burke, the scratch man in the quarter, failed to get a place but ran a splendid race in what was evidently under 50 seconds, though his performance was not separately timed. In the mile Dick Grant was entered at scratch and, after getting well away from all of the field but Richardson, beat the latter in a hot finish. Another leg put Mills out of this event in the third lap. W. G. Morse, scratch, won both the hurdles and the high jump. In the latter event his first trial cleared the bar at three-quarters of an inch under six feet, with room to spare. On the whole the exhibition of material in this year's track team was encouraging.

Philadelphia, Oct. 29.—Eddie McDuffie, at Willow Grove bicycle track, established a new world's record for one mile paced, covering the distance in 1:33⅘, three-fifths of a second lower than the record made by Michael on the same track several weeks ago. McDuffie's time also equals the time made by Stein in London last summer, although the latter's time was not accepted in this country on account of the character of the pace, a motor cycle. Yesterday's record was made after three unsuccessful attempts, 15 minutes intervening between each trial. McDuffie was paced by a quint, a quad and two sextets.

Medford, Mass., Oct. 29.—The match race for double teams was the principal attraction at Combination park yesterday afternoon, and five heats were necessary to decide the winners in Acton and mate. The last heat was particularly exciting, and the winning team came under the wire with only a slight lead. In the 2:16 class, which was unfinished, Ada P and Star Wilkes paced a dead heat, the latter catching the mare in the third heat at the wire. Little Girl had no difficulty in taking the slow pace in straight heats.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 29.—Only a fair crowd attended the third day's racing on Hampdem park. Prince Lavaland won the 2:14 class. The 2:22 class trot or pace was won by Hallington, after Willis Mead and Minturn had each taken a heat.

The 2:33 class was unfinished. The first heat was taken by Columbia, the second and third by Pinkwood and the fourth by Baby Bernice. Darkness prevented finishing the day's events.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 29.—M. Whitman, '99, and E. R. Marvin, '98, the winners in doubles of the all-comers tennis tournament at Harvard, won the championship of the college yesterday by defeating last year's champions, J. Holt, '98, and H. Ward, '00, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

Grover Cleveland, Jr.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 29.—A son and heir to ex-President Cleveland was born yesterday at 12 o'clock. Rumor has it that the new-comer resembles his father, but neither Mr. Cleveland nor the family physicians, Dr. Bryant, Dr. Cook of New York and Dr. Wyckoff of Princeton, will say anything in regard to the baby other than he is getting along nicely and is a "fine boy."

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Two more schooners are being fitted out at Gloucester, Mass., for the Klondike, and will sail for the Pacific shortly.

James Sullivan, 80 years of age, a farmer of Andover, N. H., was instantly killed at a crossing by the Chicago express.

The side of the Soulanges canal, Canada, for a distance of 1300 feet, to a depth of 70 feet, fell in, doing damage estimated at $100,000.

PARTNERS.

Love took chambers on our street
Opposite to mine.
On his door he tacked a neat,
Cleanly lettered sign.

Straightway grew his custom great,
For his sign read so:
"Hearts united while you wait.
Step in. Love & Co."

Much I wondered who was "Co."
In Love's partnership.
Thought across the street I'd go—
Learn from Love's own lip.

So I went, and since that day
Life is hard for me.
I was bunkoed! (By the way,
"Co." is Jealousy.)

A BIKE FAIRY TALE.

Once upon a time there was a queen who was so advanced that the king was quite out of it. She set an example of female independence to her subjects by going long journeys on her bicycle, unincumbered by any court train. She became so enthusiastic about female wheeling that she built three bicycle tracks. On the first there was a hedge 100 yards thick, on the second a pond 100 yards wide, and on the third a ladder 100 yards high, and she decreed that no girl should marry the crown prince unless she rode her bike through the hedge, across the pond and up and down the ladder. Many girls tried, but all failed; the crown prince remained single, and at last the tracks were overgrown with weeds for want of use.

One day the queen went out on her bicycle alone, as usual, and lost her way. Night came on, and she was glad to find shelter in a lonely cottage where dwelt a woman and her daughter. The daughter was very beautiful—a wise woman had foretold that she would ride over the three tracks and marry the crown prince, but she had once met a handsome young huntsman in the forest and vowed she would never marry any one but him, so she refused to learn to bike at all.

The mother was a clever and ambitious woman. She knew the queen at once by her profile, which was on all the penny pieces, and besides she wore the great seal on her finger to prevent the king from misusing it in her absence. But the mother kept her own counsel and treated the queen as a stranger, setting before her the best food there was in the house for supper.

When the queen had finished her meal, she noticed how lovely the girl was and said to the mother, "Is your daughter fit for anything?" The woman replied, "She is the champion lady bicyclist of the whole world." "Oh, indeed," said the queen, "and, pray, why does she not ride over the three tracks and win the hand of the crown prince?" "Because," answered the mother, "she is too independent to run after any man." "I never thought of that," observed the queen, and pulling a cigarette out of her case she fell a-smoking.

When the girl went out to wash up the supper things, the queen asked, "Can't you persuade your daughter to ride over the three tracks just to show how superior we women are?"

"Yes," replied the mother, "but she must have three things." "Name them," said the queen. "She must have a pavilion built, opening on to the tracks, from which she must start and to which she must return after each round, without any one being allowed to speak to her."

"Why?" asked the queen. "Because every man that speaks to her wants her to speak to him, and she despises such a waste of time," replied the mother. "Oh!" said the queen. "Next she must have three riding suits, one for each track, and each suit must have a veil to match, for her to wear when she rides."

"Why?" asked the queen. "Because every man who looks at her and sees how beautiful she is tries to make her look at him," replied the mother. "Hum!" said the queen. "Lastly, I must go with her, and so must her three uncles."

"Why?" asked the queen. "Because she will have to ride so hard that she will wear out a bicycle on each track, and she must have always a fresh one ready, with an uncle to oil it and to have it in good working order."

"Ha!" said the queen. "Do you know, my good woman, that I am your rightful sovereign?" "I never thought of that," replied the mother. "But it is so," said the queen, "and I command you to bring your daughter to my three tracks this day week, when everything you ask for shall be granted."

"It shall be as your majesty commands," replied the woman.

So on a day the mother and daughter started for the tracks, and the girl walked first, singing as she went for the very joy of life.

Presently they met a man riding on a bicycle with his eyes shut. "Good morning, uncle!" cried the girl. But the woman asked, "Why do you ride with your eyes shut?" And the man answered, "Because I am so keen of sight that I cannot help seeing my way through the tiniest crack on the ground, and if I keep my eyes open I should go down to the very center of the earth." "That is good," said the mother. "Will you help my daughter to win the crown prince for a husband?" "That will I," said the man, "for no girl ever called me uncle before."

Soon they met another man riding a bicycle with his feet on the forks. "Good morning, uncle!" cried the girl. But the mother asked, "Why do you ride with your feet on the forks?" And the man answered, "Because I pedal so fast that I skim over the ground, and no one could get out of my way if I put my feet on the treadles." "That is better," said the mother. "Will you help my daughter to win the crown prince for a husband?" "That will I," said the man, "for no girl ever called me uncle before."

Before long they met a third man riding a bicycle, with his hands in his pockets. "Good morning, uncle," cried the girl. But the mother asked, "Why do you ride with your hands in your pockets?" And the man answered, "Because my grip is so strong that I should lift my bike over the trees and up and down the telegraph posts if I used my hands." "That is best," said the mother. "Will you help my daughter to win the crown prince for a husband?" "That will I," said the man, "for no girl ever called me uncle before."

"Now I have enough uncles," said the girl. "The next stranger I meet shall be my cousin." But they met no one else, for all the world had gone to the tracks. Only when they reached the pavilion they saw a smart young soldier pacing up and down. "Good morning, cousin," cried the girl. "Good morning, cousin," replied the smart young soldier, and he gave her a hearty kiss. "How dare you?" cried the mother in a rage. "Cousins always kiss," replied the smart young soldier. The uncles looked at each other and said, "We never thought of that." But the girl blushed and said nothing, for the smart young soldier was the same handsome young huntsman whom she had vowed should be her husband. "And now I must leave you," said the smart young soldier, and he marched off, whistling "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

Then they prepared for the first ride and dressed the first uncle in a crimson suit and put on him a veil of gold embroidery that glittered like the sun. The signal sounded, and they opened the pavilion door, and the first uncle sped out like the wind and kept his eyes shut till he came to the hedge that was 100 yards thick, and there he opened them and saw his way through in a trice, and so, shutting his eyes again, he sped round the track to the other door of the pavilion.

Now they dressed the second uncle in a suit of dark blue and put on him a suit of silver filigree work that glistened like moonbeams. And he flew out of the door like a bird and kept his feet on the forks till he came to the pond that was 100 yards across, but then he put his feet on the treadles and skimmed over the water without even splashing it, and so, coming to the other side, he put his feet on the forks again and flew around the track to the other door of the pavilion.

The third uncle had a suit of black velvet, but as there were no pockets for him to put his hands into they were forced to cut a slit on either side instead. His veil was of black lace, spangled with diamonds which sparkled like the stars on a frosty night, and when the door of the pavilion opened he shot forth like lightning, with his hands in the slits of his suit, but as soon as he came to the ladder that was 100 yards high he took hold of the handles and darted up and down the ladder in a twinkling, and so, putting his hands in the slits again, he whirled round the track to the other door of the pavilion.

You may be sure there was a great shouting and a mighty rush of people toward the pavilion of the champion lady bicyclist of the world, but a line of soldiers barred the way, and only fell back to let the crown prince and his retinue gallop past.

And when he got to the door, ever so much before his followers, he found the mother standing and watching. She saw at a glance that he was the smart young soldier who had met them in the morning, but she pretended not to know him. Little he cared as, leaping from his horse, he rushed into the room, where he found the girl dressed in her ordinary clothes and looking more beautiful than ever.

The retinue crowded in and stood by the door, but the prince ran up to her and, opening his arms, cried: "Dearest, I have loved you ever since we met in the forest. Will you be my bride?" The girl hung her head, for she was frightened when she saw all this grandeur and knew that her lover was a prince. But her mother said, "Kings always caress." "I never thought of that," said the girl, and fell into the prince's embrace.

So they were married, and of course the three uncles were asked to the feast, and then for the first time the prince looked away from his bride and saw how odd looking they were, and he asked the first uncle, "How did you get such projecting eyes and that hard, fixed gaze?" And the first uncle answered, "By skimming, by skimming, by skimming." Then the prince asked the second uncle, "How did you get that monstrous flat foot?" And the second uncle replied, "By scorching, by scorching, by scorching." Then the prince asked the third uncle, "How did you get that hideous, huge hand?" And the third uncle answered, "By skopping, by skopping, by skopping." "Skimming, scorching, skopping!" said the prince. "I don't know what you mean."

Then the mother explained: "May it please your royal highness, my eldest brother has the cycle eye, that comes from always looking miles ahead, which is called skimming; my second brother has the cycle foot, which comes from always pedaling as hard as he can, which is called scorching, and my youngest brother has the cycle hand, which comes of always steadying the machine over ups and downs, which, as it is something between skipping and hopping, is called skopping. Some people who bicycle a very great deal have all these three peculiarities." "I never thought of that," said the prince, and, turning to his bride and seeing how beautiful she was, he cried, "You shall never ride a bicycle again."

The weather outlook for the rest of the year is not encouraging if signs count for anything. The day governing November was cloudy and rainy and the day governing December was stormy all day, hence it is natural to suppose most of both months will be unpleasant.

Mr. Arthur T. Brasee met with quite an accident while driving down Grand View avenue, Wollaston, this morning. A nut came off one of the axles letting the wagon down, throwing him out. He was pretty well shaken up and somewhat bruised. The top of the wagon was demolished.

—A large granite boulder on Taunton Green marks the spot where the first liberty flag was thrown to the breeze a century and more ago. The rugged rock is a symbol of the hardy souls who before the Revolution sent out their defiance of opposition, and took their stand as the pioneers of freedom. The dedication of such a monument indicates that the service which they rendered the colony and the cause of independence is appreciated and its memory will be perpetuated.

Two London newspapers, the Spectator and Chronicle, are anxious that the United States should interfere to put a stop to the Cuban war. In other words, they are trying to stir up a muss between this country and Spain.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. WOMAN'S WORLD.

HANDSOME AND TALENTED WIFE OF THE ENVOY FROM ARGENTINA.

An Unreasonable Prejudice—The Economy of Good Clothes—Will Be a Fur Winter. Interior Decorations—Mrs. Paul's Appointment—The Bangle Craze.

Delia Herrera de Garcia Merou, wife of Dr. M. Garcia Merou, the envoy plenipotentiary from the Argentine Republic to the United States, will be a charming social adjunct to many occasions of ceremony at the White House during the coming season. Signora Merou was born in Buenos Ayres, the capital of the Argentine Republic, and passed her early years in that city, where the magnolia, jasmine and other tropical flowers fill the air with their sweetness. She was educated in a convent in her native city, where elegance of manner was acquired and useful as well as ornamental studies were pursued.

Having married Dr. Merou and accompanied him while he represented his country in foreign courts, she possesses a genial courtesy that, it is predicted, will make her one of the most popular women of Washington.

There are three daughters in the household, aged 4, 7 and 9 years. They will attend the Holy Cross academy. Signora Merou is a musician of merit, devoted to the piano, but uses with skill the banjo for light compositions. Her home is filled with rare and beautiful works of art, and among them are valuable paintings. She encourages her husband in his "fad" for collecting volumes of choice literature, besides curios from every place they visit. She was recently called to Argentina on account of serious illness of her mother, but will return to extend the hospitalities of her home to those in official life in the capital of the United States.

Signora Merou is proud of several decorations which were granted her husband by the king of Portugal for artistic and literary merit. Minister Merou has represented Argentina at several courts. He served as diplomat in Madrid and was resident minister in Paraguay; he was in Paris and Brazil and also in Lima, Peru. In each country he was accompanied by his wife, and as a consequence they are both linguists, speaking five languages fluently. A wide knowledge of those countries will make Dr. Merou and Mme. Merou general favorites with other diplomats, especially as French and Spanish are thoroughly understood by both.

An Unreasonable Prejudice.

Women graduates of pharmacy find it difficult to secure positions in St. Louis. There are few if any drug stores that employ clerks of the gentle gender to compound and dispense prescriptions.

Miss Mary A. Elliot, daughter of R. H. Elliot, who last spring graduated from the St. Louis College of Pharmacy with high honors, knows something of the public prejudice against women in this line of business. The retail druggists of the city would like very much to use women, but are afraid that it would injure their trade. Many of them are anxious to make the experiment, but seem to be waiting for some one to lead.

Miss Elliot has had more experience than most young men who have been at the business for 10 and 15 years. It was at the suggestion of the family physician, Dr. Kershaw, that the young woman decided to study medicine. First she intended to work for a degree of doctor, but not being eligible, on account of her sex, to enter the St. Louis Medical college, where she wished to take the course, she temporarily abandoned the idea and devoted herself to pharmacy. Before she started in at college she had considerable experience in the O'Fallon clinic. She led her class in both the junior and senior years and passed an excellent examination. Later she went before the state board of pharmacy and surprised the members with her splendid knowledge of drugs. She was highly complimented and a prosperous future was predicted for her.

Up to that time it was plain sailing for the bright young woman. She thought that, with her nearly three years of the very best experience in the pharmacy of the O'Fallon clinic and her success at college—in both of which she had acquired exceptionally good practical experience—she would be able to get a position without much trouble.

"My daughter, I am sure," said Miss Elliot's father, "is capable of filling a situation as well as anybody, and the druggists to whom she has applied have told her so. They would be glad to make an opening for her, but are rather afraid that it will hurt their business. They have been exceedingly nice to her about the matter, and some of them have promised to do what they could to see her well located. The great trouble seems to be that the public is not accustomed to both sexes in a drug store, though I think that prejudice would die away as soon as it was understood that to women, as well as to men, it was entirely a matter of business."

A well known down town druggist, speaking of the matter, said: "Yes, it is true that the public does not yet seem ready to recognize women in our business, but I think the time is rapidly approaching when this little bias will disappear. I know at least half a dozen druggists who would like to make the experiment, yet each is waiting for the other to act. In down town stores, like this, I think women would be especially valuable in waiting on their own sex, and I really cannot see why a man should have any objection to a female clerk."

Some of the city officials seen expressed the opinion that women should be stationed in the pharmacies of the various hospitals and asylums. They make the best nurses and, if properly educated, would no doubt prove successful in preparing medicines. It is probable that before long some such arrangement will be made by the health department.—St. Louis Republic.

The Economy of Good Clothes.

It is always best, if one cannot afford many rich or elegant gowns and garments, to get a few of the best and turn away the eyes from temptations in the way of the host of miscellaneous pretty things that beset the shopper on every side, and firmly determine to fritter not a single dollar, but to concentrate all upon the one or two valuable and elegant articles particularly desired. One handsome tailor made costume is worth half a dozen "bargain" dresses put together by an indifferent dressmaker. Also it is better to pay a good price for a genuine all wool fabric of stylish pattern or rich self color, and then silk line it, than to make a happy (?) purchase at a "special sale," unless the buyer knows by experience that she is getting a valuable article at half rates for a reason known only to the business house at which she is trading. A silk lined skirt looks better, hangs better and feels better than a cotton lined one, and the cost of an excellent silk for the purpose is now not at all high or taxing to one of moderate means, if one follows the saving plan in other directions.

Many years ago a sensible woman, by relinquishing other temptations in winter dress, purchased a very beautiful fur long coat. This she wore for three winters, then she had it transformed into a graceful coat, not by a furrier proper, but by a former employee, who did the work reasonably and most successfully. After good wear in its new form it was made into an eton jacket, with good sized sleeves and a flaring collar and revers. This time the fur was ripped apart and redyed. This winter the large sleeves have had a reefing, the revers were made smaller, and the short little garment looks wholly up to date. Another year the best parts will be cut up probably into infinitesimal pieces to form a collar, cuffs and edgings. So much for the value of a garment that in price seemed extravagant when first purchased.—New York Post.

It Is to Be a Fur Winter.

This is to be a fur winter, and fancy braids and jet passementerie are not to take the place of sable and fox, ermine and chinchilla. They are simply to form the basis of rich toilets, but the finishing touches are to be of fur. Capes of plaited satin and plaited velvet have collar pelerines which just cover the shoulders like yokes, of grebe and mouffion, sable, Arctic fox, seal or mink. Sable never looks so beautiful as when used in conjunction with rich velvet and brocades, and is therefore especially appropriate for evening cloaks. A mantle of mistrel blue velvet in a deep but brilliant shade is cut in circular shape and bordered with sable tails. The Elizabethan collar is continued in long narrow revers down the front. The linings of the costly wraps are almost as rich as the outside, and this one of blue velvet is lined with white brocade with a large design of lilies and lily leaves traced in silver thread.

A gorgeous garment is of pale pink brocade with clusters of white and mauve lilacs scattered over the surface. The lining is of sable, and a rolling collar of sable has ruffles of lace inside and is fastened with a huge hook and eye of diamonds.

Another beautiful evening wrap—these so called evening mantles are worn, also, for carriage calls and with very handsome afternoon toilets—is of chinchilla, lined with ermine. It has a rolling collar, a yoke and a deep frill of fur over the cape proper, which falls below the waist.

A jaunty little outdoor cape is made of sealskin, with high collar and pointed yoke. The yoke is edged by a full ruffle of soft gray chinchilla.

Interior Decorations.

Red and green is a favorite color combination this fall for interior decoration. A New York store for furniture and fabrics has a quaint room where the door hangings are bright red lattice curtains over green. These Singapore lattice draperies are hung unlined at times, but they are much more effective lined with a contrasting color. A novelty in this line is striped in red and black. The blue and white lattice adds another variety to the already great stock in this popular line. A room for a den or study may be easily accomplished in red and black, as rattan furniture in odd designs may be easily found to carry out the idea.

The Chattanooga room in the women's building at the Tennessee fair has been greatly admired, and here the scheme of red and green affords certain new suggestions. The floor woodwork and wainscot are of clear pine stained green, with the paper and ceiling light green. The feature of the room is the frieze, which was painted by Chattanooga women artists with the wealth of flowers which bloom on the mountains, the azalea, trumpet vine, aster, sumac, goldenrod, laurel, fern and vine. The great chimney with its antlers, feudal weapons, carvings and fire etched legend is likely to afford a lesson in fireplace decoration. The cabinets of the room are green, the furniture green and red wicker with cushions of whipcord to match. Latticed green hangings fill the doors and windows.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Mrs. Paul's Appointment.

The Boston Herald says editorially: "There is a disposition in some quarters to treat with more or less levity the announcement that Mayor Harrison of Chicago has appointed a woman at the head of the street sweeping brigade of that city. Nevertheless, she has deserved the distinction. She began the agitation in favor of cleaner streets in Chicago several years ago, and she has been steadily persistent in her efforts to secure them. She became the terror of corrupt and inefficient contractors and their teamsters. In six months she had so reformed the garbage collection system that people hardly knew their own alleys. From garbage she drifted to the subject of street cleaning.

"Last summer she visited many of the principal cities of the east and studied their methods, and since then she has been hammering city officials with the new ideas she brought back with her. She took a civil service examination for a street cleaning inspectorship and obtained the highest average. She secured a subordinate appointment, and now Mayor Harrison has promoted her to the head of the brigade. The experiment, if it can be called an experiment at this stage, will be watched with interest everywhere. The art of effective street cleaning is something that is being eagerly sought, and people are not particular as to the sex of those who master it so long as they accomplish the best results."

The Bangle Craze Again.

The bangle craze has started again. Girls, unlock your jewel cases and get out your old bangles. Polish them up and put them on. They have all "come in" again. Four or five years ago bangles were worn to a great extent. There were coin bangles, snake bangles, souvenir bangles and chains with locks and keys—in fact, all kinds of bangles. The girls had them welded on and would wear them night and day, jingling on their arms and making them feel very uncomfortable, but they did not care for that. Now they are the fashion again. All the girls who are coming home from Europe wear bangles. The English women have always worn them, and not only do they wear the most bulky, heavy looking silver bands on their arms, which generally come from India, but they also wear broad leather bands strapped around their wrists, with small watches set in them, which they call "watch bangles." If the fashion becomes as common among the girls as it was before, it will be a pity. Bracelets have quite gone out—one never sees them now. If the coming "fad" of wearing bangles again will be indulged in without exaggeration, well and good, but we American girls, unfortunately, have a decided tendency to overdoing a thing.—Harper's Bazar.

Honors to Rosa Bonheur.

The bon camaraderie which exists among French artists is well known, but the esteem in which they hold the veteran Rosa Bonheur amounts almost to enthusiasm. The aged lady was expected at the Galerie George Petit, to superintend the hanging of her four last pastels. All the artists in Paris were there to receive her, and she was led along the corridor by the most distinguished of them as if she had been a princess of the blood royal.

Of her four pictures two were of stags—one standing in dim twilight, the other bathing in the early rays of the rising sun. Another picture is of a bison in the snow. The fourth, which is generally considered the finest of all, shows a shepherd cooking his supper in a shed, surrounded by his flock. The wool of the sheep is executed with marvelous technical skill. A sheep dog guards his charge.

The Directoire Ties.

Large directoire or Sans Gene ties made of wash net, chiffon, india mull or crepe venise are very fashionable worn with either day or evening gowns. The tie is wound twice around the neck, and arranged in a large full bow, with ends tucked and finished with gathered or fluted frills of the net. These ties have a very dressy effect. They are invariably becoming to all but women with short, full necks and high shoulders, and they serve to lighten and brighten the otherwise somber look of a dark colored gown.

Pear shaped pearls are the fancy of the moment, and of course they are rare and expensive, having increased in price in proportion as the demand increased. The pure whiteness of the pearl is best preserved by constantly wearing it or keeping it in the sun.

Ablebodied women in London are applying for the position of hotel portresses, not that they expect to carry heavy trunks; they are supposed to carry valises, satchels and other light luggage.

Those who had the good fortune to be present at the Memorial Congregational church last Sabbath morning enjoyed a great treat. The choir rendered two musical selections very creditably. Mr. Willis Ricker of Boston, the accomplished cornetist, gave a delightful rendering of "The Lost Chord." The pastor preached a very able and interesting sermon on "The Humanity of Christ,' which was followed by a most effective solo sung by Mrs. Hanna Winslow Bee, the gifted soprano, who has upon one other occasion delighted the congregation by her singing. The pastor is making a special effort to secure fine musicals attractions for this service, and as these cannot always be advertised the only way to be sure one is not missing a treat, like that of last Sunday, is by being present at every service.

Dr. True's Anniversary.

At the recent celebration of the eightieth birthday anniversary of Dr. J. F. True, of Auburn, Me., it was remarked that the occasion itself was a striking tribute to the value of the elixir which Dr. True discovered nearly fifty years ago. He has been a consistent taker of his own medicine and attributes it to his wonderful vitality and activity, equal to those of most men of si ty-five. Dr. True early adopted the study of natural history and especially botany and became so proficient in these studies that he has long been recognized as an authority. These studies led to the discovery of Dr. True's Elixir which has been a household remedy for nearly half a century, and which has endeared the Doctor's name to many thousand people.

Thousands of fraudulent practices were proven against them, much to the detriment of the pension department and the disgrace of the attorneys, to say nothing of the disappointment of the patrons of the firm.

ATTEST:

HARRISON A. KEITH, City Clerk.

Quincy, Oct. 23, 1897. 8t

TO ONE THAT CHID HIM FOR GATHERING THE LATEST ROSES.

As fickle as an April morn,
October with his driving rain
Now smote the garden paths forlorn,
Now broke in smiles again,

Crying, "We tarry all too late."
Each other flower drooped her head.
But dauntless still they kept their state,
The roses white and red.

And, "We shall reign," they said, "for long."
I gathered them for your delight.
"Nay, then, you did them cruel wrong,
The roses red and white.

"For they had gladdened many a day,
Defying still the somber time,
Amid the whirling leaves' decay
Recalling summer's prime."

Then I: "How sorrowful their lot,
Who queened it at the garden's court,
To linger on when joy is not,
To be the mad wind's sport;

"To feel their draggled petals fall,
Each after other, drenched and cold,
Till now the blast has dashed them all
Upon the chilly mold.

"A royal sepulture they crave—
Refuse not thou a last behest—
One hour to live in beauty brave,
Then die upon thy breast."

—H. C. Minchin in Spectator.

FORGIVEN.

Dusk was beginning to fall, and as I looked round over the long level of marsh land that surrounded us and saw no sign of any of our party I felt the first thrill of a not unpleasant uneasiness. I glanced at my companion. She was walking quite contentedly by my side, apparently secure in the assumption that I knew my way. As a matter of fact, I had the gravest doubt about it and there seemed no possibility of making sure. For miles on either hand the marshes stretched to the low horizon. The dry tracks were few and ill defined and already a light white mist was rising over the numerous straight waterways. I looked at Miss Pascoe again, and my uneasiness gave place to a kind of expectant pleasure. Even supposing we were lost, there was no actual danger, and the great sense of solitude that hung about us gave me a feeling of possession that was keenly delightful. Miss Pascoe, unconscious of my doubtful cogitations, still walked on as though her feet were upon a familiar road, and indeed, as far as I could judge, we were making in the right direction. To have stopped would have been like a confession of incompetence on my part, and this to an unavowed lover was out of the question, at any rate until circumstances unquestionably had me at a disadvantage. So we went on, and the twilight deepened, and the mist trailed in denser wisps across the shivering reed beds.

Suddenly she turned to me.

"What a queer place this would be to get lost in," she said.

I think the serious possibility of such a thing had not occurred to her at all. She threw out the remark merely as a contribution to a flagging conversation.

"Yes," I said. "But you're not afraid, are you?"

"Oh, no; not at all! Of course you know the way, and that makes all the difference."

"Of course it does," I answered, with a glimmering sense of shame.

"How far are we from home now?" she asked after a pause, in which the darkness had perceptibly increased.

"Three miles, I dare say," I said at a blind hazard.

"That's nothing," she said. "I thought we must be quite four."

"Are you sure you're not tired?" I asked. "Wouldn't you like to rest?" But she persisted in walking on at that swinging pace of hers.

"Even if I wanted to rest there's nothing to rest on," she said.

"I'm sure I could find a fence somewhere," I said.

"I don't believe you could," she said, "but I'm not going to let you try. I'd much rather get home."

We walked on silently for another five minutes, and then Miss Pascoe stopped and listened, leaning forward slightly, with her hair blowing about her face.

"Is that the sea?" she asked.

It was the sea unmistakably, the slow roll mingled with the rustle of the wind over the rushes. And then it became quite obvious to me that I had woefully gone astray, for the sea was before us instead of almost at our backs.

"It must be the sea," I said, after a show of hard listening.

"But it shouldn't be there," she said.

"Why not?" I answered rather feebly in order to gain time. "It always has been there, I suppose."

"Don't be foolish," she said. "You know what I mean. We must have got on the wrong path. Mr. Thirlmere," she cried, "how could you have been so careless?"

"My dear Miss Pascoe," I said, "if I have made a mistake, I am very sorry."

"And you said all along that you knew the way," she pouted, trying to shoot condemnation from her eyes at me in the darkness.

"You see," I said, "I got my directions from your brother—from Jim—and he's often so very inaccurate, isn't he?"

"Absurdly inaccurate," she admitted. "If I'd known you were relying upon Jim, I wouldn't have come at all."

"And then I should have missed the most delightful walk I ever had."

She turned away from me a little, with a petulant movement of the shoulders that pleased me mightily.

"I wish we had Jim here," she said with pretty fierceness.

"I don't," I said.

"Then, perhaps you'll be good enough to find the right path. We can't stay here."

"There don't seem to be any conveniences for camping out," I said. "Will you stay here for a moment while I explore to the right? I may get up to my knees in the marsh. You will be safer here."

"Don't be long, will you?" she said.

"Oh, no!" I said cheerfully. "I shall find the path in no time."

I started off, carefully exploring the ground before me with my stick as I went. There was no sign of a path, and I began to be seriously alarmed for Miss Pascoe's comfort. On consideration I came to the conclusion that I had made rather an ass of myself. Another hundred yards, and still no path. I paused and looked back. I could see a slight dark figure moving toward me very carefully and slowly.

"Is that you?" I said.

Miss Pascoe's voice answered: "Yes. I'd rather come with you if you don't mind. When you left me, I felt so lonely that I was almost afraid."

"I am more sorry than I can tell you," I said, "to have got you into such an awkward fix. Pick your way very carefully. Ah!" She had stepped with one foot into a patch of wet moss.

"Take my hand," I said. "It is quite firm where I am standing. Will you ever forgive me for this?" She took my outstretched hand, and I guided her to safety. But because the danger might be renewed at any moment I still retained my hold of her slim fingers, and we went forward together in that pleasant, companionable way.

"Don't talk to me about forgiveness until you have found the path and made restitution," she said. My fingers tightened upon hers instinctively, partly because it was so pleasant to have them resting so unreservedly in my hand and partly because her voice was very low and without any hint of disapproval in it.

"For myself," I said, "I cannot pretend to be sorry for this adventure. For your sake, of course, I am, but it has been so pleasant to have you to myself for so long that when we hit upon the path I shall be almost in despair."

"We haven't hit upon it yet," she said. The ground under our feet seemed quite firm by this time. The moon was just rising, swimming upward through the low lying vapor in a wide luminous circle of misty silver. Right above us a star or two blinked.

"I suppose," I said, striking a match to look at my watch, "that the second dinner bell has rung by this time. In another hour there will be a hue and cry after us." I was sorry for this a moment later, because in order to strike my match I had had to relinquish her hand. We had both paused and read the face of the watch together in the flickering light. Then it was blown out by a gust of wind, and darkness succeeded. I possessed myself of her hand again.

"Well," she said, "shall we go on?"

"If you like," I said.

"I suppose we ought to," she said.

"It would be rather fun to let them find us here, wouldn't it?" I said. "Think how pretty the lanterns would look, coming glinting over the marshes."

"But they might miss us," she said, turning her face quickly toward me. I saw the gleam of her eyes and the oval shadow of her face, and all at once I realized that there was only one thing I could do at that precise moment in my life. I stooped down and kissed her.

"Forgive me for that as well, if you can," I said. "It means that I love you. I suppose now I have trespassed beyond all hope?"

For a moment she was quite still, and I cursed myself for such blind precipitation, but the circumstances and the time and place had all forced me to this inevitable result.

"You think," she said, after this pause, "that you may as well pile up all your offenses at once and be forgiven or condemned on all counts at one time?"

"Precisely," I said. "I am entirely in your hands."

"I will forgive you," she said very sweetly, "when you have found the path."

"It's a bargain, then," I said. I took a step forward and brought my foot sharply against something white that stood a few inches above the ground.

"Why," I cried, bending to examine it, "this must be the broken post that Jim told me to look out for. What a close observer your brother is! This is the path that leads straight for home."

"You knew it all the time," she said reproachfully.

"No," I said. "I assure you that I had no idea of it. We shall be in just as the rescue party is preparing to set out." I turned to her and held out my hands. "I claim your forgiveness," I said.

And she forgave me.—Black and White.

Innocuous Vanity.

As gold is never put into circulation without some alloy, so perhaps for this world's use some alloy is needed in the gold of character. The only questions are what alloy and how much? I shall try to answer the question as to kind and leave to individual discretion the question as to quantity.

A great actor once said that all men have vanity, but some conceal it more successfully than others. If vanity be a universal trait, we may take it as that alloy which is necessary to our active and circulating usefulness.

It is decried by all moralists, preached against in all pulpits, and everywhere believed to be as undesirable as it is universal. Nevertheless, in youth at least, a certain degree of it may be necessary.

Vanity is like the kindly cloud which shelters us from the all piercing and too brilliant sun of truth, for it may be doubted whether any of us can bear the truth unveiled. The melancholy Dane who had revealed to him unqualified truth, both as regards this life and the next, was not by that revelation incited to action. Hamlet found the truth withering, not stimulating; it paralyzed rather than nerved. And it may be so with all truth. Most of us are ordinary people, but happily most of us do not find this out, at least not in our first youth.—Lippincott's.

EXPECTATIONS NOT REALIZED.

Unseasonable Weather and Fever Restrictions In the South Have Depressing Tendency.

New York, Oct. 30.—Bradstreet's says this week: General trade retains most of the features of a week ago, with a continued check to the improvement of staple merchandise. At larger eastern and central western cities sales of seasonable goods have not equalled epectations, and at none of those points has the volume of business increased. At Chicago, St. Louis, Baltimore, New York and Providence there has been a decrease in the volume of business in some lines, due in part to unseasonable weather and in instances to the continued quarantine of yellow fever districts. Some jobbers at cities which supply southern marchants have delayed sending out travelers and in instances have called travelers home. Mercantile collections are slower, orders are smaller and more infrequent, and business in staple lines for the latter half of October, aside from that in wool and metals, has been somewhat disappointing.

Consumption of iron and steel continues heavy, but mills refuse orders for 1898 delivery in the belief that the cost of making steel and iron will be higher. Woolen goods continue firm and in fair demand, and with an upward tendency, but cotton fabrics are weak and the market is heavily stocked.

The check to the movement of merchandise which Bradstreet's pointed out for several weeks shows itself in the bank clearing returns, the total volume of which is $1,191,000,000 this week, 9 per cent less than last week, but fully 23 per cent more than in the last week of October, 1896. This week's total is only 10 per cent larger than the corresponding aggregate in 1895, when there had been a reaction after the little boom in the summer and early fall of that year. The increase over the like total of 1894, a period of extreme depression in trade, is 29 per cent, and there is almost as great an increase compared with the fourth week of October, 1893, a month after the panic.

The total number of business failures reported throughout the United States this week is 218, compared with 205 last week, 246 in the wek a year ago, 299 two years ago, 253 three years ago and 353 in 1893.

Drank Carbolic Acid.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 30.—A woman, on whose body was found a card bearing the name "Bessie LaGrange, 533 Mumford street," and a boy, evidently her son, about 12 years old, were found dead in a room in the Windsor House yesterday afternoon. They arrived at the hotel Thursday, and the landlady, not hearing from them at 2:30, became alarmed. She called in the police, and entrance was gained into the room.

Both were dead. Two bottles, which were labelled carbolic acid, were found on the dresser in the room. It is thought that the woman first administered the poison to the boy and then took some herself. A duplex ticket found on the woman shows that they came from Schenectady.

Election In Newfoundland.

St. John's, N. F., Oct. 30.—The results of the general election of members of the assembly, which took place Thursday, are coming in slowly. They indicate that the Whiteway government will have a much smaller majority in the new assembly.

H. J. B. Woods, surveyor general, and a member of the cabinet, has been defeated. E. P. Morris, member of the cabinet without a portfolio and solicitor general, barely carried his seat. All the government pluralities have been largely reduced.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, SATURDAY, OCT. 30.

Length of day—10 h. 23 m.
High water—2:12 a. m.; 2:31 p. m.
Moon sets—8:54 p. m.

Though the unsettled conditions which are moving eastward from the lake region may cause partly cloudy weather Sunday, there is little indication of rain at this time, and in the southern portion of New England clear skies will probably prevail the greater part of the day.

The Evil Eye.

Savage people, have a superstition that an evil eye may be cast upon a person to bring all sorts of trouble and misfortune. That seems like a pretty foolish notion, but it isn't much worse than some of the notions which civilized people indulge in. One worn out superstition is the belief that if a man inherits weak lungs from his parents he is pretty sure to die of consumption. The actual fact is that if such a man will only take proper care of himself he will really be safer from consumption than a careless person who has no inherited weakness. Carelessness is the real evil eye. Carelessness will develop a tendency to consumption in any body.

The lungs are composed of very delicate, sensitive tissue, even in the healthiest person; that is why they yield so quickly to the attack of tainted blood. If the blood is allowed to get impure and impoverished, and bile-poisoned, the seeds of consumption will spring up in the best kind of a constitution. The real consumption-taint is in the blood.

Hundreds of cases of so-called "hereditary" consumption have been completely and permanently rooted out of the system by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, simply because it gives the blood-making glands power to pour a fresh abundant supply of rich, red, healthy, blood into the circulation. This drives out all poisonous and unhealthy germs. It stops the waste of tissue and the formation of morbid deposits, builds up fresh, normal, healthy lung tissue and solid, muscular strength.

In all the weakened debilitated conditions which are the forerunners of consumption, Dr. Pierce's Discovery is the most perfect nutritive and strength-builder. It is assimilated by the weakest stomachs.

WORK FOR MANKIND IS FINISHED.

Henry George Succumbs to an Attack of Apoplexy.

Kept Faith With His Fellows by Dying In the Race.

Had a Presentiment of the Approach of the Summons—His Son Takes His Place as the Candidate For Mayor—The Tribute of W. J. Bryan.

New York, Oct. 30.—The spectre of death has come and has touched with its ruthless hand the man who was the idol of the plain people—Henry George. On the eve of a long-looked for climax of human passion, ambitions and party prejudices, the reaper who is no respecter of persons has caused another climax, so much greater than the one which is still to come that men of all parties have forgotten their surging passions of election time in silent, wondering grief at this blow which has fallen with such sudden intensity.

When the truth became known, when men realized that Henry George was really dead, the whole political aspect was altered. The convulsion which the event caused in the complexion of the political situation was forgotten for the time being in the genuine grief which was evidenced on all sides. Those who have bitterly denounced the man who said, "I stand for the real Democracy, the Democracy of Thomas Jefferson," today stand in silent groups and recall many acts in the life of the dead man, which showed his true nature.

HENRY GEORGE.

Mr. George got to the hotel about 1 o'clock. The work of the night seemed to have told on him. He complained of being tired, but his friends and relatives who awaited him thought it only the natural fatigue that follows such hard campaign work as Mr. George had been doing. Not long after reaching the hotel he retired.

It was about 3:30 o'clock when Mrs. George was awakened. She found Mr. George sitting in an armchair. "I am not feeling quite comfortable," said the candidate to his wife.

"Won't you go back to bed?" inquired Mrs. George anxiously.

"I will sit here awhile," was the answer.

Mrs. George at once grew alarmed as to her husband's condition. Mr. George gradually grew incoherent and lapsed into semi-consciousness. Mrs. George was now thoroughly alarmed and called her son, Henry George, Jr., from an adjoining room. Frank Stevens was also called in.

Mr. George was now unconscious. A call was sent to Dr. Kelly, and he came without delay. Mr. George was still unconscious. All efforts to revive him failed. Without sign of recognition to those around him, he passed peacefully away at 4:45 o'clock.

Newspaper men who were a part of the George campaign felt that he was undergoing a strain which was surely and rapidly breaking him down. At times he has been incoherent. His whole temperament underwent a complete change. His speeches, delivered by the half dozen each day, were often rambling, though their trend was ever faithful to the toilers, whose devoted champion he has been all his life.

Mrs. George and Henry George, Jr., were very solicitous regarding the effect of the terrible strain of his being bundled about from place to place each day and far into the night and making speeches before wildly enthusiastic gatherings of his admirers, and it has been noted again and again that his faithful wife sat beside her husband on the platform from which he spoke or watched closely from a place of vantage close by.

Mr. George had not been strong for the past three years, and his son, Henry George, Jr., has been his companion in almost every enterprise in which he has engaged, going with him on his tours of the west as a special newspaper correspondent in the last presidential campaign and keeping close at his side in his movements in the campaign.

Within the past day or two close friends of Mr. George had noted with apprehension marked change in his appearance and manner. His eyes grew dull. Wrinkles came at the corners and his eyes sank in hollow caverns. His voice, usually resonant and pleasant, now pitched almost to piping treble in conversation, was querulous, while he seemed like one whose nerves were so highly wrought that they might snap without warning. The pace of the campaign was harder than this man, high strung and sensitive, could maintain.

When the sad news spread beyond Union square at first no one thought it to be true, believing it to be a campaign canard; but the verification came in the form of the extra editions of the afternoon newspapers. Politicians of all sorts stopped to discuss the possible consequence of the change Mr. George's death would make in the campaign now closing. All admitted that he had made a brave fight and regretted that the strain of the canvass had killed him.

The leaders of the Thomas Jefferson Democracy were staggered by the unexpected blow, and at first some of them were inclined to throw the strength of the organization in favor of Low, the candidate of the Citizen's union. A meeting of the campaign committee took place, and after the effect of the shock had passed away it was decided as Henry George's name would appear on the official ballot on election day to nominate Henry George, Jr., to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father. The young man was said by ex-Congressman Johnson to be a chip of the old block and as old as Bryan when nominated for president of the United States.

Then this manifesto was issued: "To the voters of New York: Henry George, dead, shall yet speak to you. The immutable principles for which he stood and to the defense of which he gave his life shall yet be upheld by those who hold their duty even more clear, more solemn, more sacred than it was before the inscrutable decree of providence put a seal forever on his lips. It is more the duty of this committee today to represent to the great body of the American people who cling to the principles advocated by Henry George than to express the sorrow of its members in the face of this unutterable calamity. It is the part of the lieutenants when the captain fails to press the attack on the enemy's works, and before us still there stand the breastworks manned by the foes of Jeffersonian Democracy. In the face of sorrow we call upon your courage. Though our leader has fallen we promise you there will be no weakening in the attack.

"To Democrats we say, join in the renewed effort to force the Democratic organization of New York to be Democratic. To voters of every partisan sort we say, proceed bravely and faithfully along the Democratic path which Henry George described for your guidance, and the ends which he most sought may yet be achieved. We offer you a candidate, and we promise you organized effort and enthusiastic service. We declare that the Henry George living today stands for all that the Henry George of yesterday, now passed from earth, stood for. He is pure in character, strong in intellect, great in ability and unflinching in courage. He is a Jeffersonian Democrat whose faith is as broad as that of the great leader to whose place he has been assigned. He trusts the people and believes the people will trust him and elect him."

Dr. McGlynn reached the Union Square hotel shortly before 11 o'clock. The dispatch which summoned him merely announced that a "dear friend" was dead; but bearing in mind his premonitions and the premonitions that Henry George had confided to him, he concluded rightly that his great associate in the single tax battle of other years had expired. He took the first train from Newburg, and, arriving at the hotel, was met in the corridor by Henry George, Jr. When he was taken into the room where his friend lay dead he burst into tears. The scene was a distressing one.

Afterward he said: "Henry George died as Abraham Lincoln died. Lincoln was assassinated just after his great work of saving the Union was consummated. It was said that he was mercifully spared the petty annoyance and bickerings of the reconstruction period. Henry George was struck down by fate in the zenith of his power, but the great work that he inaugurated will go on. As a man, as a philosopher, it will be long before his like will be seen again. His goodness and gentleness singled him out among all men and, with others, I almost worshipped him."

When Dr. McGlynn was able to think calmly over his recent intercourse with the dead man he recalled that his friend had frequently expressed to him his premonitions that his end was approaching, and had used language that he now saw indicated a presentiment that he would not outlive his campaign.

Henry George was born on Sept. 2, 1839. He received a common school education and then went into a counting room. He was also a sailor and later learned the printer's trade. In 1858 he reached California, where he worked at the printer's case until 1866, when he became a reporter and afterwards editor, working at different times on the San Francisco Times and Post.

He returned to New York in 1880 and went to England and Ireland the following years, where he was twice arrested as a suspect, but afterwards released when his identity was established. Mr. George is best known to the world at large through his writings upon economic questions, notably his work entitled "Progress and Poverty," published in 1879. His other works are "Our Land and Land Policy," 1871; "Irish Land Question," 1881; "Social Problems," 1883; "Property in Land," a controversy with the Duke of Argyle, 1884; "The Condition of Labor," an open letter to Pope Leo XIII, 1891; and "A Perplexed Philosopher" (Herbert Spencer), 1892.

In 1886 Mr. George was nominated by the United Labor party for mayor of New York, polling 68,000 votes, against 90,000 for Abram S. Hewitt, the Democratic nominee, and 60,000 for Theodore Roosevelt, now assistant secretary of the navy, Republican.

Mr. George's Early Days.

San Francisco, Oct. 30.—The news of the death of Henry George created profound interest here, where he was well known. Mr. George, as editor of The Evening Post of this city, which paper he founded, was a prominent factor in California affairs many years ago, and his career since he left this city has been watched with interest. He had a large number of followers in this state who believed in and advocated his single tax theory.

Mr. George first came here in 1857 on board the United States ship Shubrick, of which he was purser's clerk. His cousin, James George, was established here. His first employment was in the capacity of laborer in a rice mill, but in 1858, when the Frazer river excitement started, his cousin and O. F. Griffin opened a miners' supply house in Victoria and sent Henry up to conduct it. Six months later, however, he returned to this city and started a small weekly known as The Home Journal. It was not a success, and he went to work as a compositor. In 1860 he married Annie C. Fox and shortly afterward went to Sacramento. He soon returned and began to write for the local papers. His work on The Examiner led to his appointment as editor on The Chronicle, but he soon left that paper and started another weekly known as The State. A few months later he was sent east as correspondent of The Daily Herald. He returned here in 1868 and, after working for several local papers, started The Evening Post. He disposed of this four years later and was appointed by Governor Irwin as inspector of gas meters, an office which he held for about four years. Meantime, during his leisure hours, he was at work on his book, "Progress and Poverty." He then went east and took up his permanent residence in New York.

Career of the Son.

New York, Oct. 30.—Henry George, Jr., was born in Sacramento, Cal., in 1862. He was educated in the public schools of San Francisco. He was early taken from school and put to work in a printing office, where he helped to set type for "Progress and Poverty." He came east with his father in 1880.

In 1883 he went to England as his father's private secretary. After his return he was employed for some time on the editorial staff of Truth, a daily paper published in this city. Afterward he was assistant to James Redpath when the latter became editor of the North American Review.

When The Standard was founded by his father as the recognized exponent of the single tax movement, he became managing editor of that paper, holding that position until 1891. Then he went to Washington as special correspondent for a number of western papers. In 1892 he spent six months in England as correspondent for several prominent dailies. Afterwards he became managing editor of the Jacksonville (Fla.) Daily Citizen, and later secretary to his father.

One of the Foremost Thinkers.

Logan, O., Oct. 30.—"I have just received a dispatch announcing the death of Henry George. The suddenness with which the summons came will make more keen the sorrow which the public generally will feel at the death of so great, so pure and so brave a man. By his own unaided genius he made his name familiar to the reading public of the world around. Those who agree with his theories found in him an ideal leader, while those opposed to him admitted his ability and moral courage. He was one of the foremost thinkers of the world. His death will prove a loss to literature, society and politics. W. J. Bryan."

A Great Man of the Age.

Indiana Mineral Springs, Ind., Oct. 30.—Ex-Governor Altgeld yesterday expressed himself as follows regarding the death of Henry George: "Henry George was one of the great men of the age, and he made a deeper impression on the economic thought of this country than any other man. He was true and patriotic, and always on the side of justice and struggling humanity. His fame will grow broader with time. Nationally the death of no one will affect the Democratic party."

Disadvantage to the Georgeites.

New York, Oct. 30.—A special meeting of the police board was held yesterday afternoon at which General Rodenbaugh, chief of the election bureau, said that he had heard that the question has been raised regarding the necessity of pasters for Henry George, it being argued that it would be unnecessary, as the names of the candidates were the same. The board decided that the pasters must be used, and the order for their printing will be given when the certificate of nomination is filed.

Proposition an Accomplished Fact.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Official confirmation has been given to the exclusive announcement made in these dispatches that the Bering sea conference had reached an agreement for the complete suspension or material limitation of pelagic sealing. The acceptance of Russia and Japan is even more positive than has been heretofore stated, and the delegates from these two countries accept the proposition, reserving only the right to communicate their action to their respective governments for the purpose of having it approved. This has been done by cable. In the meantime, however, the acceptances stand and the proposition is regarded as an accomplished fact.

Young Cleveland's Wardrobe.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 30.—Master Cleveland entered upon the third day of his life in this busy world this morning and celebrated one occasion by exercising his lungs to their fullest capacity. Yesterday long telegrams of congratulation poured in from cabinet officers, political leaders, party men and personal and professional friends of Mr. Cleveland. Mrs. Cleveland rested comfortably and listened with joyous pride to the new master of the mansion.

Cleveland, Jr., has an elaborate wardrobe, than which there is none finer in the land. Princeton society paid its respects to the new arrival yesterday, and everyone pronounced the boy an infantile Apollo.

Will Not Redeem Stamps.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Commissioner Forman of the internal revenue bureau has decided that unused case stamps for distilled spirits bottled in bond cannot be redeemed by the government. These stamps are issued to distillers for their own benefit and protection and have no relation to the collection of internal revenue tax. As the name of the distiller is printed on the stamps, they are not available for use by other parties, and hence the commissioner declines to redeem them at the government's expense.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. Good Afternoon.

They say Grover is satisfied, now that he has a son. Well, he has done well for his country since 1890.

The memory of President John Adams should be kept green with two birthday anniversaries each year. He was born on Oct. 19, 1735, but by the correction of the calendar it became Oct. 30. The name of Adams will ever be cherished.

The incident at the Wollaston depot Thursday evening was probably just what people have been waiting for rather anxiously and will make the most of. They don't want to see anyone killed or even injured but they are anxious to convince the railroad people that that fence is not a safeguard, and that it would be safer to alight on the west side of the track rather than upon the inward track.

Many Quincy ministers in the past have had very long pastorates in this city, and it is therefore a surprise to contemplate that a pastor installed as recently as 1890 is the oldest protestant pastor in service in the city; and he has resigned.

Judge Humphrey is indeed a veteran. For a man in his 79th year he has a remarkably clear head and he keeps well posted in the frequent changes of laws.

A taxpayer hopes that the reduction of water rates is not premature, and new takers may swell the income rather than reduce it. In view of the fact that a metropolitan water assessment of possible $25,000 may be assessed upon Quincy next year, it at first seems an unwise step, particularly as the income has never yet equalled an amount sufficient to pay the maintenance, interest and maturing bonds. To reduce the water rate and increase the general tax rate would not have a tendency to invite people to become property holders in Quincy.

Speaking of sewer assessments one is told that they will be levied to pay a certain portion of the COST of construction. Yet Section 13 of the Sewer Act provides that these assessments shall be used—

First,—for maintenance.
Second,—to pay interest.
Third,—to pay maturing debt.

The assessments levied must be paid within ten years, and may be paid in one, but only one-fourth of the sewer debt can be paid in ten years. Why should the abutters be called upon to pay two-thirds of the cost in ten years?

Where are the Ward Five people going to vote? The polling place designated is "Sherman's store known as the Bazaar, Newport avenue." The store that was the Bazaar on the passage of the order is not the location of the Bazaar now, while the new location of the Bazaar is on Newport avenue and conforms the order. Perhaps George Fred will want the vote of this Ward thrown out if the empty store, formerly the Bazaar, is used.

ACADEMY GAMES.

Result of Sports Today by Adams Academy A. A.

The annual games of the Adams Academy Athletic Association in observance of founder's day were held on the Academy grounds this morning. The attendance was not as large as usual and not as good records were made.

This year handicaps were given in nearly all of the events which made them perhaps of more interest although in some cases the handicaps were hardly correctly given.

The first event was a 75-yard dash which was run in four heats and resulted as follows;

First heat won by Cilley, (2 yards), time 8 1-2 seconds.

Second heat, won by Kent, (scratch), time 8 1-2 seconds.

Third heat, won by Burchsted, (2 yards); time 9 1-2 seconds.

Fourth heat, won by Taylor, (scratch); time 9 1-2 secohds.

Final heat, won by Taylor, time 8 1-2 seconds.

Potato race, won by Sheahan, with Anderson second.

Putting the shot. There were eight entries for this event and in the trial the three to qualify were Kent, Cashman and Burchsted. The final throw was won by Kent, (8ft.); distance, 32 feet 5 inches.

220 yards dash, won by Donaher, (12 yards); distance 141 feet, 8 inches; Mueller second; Bennett third.

Running broad jump, won by Taylor, (scratch); distance 16 feet. Kent, (1 ft.) second with 15 feet, 10 inches. Bennett, (2 ft.) third, with 15 feet 7 inches.

75 yards hurdle race—First heat won by Manning, (scratch); time 10 1-4 seconds; Bennett, second.

Second heat won by Tate (8 yards,) 12 1-2 seconds Burchsted second.

Final heat between Manning, Bennett, Tate and Burchsted, won by Manning, time 10 1-2 seconds.

Hammer throw, won by Manning, (scratch), 99 feet, 2 inches, Cilley (15 ft.) second, 96 feet, 9 inches. Burchsted (27 ft.), 90 feet 10 inches.

Three-legged race won by Burchsted and Hatch; time 12 1-2 seconds.

Running high jump. This event resulted in a tie between Manning and Kent, both scratch men; distance 4 feet 9 inches.

Quarter mile run. This was the final event and was won easily by Taylor; time, 1 minute, 14 1-4 seconds.

The judges were W. R. Tyler, W. B. Holden, B. F. Linfield, G. B. Gavin and C. A. Howland, Jr.

Foot Ball Players Hurt.

Leslie W. M. Smith of No. 6 Packard's lane, and Wallace Todd of Blake street, Wollaston Park, employes at the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co,'s works while playing foot ball yesterday noon at Wollaston, came into violent collision with each other, both striking just over the right eye. Each sustained a bad cut from which the blood flowed freely. They were taken to Dr. Adams office and had their wounds dressed. The doctor put three stitches in Smith's cut and five in Todd's. While their injuries are not dangerous they won't feel obliged to wake up their mothers and ask, "what makes my headache?"

Young "Billy" Eaton who was injured Oct. 9 on the same grounds, playing, or fighting, foot ball, is slowly recovering and expects to be able to go to work in about three weeks. "Billy" has a bad arm and shoulder to nurse.

City Hall Telephones.

Some important changes are to be made in the telephone service at City Hall. The only instrument now in the building is in the City Clerk's office, and as there are more calls for the other departments than the city clerk it has become quite a nuisance. To remedy this the main telephone will be placed in the City Treasurer's office and a portable desk set will be located on the City Clerk's desk and also one in the Commissioner's office. With this arrangement when City Hall is called the clerk in the Treasurer's office will answer and will notify the department wanted by an electric bell.

State Highways.

The Metropolitan Highway Commission will hold a public hearing for Norfolk County "for the open discussion of question relating to the public roads," in the court house at Dedham next Monday, at 11 o'clock A. M. Why are such hearings not properly advertised? How about a State highway of Washington street?

Cars Discontinued.

On and after Nov. 1st, cars on the Houghs Neck route will be discontinued. Per order,

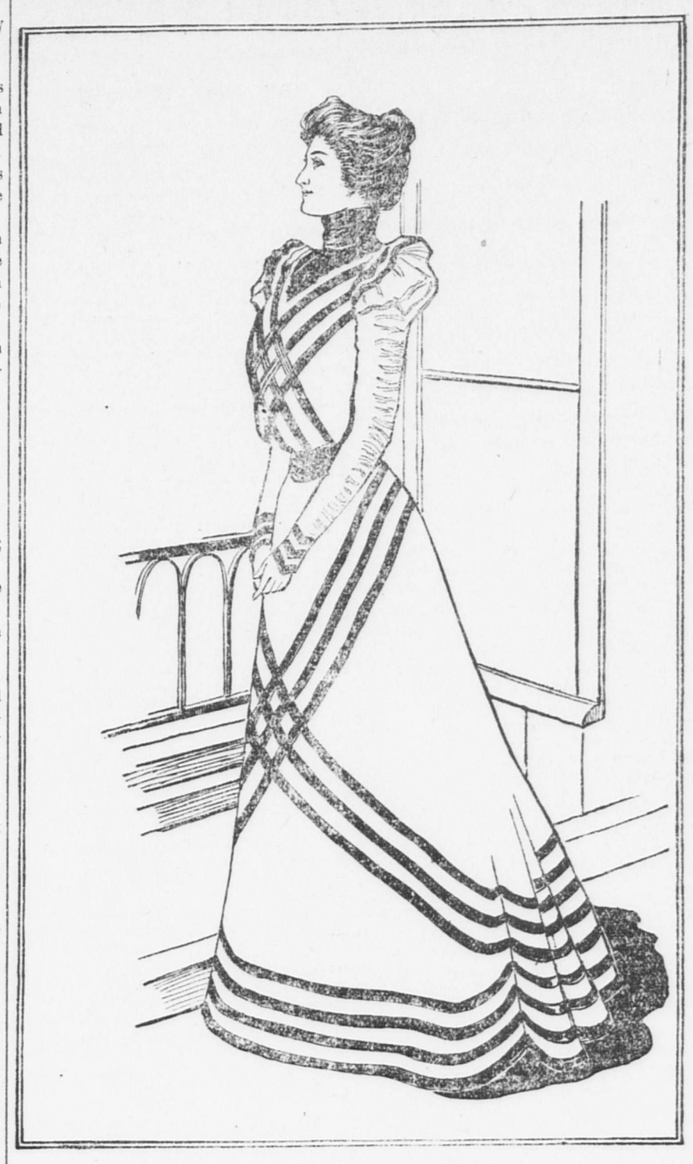
OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.



CASHMERE HOUSE GOWN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

The satin-finish cashmeres are extremely fashionable this season, and are made up in most graceful costumes. Velvet ribbon is often used for trimming, and is most effective against the light grays, reseda greens and new shades of blue.

A gown that meets with general favor, and is particularly suitable for home wear, is the model shown in our fashion cut, which has the waist made with a small, perfect-fitting yoke of black velvet and a high collar, also of velvet. Directions for cutting the skirt, waist, and sleeves are given in the tissue-paper patterns sold by Harpers's Bazar, where this costume appears. The blouse front, which hangs over the belt, is trimmed with crossed bands of black velvet ribbon, while the sleeves, which are tight-fitting, have ruffles at the top and a flaring point at the wrist. On the skirt is the same arrangement of black velvet ribbon, forming a regular design. The skirt is cut to train slightly, and is larger on the hips and in front than a walking-skirt is now made. This gown can be made in other materials, such as silk, poplin or bengaline, but it looks best in cashmere, and if an inexpensive quality of silk is used the costume will come within the means of most women and still be a gown in the very latest mode.

PAINE AND SLADE.

Democratic Rally at Hancock Hall Thinly Attended.

Less than a hundred attended the Demoratic rally at Hancock hall Friday evening. The hall was cold, for the fire in the furnaces had gone out and there was but little enthusiasm.

Fred F. Green presided and the two speakers were Robert T. Paine, Jr., and James H. Slade.

Mr. Paine said that the Democratic party meant rule of the people. Events justify the platform adopted at Chicago, and all signs pointed to the election of Bryan in 1900. The Republicans who are in power can adopt many measures for the benefit of the people if they wished, but he believed they would not. The country was in great danger of trusts. Corruption prevails in our legislature and municipal councils, which comes from the large corporations. There were two remedies: first, by putting better men in office, and secondly, by municipalization. These steps of progress were sure to come.

James H. Slade the second speaker devoted nearly an hour to replying to the statements made by President Graham of the street railway at the City Council public hearing and in advocating municipal ownership. He commenced by stating that what Mr. Graham had said about Glasgow was unqualifiedly untrue. The American system today is pay for what you get. Why should a man pay for riding six and one-half miles when he only desires to ride one mile. Quincy should receive a fair return for the franchises she grants. He then compared the earnings of a man in Glasgow and one in Quincy, and the cost of living in each, which caused Mr. Faxon to ask, "Why do so many of them come here then."

Mr. Slade replied for the same reason that men are going to Klondike today.

Continuing Mr. Slade advocated the municipal ownership of electric lights, telephone and street railways.

In closing, the speaker said that prosperity would not come to us until the cost of living is reduced by getting rid of these trusts that are plundering you. When a man's earnings exceed his expenditures. Not until you get rid of tariff so that you can trade with other countries on fair and free terms.

Shakesperian Recital.

Mr. Edgar C. Abbott, gave a recital of Shakespeare's play of Julius Caesar in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church Thursday evening. Unlike most of the readings of this kind, Mr. Abbott uses no notes, having memorized the whole play; he held the closest attention of the audience from the opening to the close of his remarks. Mr. Abbott has made a special study of Shakespeare's plays, and his rendering has been compared to that of Booth and Barrett. The audience was not large, but thoroughly enjoyed the highly realistic interpretations of Mr. Abbott.

Quincy Music Hall Scenery.

The scenery for the new Music hall is to be very nice, the "act drop" is a scenery on the River Rhine, showing the Ehrenbreitstein castle on the right and Coblenz on the left. The castle was beseiged by the French in 1688 but their efforts were unsuccessful. Later in 1799 the French after 14 months succeeded in its capture, but two years later on leaving blew it up. The scene represents the ruins. Later, on about 1814, Prussia restored it to its original condition. It is a very pretty picture and worth seeeng.

Quincy High shows Hingham High How to Play.

The High school foot ball team won a decisive victory over Hingham High, at the Park, yesterday, defeating them 18-0.

Quincy kicked off, and Hingham advanced the ball to Quincy's 25 yard line. Here they fumbled and Magnuson picked up the ball. Aided by fine interference by Foss he ran 85 yards and score a touchdown. He kicked the goal, and the score was, Quincy, 6; Hingham, 0.

Hingham kicked off and held Quincy for downs at the middle of the field. A trick netted them 10 yards. Several short rushes, and a good run around Quincy's left end brought the ball to the 15 yard line, where a good tackle by Foss saved a touchdown. In this play the Hingham half-back was injured and had to leave the game. Hingham tried to fill his place with an outside man, but Quincy objected to this. After a long dispute Hingham put on a regular substitte and the game began again. Quincy's blood was up, and she held Hingham for downs. Then she rushed the ball back to Hingham's 25 yard line where she had it when time was called.

For the second half Quincy showed what she could do. Hingham kicked off, and Magnuson punted well. Quincy held Hingham for downs, and good rushes by Scharnagel, Barry and Magnuson brought the ball to the 1-yard line. Magunson carried it over for a touchdown and kicked a goal. Quincy, 12; Hingham, 0.

Hingham kicked off again, and Quincy brought the ball back to the middle of the field. Here Magnuson punted well. Hingham tried to punt, but Magnuson was through and blocked the kick. Wales secured the ball and ran over the line for Quincy's third touchdown. Magnuson kicked the goal. This ended the scoring, and when time was called Quincy had the ball in the centre of the field.

The Quincy team lined up as follows: Wales, r. e.; Pendis (Dorley,) r. t.; Lewis r. g.; McDonald, c.; Marnock, l. g.; Ford,, l. t.; Briggs, l. e.; Foss, q. b.; Magunson, . h. b.; Barry, l. h. b.; Scharnagel, f. b.;

Touchdowns: Magnuson (2), Wales (1). Goals: Magnuson (3). Referee: Taylor. Lineman: Howland. Time: 15 and 20 minute halves.

A. G. DURGIN,
DRUGGIST.

THE LATE R. CRUSOE, ESQ.,

was a good deal of a discover in his way, and both before his time and since there has been an insatiable thirst, on the part of many people, to penetrate the depths of the unknown.

Along with a good deal of highly useful investigation has gone not a little of the "fake" variety.

A favorite "discovery" with the latter gentry has been how to obtain something for nothing.

To this end they have devised all sorts of schemes, and for a time they have succeeded in deluding a good many people.

The inevitable crash, however, has slowly taught the lesson that in order to obtain a good article a fair price MUST be paid for it—or else disaster will overtake SOMEBODY.

In the grocery business, as we conduct it, we use every effort to buy our goods at the lowest possible prices, and we sell them on an extremely close margin.

We supplement these two things with courtesy, cleanliness, accuracy of statement and prompt delivery.

We see the results in our daily increasing business.

TALK OF THE CITY.

Ground was frozen this morning for the first time this year.

Goss & Gould moved into their new store in Tirrell's block last night.

The Wollaston Golf club was an easy winner in the match played on Saturday, by 22 up to 2.

It is 45-cent day at Derby's clothing store and he makes an attractive display of goods offered at this price.

Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., is arranging for a grand fair to be held the middle of December, at which they will give away $250 in presents.

Fratus who is bowling with the McCarthy's this year, made a phenominal spare at the game last night, knocking the pins on the 6, 7, 8 and 10 spots.

The water encountered in digging the sewer trench on Cottage avenue caused a suspension of the work but a steam pump is now upon the scene, and work is again progressing.

Now Atlantic and Squantum people don't like it because the street cars are to be discontinued for the winter. It is said an effort is being made to keep them running.

Quincy is to be congratulated upon the completion of a large and handsome hall. It has long been needed and will doubtless prove a profitable investment for the promoters.—Braintree Observer.

Nominations for city election must be filed on or before Nov. 24, and not on the date which a typographical error made the Ledger say the other day. The election this year will not take place until Dec. 7.

Quincy still has an interest in the City bowling league of Boston, as the McCarthy team is composed wholly of well known Quincy players. Again in their second match last night they won, defeating the Nobles 2267 to 211. J. Fratus bowled 478, Peverley 451, Dunn 393, Ross 521 and Garbett 429.

There was a large number of entries and some very goods scores in the open tournament of the Wollaston Golf club on Saturday. R. B. Porter of Quincy made the best gross score, (87), but large handicaps put four others ahead of him on the net score, and Messrs. Royce, Freeman and Wright were tied for first place with 83.

Goss & Gould opened up today in their new store in Tirrell's block. This new firm has met with good success since its opening some months ago in the G. A. R. building and with the present attractive store and the addition of a meat department it promises to be more prosperous. They serve coffee this evening.

A very pleasant party was held at the residence of Mrs. George Rose, 54 Billings street yesterday afternoon, the occasion being her 24th birthday. A reception was held from to 3 5, during which time Mrs. Rose received her many friends and provided for them music and refreshments. Mrs. Rose received many pretty presents. Some of those present were: Rev. J. H. Whitaker, Mrs. Theodore Parker, Mrs. George W. Hill, Mrs. Walter Hill, Mrs. George DeHuff, Mrs. Coombs, Mrs. Crocker, Mrs. Blanchard, Mrs. M. B. Macleod Mrs. George A. Brown, Mrs. C. W. Larrabee, Miss Dora Brown, Miss Liza Martin and Miss Emma Askew.

"A Prisoner for Life."

Shuman corner is daily becoming a more interesting spot to the shoppers. A. Shuman, the promoter of this enterprise, is ever on the alert for novelties, or something new that will interest his patrons.

On the street floor, in the juvenile or "little men's" department, they will see on exhibition a magnificent life-size oil painting by America's world-renowned artist, Mr. Alexander Pope. It is entitled "A Prisoner for Life," and represents a full-grown lion 8 1-2x7 feet. The picture is intensely realistic and the onlooker at first involuntarily recoils in fright, so well has the painter depicted the ferocious and untamable expression of this king of the forest. Moreover, the location of the picture, situated as it is in a corner of the store and revealed only by a dim gas light, makes one shudder at the thought that nothing but the frail iron bars separates him from the monarch of the jungle. The picture, which has been on exhibition for over a year, continues to be the centre ot attraction, and has added still more if that were possible to the fame of the great painter.

Below in the basement Sir Chanticleer gazes curiously from the canvas at the visitor. This is another triumph of the artist's genius, and even the tag which reads for sale is so cleverly painted that nothing but a very close inspection reveals the artifice.

Another painting which commands universal admiration is the life-size portrait of General Grant, which stands at the head of the flight of stairs leading up to the second floor. This picture is a masterpiece by the well-known artist, C. Exsergian, and was painted at the time of the general's death. It is declared by all who have seen it to be the finest representation in existence of America's dead hero, and as much, if not more, admiration is bestowed upon this great work as on the "Prisoner for Life."

☞ The finest line of comforters and blankets and lower prices than it has every been your good fortune to examine; that's little perhaps, but our low prices from 50 cents up, is something perhaps. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send to circulars and testimonials. Address,

POMPEY AT THE ZOO.

Said Pompey to himself one day:
My friends go to the zoo,
But still they never seem to think
Of taking Pompey too.

It's strange, because I can't be called
A cur of low degree;
Few dogs are washed and brushed and combed
And furbished up like me.

So, just this morning when I woke
And heard my mistress say:
"Now, Jane, I'm going to the park,
And Pompey, too, today,

"So comb and curl him up with care;
A silken ribbon tie
About his pretty neck, so he
With other dogs may vie,"

Thought I: "No, no, my lady fair.
That plan may suit for you,
But not for this here dog, who means
To run off to the zoo!"

Well, when we reached the park I tore
Myself adrift at once
And to the zoo I ran with speed
(For Pompey's not a dunce).

So here I am, my friends, and, oh,
It is a pretty place!
But what an ugly brute I see,
With such a frowning face.

A lion, is he? Welladay!
I'd fight him with good will,
For though he may be brave enough,
Yet Pompey's braver still.

This other chap—my, how he grins
And leers at little me!
I expect he is a cunning one.
Well, well, I'll let him be.

Oh, my, I see a keeper there
Close by the open wicket!
He's sure to catch a hold of me
And call out, "Where's your ticket?"

And so I think I'd best be off
The very way I came.
I know whatever comes to pass
That I'll not get the blame,

For mistress never thinks that I
Can do an evil thing.
No, no. She'll lay the blame on Jane
And make her ears to ring.

Well, well, poor Jane's the greatest goose
That lives beneath the sun.
But, then, we cannot all be dogs.
I'm glad that I am one. —L. S.

FEAT OF A SPIDER.

How It Raised a Kernal of Corn to the Ceiling.

Not long ago a spider set out to lift a kernel of popped corn from a dish in a chair to an electric light wire on the ceiling. It descended on the kernel by spinning a cable of the necessary length. It was evident, however, that when the spider hoisted the load clear from the dish its uneven weight would cause it to lop to one side so suddenly as to probably snap the cable. To prevent such an accident the spider attached two smaller sized cables to projecting parts of the kernel and made them fast to the main cable about five inches above the burden.

All being ready, the spider returned to his headquarters and started its windlass, and the kernel began to rise. That was the situation when I first discovered what was going on. After getting the corn up about a foot work was suspended for a time. The spider had begun to mistrust some of the machinery. It made an investigation, repaired a slight break or two above in the guys and then slid down to the corn. Everything there was all solid, but the engineer thought prudence a mark of wisdom and doubled up the cable where the main weight was seen to hang. This was 11 o'clock on Tuesday night, and, with a more cheerful air of confidence than it had before displayed, the spider ran lightly aloft to the hoisting apparatus. The machine started, and so did the corn. Inside of a minute the corn was raised at least four inches. Then there was another delay, which was only short.

At midnight on Tuesday the corn had risen two feet. At daylight on Wednesday it was up 36 inches. There it seemed to stick. All day Wednesday only slight progress was made, though the spider never relaxed its efforts. Sometimes the burden even receded. Then there was a series of jerks, but the machinery overhead seemed to slip a cog, and no headway was made. Late on Wednesday night operations were temporarily suspended, and the spider retired to its inner chamber for contemplation. Thursday was spent in the completion of further plans or in rest, and the work rested where it had stopped on Wednesday night. Friday morning the spider went up and down the main cable time and time again, apparently mending it and finally succeeded in drawing it to the ceiling.

THE HEDGEHOG.

A Good Word For a Funny Little Animal. Finding Its Food.

Few young people have a good idea of the shape and appearance of a hedgehog. When we break the name into two parts, we see the first tells us of its habits. The hedgehog is a wild animal which, if we come upon it at all, we shall be likely to find running along a bank under a hedge. The other half, hog, means that he is piggish, in shape at least if not in greediness. Although he has had a bad character given him for a long time, he does not quite deserve what has been written against him. If he has faults, he has good qualities, too, and may be made useful.

The mother hedgehogs take great care of their blind little ones, for they do not see till a week old. At first they are not spiny, but are covered with rough hair. Their cry to the mother is shrill and rather like the note of a child's whistle. The nest is in some hole, and it is their usual habit to sleep through the winter rolled up snug and warm. When kept in confinement, they do not sleep as soundly as when in the wild state, but wake up now and then between autumn and spring, wanting then somthing to eat. This torpid state in winter shows that they feed chiefly upon insects, which, of course, are not to be had in cold weather except by digging. At any time of the year hedgehogs seldom go out hunting during daylight.

When it is needful to protect himself from dogs or other foes, the hedgehog has a plan of his own, and an excellent one too. Some animals run away from their enemies, or they hide themselves. Some try to fight them. The hedgehog forms himself into a prickly ball and waits till his enemy is tired of rolling him about. In the spines of the hedgehog we see there is lightness as well as strength. The inside of each spine is elastic, and each fits into a muscle which lifts or lowers it. Owing to its spines a hedgehog can jump from a height of 10 or 12 feet without being hurt. People sometimes speak of hedgehogs as if they were slow quadrupeds, but their pace is really quick. They are fond of water, and float upon it with delight. When tamed, a hedgehog will let himself be washed, and if he knows the person he lowers his quills so as not to hurt the hand of the washer.

Some folk have said that hedgehogs suck the milk from cows, but that is really an impossible thing for them to do. Also they have been accused of sucking the eggs of poultry, but this is doubtful. A gentleman who kept one a good while tried him with eggs of all sizes, but he would not touch any of them. A hedgehog has been caught in the act of feasting himself upon a store of apples in a barn, and some of these animals must plead guilty to killing young rabbits or birds which come within reach. Insects, snails and such 'small fry' are their chief food. If a hedgehog gets hold of a soft insect, he bites it up at once. Should it be hard, he steadies himself and holds the insect in his paws to nibble at it slowly. One of the good things which the hedgehog does is that it kills vipers. When these come in the way, there is a tough fight between the quadruped and the snake, but the hedgehog always conquers, for he is well protected from the sting.

People sometimes keep hedgehogs in their houses or in gardens for the purpose of destroying insects which may be numerous and troublesome, such as the common black beetle or cockroach. A hedgehog, if kept in the house, must be provided with a box to shelter in, having inside a lining of hay or paper shavings. He will eat up scraps from the table or even relish bits of bread soaked in milk, learning to come when he is called. Some have even succeeded in making a hedgehog quite a pet, but of course, as he may have a fancy for seizing a bird, it is well to take care that he has not the chance of getting at any favorites in the house or of visiting the chickens in the poultry yard.

Chances of Life.

The following table is one that is used by the London assurance companies, showing the prospect of life at various ages. It is the result of years of careful calculation, and is said to seldom prove misleading or incorrect. Of course sudden and premature deaths, as well as lives unusually extended, occasionally occur, but this is a table of average expectancy of life of the ordinary man or woman: A person 1 year old may expect to live 39 years longer; of 10 years, 51; of 20 years, 41; of 30 years, 34 longer; of 40 years, 28; of 50 years, 21; of 60 years, 14 more; of 70 years, 9; of 80 years, 4.

The other day a dinner was given in Johannesburg by two of the reformers to those who were associated in their humiliation of last year. The menu was headed by a photo of the judge who presided over the trial, the serviettes were inclosed in handcuffs, and, as a prelude to the usual dainties, the mealie meal porridge, cooked in water, as served out in prison, was served round, the band playing a solemn funeral march. After that the banquet proceeded in a most satisfactory style. This anniversary is intended to be kept yearly till the roles are reversed.

HE SAVED MANY LIVES.

An Early Morning Ride Prevented a Number of Paris Green Poisoning Cases.

With hundreds of lives trembling in the balance recently, George Sober mounted a bicycle and after an exciting run of six miles reached Shamokin, Pa., in time to organize a body of men, who ran from house to house warning people not to drink the morning's supply of milk delivered by Sober Bros. A fiend, prompted by revenge, had poured a lot of paris green into the milk cans, in addition to feeding the Sobers' cattle with the deadly stuff. Two of the cows died as the bicyclist sped on his errand.

The Sober brothers have a fine herd of 33 cows, and milk from their dairy is sold exclusively to local customers. At 3 o'clock in the morning the family arose and commenced the day's work. On going to the barn they found the wagon shed in a state of wreck. Further examination revealed that the best two cows on the farm, each valued at $150, were dying from poison. Paris green in great quantity was found in the mangers, mixed with wheat bran.

Some time after Mr. Sober and the driver had left on their trip those employed about the dairy began to clean the empty cans, as is customary, for the next morning's milking. On taking off the strainers they found paris green beneath. They at once realized the deadly peril of the customers and dispatched George Sober on his bicycle to Shamokin. The young man rode at a breakneck speed and was nearly exhausted when he reached his destination. Fortunately no one had used the milk before he arrived, but many narrow escapes were reported.—Philadelphia Record.

SHORT CYCLING NOTES.

The L. A. W. now has 100,000 members.

More multicycle races would be welcomed by the public.

The Philadelphia Inquirer wants the ten seater called a "decahedron."

On a bad or narrow road always make room for the heavier vehicle.

It is often sheer cruelty to allow a small dog to attempt to follow the bicycle.

One good errand boy with a bicycle can do more work than three errand boys afoot.

The league members of Maryland are preparing to make themselves felt in the next legislative fight.

The old English Cyclist continues to fire hot shot toward the camp of the American industry, but its aim is bad.

The professional cycle thief is an excellent judge of wheel values, never taking a cheap machine if a better one is at hand.

A Pennsylvania rider who is burdened with the name of Steinznickle has nevertheless ridden upward of 75 centuries this season.

Possibly it may be silly to carry pet dogs on bicycles, but so thorough is the apparent enjoyment of the dog that one can only smile approval. — American Cyclist.

A Tricycle Patrol.

In Dayton, O., the police department has adopted a novel patrol wagon. It consists of a tricycle, the front and rear seats of which are occupied by police officers, while the third seat is reserved for the prisoner. This seat is furnished with handcuffs, and on the axle is a pair of stirrups, with locks to clasp the feet of the prisoner. The advantages of the machine are obvious, since better time can be made with it than with a patrol wagon and horses, and not only the initial cost, but the maintenance of the machine, is, of course, far less than that of a patrol wagon and team.

When a call for the police comes in, two officers spring to the saddles and pedal away to the place. If a drunken man or an unruly customer is to be handled, he is speedily placed on the seat, and his wrists and ankles are bound with the steel clasps. He is thus rendered harmless, since he can neither interfere with the progress of the machine nor trouble the policemen. The tricycle is peculiarly adapted to a small city, where riot calls are infrequent and not more than one prisoner is often arrested at a time.—Rochester Post-Express.

Drawn by a Kite.

The kite craze has apparently struck Nunda, N. Y., to stay. All kinds of experiments are being made with kites, and they have been used to furnish motive power by some enthusiasts. Among the experimenters is Professor W. M. Robinson, who was at one time principal of the Nunda High school. He made a five foot kite so as to combine the greatest amount of strength with the least possible weight. The braces are made of thin bars of aluminium, and over this is stretched a very tough fiber of linen paper. Professor Robinson mounted his bicycle on a recent afternoon, and, taking the kite with him, started out for a spin. There was a strong wind, and, aided by his kite, he went along at a good rate of speed.—New York Sun.

Be Careful, Young Woman!

It really does seem that today the young woman who does not ride is the object of curious inquiry and commiseration even. She is not living up to her privileges as a modern, normal girl, and her old fogyism is unpardonable. She must drop into line, master a machine and join the ranks of merry cyclists or her set will leave her far behind, "shelved," as it were, while they spin on in the sunshine of life and masculine attention.—American Cycling.

Good Market In Africa.

Africa, with its 200,000,000 inhabitants, will in time become a good market for the wheel. In fact, it is already so to some extent, as several English merchants barter machines for ivory or other valuable wares.—Referee.

DISHONESTY CHARGED.

Fierce Attack Upon West End Street Railway Magnates.

Accused by Mr. Williams of Falsifying Accounts.

Why Dr. Everett Is Not In Sympathy With the "New" Democracy.

Boston, Oct. 30.—Last night George F. Williams made no less than four speeches. His East Boston speech was substantially the same as those made later. He said in effect: "I would rather add 25,000 votes to the Democracy by presenting the great cause which is written in the Chicago platform than to be elected governor of Massachusetts. My friends, it is not so much what is written in that platform as it is the spirit that breathes in it. It is thought that at least the time has come to shake off from the body politic the false evils that have not only clung to it, but dominated it so many years; to set the ship of state straight on its course to do the will of the whole people. It may be that we have a mere veneer of freedom, and that under the veneer is bad stock. It may be that many of the splendid structures which we look upon are white sepulchers which, when thrown down, will expose dead men's bones and corruption."

Mr. Williams then made a plea for reduced fares on the West End railroad, saying: "I have charged that the accounts of that corporation have been persistently falsified, and now we have discovered within a few months that that corporation has been steadily rolling up a great surplus so large that a new company with a doubtful scheme for an elevated railroad could take that income out of the surplus profits of the corporation and be assured of a speedy profits out of the West End Street Railway company. In other words the officers of that company have deliberately falsified their accounts, and deliberately falsified in their statements before the legislature and legislatice committee."

DR. EVERETT'S REASONS.

Why He Cannot Affiliate With the Democracy of Mr. Bryan.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 30.—Brattle hall contained a large audience last night gathered to hear Dr. William Everett's exposition of the principles of the gold Democracy. John H. Corcoran presided, and Fletcher Dobyns made a short address before Dr. Everett was presented. The gubernatorial candidate said among other things: "The reason I do not stick to the Democratic party, so-called, is because the Bryan men went under the name of Democrats to introduce a system of politics which is fairly experimenting with American liberty, law and order, and the constitution of the United States. There is no doubt that our currency is not in a satisfactory condition, but the Republican party will not do anything to it. The legitimate division between the two parties is the division between conservatism and reform. Now the party that I represent, the gold Democracy, or national Democracy, call it anything you will, insists that the institutions of the country shall be preserved with needed reforms. Whatever we are, we desire to take hold of the present with the spirit of the fathers.

"I have a lack of trust in the Republican party because of its aristocracy and oligarchical disposition to favor certain classes. The new Democracy is still farther wrong because it favors class legislation of the very worse type. I believe in the reorganized Democracy. I believe in the preservation of American liberty and American equality. I am not a pessimist. I am not one of those men who think that the country is going to ruin or cannot stand great shocks. I am not afraid. If I was a pessimist I might be a Chicago Democrat, if I were a timid man I might be a McKinley Republican; but since I am neither, and yet am not afraid to look her faults in the face, therefore I am proud and honored to stand as I do the candidate of the men of the national Democracy."

Outdown In Fall River.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 30.—The print cloth report for this week does not show very satisfactory results, and the situation is calling forth considerable comment from stockholders, who have seized upon the opportunity offered by the annual meetings to criticise somewhat the methods in vogue here. The production has been normal, 230,000 pieces, and the sales have been comparatively light. For spot delivery the sales are 50,000 pieces, with 81,000 pieces disposed of for future delivery, a total of 131,000 pieces, a very small portion of which is regular cloths. The stock on hand has been increased 90,000 pieces. The market is dull at 2⅜ cents.

Manufacturers have come to the conclusion that the cost of production must be lowered if they are to compete with southern mills, and they have agreed upon a novel plan. It is nothing more or less than an appeal to the operatives to accept a cut of 10 per cent in wages. This plan is not generally approved by manufacturers, and there will be some dissenters to get in line before the plan is submitted to the labor unions for their consideration. The latter are not organized for the purpose of lowering wages, and if the matter is taken to them their attitude will be watched with interest.

At the meeting of the stockholders of the Merchants mill this week Captain E. P. Reynard argued in favor of a reduction of the treasurer's salary. He said that when he went to sea and a crew was forced to go on reduced rations the captain shared the hardship with the others. This represents the view taken by many stockholders in the various mills, although it is the first open challenge of the size of a treasurer's salary. The answer of the treasurer, Andrew Borden, was that a treasurer certainly earned his salary in hard times if not in good times.

Drowned Captain Benson.

Boston, Oct. 30.—The sad intelligence of the loss of the Boston brig Stacy Clark, and the drowning of the commander, Captain Isaac Benson, and First Officer Saunders was a shock to the owner of the vessel in this city and to the families of the men who were lost. The Stacy Clark was bound from Newport News to Charleston with a cargo of 600 tons of coal. She left Hampton roads on the 21st inst. and was caught in a terrible hurricane, which wrecked the vessel. The men took to the boat, which capsized as they were being rescued by the John Twohy, resulting in the drowning of the captain and mate.

Captain Benson was about 50 years of age, and resided at Waltham, where a widow and two grownup daughters survive him. Mate Saunders had been on the vessel only two months, and little is known of him other than he resided in Everett, where he leaves a widow.

The Stacy Clark was owned by Peter Starkey of this city, who places the valuation of the vessel at $8000. She was uninsured.

New Englander a Victim.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 30.—Dr. George S. Eddy of this city has received a telegram from a clergyman in New Orleans announcing the death in that city Wednesday morning of his son, George S. Eddy, Jr. The dispatch gives "yellow fever" as the cause of death, and states that the body was immediately interred; also that his wife is also suffering from the fever. Young Eddy disappeared in March last, after having forged his father's name to a check on the First National bank of this city for $400, which he cashed at the National Hide and Leather bank at Boston. Previous to going to Boston to work the young man was stricken with appendicitis while a student at the dental college of the university of Pennsylvania, and on recovering married the nurse who had taken care of him. He was about 25 years of age.

Universally Esteemed Editor.

Portland, Me., Oct. 30.—Colonel John M. Adams, editor and publisher of The Argus, who had been ill for some time at his home in Deering, passed away last evening. Colonel Adams was one of the oldest newspaper publishers in New England, had been one of the most influential men in Maine, and was universally esteemed. He was born in Rumford, Oxford county, Sept. 22, 1819, and was therefore over 78 years of age. Having contributed occasional articles to The Argus, Mr. Adams formed a liking for such work, and in 1857 became editor of the paper, and a few years later was its sole proprietor. Mr. Adams had always been an earnest friend of education and had served as county superintendent of schools. In politics he was a Democrat.

Firebug In Norwich, Vt.

Norwich, Vt., Oct. 30.—This town is in a state of ferment over the actions of a mysterious firebug. The author of the Norwich university fire is not yet under arrest, and now another sensation has been sprung. Hazen F. Batchelder found proof of an unsuccessful attempt to burn his barn. In the scattered hay beside the barn a box of matches had been ignited, but they had gone out before any damage was done.

Murder In Boston.

Boston, Oct. 30.—Antone Coloocia was shot and killed at 12:30 yesterday afternoon by his son, 18 years of age. The murder grew out of a quarrel between father and son over the treatment accorded a 15-year-old daughter by the former. The girl told her brother that their father had beaten her unmercifully the night before on account of staying out late. The murderer is at large.

Young People's Union.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 30.—At the annual meeting of the Baptist Young People's union of Massachusetts the following officers were chosen: President, H. T. Bailey, North Scituate; vice presidents, W. W. Main, Boston; W. C. King, Springfield; Rev. H. S. Johnson, Pittsfield; secretary, Rev. M. F. Johnson, Middleboro; treasurer, Vernon A. Field, Boston.

Designs on a Watchman's Life.

Portland, Me., Oct. 30.—Constable Fowler, night watchman at South Portland, while covering his beat Thursday night, was shot at by some unknown party. The bullet passed in front of him and imbedded itself in a building. This is the second time within a month that Fowler has been shot at. Who has designs on his life is a mystery.

Half-Witted Grave Robber.

Portland, Me., Oct. 30.—Joseph W. Rounds, a half witted youth, aged about 18 years, was arrested at Kennebunk for robbing the grave of Mrs. Roberts at Westbrook a short time since. He made a confession, saying he had been troubled by ghosts, who told him if he would dig up a dead body they would stop haunting him. Rounds was committed to jail for a hearing.

House and Barn Burned.

Brattleboro, Vt., Oct. 30.—Joseph M. Houghton's house and barn were burned in Guilford yesterday, causing a loss of $7000, with insurance of $5350. Several cows and other livestock perished. The fire is supposed to have been set by a tramp, who asked for a night's lodging, and who threatened revenge when he was refused.

Property For a Park.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 30.—The will of Isaac P. Hyde of Southbridge, after leaving a life interest in his estate to his widow, bequeaths his property on her death to the town of Stafford, Conn., for the purpose of a public park. The estate is valued at about $60,000.

Woman Robbed by Highwayman.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 30.—As Mary McDermott, who keeps a loan office in this city, was going to her home last night a man about 30 years of age jumped from an alleyway, struck her in the face and snatched her pocketbook, with which he ran away.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: "I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. G. Durgin.

Opening of Quincy Music Hall, Thursday, November 4.

Quincy's splendid New Music Hall will be opened on Thursday evening, November 4, by

THE BOSTON OPERETTA COMPANY,

a vocal organization of unusual strength. The company includes

MISS LOUISE GUZMANN, MISS HATTIE GODDARD,	Sopranos.	MR. J. F. HANSHUE, MR. J. F. McDEVITT,	Tenors.
MISS JENNIE PAINE, MISS HELEN DAY,	Contraltos.	MR. L. W. FLINT, Baritone. MR. W. W. NYE, Bass.

MR. ALMON FAIRBANKS, Pianist

Miss Guzmann has a clear, high soprano voice of wonderful flexibility. She will sing an exceptionally brilliant waltz song by Arditi, in the concert programme, and play the part of "Siebel" in "Faust", singing the beautiful flower song in "A Marriage by Lantern." She has a thoroughly congenial role as one of the widows looking for a rich husband.

Miss Goddard has a powerful, dramatic soprano voice of fine quality, which is especially adapted to the requirements of the role of "Margherite," while she is also happily cast in "A Marriage by Lantern" as the other widow. The "quarreling duet" in the operetta is capitally done by Misses Guzmann and Goddard.

Miss Day has a fine contralto voice, with the range of a mezzo-soprano. She will be heard in an interesting solo selection, and will sing the part of "Martha" in "Faust." It would be extremely hard to find a young lady better fitted to play the part of "Martha," her voice and stature being decidedly in her favor. Miss Day and Mr. Flint have a capital scene in the third act of "Faust." It is needless to say that they improve every opportunity for comedy in that scene.

Miss Paine has a full, low contralto voice of exquisite quality, which will be heard to excellent advantage as "Lisa" in "A Marriage dy Lantern."

Mr. Flint is conceded to have a splendid voice, capitally trained. He will sing the great "Torcador's Song," from "Carmen," and "Mefistofele" in "Faust," in each of which he is thoroughly admirable.

Mr. Hanshue has had a long experience on the operatic stage, having played many important parts in the famous Boston Ideal Opera Compaey, and for two years with the Castle Square Opera Company of Boston.

Mr. McDevitt has a fine tenor voice, and with Mr. Nye will be heard in the great sextette from "Lucia."

Cary's Concert Orchestra,

E. C. CAREY, Conductor,

Composed of some of Boston's representative musicians, will render several fine selections, and accompany the vocalists.

for those who will go today and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee as about ¼ the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with a great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of Mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O. builds up. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15c. and 25c.

It is probably true that no better talent has ever appeared in our town than that which was presented Tuesday evening, under the management of Mr. L. W. Thayer. It is to be regretted that there was not a larger audience for such an entertainment surely deserved a crowded house.

Castle Square Theatre.

The unvarying success which has attended the productions of the war dramas of the season at the Castle Square Theatre lends especial interest to the announcement of Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah" as the attraction at that house the coming week. Unusual attention has been bestowed upon the scenic and other stage effects by Messrs. Ansel Cook and Ben Craig, the great scene for the second and third acts, representing the Shenandoah Valley, being a faithful study from sketches made at the time of the historical occurrences depicted in the drama. The whole production will follow that known as "the greater Shenandoah" when the play was revived upon such an elaborate scale at the New York Academy of Music under the stage management of Mr. Charles Frohman and the personal supervision of the author. To add to the effectiveness, an entire company of infantry troops and one of cavalry, as well as a battery of artillery, will take part in the grand war pictures incidental to the producion. There are twenty-two in the cast, all old favorites. Following "Shenandoah" on Monday, November 8th, comes a production of "Capt. Swift."

—Whatever George M. Pullman may have done for the comfort of night travellers by rail, for which the travelling public generously paid him the many millions of dollars he left, his ideas of benevolence in creating a city for the residence of his thousands of workmen were as destitute of human sympathy as granite an as cold as the grave. A social being would as soon think of moving his family into one of the squares of the multiplication table. He was not allowed to own his house, in order that he might more easily become property himself.—Boston Courier.
